When it broke out in Mexico in 1946—the first time since 1929—hundreds of thousands of cattle were slaughtered and farmers compensated for their loss. By boat, aircraft, truck and automobile (agricultural technicians moved in on the infected areas, cleansing and sterilizing barns and equipment.

The fight against foot-and-mouth disease in Mexico still goes on.

The United States had its last outbreak in 1929. It was controlled. But so fearful are cattlemen of the possibility of a recurrence, that an emergency train stands ready in Chicago to be moved with vaccines and other emergency equipment to a contaminated area at a moment's notice

In Britain, the fight against foot-and-mouth has been continuing for years. The threat there is from Europe. Huge flocks of migrating birds, moving from Europe to Britain, sometimes carry the virus.

But the virus has invaded many other countries. Last year a federal survey showed that only Canada, the United States, New Zealand, Australia, Ireland and Scotland were free from the disease.

Dr. Thomas Childs, chief veterinarian for Canada, considers the disease comparable in deadly toll to an epidemic of bubonic plague.

Could be Disastrous

"Hitting hard and fast," he says, "an outbreak of this disease could be disastrous to the whole national economy."

When foot-and-mouth disease appears in hogs, lesions frequently occur on or above the snout. In rare cases, the muzzles of cattle are affected. In sheep, goats and deer, the feet are the most common site of the blister formation.

The disease is usually accompanied by a fever. The fever and difficulty in eating causes a rapid loss of flesh and a rapid slowing down of milk secretion. The udders often become inflamed and ruined by the formation of abscesses and sometimes cows become permanently crippled for milk production.

The inflammation of the feet may cause the horn to drop from the toes, producing lameness and permanent injury. Frequently, pregnant animals abort.

Labor Becoming More Favorable Towards Idea

London, Feb. 25—(CP)— Reports persisted today that opinion within the Labor party is becoming steadily more favorable towards the idea of British participation in a European army.

A proposal that support for a British contingent should be part of socialist policy is expected to be discussed at a party meeting tomorrow or Wednesday.

If accepted, such a policy would reflect a strong feeling within the party, which has always been tinged with pacifism, that the only possible way of enabling German rearmament to take place with safety is to "insulate" it with a British contribution.

Up to now the British government has vigorously resisted all overtures from the French for such participation, and many influential voices still oppose it. Strong socialist support for a change of policy might help wear down the opposition.

A section within the Conservative party is believed in favor of a British contingent. As a straw in the wind, Sunday newspapers published a letter from a Conservative member of parliament, Canadian-born Ted Leather, urging Britain to join the European army.

Leather, from Hamilton and Toronto came to London after the Second World War with the avowed purpose of becoming a politician so he "could try to do something about preventing future wars." In his current campaign to that end, Leather zealously preaches the cause of Atlantic union.

French Forces Announces First Major Retreat

Saigon, Indo-China, Feb. 25 (AP)—French forces last night announced their first major retreat in north Indo-China in 15 months—abandonment of the key highway centre of Hoa Binh and withdrawal of 20,000 soldiers into a much-shortened perimeter around Hanoi.

The French had said, after capturing Hoa Binh in mid-November, they would never let Ho Chin-Minh's communist led Vietminh guerrillas get it back. It was a key point on the Vietminh's north-south supply route.

But French commander Gen. Raoul Salan told reporters last night the battle-devastated town is no longer of strategic importance—partly because the communists had by-passed it on the west with roads over which communist China is pouring in supplies.

Along with the abandonment of Hoa Binh, French forces withdrew from Colonial route No. 6, the main supply channel to the town. This cut the Hanoi defence perimeter from 500 to 375 miles.

Salan said French and Viet Namese troops now are concentrated in the Red River delta around Hanoi, and this will be held as a beachhead until they can launch a big-scale offensive.

GIRL IS KILLED SEARCHING FOR MISSING SISTER

Father Thinks Both May Have Met With Foul Play

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., Feb. 25 (CP)—John J. Pollock, whose 24-year-old daughter Dorabelle was killed by a railway locomotive while apparently searching for a missing sister, said today both girls may have met with foul play.

Dorabelle died last night as the result of a fractured skull. She was found unconscious Saturday night at a Stamford township level crossing, eight miles from the Pollocks' Niagara township farm home.

Mr. Pollock discounted the police theory that she was struck by a diesel freight engine. He said doctors told him there were no bruises on her body apart from the skull fracture.

Meanwhile, police and the Pollocks had no explanation for the missing daughter, Violet, 20. Mrs. Pollock said Violet left the house about 4:45 p.m. Saturday "to get some air." Two hours later Dorabelle left in search of her.

Mr. Pollock said: "I can't help feeling there is some connection between Dorabelle's death and Violet's disappearance, and that they were together some time Saturday."

Mr. Pollock, a fruit farmer, said he had been told a car was stalled on the tracks not long before the freight train passed. But whether the two girls were in the car was unknown.

Police, however, said they have no report of a car stalled on the rails before the freight reached the crossing.

Mrs. Pollock said she was sure Dorabelle had a clue to Violet's whereabouts and was looking for her.

First Outbreak Recorded In Canadian History

Ottawa, Feb. 25. (CP)—Federal Agricultural officials said today that the current outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in South Saskatchewan is the first recorded in Canadian history.

"We know of no previous outbreak," J. G. Taggart, deputy minister of Agriculture, told a press conference.

About 40 years ago, quarantine officials uncovered a case of foot-and-mouth disease on an imported cow at the quarantine yards at Quebec City.

The Encyclopedia Britannica says that the disease was introduced into the United States by cattle from Canada in 1870. Federal agricultural officials said there is no record of this occurrence.

Charles J. Broley, Retired Banker, Now Foremost Authority on Eagles

By BEN SMITH

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 25 (AP)—A retired Canadian banker with time on his hands answered a call 14 years ago for a man to put bands on bald eagles so there would be more accurate information about the habits of the United States national bird.

Charles J. Broley of Delta, Ont., and formerly of winnipeg, knew nothing first hand about eagles when he took the unpaid job. He had never even been to Florida.

The job entailed struggling through miles of tangled underbrush and swamps in steaming weather,, climbing 100-foot, almost limbless trees, overcoming steel-clawed birds from a precarious perch.

At 72, Broley still spends five months a year in Florida, climbing those tall trees. He dodges rattlesnakes on the ground and eagle claws in the air, and little by little adds to the store of knowledge about the bald eagle.

His latest discovery—one which is worrying him considerably—is that great numbers of Florida eagles aren't laying eggs, or if they are, the eggs don't hatch.

[illegible] the peak of his eagle-[illegible] Broley had [illegible] active nests spotted in the 150 miles of west coast Florida between New Port Richey and Fort Myers. Last year there were only 25. This season he has found only 16 nests where eggs are being hatched.

Much of the decline is because eagles are being driven from their uusal ha[illegible] by advancing civilization.

Broley got into the work entirely by chance. In 1938 at a meeting of the Audubon Society in Washington, he was asked to try to band a few eagles when he went to Florida that winter.. None had ever been banded in Florida, one of their three big nesting concentrations, and only 70 in all North America.

Despite his lack of experience, Broley agreed to give it a try, and banned 44 eagles his first season. He now has banded 1,200, of which 112 have been recovered.

Scientists who got invaluable data from Broley's work recognize him as the world's leading authority on the bald eagle.

His only preparation for the tough eagle banding was playing a lot of lacrosse in his youth.

He doesn't get any pay or any expenses—not even a gasoline allowance. But as an honorary officer in the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service he has the full powers of any warden, including power of arrest.

Infected Herds Will be Rounded Up and Destroyed

Outbreak Will Cut Off Cattle Trade With U.S.

Ottawa, Feb. 25 — (CP) — A contagious animal infection in the Regina area was identified today by the agriculture department as the dreaded foot-and-mouth disease. The outbreak will cut off at least temporarily, Canada's multi-million dollar livestock trade with the United States.

Infected herds will be rounded up and destroyed. Farmers will be compensated for their losses. It has been estimated there are fewer than 400 animals now under quarantine and likely to be slaughtered immediately. These animals were on 24 different premises, all in the Regina area.

Canada has a total of 9,000,000 cattle and 4,500,000 hogs.

The department's announcement was made in the parliamentary press gallery. It was followed closely by one from Washington which said that an embargo has been placed on imports of cattle, hogs and other cloven-foot animals from Canada because of the outbreak.

Heavy Export Trade

Canada's exports to the United States last year totalled $130,000,000 in live animals and meats.

Under the U.S. tariff law, the embargo sometimes runs for about a year. That would virtually cripple Canada's livestock industry, valued by agricultural economists at more than $2,000,000,000.

An American agricultural observer now is in the infected area, which includes nine municipalities adjacent to Regina.

Foot-and-mouth disease is carried by a virus and attacks all exposed tissue, causing blisters on the mouth, tongue and on parts of the animal's hoofs. The animal usually slobbers, becomes lame and goes off its feed. It loses weight and becomes economically useless.

The department said the danger that human beings might contract the infection is "extremely remote," according to the best available medical advice.

It also said that the Canadian meat supply is not expected to be imperilled by the outbreak.

"Not unless the outbreak were allowed to get completely out of hand would the meat supply be noticeably affected," it added.

400 Under Quarantine

There were fewer than 400 animals now under quarantine and likely to be slaughtered immediately. These animals were on 24 different premises, all in the Regina area.

"What further number may become suspect will depend on the results of investigations now under way."

The department said conclusive evidence in support of the diagnosis of foot-and-mouth disease was reported yesterday by the Animal Pathology Labratory at Hull, Que.

So far the department said nothing has been reported to arouse suspicion that the disease has been carried to points outside of the Regina area. Quarantine measures taken will be continued and extended "in any way that seems calculated to reduce chances of the disease spreading and to detect it quickly if it does spread."

"Now that the disease has been definitely identified as foot-and-mouth, vigorous and immediate action is being taken to stamp it out."

Animals to be Cremated

This action consists of the slaughtering of all animals known to have had the disease or to have been in any way in contact with possible infection All animals destroyed will be cremated or buried deeply.

All premises known or suspected to have been contaminated will be cleaned, disinfected, quarantined and kept under close observation long enough to make sure no living virus of the disease is left.

The department said all necessary action to exterminate the disease will be taken at the expense of the government and all owners of livestock will be fully compensated for the value of animals destroyed.

Wherever it is necessary to take over premises or equipment to facilitate the work of exterminating the disease, the owners of such equipment or facilities will be paid "reasonable compensation."

Since it was impossible to foresee all difficulties which might have to be dealt with, the department said it expects that emergency authority will be given to its officers "to take whatever action may be needed on the spot."

290 REMOVED

Tokyo, Feb. 25 — (AP) — The government today removed 29 wartime leaders, some of them dead, from the list of war criminals. Among the dead cleared of wartime responsibility was Admiral Kantaro Suzuki, the premier who steered Japan to the surrender in August, 1945.

500 Scouts, Guides Attend Service In Colorful Parade

In one of the most colorful parades seen here in some time, upwards of 500 Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Brownies, Rover Scouts and Wolf Cubs attended church services Sunday morning.

Over 400 uniformed boys and girls with members of the congregation packed Bridge Street United Church to capacity while 75 others attended St. Michael's Church.

The parade and services were held to commemorate the birthday of the founder of the Boy Scout movement Lord Baden-Powell of Gilwell.

Brilliant weather favored the parade and officials in charge permitted the Scouts and Guides to doff their overcoats. The uniforms of the various groups made a colorful spectacle as the parade left the Bridge Street Armories, a few minutes before 11 o'clock.

District Commissioner and president of the Belleville Boy Scout Association, Archie Lewis, Regional Field Commissioner Arthur Jackson, Trenton, assisted by Assistant District Commissioners P. L. Allcorn and D. D. Allan with District Commissioner of Girl Guides Mrs. H. G. Amos in charge of the parade. Mrs. R. D. Arnott, divisional commissioner of the Girl Guides' Association was present.

Attend St. Michael's

Attending St. Michael's Church were the 3rd Belleville Cub Pack under Cubmaster W. H. Sweet; 3rd Belleville Scout Troop under Scoutmaster R. T. Wheeler and the Brown Owl No. 6 Brownie Pack under Mrs. R. Mulcahy.

The Rev. Duncan McTavish, minister of Bridge Street Church extended a warm welcome to the Scouts and Guides paying tribute to the Scout founder "that great man to whose influence and inspiration we owe this great movement" Mr. McTavish later gave an inspired address on the topic "Fences and Horizons."

Troop Leader Bob Langlois No. 4 Belleville Troop, read the scripture lesson. Six Scouts took the collection.

Following the service the parade marched to the armories where appreciation for the turnout was expressed by Commissioner Jackson.

Following are the various troops and packs with their officials who attended the services.

Church Filled To Capacity For Double Funeral

Tabernacle United Church was filled to capacity Saturday afternoon as a sorrowing community paid final tribute to Mr. and Mrs. William Harrison, who met death last week in a motor accident near Berwick, Pennsylvania. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Ray A. Rowley, minister of Tabernacle Church, who also conducted the committal services at Belleville Mausoleum, where entombment was made.

The floral tributes were beautiful and many, attesting to the high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Harrison were held in Belleville and district.

Friday evening The Bethlehem Shrine No. 11, Order of The White Shrine of Jerusalem, held a service for Mrs. Harrison with Mrs. Ethel Stewart, acting Worthy High Priestess and Mr. Arthur Archard, watchman of shepherds, in charge of the service. Assisting were Mrs. Helena Darvell, Mrs. Dorothy McGlashon, and Mrs. Barbara Reed.

The Belleville Lodge, A. F. and A. M. No. 123, held a service for Mr. Harrison with the following lodge officers taking part: W. M. Oakley H. Gough, assisted by Everett Smith, W. D. Embury, H. Macklem, D. Stewart and B. W. Youdale.

Bearers for Mr. Harrison were: Robert Boyce, Don Boyce, Ray Zufelt, John Moore, Norman Mantle and Jack Linton. For Mrs. Harrison the bearers were: William Gardner, John Thompson, William McGee, Arthur Nayler, Frank Moon and Cyril McMullen.

Abortive Attempt

Hamilton, Feb. 25 (CP) — Safe crackers made an abortive attempt to blast a safe in a food market early today. They were frightened off before they could set off the charge.

Police said there was sufficient homemade nitroglycerine in the safe to cause considerable damage to a city block.

Apparently they fled when a police cruiser investigated a report that three "suspicious men" were hanging around the area.

In their haste the yeggs spilled some of the explosive on the floor near the safe.

Police said they found a Sudbury newspaper at the scene.

Friends Honor Murray B. Davis Before Departure

Murray B. Davis, regional superintendent for the Brewers' Warehousing Company Ltd., in this city for the past six years, and one who has taken an active interest in the civic, community and service club work, leaves on Tuesday for Hamilton to take a higher post in the organization. He will become the resident manager of all Hamilton outlets and district manager of the Niagara Peninsula, which includes 24 outlets.

MURRAY B. DAVIS

Murray as he is popularly known among his many associates in the city started with the company in Haileybury and after serving for some time was moved to the audit and supervision staff at Toronto and after the division of the province into districts came to Belleville as regional superintendent. Immediately Murray came to the city he started to make friends and through his genial personality he has continued to hold them. He joined the Kinsmen Club, soon became director and after serving on the several committees his clubmates honored him with the presidency of the club. Last year he was named deputy-governor of No. 6 district for Kinsmen and has visited a number of clubs but his position will have to be filled here but no doubt Murray will continue active work in the Hamilton club.

Chairman of Project

His fellow club members some time ago started a swimming pool project and Mr. Davis has been one of the most active workers in the plan as chairman of the committee and there is no doubt Mr. Davis will be on hand this summer when the pool is officially opened. In sport Mr. Davis has been a most active supporter. He is an executive member of the Belleville Hockey Association and also the Belleville Baseball Association. He has also been an active member of the Bay of Quinte Country Club and the Belleville Club. In fraternal circles, Mr. Davis is a Shriner and a hard worker in the Shrine Club. His loss will be keenly felt in many circles of the city.

Recently a number of his personal friends gathered at the Queen's Hotel with Robert Hillmer, president of the Brewers' Warehousing Company Ltd., as an honor guest. Newton Wilbur was chairman of the dinner party and before breaking up Mr. Davis was presented with an eight MM camera with all the attachments, while the Belleville and District Hotelkeepers' Association presented him with a caddy cart. On Friday evening the local managers of the outlets with the staff from the warehouse gathered at the district office and presented the official with a hammered aluminum set for his den. George Whalen was the efficient chairman on this occasion. From his personal friends he received an engraved lighter from Orliff Lloyd.

Taken by Surprise

Murray was taken entirely by surprise at all these functions but expressed his thanks for the beautiful gifts and stated how much pleasure he had enjoyed being a resident of this "friendly City" for the past 6 years. "These have been the happiest moments of my life," said Mr. Davis and "I will never forget the many kindnesses that have been extended to me. If I have added anything to betterment of this city the work has been done in exchange for a wonderful appreciation from all concerned." Mr. Davis stated in closing that he would always consider Belleville as his second home.

Francis L. "Ted" Jones of Ottawa, who was formerly manager of the Kingston operation will take over his new duties in Belleville on Tuesday, while Norman Garbutt who has been manager of the local warehouse will become assistant district manager.

POLICE BLOTTER

Theft of a 1949 model car from the used car lot at Bateman's Motors on Pinnacle Street, was reported to city police Saturday evening. The car was thought to have been taken from the lot during the previous night.

A series of minor motor accidents was reported to police over the weekend. In two of the accidents damage amounted to slightly over $100 while in others only minor fender damage resulted.

Obituary

CHARLES BENJAMIN FAIRES

Following an illness of five days' length, Charles Benjamin Faires, Stirling, died in Hotel Dieu Hospital Kingston, on Saturday. He was in his 78th year.

Born in Suffolk, England, the son of Benjamin Faires and the former Maria Cullen, Mr. Faires served with the Royal Artillery from 1894 for 16 years, throughout the South African campaign, and with the 155th Battalion during the First World War. He was a member of St. John's Anglican Church and of the Canadian Legion, branch No. 228.

He had lived in this locality for the past 35 years and is survived by his wife, the former Emily Jane Pryer.

Also surviving are two sons, Charles of Stirling, David of Toronto, two daughters, Miss Louise Faires of Toronto, Mrs. Jack (Florence) Frost of Belleville, three sisters and one brother in England, and five grandchildren.

Resting at Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling, the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

HENRY M. MOLDER
(Bedford, Ohio)

Marmora-News has been received by friends here of the death in Bedford, Ohio on Feb. 16 of Henry M. Molder. Mr. Molder first came to Marmora for bear hunting in 1923 and for many years he and his family spent the summer months at Crowe Lake, where he owned two cottages on Molder's Island which he later sold to Mr. Stanley Little of Lorraine, Ohio. Mr. Molder was one of the directors of the American Stove Company. He made many friends in Marmora who sincerely regret his passing. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Jane. The funeral was held at Bedford on Monday, February 18.

PAUL BELISLE

Paul Belisle, 546 Partington Ave., Windsor, died suddenly on Saturday at his home. He was in his 42nd year.

He was born in Quebec City, son of Rose Anne Meauchemin and the late Adelard Belisle. He attended Ontario Business College at Belleville for a year and then became associated with the Metropolitan Stores, a firm he has been with for 20 years. From Belleville he went to Ottawa and for the past two years had lived in Windsor. He was a member of Assumption Church and of the Holy Name Society.

Surviving are his wife the former Kathleen Quinn and one son, Peter.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Robert McLeod Dies in Hospital After Car Crash

Trenton (Special) —Robert McLeod, 78, of Trenton died in the Trenton Memorial Hospital on Saturday and a postmortem has been performed to determine cause of death. At press time, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., had not issued a statement on the medical investigation.

On Feb. 6 while crossing from the south side of Dundas Street East to the north side at the Dundas and Ontario Street intersection when he was struck by a car owned by Gibbard Furniture Company of Napanee and driven by Robert P. Wartman, 25, of the same town. Mr. McLeod suffered head laceration and a cut on the right ear, a dislocated right shoulder, fractured upper ribs on the right side. He was taken to hospital and has been there since.

In the car with Wartman were Dorothy Rogers, Murray Dean and Ken Johnson, all of Napanee.

The driver was not held and no charges have been preferred against him.

Mr. McLeod lived with his son Carl McLeod on Ferry Street.

Eyes of Financial World Focussed On Canada

New York, Feb. 25—(CP)—The eyes of the financial world are focussed on Canada as one of the few spots where investment capital is safe from the hazards of government instability or government hostility toward business, the New York Herald Tribune says today in a newspage article.

Today the Herald Tribune devotes 10 pages to Canada, touching on business, finance and industry. The broad review of Canadian affairs stresses Canada as a land of opportunity.

"This is Canada—a land of promise whose defence program is being meshed with her natural resources and industrial strength to give her a vital role in the councils of the western world," one of the articles states.

"Risk capital flows to Canada, knowing that this country represents the greatest concentration of the undeveloped natural resources in the world. . . Canada's chief problem is to digest the capital waiting at her door."

Fire Strikes Trenton Twice, Leaves One Family Homeless, Causes Big Property Damage

Trenton — (Special) — Fire struck twice during the weekend, causing $7,500 damage and much discomfort.

One family was left homeless and a terrace where three families were living was threatened by a fire of unknown origin that sent Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Johnston and their two children and a guest fleeing into the street garbed in scanty clothing early Sunday. Freezing temperatures hampered the firefighters, who were still pouring water on the smouldering embers at daybreak.

Lucy Johnston and her friend Lorraine MacCauley, staying overnight, awoke to find their bedroom full of flames and smoke, they managed to grope their way to safety after the others ran outside.

Awakened by Reflection

Living in a frame terrace not 15 feet away, Mrs. Irene Lewis was awakened by the reflection of the flames on her bedroom window. "I looked out the window and the flames were shooting right past my house, Mrs. Lewis recalled. I nearly lost my mind when I couldn't get nearby neighbors to wake up."

Mrs. Lewis' daughter Betty called the fire department and soon the streets leading to the burning house were filled with onlookers. Fire Chief Harry Fillon could see the glow in the sky from the front door of his home a half a mile away.

In the morning while young Frank Johnston was poking through the ruins searching for the family pet, the grey long-haired tomcat emerged from underneath a twisted iron bed, badly singed and covered with icicles. The family in their hurry to leave the house forgot about Tim, who had sought shelter in one of the bedrooms. The drenching and coating of ice is believed to have saved the cat's life.

Others Affected

Others affected by the fire and reaody to evacuate the terrace were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mountenay and two small children, Charlotte and Pamela, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Ormshaw and three children, Bill, Betty and Linda all asleep when the alarm was raised.

Water that froze as it fell coated firemen and their equipment with ice. While the flames were spreading the Johnston's managed to remove some furniture. Loss amounted to $5,000.

Burns About Faec

A Dundas Street east housewife suffered burns about the face that needed medical treatment while attempting to remove a drying rack covered with laundry that caught fire when some of the clothing fell down on a hotplate.

Mrs. Harry Taylor, in another room with her two-year-old child, Harry jr., noticed the clothing afire when she walked into the kitchen. Her frantic efforts to carry the burning rack outside were of no avail and firemen were summoned. In the meantime Mrs. Taylor had rushed her child to safety.

Mrs. M. Upham and Mrs. M. Phillips were forced to leave their upstairs apartment and firemen doused the flames with water. Fire, smoke and water caused loss amounting to $2,500 to the occupants.

EXTREMELY REMOTE

Ottawa, Feb. 25 — (CP) — Chances of humans becoming infected by foot-and-mouth disease are "extremely remote," the agriculture department said today.

Dr. C. A. Mitchell, the department's chief animal pathologist, said there has been a case or two in history but foot-and-mouth disease in humans is so rare as to constitute "a phenomenon."

Everett P. Smith Ordained as Priest By Archbishop

Ordination of three priests and two deacons of the Church of England in Canada took place at St. George's Cathedral on Sunday with the Most Rev. John Lyons, Archbishop of Ontario officiating. The Rev. J. M. N. Jackson, rector of St. Mark's Church of Toronto was the guest preacher.

The three deacons who were made priests were the Rev. Everett Percival Smith, Belleville; the Rev. James A. Dunlop, Parham and the Rev. Charles E. Staples, Plevna Ont. The two young men, who were made deacons are Douglas Burns, Kingston and Donald Belway, Toronto.

Mr. Smith, formerly associated with the Public Utilities Commission here was ordained as assistant to Canon J. B. Creeggan of Christ Church. He was ordained a deacon in 1943. Mr. Staples was ordained deacon here last year. Mr. Dunlop was ordained a deacon in St. Andrew's Church, Sharbot Lake, in 1951.

Archdeacon J. H. H. Coleman, presented the ordinants to the archbishop, while Canon L. E. Davis acted as the archbishop's chaplain at the service.

Killed Wife in Bed

Detroit, Feb. 25—(CP)—Frank Lollie, 28, got out of bed Sunday, picked up a hand axe, and, with one powerful blow, cracked open the skull of his wife who had been sleeping beside him.

She died instantly. He ran screaming into the street in front of their home and hailed a police car: "I am the one. Go on inside."

Lollie had only this explanation: "As I woke up I kept thinking that my wife had told me last week that she was going to get a divorce." He is held on a charge of first degree murder.

Police Probing Possibility Of Foul Play

Kitchener, Feb. 25—(CP)—Hilbert Schedewitz, Waterloo township police chief, said today he was not convinced the death of an Elmira school bus driver was a case of almost-perfect murder.

Body of the driver, Sylvester B. Gingrich, 53, was found Jan. 22 at the scene of a two-bus crash on a slippery highway intersection near here.

Since then Waterloo police have been investigating what at first seemed a routine traffic fatality.

The school bus, empty, was parked diagonally across the main road when it was struck by a passenger bus driven by Jack Lishman of Conestogo.

At first it appeared that Gingrich had been struck by one of the careening vehicles after they collided. Both buses wound us in opposite ditches.

Police said the school bus had been parked with its motor and lights off. When they went to move it, police found it started immediately.

But they were unable to guess why Gingrich had left it with the lights out in the path of traffic.

A postmortem showed Gingrich died as a result of a crushing blow to his right side. A provincial pathologist who examined both buses said neither showed signs it had struck a human body.

Chief Schedewitz said today the possibility that Gingrich might have been struck by a hit and run driver had not been ruled out.

Regarding a theory that Gingrich's injuries might have been caused by blows from a lead pipe, the chief said: "I don't know how he was killed."

IN MEMORIAM

CLAPPER. — In loving memory of my dear father, Norman Frederick Clapper, who passed away February 25th, 1946.

To have, to love, and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.

—Always remembered by daughters Norma, Eileen, Doreen, Shirley and June and son Carl. F25

CLAPPER. — In loving memory of a dear friend, Normie Clapper, who died six years ago today, February 25, 1946.

Our memory is a keepsake.
With which we'll never part,
God has you in His keeping,
We have you in our hearts.

—Remembered by Eva Mae W. Swan, Mary and family. F25

GOODFELLOW. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harold Goodfellow, who passed away February 24, 1949.

And while he lies in peaceful sleep,
His memories we shall always keep.

—Always remembered by wife and family. F25

LATCHFORD. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Ida Isabell Latchford, who passed away three years ago February 23, 1949.

Three years have passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon her grave
May wither and decay
But the love of her who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.

—Lovingly remembered by her sons and daughters. F25

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to extend sincere thanks and appreciation for many kindnesses, messages of love and understanding: for the beautiful floral offerings from many friends, neighbors and relatives during the illness and death of a loving wife and mother. Harvey Patrick and family. F25

Mrs. Eva Turvey and family wish to thank their many friends for acts of kindness, flowers, and sincere words of sympathy, in their recent sad bereavement. F25

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)—Stock market prices held firmly to morning gains today in early afternoon dealings.

Trading was brisk as a wide list of western oils, lower-priced base metals and penny golds attracted speculative interest. Eldona was a standout as it added pennies while more than 450,000 shares changed hands. Volume for the first three hours was 1,932,000 shares.

Steels, liquors and refining oils led industrials upward while papers and foods drew firm support. Agricultures and retail stores weakened as constructions turned upward.

Western Oils posted a slim majority of gains. Calgary and Edmonton, Calvan Consolidated, Central Explorers, Royalite, Selburn and western leaseholds edged higher.

Base metals made little headway. Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, Golden Manitou, Mindamar, Quemont and Yale Lead strengthened while East Rim, Noranda and Sherritt-Gordon slipped.

Senior golds were firm as Bralorne, Dome, Giant Yellowknife, and Teck Hughes turned upward. Secondary issues posted a majority of penny losses.

Queen May Have Husband Crowned 'King Consort'

London, Feb. 25—(AP)— The Sunday Pictorial said yesterday the Queen may have her husband crowned "King Consort" instead of "Prince Consort."

In the established order of royalty, the 30-year-old Duke of Edinburgh has been expected to receive the princely title devised a century ago by Queen Victoria for her Consort, Albert.

But the Pictorial predicts a surprise announcement giving the Duke a King's title because the new Queen wants it that way for her husband.

"The Duke is a man of independence," the newpaper says. "His brain and personality are a great potential asset to the country."

The change in title would make little difference in the royal hierarchy. Officially, the Queen still would reign alone. Either as King or Prince, her husband's title would have the telling qualification—"Consort".

U.S. Orders Immediate Halt To All Imports

Washington, Feb. 25—(AP)—The United States agriculture department today ordered an immediate halt to virtually all imports of livestock and meats from Canada because of an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan.

Dr. B. T. Simms, chief of the bureau of animal industry, said imports have been running to more than 100,000,000 pounds of meat a year and about 360,000 head of cattle, swine and sheep.

Foot-and-mouth disease is easily spread and is one of the most feared of all livestock ailments.

Outbreak May Have Some Effect On Meat Prices

Ottawa, Feb. 25 (CP). — The United States embargo on Canadian livestock, resulting from an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease, in Saskatchewan, may have some effect on beef and pork prices in Canada.

"The situation at the moment is not very clear," said acting Agriculture Minister Winters at a press conference. "If livestock cannot go to the United States, supplies will back up in Canada, possibly causing some surplus. That may cause meat prices to go down.

"On the other hand, there will be a deficit in meat supply in the Regina area where the two packing plants have been shut down. There will be a tendency for meat from eastern Canada to move west. That will cause a drop in supplies in the east.

"We have not discussed the possibility of a support program for beef. That will depend on what takes place. We'll probably have a clearer view of the situation shortly."

Seven Fatalities In East Canada During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Generally good weather was credited with keeping the death toll down to seven in Eastern Canada during the weekend. Two persons were killed in traffic accidents.

A Canadian Press survey early today showed six persons killed in Ontario and one in Quebec. A baby was smothered in his carriage, a man was asphyxiated in his car, another man died of a shotgun wound and two persons were killed by trains.

A pedestrian, Deborah Pollock, 24, of Niagara-on-the-Lake, was fatally injured when she was struck by a train at Niagara Falls, Ont.

Eighty miles west of Sudbury, Delbert A. Burke, a Canadian Pacific railway conductor, was killed when he attempted to climb aboard a slow-moving freight.

Marvin Rochwerg, five-months-old baby at Hamilton, was smothered to death in his carriage when a piece of food caught in his throat.

Blake Boyne, 20, of Listowel, died in a London hospital from wounds suffered in an accident with a shotgun, Jan. 5. Lorne Martin, 8, of Brantford, died of injuries from an automobile accident last Thursday.

Mrs. Min Reiken, 65, was killed in Toronto by an automobile which hit her and her husband as they crossed a street.

In Quebec City, Caston Gaston, 24, was asphyxiated when he remained in his automobile after it became stuck in a ditch.

TO PROBE MORALS

Rand, England, Feb. 25 —(Reuters) — Rev. Reginald Gaul, rector of Gant, last night urged that a commission be appointed to probe the declining morals of British clergymen. "There are more lapses in the morals of our clergy today than ever before in the history of the church," Gaul said.

ATLANTIC ALLIES

Most of the other 1,500 delegates and advisers today leave Lisbon—now celebrating carnival time—and scatter to their homelands.

They felt they had held the most successful of the North Atlantic Council's nine meetings. It told Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the first time just what forces he can count on for his Atlantic Pact army to resist any aggression.

50-Division Army

By the end of 1952, he is due to have in Europe a 50-division, 4,000-aircraft fighting force with strong naval support.

In 1954, this is to grow to about 88 divisions, by the economists' calculations, or 100 divisions if the military men's full target is achieved. This three-year program, the economists estimated, will cost western taxpayers a total of $300,000,000,000.

Eisenhower will assume important new responsibilities. His headquarters will mushroom as Allied forces from Iceland to the Dardanelles are unified under a single command.

An estimated 200-plus airbases will provide insurance against sudden air attack.

The Atlantic Council also gave its blessing here to the European defence community. That is a plan for a supra-natural European force made up of French, Italian, West German, Belgian, Dutch and Luxembourg fighting men.

Eisenhower would be in command, just as he would over U.S., British and other forces committed to N.A.T.O. but outside E.D.C.

Must Sign Treaty

The European army is a long way from existence still. First each country must sign a treaty. Then each parliament must ratify it. Only then can German recruiting begin.

Eisenhower now has less than 30 divisions combat-ready or available within two weeks. Twenty or more must be built within 10 months to meet the Lisbon targets.

Less than 1,000 fighters and bombers are in Europe. The year's goal is four times that.

The 14 member countries, including the newcomers Greece and Turkey, were asked to:

1. Encourage general economic expansion.

2. Increase raw-material production and control the use of materials.

3. Prevent inflation.

4. Ease manpower shortages by letting countries needing workers bring men in from countries such as Italy with labor surpluses.

5. Share equitably the cost of building up N.A.T.O. defences.

6. Increase dollar earnings so essential imports can be continued.

7. Eliminate non-essential defence activities so more can be spent on the essentials.

A BOUQUET FOR DUNLOP

Hon. W. J. Dunlop, the Ontario minister of education, announced the other day that he is going to issue a directive calculated to put the three R's back into education. Too much time was being spent in the schools, said Mr. Dunlop, on things that had nothing to do with real study. He referred to "fancy subjects, frills and fads," intimating that he had in mind particularly art, music and athletics. The tendency to "sugar coat" education with athletics and "useful activities" was going to be curbed in Ontario schools, "before it is too late," said Mr. Dunlop.

Presidents of universities have, more than once in recent months, made statements indicating that students were graduating from Ontario secondary schools with no adequate knowledge of such basic subjects as English and arithmetic. Presidents of universities and other professional educators, however much they may deplore modern trends in education, are not always in a position to change them.

But Mr. Dunlop is in a different position. He has the full authority of the government of Ontario behind him, and the government of Ontario has control of education within the province. Also, he and his colleagues disburse a large proportion of the money which the schools need to operate.

The faddists connected with education, who are responsible for the freakish tendencies that have for some years been apparent in the schools, will probably begin to scream as soon as they realize that their pet theories about what they call "progressive education" are under attack again. They will scream all the more bitterly when they realize that the attack comes from someone who is not merely indignant, but who is in a position to issue orders and see that they are obeyed.

Many thoughtful people have been of the opinion, for a long time, that the school system was being allowed to run wild and in whatever direction it liked, with no proper supervision or informed guidance. All parents and all taxpayers will applaud Mr. Dunlop's decision to launch a cleanup campaign.

It is well that there are still men like Mr. Dunlop in the public life of Ontario. More of the same kind are needed. There will never be too many.

TOO MANY EXEMPTIONS NOW

The Ottawa branch of the St. Jean Baptiste Society has launched a campaign to unite all religious denominations in a protest against the Ottawa city council's decision to tax "religious and parochial institutions."

As we understand the law governing the levying of municipal taxes, a municipality may exempt from taxation a property, such as a church, which is used exclusively or almost exclusively for religious purposes, but is under no obligation to grant any such exemption to a property which is owned by a religious organization but which is not used for religious purposes. Before a property owned by a religious organization but not used for religious purposes may be granted exemption from taxation, a special bylaw must be approved by the ratepayers.

The purpose of these regulations is good and the principle behind them sound. They prevent people from banding together, giving themselves a religious-sounding title and escaping from paying taxes on property they own. If there were no such regulations, all sorts of abuses would develop and all sorts of groups would be able to evade paying their fair share of taxes.

We hope that the Ottawa branch of the St. Jean Baptiste Society gets nowhere in its campaign to unite all religious denominations in a campaign to evade paying taxes on property owned by organizations which have religious-sounding names and which may, or may not, be religious in character. If this campaign were successful in Ottawa, the idea might spread to other Ontario centres and the legislators at Queen's Park might yield.

Translated into modern language and applied to municipal affairs, the phrase "render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's" means that any property which is provided with the services by a municipality should pay a fair share of the cost of those services.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1952, Edgar A. Guest)

DETROIT — 1701

Of these, two hundred fifty years:
Genius and skill and high desire.
What as a dream began, appears
Achieved in every temple spire.
Father to son the courage passed.
Father to son renewed again.
Detroit, now a city vast!
The vision and the work of men!

Two centuries and a half of these:
The spirit of the pioneer
Who for his cabin felled the trees;
The will the wilderness to clear;
The mother love that comforts spurned,
But taught her children how to pray,
And smiled upon them as they learned
To follow as she led the way.

No sign of age beneath the weight
Of those two hundred fifty years!
Time cannot make a city great
Or cope alone with doubts and fears.
Detroit's glories now, as then,
By hearts and minds of men are gained.
And ever by the sons of men
They will be cherished and maintained.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Feb. 25th., 1932

This has been the most remarkable open winter for more than a generation or two and Mr. Harry Pearson, of the Federal Department of Agriculture at Belleville, states that damage will be done to crops unless we have sufficient snow to protect the roots within the next two weeks. The earth is full of moisture and there will be danger unless we have snow.

Mr. Charles Peppin has retired as stationary engineer at the O. S. D., a position he assumed in the year 1899. He will be succeeded by Mr. Frank Chesher of this city.

Early this morning about a dozen Canada wild geese winged their way over the city on their way north.

His Honor J. F. Wills spent the weekend in Toronto.

Miss Mary Haggerty spent the weekend in Montreal.

Mr. Fred H. Deacon of the Deacon Shirt Company is in Ottawa on business.

30 YEARS AGO

Feb. 25th., 1922

The possibility of a building boom in Belleville when spring opens has seldom shown better prospects. Five houses have been built during the winter and four building permits have been issued so far this year. The permits cover four houses and also a grocery at a cost of $9800. Work on the new Albert College will be resumed and tenders will be called for the new public school in Coleman Ward. At present a house shortage exists here and during this winter there was much doubling up of families. There is no chance of real estate falling in value and there is a possibility of an increase in rents. However, lumber prices have dropped 15 to 20 per cent during the last year and plumbing and heating supplies are following closely in reduced prices. The building contractors have more work now than they have had for a considerable time. Everyone is looking forward to a summer of remarkable prosperity for Belleville.

40 YEARS AGO

Feb. 25th., 1912

The Grand Trunk line between Belleville and Madoc which has been blocked since the big storm, was opened this morning when the work of clearing the snow was completed.

The stables belonging to the Hastings House were gutted by fire during last night. One horse was in the building and it was rescued. The stable was burned two years ago and when rebuilt it was sheeted with iron. The building is owned by the Murney Estate and the loss is estimated at $1,000.

The Business Men's Bible Class in connection with Bridge Street Methodist Church will furnish a room in the new Y. M. C. A. building.

Mr. Melville Hagerman 's visiting his brother, Mr. Ernest Hagerman, in Hamilton.

The Rev. L. S. Wight of Stirling preached two fine sermons in the Methodist Church in Madoc on Sunday last.

50 YEARS AGO

Feb. 25th., 1902

The performance given by the Belleville Amateur Minstrels in the Carman Opera House was a most enjoyable affair. The house was filled and it was indeed a very merry evening. The following composed the cast: Jack Mackie, interlocutor; George Dulmage, Jack Gordineer, Charlie Dickens and Ab. Wheeler, were the endmen. Those in the chorus were: S. Burrows, Frank Brenton, Vincent Doyle, J. P. Pratt, Bruce Bottum, Russell Bell, Harvey Beatty, Ridley Brothers, W. Doyle, C. Peppin, Ernie Mouck, Arthur Lewis, Bob. Gorman, F. Lawrence, J. Boyd, G. Ashley, Harry McKay, H. Berkley, Byron Hudson, P. Allen, E. Slater, M. Gordon, W. J. McManus, W. J. Brown and A. Henthorn. The following composed the orchestra: J. Denmark, R. Blaind, J. Weese, F. Robinson, W. Holty, B. Haines, J. Allen, O. Brickman, H. Greenleaf, W. Hart, F. Andrews and Ed. O'Rourke. The efficient manager of the show was Harry McIninch. The jokes were red hot; every topic of local interest being "hit off" unmercifully. Vince Doyle sang, "Absence"; little Bruce Bottum sang "Dreamy Eyes"; Jack Gordineer sang, "Cindy"; S. Burrows sang, "Mandy Lee"; Charlie Dickens sang, "I'se Been Looking for You"; J. P. Pratt sang the "Sentinel Asleep"; George Dulmage sang, "Aunt Jemima's Plaster"; little Russell Bell sang "Drowsy Babe"; Ab. Wheeler sang, "Excuse Me" and Frank Brenton sang "Cotton Blossoms". The solos and choruses were well rendered.

Terrorists Wreck Egyptian Train

A group of British soldiers stand around the wreckage of an Egyptian oil train that was blown up by terrorists at El Kap, 25 miles north of Ismailia on the main Suez-Port Said line. Although the first six tankers of the train were completely wrecked by two powerful mines, the only British casualties were some soldiers suffering from scratches. It was the first planned attack in the Canal Zone since the Cairo riots weeks ago. — Central Press Canadian.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

A LITTLE EARLY

A day filled with a promise of spring.

Winter is crouched, undecided under every tree. On the road where a milk truck has passed by the mud has hardened like set toffee and the thin morning sheets of ice in the shallow dips are shattered window panes. The sun in the cloudless sky hasn't the energy to make a decent shadow.

But in the clearings it is deceptively warm and in the early afternoon the earth is steaming, softening, relaxing. The sun is trapped along one side of the woodshed and it is warm there. The blade of the double-bitted axe is wet. On the other side of the shed a patina of frost still lingers. Summer on one side, winter on the other. Neither quite decided.

Walking about I react to the conflict. The restlessness, the need to be doing something, the curious, bird-like sensitivity to the first warm day. And the indecision, too. Rake the straw away from the bulbs? Or get busy splitting some more wood?

I sit on the chopping block on the sunny side of the shed and notice for the first time the new green shoots everywhere. Taut, stiff, stubby and delicate as a baby's fingers. Yet with a strength of steel, breaking the crust of the soil.

A greeting: "Hiya, bud?"

* * *

The winter's debris is everywhere. Broken branches and twigs from the last gale. Bits of paper and rag. A sled on the steep grade, abandoned where it had completed its last run. Some tinsel from the Christmas tree. The dead tree itself still incredibly green.

I light a bonfire and begin raking. The Christmas tree burns with a fierce crackle and roar. I bury the pitchy flame in last year's refuse. The smoke becomes thick, seeping upwards, drifting away in the slight breeze.

The rake makes a precise pattern in the ground, leaving neatness and order behind it, the most rewarding of all work. A half-buried plank, rotting with age, is torn up. There is a pastel pink worm suddenly exposed, disturbed from a long sleep. Come on, worm. It's spring. But the worm finds a crevice and tunnelling painfully disappears into the black earth. Cold and lonely worm.

By mid-afternoon the shattered slivers of ice in the dips have melted, but down at the creek winter still clings to the edges. There are arbutus there with long graceful, slippery trunks colored orange-copper. Beneath them there's a jagged edge of ice along the creek bank like bits of a Chinese windchime. A green leaf falls from an arbutus and sails swiftly down the creek and disappears over a spillway like a Viking craft swallowed in the sea.

And more firm shoots here, thrusting upwards.

I lean on the railing of the small bridge over the creek, staring down into the water. It is mustard colored where the ice is. Slick green of olives in the main current.

There are spring sounds. The crows settle in the branches of an old fir, awkward, disorganized fliers, and they croak raucously ratchet-voiced at each other. Up in the woods behind a pale smoky mist someone is sawing. Patient rhythm of blade biting into green wood, then the silence, the long wait, the brushing crash of a tree coming down. Dog barking. Protest of a clothes line being run out down the way. Chickens throatily murmuring to each other as they scratch in the pen, looking up and to the side as they scratch, then tilting downward, bottoms up, to peer at the earth they've scarred. The rivetting sound of a woodpecker.

A feeling of change, A faint stirring of all greeen growth shrugging off the stun of winter, awakening with a yawn, struggling so daintily yet with their brute power to break the ropes of winter.

* * *

There is a fine moment then in the late afternoon when the sun seems burning down. The last hair of the frost behind the shed is gone. The refuse is on the bonfire, dried by heat from above and below, flares into life. The smoke-mist in the hills has burned off. Everything is warm.

The landscape is caught and held for a few minutes in this happy glow, as children catch and hold a light in a glass.

Then the sun glides behind the trees. It is as if someone had thumbed a light switch. An immense shadow sweeps across everything and in that very instant the breeze quickens, chill and with a bite in it. The tones and highlights are wiped away. It is as if a lamp flaring too high in the chinmney had smoked the glass with soot.

I lean the rake against the woodhouse and walk to the house. It will be a cold night, a night to keep the furnace in.

It was only a promise.

DIVINE AND HUMAN PARTNERSHIP

The old expression that God helps those who help themselves needs to be pondered in the light of growing experience.

It is one of those old truths which has become a cliche because it is true. Basic to its truth is the spiritual principle that God never does for us what we can do for ourselves. We cannot save our own souls, and, accordingly, salvation becomse completely a divine gift—not something we can work for. We could never discover the meaning of divine truth by our unaided minds; therefore God has given us the Bible and the continual illumination of the Holy Spirit.

But there are many things we can do for ourselves, and these God insists we shall do. There is an old proverb which says, "For a web begun, God sends a thread." That is just what happens. When we show a disposition to help ourselves, God begins to help us. In areas where we cannot help ourselves at all, God does the whole thing, but in the areas where we can be partners of the Divine, God insists that we live up to the responsibility of that partnership.

We start a web. God does not start it: He insists that we do that. But if we start it, He sends a thread—and later much more. One of the glories of human existence is that God and man are partners in a sublime enterprise.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE CONCERT OF LITTLE THINGS

I look out upon a fascinating lace of tiny branches that are mothered by larger ones. Autumn has taken its toll. Now there is bareness, and yet a beauty that only Winter's reign can show. There is character to this lace-like formation. Only here and there is there a single leaf to remind one of the days of foliage and shade.

A few days ago across the earth beneath these trees was an ermine blanket of snow — billions and billions of exquisite snowflakes, formed in the sky by the Master Artist of the universe. There were tracks of footprints and those of dogs, happily romping about. In the Springtime, there will be the green grass, taking on new life, each blade a wonder entity in itself. And there will be dew drops and days of glistening rain and those bare branches will show little buds awakening from their long sleep — and then Nature's most glorious celebration, in leaves and flowers and bird songs.

We must never miss this concert of little things that goes on all about us, for there is the lesson of continuity in all nature and all life. Said that poetic aviator, Antoine De Saint Exupery: —"There is no buying the night flight with its hundred thousand stars, its serenity, its few hours of sovereignty."

A single smile in a great crowd may be more significant than the crowd itself! The first few years of a baby's life are one long procession of little things that the eyes of a mother never miss. The significance of our own lives is constantly being revealed in everything that we see, feel, express, or experience. In a very large measure our entire life may be said to celebrate a concert of little things.

The falling snowflakes or the millions of raindrops are but a concert of little things, but how they bless the earth — how important they are! A dog's tail wag and its friendly bark are little things, but they have great meaning. They are wrapped in love. And there is a spiritual content to most little things, no matter how they may be overlooked or neglected. As Exupert has also said, "It is this concert of little things that sustain us and constitute our compensation."

Personal Health Talks

AS FOR CATCHING COLD, SAYS READER

As for catching cold from exposure, a Montreal reader writes, I have two guinea-pigs, boys five and six years old...

Why couldn't the reader say "as for catching cri from exposure," if she means any of the Common Respiratory Infections which the benighted people in the 19th century ascribed to weather, drafts, wet feet or insufficient coddling? Did she hesitate to say cri because she was uncertain how to pronounce it? That is simple enough—pronounce it kree.

And I'm afraid the dear lady means weather, dampness, drafts, wet feet, and light or just comfortable clothing when she speaks of exposure.

The two boys don't like to bother with shoes and stockings—they run around a good deal barefoot. Some good souls are always warning mother that the children surely will have the rheumatiz or something later on, if not now...the familiar old hokum...but mother just says, "Oh, do you think so?" and forgets it. The children are not really idiots. If they find it uncomfortable going barefoot they put on shoes and stockings without any counsel from parents or any one else.

I don't know — maybe this Montreal reader is better informed than her opening remark suggests. If she leaves it entirely to the wishes of the children to wear or leave off whatever may seem comfortable to them, the children are lucky indeed. The only "exposure" they have to avoid is exposure to diphtheria, measles, whooping cough, pneumonia, meningitis, pulmonary tuberculosis, infantile paralysis in the first two or three weeks of the illness, tonsillitis, septic sore throat, smallpox, chicken pox, mumps, influenza, acute coryza or other respiratory infection—respiratory with the accent on the spy.

I hope this Montreal mother is teaching her boys about the way these Common Respiratory Infections spread—the virus or germs of the disease being carired in fine moisture droplets in conversation spray, sneeze spray or cough spray.

I hope she is teaching them, too, that although the spray that shoots forth from mouth and nose during conversation carries less than 5 feet, it may bring down any one sitting or standing less than five feet from the speaker with whatever the speaker has or happens to be coming down with. All of the respiratory infections are most communicable in the earliest stage, before the victim realizes jus what the trouble is.

If you study and follow the precepts in the booklet Call i Cri (for which send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope, you may learn something which will stave off a good deal of illness in your family. The U. S Public Health Service estimated years ago that three-fourths of all the illness physicians attend is due directly or indirectly to the cri—they didn't say cri, they said the respiratory infections. Indirectly refers to sinus trouble, middle ear trouble, operation for empyema, etc. All preventable—unless you are sure weather, drafts, wet feet and light clothing cause such illness.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Sinus Trouble

Is there any cure for sinus trouble? Do most specialists know how to cure it, or are they just experimenting? It seems that every one who has it is trying a different remedy of treatment without benefit. (C. M.)

Answer—You hear about the cases that are not cured. Every one has sinus trouble at one time or another and gets over it presently without surgery or maybe without knowing just what the nature of the trouble was. Sinus trouble is not a specific disease amenable to a specific remedy such as climate, diet, medicine, coddling. You may get a more practical idea of sinusitis by studying the chapters on the subject in the booklet Call it Cri, which sets you back 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope. Ask for it by name and do not use a clipping.

Love Thy Neighbor?

Can you suggest anything to wear over the ears to shut out television and other noise of neighbors in lower apartment? (C. A. J.)

Answer—Wearing the ear plugs used by swimmers to exclude water might give some relief. These are of waxy, pliable material, and are sold in drugstores and sports equipment stores.

Gad, What a Flop!

I am 41. For the past three days I've been trying to somersault. Is it due to my age that I can't seem to roll straight ahead but tumble over on one side? Or is there a trick to it that I need to learn? I do it three or four times...(C.)

Answer—Send stamped self-addressed envelope for illustrated instructions for somersaulting.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

All of us who are in our late fifties and up learned to sing "God Save the Queen" under the great Victoria. Every one of us, with a certain unction, has counted back to discover that we have lived under six monarchs. It gives us an inner pomp.

When I first learned "God Save the Queen", it had three verses. Now, on searching through hymn books and other poetical sources, I can find only two. The verse that has quietly been dropped ran as follows, and many's the time I howled it in my schoolboy treble:

"O Lord, our God arise,
Scatter her enemies,
And make them fall!
Confound their politics,
Frustrate their knavish tricks,
On Thee our hopes we fix;
God save us all!"

How this verse got dropped, I do not recall. It just quietly faded away, like old soldiers. I do not remember seeing it go. Somewhere in the past forty years, in response to a steadily growing wildness and moderation in the public spirit, this lusty and valiant seven lines fell off the national band wagon. It is a curious thing that it should do so, because those forty years of increasing gentleness in the public spirit have been characterized by more savage and violent disturbance than any in history.

Here is one interesting sidelight, however. Every time the Canadian Broadcasting System signs off for the night after any notable day or occasion, it plays a recording of the national anthem. And it plays three verses, the last one especially bold.

The above are the words fo that last time round!

HALLOWAY

Mrs. McLaughlin Talks To Women's Institute

Halloway—Mrs. Ralph Sills was hostess at the February meeting of the Phillipston-Zion Women's Institute and the president, Mrs. Earle Ray presided over the meeting.

The secretary, Mrs. Kenneth Denyes, reported the financial standing. It was decided that a sewing bee will be held on Tuesday next for the purpose of making children's clothing for a community family. Members are also requested to bring a donation of canned fruit or vegetables to contribute to the same family who have had the misfortune of losing their belongings in a fire.

Guest Speaker

Guest speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. McLaughlin representative of the Children's Aid. In her heart warming address it was felt that Mrs. McLaughlin has stirred within the members a long dormant interest in this worthy work. $10 was donated to March of Dimes, $10 to Hospital for Sick Children.

A paper on health was given by Mrs. Gordon Ray, while Mrs. Gordon Foster and Mrs. Earle Sayers read an article pertaining to the Canadian output of steel.

An interesting report of Achievement Day held in Madoc on Saturday last was given by Mrs. Percy Ray and hearty congratulations go to the girls of the club and their instructors, Mrs. Percy and Mrs. Clifford Ray.

Miss Helen Tummon and Mrs. Earle Ray assisted Mrs. Sills in serving members and guests with refreshments.

Quintena Rebekah Lodge Holds Memorial Service

On Tuesday evening, Quintena Rebekah Lodge held an especially interesting and enjoyable meeting when the Brother Rebekahs occupied the chairs.

The Brothers who officiated were: Noble Grand, Gordon Miller; Vice Grand, Arthur Summers' Chaplain, Joe Large: Junior Past Noble Grand, George MacDonald: Warden, Douglas Simpson; Conductor, Larry Pellitt; Inside Guardian, Charles MacDonald.

The flags of Canada and of the Order were presented by Alfred Francis and Charles MacDonald.

Following the opening of lodge, a beautiful and impressive memorial ceremony was held for the late Sovereign, King George VI and the Charter of the Lodge was draped in his memory.

The hall was fittingly decorated for the occasion. The steps leading to the Noble Grand's chair were covered with black velvet on which rested a portrait of His Majesty, appropriately draped with black and purple crepe. On each side of the portrait was a tall white electric taper and in front had been placed a spray of white carnations.

Sisters Taking Part

The Sisters taking part in the ceremony, wearing purple baldrics over long white dresses were, Sisters, Bessie Boldrick, Helen Miller, Rhea Mitchell, Jean Fitzgibbon, Grace Akey, Emily Beale, June Carruther and Georgina Charlton.

Marjorie Large read the "Memorial Service"; Verna Oliphant the prayer, and Dorothy Webber sang two of the King's favorite hymns "Abide With Me", and "The King of Love My Shepherd Is". Dorothy Harwood presided at the piano.

Before closing the meeting, the Noble Grand called on three visiting Sisters for short speeches. He also called on the Past Noble Grands of the lodge, of whom 12 were present, and the Oddfellows who had taken part in the meeting.

All spoke of the beautiful memorial service and of the greatness and goodness of the late Monarch.

Mrs. Georgina Charlton, a Past Noble Grand, gave an enjoyable reading.

After lodge, refreshments were served by the Brothers, who proved to be efficient hosts.

Theatre Guild Formulates Plans For One-Act Plays

Despite inclement weather and many counter attractions, the semi-monthly meeting of the Theatre Guild on Wednesday evening last, in Queen Victoria School, was particularly well-attended.

In her opening remarks, the president, Mrs. W. J. Doyle, extended a special welcome to those present for the first time and mentioned the encouraging fact that at practically every meeting since the Theatre Guild's inception last fall, new members had joined.

Plans Formulated

Further plans were formulated for the production early in April of three more one-act plays. To accommodate the many who were disappointed last December, it was decided to present the comedy show two nights instead of one. Castings for these plays is now complete, rehearsals have begun and arrangements under the capable direction of Mr. Joe McKay, as stage manager, are under way for work behind the scenes.

On Saturday, March 1st., the Robertson Davies' play "The Voice of the People", under the direction of Mr. Sid Rose, is to be presented in Peterborough at the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival, at which time the well known drama critic, Mr. Pierre Lefebvre, will act as adjudicator.

About 35 members of the local Theatre Guild signified their intention of being present at this performance. They will also have the opportunity of viewing three additional plays from other centres. Mrs. W. C. Gault was appointed to represent the Guild at the E.O.D.L. meeting and luncheon held in Peterborough on the same day.

Interesting Program

Following the business part of the meeting, a program of particular interest was presented. Miss Hilda Burley, who has studied with Dr. Angus, head of Dramatics at Queens University, gave a most interesting and timely talk on "What Adjudicators Look For".

This was followed by a 40-minute film entitled "Prelude to Performance". Mr. Joe McKay introduced the film topic, and conducted the spirited discussion which ensued.

The president announced that at the next regular meeting, a play entitled, "Suitable for Charity" would be presented under the direction of Mrs. J. Darlington, and in addition casting would be done for other workshop plays.

Big River Near, Housewives Buy Water

Montreal (CP) — With one of the world's largest rivers at their doorstep, housewives in Ville Jacques Cartier buy drinking water at 10 cents a pail.

The town across the St. Lawrence from Montreal, with a population now about 22,000, has boomed since the war and its growth has far outstripped its public ultities.

Backyard pumps freeze up in winter, and well-water becomes too muddied for drinking. The great river itself of course is frozen solid at this point.

"Bucket of water today, madam?" is a familiar greeting, perhaps accompanied by the remark "you should have put your card in the window alongside the card for bread."

Waterman J. A. Peladeau has been supplying the community for seven years. He himself buys the water from an ecqueduct in a nearby community and carts it in a tank on his truck. If the housewife wants a bucket or two, she puts a card in her window just as she would for bread.

A new waterworks being constructed by Ville Jacques Cartier actually is helping the waterman's business, for a time at least. Ditches for water pipes are being dug deeper than most wells in the community, and thus draw off even this muddy supply.

MAIN LINE SHUT OFF

Galt, Feb. 25. (CP)—Galt, Preston and Hespeler were without natural gas for nearly three hours Sunday when two unknown persons shut off a main gas line valve south of the city, creating what official termed a dangerous situation for 4,500 consummers.

Because of the danger from escaping fumes, sound trucks were sent through the three municipalities warning consumers. Company workers raced about shutting off home appliances.

WELFARE SAVING

Winnipeg, (CP) — Public welfare cost the city of Winnipeg $1,089,610 last year, but officials said the city this year can expect a saving of more than $100,000 owing to the new pensons plan for persons between the ages of 65 and 69. There were 3,258 individuals on relief rolls at the start of the year, compared with 3,411 a year earlier.

Over 200 Attend Cubs', Scouts' Annual Father-Son Banquet

Over 200 attended the annual Belleville Cubs and Scout group father and son banquet, held last Friday in commemoration of the founder, Lord Baden Powell, under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary, mothers of the Cubs and Scouts.

Mr. Don Allen, assistant District Commissioner of Scouts, introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Arthur Jackson, field commissioner, who gave a talk on the "Life of Lord Baden Powell" bringing in many interesting incidents and stories connected with the life of this great man, which is an inspiration to the youth of today.

Sing-Song Enjoyed

A sing-song, led by Mr. Phil Allcorn, assistant District Commissioner for Wolf Cubs, assisted at the piano by Mr. Ricard, was greatly enjoyed by all, following which, Mr. Allcorn made the following presentations: First stars to Robert Pope, Gary Lafferty, Bob Ackerman, Kenneth Blackburn, Dickie Brown, Terry Silsbury and Bobby Lond.

Swimmers' badges to Jim Hook and Dick Clapp; toy makers' badges to Brian Valcamp. Stephen Wilson, Bobby Long, Robert Ladoucier, Bruce Gelsthorpe. An Athlete's badge was presented to Ronnie Tucker; artists' badge to Barry Titterson and Richard Ashbury, while the collectors' badge went to Allan Wardle.

Fifteen books for use in Scout training were presented by Mr. Allan Skinner to Mr. Bill Fetts.

Appreciative thanks were tendered Mr. Allcorn for the many good turns he had done for the Cub pack by Cubmaster Lillian Ashley, after which Cub Gary Edgecombe presented Mr. Allcorn with a pin as a token of appreciation.

Indian Pantomime

The Cubs then put on an Indian pantomime, entitled, "Story of Six Arrows," all wearing costumes made by themselves. This was followed by an Indian skit, acted out by the Scout Troup, which was well received.

Cub Ronnie Poste, assisted by three small Cubs, John Francis, Herbert Seams and Glen Gulliver, recited a poem about the three wise monkeys, "see no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil."

After the presentation by Mr. Allcorn of the plan achievement banner to Akela and the Pack, a beautiful candlelighting ceremony with all the Cubs and leaders participating, led by Mr. Allcorn, sang "This Little Candle Light of Mine."

Films were also shown, and at the close of the evening, one minute of silence was held in memory of the late King George VI, followed by God Save the Queen.

A vote of thanks was tendered by Mr. Thompson to Mr. Jackson for this exceptionally fine talk on the life of Lord Baden Powell.

The Best recipe for Perfect Baking... always use-

Read what Mrs. David Graham, of 1850 Gladstone Avenue, Windsor, Ontario, says:

"The first time my husband tasted my cooking at home, he said: 'You can cook, too!' Of course we all laughed, until my Mother got a little serious and explained that she had taught me to do all my baking with FIVE ROSES ALL PURPOSE FLOUR. Both my Mother, Mrs. A. MacDougal and her Mother always used FIVE ROSES.

"In my own 19 years of housekeeping FIVE ROSES FLOUR has been my true aid in all baking—dependable and excellent quality—always."

Mrs. David Graham

FIVE ROSES
ALL PURPOSE
FLOUR

Good cooks everywhere are discovering that they only need one flour for perfect baking results every time! You'll be amazed at the wonderfully even-textured cakes . . . the flakey pastries and the "melt-in-your-mouth" cookies you can make every time with FIVE ROSES the original all purpose flour.

Every day we get letters from women across Canada telling us that once they have tried FIVE ROSES they wonder why they haven't used this wonder flour before! Next time you buy flour . . . ask for FIVE ROSES. I know you too will be delighted with your baking results.

Yours for better baking,

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Thinks Other Women Dislike Her

"What is wrong with me that I don't seem able to make friends?" asks a woman who has been married 28 years and is still only 44 years old. As she tells her story, the problem seems to be even more complex than merely the matter of not being able to make friends, for she is convinced that she is disliked, even ridiculed, by all with whom she comes in contact.

"My husband has friends, and takes me with him to see them," she writes, "but they are never friendly with me, particularly the women. Let me tell you about myself so that, perhaps, you can determine what the trouble is.

"I am 44, and have been told I have Norma Shearer's looks. I have a fair education, can play the piano and sing very well, dress well, and have a low speaking voice. I am a good sport, can enjoy a drink and a story, and tell one. I am noted for being a good cook and housekeeper. My husband loves me, and he shows it, too.

"I have a married son of 27, who has three boys who all love me very much. But his wife, I think, must hate me, as she goes out of her way to be mean to me, gossips about me to my relatives, and has even succeeded in taking away from me the few women friends I have. She has made a namby-pamby out of my son, rules his every move, and if he even sneaks a lunch with me, she raves and scolds so that he says it's not worth coming to see me, if he has to go through that. Now she takes him to work so he cannot have the car to use for coming to lunch with me. When convenient for her, she leaves the three little boys with me to take care of, and the next day, berates me because she says I spoil them. She will go miles out of her way to take some friend where she wishes to go, but never even asks me out for a ride."

So much for the family side of this woman's problem. When it comes to others, the trouble seems just as bad.

Unfriendly Neighbors

"When I meet my neighbors on the street, they just give me a 'Good Morning' but never stop to talk with me, and after I pass them, I can tell I am being picked over. Recently we did our home over inside and out, even getting all new furniture. Then a few nosey ones called to see the results. I was gracious to them, but when they left, I noticed that they stood around the gate laughing and talking, and I overheard one say to the others: 'It sure shows taste, but I sleep in my husband's room, don't you?'

"What is wrong with me? Why can't I rate with women? I get pretty lonesome for friends. I married at 16, and my husband was 28. Is that the trouble?"

Now there may be something in this woman's suggestion that her early marriage to a much older man might have some bearing on the whole situation. For, no doubt, the wives of her husband's friends are more nearly in the same age group with their men, which could give her a feeling of being out of place with them.

In any event, I wonder if she has ever discussed her unhappiness with her husband. If she has been keeping it all to herself, I think it is time she had a frank talk with him, explaining just how she feels, and get his viewpoint on the matter. If he loves her and is proud of her, as she says, he will want to do whatever he can to set things right and help her attain peace of mind. It may be that he himself will see the wisdom of having her talk with a counselor on personality difficulties, but if the idea does not occur to him, I think she should suggest it herself. There is nothing to be ashamed of in taking such a step. On the contrary, it shows a normal and mature state of mind when a person realizes the need of such help and goes to seek it.

This woman is by no means too old to benefit by aid of this kind, and since she is so eager to be set straight, I am sure she would co-operate in every way she could. I hope she will have the good sense to first discuss her problem with her husband, and then, with his approval, find a qualified counselor to show her how to untangle herself from her confusion.

Food for Thought

Soup-Making Tests Your Skill

Soup is such a health—and face—and money-saver that I don't know which of them it serves the best, but it is likely health.

I serve soup because (1) I like it. (2) (and this is its most important function) it is the ideal dish in which to conserve all of the minerals from vegetable waters, all of the bones and edible scraps from dinner. (3) It's a hot filler. I like this feature on cold nights especially when the meat for dinner is sliced from a cold roast.

I may be sticking my neck in a noose, but have to report (in case anyone gives a hoot) that we have not had any colds in our house this winter—and we're not stuck up in any ivory tower either. We mix with germs and infections on intimate terms! Remember Marianne's in nursing training and Pete's high school with 1,500 other inmates.

I think the conserved vegetable minerals in soups, extra booster rations of fresh wheat germ, and fortified cod liver oil and dozens of oranges and grapefruits per week are the answer to this coldlessness.

A formula for homemade soup is almost impossible, for I never make it the same way twice. But this is close.

HOMEMADE VEGETABLE SOUP

(For B.D.)

Buy a fresh soup bone, but don't pay over 15 cents for it. Wait until you have chicken or roast beef bones left over. Add 2 quarts cold water and start it simmering. Meanwhile in a small amount of butter or oil saute gently 1-2 or 1 cup each finely cut carrots, celery and onion.

If desired turnip may be added to this. Saute until delicately browned then add 1 1-2 cups diced potatoes. Cook for 2 minutes. Turn this into the kettle with the soup bone and water. Add 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 bay leaf, cover and simmer 3 or 4 hours. One-half hour before serving time add 1-4 cup washed raw rice, 1-2 cup chopped parsley, 1 20-oz. tin tomatoes, and if any cut up the meat which was on the bones. Taste for salt and pepper. If your soup seems insipid add 1 10-oz. can of condensed vegetable or chicken or beef soup. There is no shame to this. It is the trick of a smart cook. (Why even I do it!) MSG is another face-saver for soup-makers—1 teaspoon will work wonders.

MINESTRONE

I promised this to "B.D." too.

One cup dried beans, 1 1-2 tablespoons chopped onion, 1 chopped stalk celery, 1 clove garlic chopped, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1-4 cup olive oil (or butter) 1 cup tomato pulp, 1 cup chopped or shredded cabbage, salt, pepper, 1 cup cooked macaroni or spaghetti. Soak beans overnight Add 1 1-2 quarts water and simmer until tender, adding more water when necessary. Saute onion, celery, garlic and parsley in olive oil until golden brown Add tomato and cabbage. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Bring to boil and add to beans. Add macaroni. Simmer one-half hour. After serving in large bowls sprinkle with grated old cheese—preferably Parmesan. This is known as "food, drink and warm clothing" in Italy—and should be thick—served with a scoop, Rector says. It's a rib-sticker.

Fashion Flashes

MADE TO GO with at-home leisure clothes in an Oriental motif or design, is a mule of deep golden brown velvet. The turn-back toe and heel is of gold brocade in a rich, colorful, Persian motif.

MILDER WEATHER in some places is apt to bring out the combination of the fabric great-coat worn over a suit or a cardigan sweater and skirt in rich colors. Emerald green monotone tweed is used for a loose coat with a capelike collar and deep cuffs of black and white tweed. Worn with this is a slim suit of the black and white tweed and a blouse of emerald green wool jersey.

A GOOD BREAK is ahead in spring suits designed for juniors, for suits were never prettier. For instance, there's a suit of navy blue flannel with a detachable cape lined in red taffeta to match the undercollar of the jacket. Padded hips of the jacket emphasize the slim skirt

A NEW TWIST to luxury coats of cashmere and fine wool fleece is found in jeweled touches. A wool fleece coat, in high colors—made with a wide, flaring back and huge, turn-back cuffs to the push-up sleeves—has a club collar heavily encrusted with pearl and bugle beads.

MATCHING UP is a favorite theme in fashion for many women, and we noticed a fine example of it at a recent fashion show. A deep gold wool travel suit featured gilded door-knocker buttons. In her ears, the model wore tiny earrings that were fassimilies of the suit buttons!

A NICE AND EASY way to dress up a plain sweater is by means of a small collar of felt, made with pinked edges and trimmed with tiny pearls and rhinestones.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Today's manners memo

To do the thing you want to do . . . even though you know it annoys other people . . . shows a meanness in your mind and character that you should take serious steps to cure. Amiability is such an endearing quality. . . it's never shadowed by "annoyances"!

Why it isn't good taste for a mother to give bridal shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it improper for a mother to give a bridal shower for her daughter? You see the bride-to-be does have a great many friends and each wants to give her a shower. Since this is a great expense I was wondering if it would be proper for me to give a shower. I wanted to give the shower in a restaurant.—E.

A shower given by a member of the bride's family . . . particularly one given by her mother . . . has never had any good social standing. It has never been considered good taste, good form. Why? Because it just isn't possible for a member of the bride's family (or a member of the groom's family either) to give a bridal shower without giving the too-too obvious impression that it was oh-so-definitely planned as a bid for presents. When the bride's friends give her a shower it's a charming gesture, the perfect shower-idea, an informal, festive, merry party-with-presents. But when a member of the family gives it, it inevitably becomes a "promotion". However, since so many of your daughter's friends want to give showers for her, why don't you leave this privilege to them and you perhaps plan to give a luncheon in the restaurant in honor of your daughter, with no question of presents?

Then let's sing "The Bride Cuts the Cake!"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please answer this question which is causing much discussion in the planning of my sister's wedding: Exactly when should the bridal cake be cut at the wedding reception?—M.B.

There is no "exactly when", for the cutting of the cake depends on the circumstances. For instance, if there is a bride's table or other seated service, the bride cuts the cake (assisted by her bridegroom) at the end of the meal: the dessert course is the cake and ice cream. Sometimes, when the dining-room space is limited, and therefore only a few guests can view this gala cake-cutting ceremony, the cake is placed before the bride and groom in the living room, and there the guests assemble to sing "The Bride Cuts the Cake" and to watch. When there is a general reception with no seated service whatever, the cake is cut as soon as all the guests have been received.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Complexions Like the Lily and the Rose

No greater beauty gift can be bestowed upon one than a beautiful skin. Young girls who are so blessed must keep in mind the fact that their complexion requires intelligent and faithful care if it is to keep its youthful bloom and exquisite texture. It won't do to take appearance for granted.

Nutrition, good circulation and deep breathing contribute to the healthy state of the complexion. The finicky eater, subsisting on only such foods as take her fancy—thus missing out on elements that are necessary for well-being—will soon find that the once-lovely roses in her cheeks have disappeared.

An excess of fried foods will make the sebaceous glands riot and the flesh become oily. Whatever aids well-being contributes to good-looks assets. The boss of the domestic works should give her family a balanced diet; it will cut down the cosmetic overhead.

A jittery nervous system tightens the facial muscles

The free use of a bland soap has a favorable effect upon the skin; it acts as a mild antiseptic. Very rarely does the cutaneous surface, rebel against lathering; when it does a cleansing meal can be substituted. This cleansing agent frees the skin of atmospheric dust, and the starchy content imparts smoothness and softness.

To go to bed without removing make-up with a cleansing cream, using soap and water, rinsing well and applying a heavier cream, is a pulchritude lapse. These simple measures will do wonders to keep the complexion fresh and lovely. Not only that, but the emollient and the friction necessary for its application will put Old man Time in his place, won't give him a chance to put little crinkles in the flesh.

If there are signs of furrows, extra care must be used. The fact that a depressing mental state contributes to wrinkles must not be overlooked. Worry interferes with the assimilation of food. It brings loss of sleep, and it is during sleep that nature does her repair work, builds new cells. A jittery nervous - system will cause tense facial muscles and give the countenance a drawn look.

Don't fail to take orange or tomato juice for breakfast, especially if the skin is sallow. To correct a sallow skin one must work from within; no bleaching cosmetic will do away with the dingy appearance.

If the skin is dry, drink more water, use a cream twice a day and let the nightly application stay on. Find a powder with an oily base; it will go on more smoothly than one of light consistency.

Blaker.

The regent closed the meeting, and the members expressed their pleasure regarding the successful year of the chapter.

Cleric Declares Industry Needs More Religion

Buffalo, N.Y., Feb. 25—(AP)—A Toronto clergyman said today the church should promote the chaplains-in-industry movement to teach the workers the meaning of their sacrifices.

Rev. William G. Berry, associate secretary of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada, spoke as a delegate to the North American lay conference on the Christian and his daily work, now in its third day.

"Individuals are frequently not considered as persons so much as tools or hands," Berry said. "Instead of the machine serving man, man has to serve the machine."

He said that in modern industry there exists a fundamental contradiction between the Christian view of a man as a spiritual being and the technical view of him as being made to perform one particular function of industry.

Because of this contradiction, plus the "uninspiring and drab surroundings" in which men work, he said, they lose the meaning and the spirit of Christian sacrifice.

The conference has attracted 400 delegates from Protestant bodies in the United States and Canada. The sessions end tomorrow.

C.R.U. Drops Barrier Little Further by Allowing Blocking To a Point Where Ball Kicked

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP) — The Canadian Rugby Union, always on guard not to let Canadian football get too like the United States game, cautiously lowered the barrier a little Saturday.

It provides some of its critics with further ammunition for their contention that it is too anxious to adopt American features when it decided on the most drastic rule change in the C.R.U.'s recent history.

It broadened its rule on blocking to permit running interference by backfielders and linesmen on kick-offs up to the line from where the ball was kicked. At the same time it rejected a proposal for a two-game Grey Cup final.

The decisions were taken at its 62nd annual meeting which ended Saturday. The change in the blocking rule was a major victory for the west which for years has always advocated the opening up of the game by this method.

Most delegates said the kick-off blocking would provide for more spectacular runs. The west failed in its bid to have the running interference apply on all types of kicks but its delegates said they probably will try again at next year's annual meeting at Edmonton in March.

Two changes in the import rule were adopted. The meeting voted 6-3 to increase the number of imports fro mseven to eight. The Ontario Rugby Football Union and the non-operative Western Intercollegiate Union opposed the increase but joined with the other leagues to classify United States players as non-imports if they have resided in Canada for four successive years, even though they may not have played football each year.

Majors Defeated

The two major leagues, the Big Four Union and Western Canada Conference, were defeated by a 5-4 vote in another attempt to gain voting control in the C.R.U. The minor groups—the O.R.F.U. and Quebec Rugby Football Union and the western and eastern Intercollegiate leagues — lined up together to reject the proposal which they said would have made them "rubber stamps" for any action taken by the major leagues.

The minor leagues' delegates acknowledged, however, that the Big Four and Western Canada Unions must have a freer hand in running things that solely affect them, such as the Grey Cup and imports and agreed to set up a committee to look into this.

The committee will also consider the possibility of eventually eliminating the eastern Canada final. A proposal to wipe it out immediately, expected to be one of the most contentious points of the meeting, was not discussed beacuse the necessary two-weeks' notice was not given by any league for the necessary change in the constitution.

A number of other playing rule changes were adopted. Free substitution will be allowed to enable players to enter the game after any play. The "Karpuk incident" of last season resulted in a stronger rule to prevent players or other persons dashing on the field to stop play.

The penalty for such an infraction will be a touchdown if it is obvious one would have been scored and if nit the offending team will be penalized half the distance to the goal line, with the non-offending team getting three downs regardless of the amount of time remaining in the game.

Penalties Announced

On the occasions when the ball goes out it now will be placed 15 yards in from the sidelines instead of 10 and when a team has too many men on the field, it will be penalized 15 yards for each extra man but no longer will it have to play shorthanded for three minutes for each extra man.

The question of the shovel pass and whether forward passes which don't cross the line of scrimmage should be legal will be studied by a committee.

The two-game Grey Cup proposal, presented by the Big Four, got the backing of only that league and the O.R.F.U. two western delegates, Ken Montgomery and Walter Sprague of Edmonton, said they were convinced that a two-game series would make the final a less attractive spectacle.

A proposal by the Western Canada Conference to increase the price of Grey Cup tickets by $1 to $6 was defeated.

A change in the transfer rules was adopted. It will permit players to move to a team in a different union providing he is released before Oct 1 by the club with which he originally signs.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit's Gordie Howe continues to show the way in the National Hockey League's individual scoring department but Montreal's Elmer Lach cut down the margin during the weekend.

Howe has scored a record 35 goals and has 29 assists for a total of 64 points while Lach has 13 goals and a pace-setting 45 assists, three of them garnered during the weekend.

Midgets Victors Over Stirling

Campbellford, Feb. 23 — The high-flying Campbellford OMHA Midgets defeated the Stirling puckists here on Friday night to the tune of 16-3 to assure themselves of continuing in the playoffs for the Ontario Championship. They will likely meet Bobcaygeon next. The locals downed the same Stirling team 11 to 5 on Stirling ice on Monday night, giving the locals a 19 goal lead on the round.

The locals were a slightly heavier and faster group of stick-handlers than their Stirling rivals, and had little difficulty in piling up their nineteen goal margin on the round. The scored 27 goals to Stirling's 8.

The line of Wood, Campbell and Hermiston stood out for the Stirling boys, along with their eleven-year-old replacement goal tender, Donald Brady. This plucky little fellow did yeoman work for the visitors, and on one occasion kicked out four shots is as many seconds, remaining quite calm throughout the play. Stirling's regular goalie, Ross Ray, suffered a broken nose in the first game of the series when he was unlucky enough to get his proboscis in the way of a rifle-like shot from the stick of Jack Garvey, in Stirling.

The Garvey, Wilson, Dooher trio carried the local play, with these lads getting eleven of the sixteen counters.

Referees Patterson and Free kept the game well in hand and dished out about a half dozen minor penalties to each side.

Stirling: goal, D. Brady; defence, R. McCrory, R. Anderson; centre, R. Hermiston; wings, D. Campbell, M. Wood; alternates, M. McGee, G. McGee, M. Montgomery, G. Belcour, D. Scott, F. Bailey.

Campbellford — goal, Ed. West; defence, J. Baker, P. Hendricks; centre, J. Garvey; wings, D. Dooher, W. Wilson; alternates, B. Potts, J. Holmes, J. Field, P. Girard, G. Ferguson, Wm. Gibson, J. Petherick, J. Haggerman, D. Ingram.

Musial Thinks Cards Have Good Chance for Flag

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 25 — (AP)—Stan Musial, the highest-paid player in baseball at $80,000 a year, thinks the St. Louis Cardinals have their best pennant chance since 1946.

"A lot depends on our young pitchers," he said.

"We're hoping Joe Presko and Cloyd Boyer have shaken off their arm trouble to take a regular turn with Gerry Staley and Cliff Chambers.

"The way I look at it, we didn't have Billy Johnson and Wally Westlake at the start last season. Still I thought we did pretty good finishing third."

Musial is confident Eddie Stanky his new manager, will help the club, not only as manager but player.

"I imagine Eddie will be playing," he said.

LEARNED HER LESSON

"Isn't it funny how things you learned at school suddenly come back? My washings always had a yellow tinge and then I remembered our chemistry teacher telling us that seven colours combine to make white, and one of them is blue. That is why there is no true white without blue. So of course, I use Reckitt's Blue now to keep my clothes white always—just a swish or two in the final rinse. Out of the blue comes the whitest wash."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Clinton, N. Y. — Here in this northern New York hockey-mad village the boys around the district thing a lot of their puckchasers. Saturday afternoon the senior Hawks dropped an 8-5 decision to the Clinton Comets while 1,000 fans watched (a big drop from last year). Sunday they were defeated 11-5.

The Comets, members of the New York-Ontario Hockey League with Brockville, Gananoque, Cornwall etc., boast a good club, we would say a better than average intermediate "A" type but definitely not senior "B" as the Ontario Hockey Association classifies it.

True they handed the Hawks a fancy trimming on Saturday afternoon, slamming home four goals in the first period against one for our side.

The Hawks paced by Vern Goyer and Peter Jones struck their stride in the second heat and held the Comets to a trio of goals and each team scored a single in the third session.

The Hawks at more or less sorry strength did not ice Keith MacDonald, Jackie Wardhaugh and Coach Red Doran. Peter Jones and Goyer carried the mail.

It could be that the entry into the New York - Ontario hockey loop has had effects on the American type of hockey as it used to be played here. Last year, if our memory is correct, officials here tossed out every player who grimaced, and heaved what looked like a body check.

This year it is different. The Comets played a strictly Canadian type of hockey, showed plenty of individual ability and developed some neat pattern-passing.

"Maureece" Lefort left a couple of teeth here and was retired from the Saturday afternoon game. Big Jumbo sans pads took over the netminding job for the remaining few minutes of the game.

As a Utica sportswriter puts it "everything happened" in the Saturday night game. He said the Comets came back with a much improved attack from their appearance in Brockville the night previous. The game was fairly fast, with the Hawks ramming 38 scoreless pucks at Johnny Bourada who provided a touch of hockey comedy when he hurled back a dangerous Hawk attack by heaving the biscuit into the stands behind his cage.

Ted DeGray of the junior Hawklets did a fine job. 'Red' Doran brought along Mark Storms "a hard defenceman" as the American sports scribe put it and the ex-boxer did a right noble job.

Peter Jones paced the Hawks offensive with three in the Saturday game while the big so-and-so Vern Goyer and Red Doran accounted for the rest.

"Bootie" (they call him here) Smith, Ed. Crutchley and Bob Lunny were the power boys for the Comets with Crutchley getting a trio of markers.

A good workout for the Hawks. Peterborough Petes were here last weekend and drubbed the Comets by a 13-6 score. That is not by any stretch of the imagination detracting from the ability of the club. They have a smart hockey club and it wouldn't surprise this department after seeing some of the New York-Ontario games that this good little gang of Yankee puckchasers emerge with something or other titular. We say "Yankee" reservedly for a lot of these Clinton Comets resemble a few Canucks we saw in action north of the border not too many years ago. Betcha this guy Bourada can speak French.

We received a splendid reception from these good people in Utica. Not only did the Comets hockey club management greet Hawks manager Harper McElrath with wide-open arms but the hotel management did likewise. Mr. William T. Gilligan and his assistant manager Al. Cady went all out to give the Canadian Hawks the best of their facilities. They were splendid hosts and saw to it that the Hawks lacked for nothing. We definitely recommend the Hotel Pershing in Utica.

Letter To Sports Editor

REFEREE CRITICISM

We have read with interest, your comments on the officiating at the OMHA games played between Belleville and Kingston on Thursday night.

As a spectator at all three games, I agree with you, that the refereeing, particularly in the bantam game was anything but satisfactory. Obviously, the Kingston official has a great deal to learn about OMHA hockey.

Immediately after the bantam game, I checked with Kingston management and was told, that they had difficulty in enlisting the services of any referee, who would accompany their teams to Belleville. Apparently they are loathe to help the younger boys when there is no remuneration. At the same time, officials of the Belleville Hockey Association admitted, that they had not thought it necessary, to appeal to the OMHA for a neutral referee in view of the expense involved. Had they done so, a competent man would have been appointed.

Therefore your comments 'that the least the OMHA can do, is to see that local officials have some degree of efficiency, and are not selected willy-nilly', are hardly justifiable.

The OMHA has always felt that in playoff games neutral referees are more satisfactory. Therefore, since the OMHA was not contacted, I fail to see how our organization can be blamed in any way, for the incompetent officiating. It was simply a matter of saving money on the part of the Belleville Hockey Association, trusting at the same time, that the Kingston Clubs would bring a capable man.

You will recall that in last year's Juvenile series between the same clubs, the first game in Belleville resulted in 24 penalties, one of them a major. The OMHA then stepped in; two Kingston players were suspended, and the second game saw two penalties, both of a minor nature.

The OMHA appoints referees only when we are asked, or following any disagreement between clubs on the choice of officials.

This should clarify any criticism of the OMHA insofar as incompetent officiating in Thursday's Bantam game was concerned. B.H.A. officials should remember this, should a similar series be played in another year.

Yours very truly,
Sam R. Curry
OMHA Executive.

Kingston's Rally Nips Lindsay, 7-5

Lindsay, Feb. 25.—Striking for five goals in the final nine minutes, Kingston Vics nipped Lindsay Kinsmen, 7-5, and squared the O.H.A. Junior B best-of-five group semi-finals before 1,000 Saturday night fans. The series stands, 1-1, with one tie.

Lindsay's Bill Smith and Ken Schinkle scored the only goals of the first period and the locals grabbed a 5-2 edge in the second.

Pat Hagarty touched off a five-goal rally for Kingston. Don Villier and Wilson Reid added two quick ones to tie the score. Gerow fired the winner and Redmond the clincher, his second of the game.

Norm Dysart, Bruce Hall and Wally Shervington scored the second period goals for Kinsmen, while Maurice Chevrefils and Redmond clicked for the winners.

Detroit Surges On in N.H.L. Lead; Fast-Rising Habs In Second Slot Over Toronto

(By The Canadian Press)

Emile Francis, the New York Rangers replacement goaltender last night celebrated his first complete week in this year's National Hockey League play with a 5-2 victory over Boston Bruins. The win pushed the Blueshirts three points into fourth place ahead of Boston.

The victor ywas Francis' second since moving up from Cincinnati of the American Hockey League as a replacement for the injured Chuck Rayner. Two others were ties. He has yet to lose a game for the New Yorkers.

Detroit Red Wings boosted their league lead with two victories during the weekend, defeating the Maple Leafs 3-1 at Toronto Saturday night, then moving into Chicago for a 2-1 decision over the tail-end Black Hawks Sunday night.

The double victory hoisted the Wings 17 points in front of Montreal Canadiens who took over second place from the Leafs by trouncing Chicago 7-0 Saturday.

Five different New Yorkers had a hand in the scoring. Hy Buller connected in the opening period, Allan Stanley added one in the middle period and Jack Stoddard, Ed Kullman and Reg Sinclair clicked for the others in the last period. Johnny McIntyre and Dave Creighton tallied for the Bruins.

Ted Lindsay gave the Red Wings a 1-0 first period lead Sunday at Chicago while Bep Guidolin tied it up for the Hawks in the middle session. Alex Delvecchio provided Detroit with the winner at 3:52 of the final.

Moore Scores Three

At Montreal Saturday night, rookie Dickie Moore accounted for three of Montreal's seven goals against Chicago while Bernie Geoffrion potted two. Floyd Curry and veteran Elmer Lach scored the others.

Harry Lumley handled 44 shots in the Black Hawk net while Gerry O'Neil stopped only 22 in chalking up his shutout.

Glen Skov, Gordie Howe and Sid Abel accounted for Detroit's three Saturday goals against the Maple Leafs. Howie Meeker slid in Toronto's lone marker.

Skov's goal came when Bill Juzda was off for charging in the first while Meeker's marker knotted the count at 1-1 shortly after the final session opened. Howe rifled home the winner from 25 feet out and Abel provided the clincher after coach Joe Primeau had pulled goalie Al Rollins in favor of another attacker.

No games are scheduled in the N. H. L. tonight, but Detroit plays in Boston tomorrow evening.

Basketball

(By Bev. and Bette)

Thursday night in the Collegiate gym the B. C. I. Junior and Senior Girls Basketball teams met with Trenton. B. C. I. Seniors trimmed Trenton 42-19 while Trenton defeated the juniors 17-11.

JUNIORS:

In a close but rough affair the leading Trenton Juniors continued their winning streak by defeating B. C. I. At the end of the first half the score was 8-5 in favor of Trenton. B. C. I. is improving more every game but were still unable to get by the strong Trenton lineup.

Anne Bennett lead the losers getting 9 of the 11 points. Trenton's high scorer was Anne Armstrong with 12 points.

Lineups:

B. C. I.—Anne Bennett 9; Joanne Clarke, Alberta Fox 2, Marjorie Kellet, Jean Faulkner, Eva Hrachovec, Donna McNish, Arlene Parks, Eleanor Clarke, Margaret MacLaurin, Dawn LaRue.

Trenton—Anne Armstrong 12, Enid Bennett 2, Colterjohn, Lorraine Whittley 3, Pat Spear, Barb Smith, Marilyn McNeill.

SENIORS

B. C. I. added another victory to their credit by defeating Trenton 42-19.

With only three games left in the schedule, B. C. I. have big hopes of competing in Toronto for the senior C. O. S. S. A. in March.

Diane Gourley was the outstanding player for the locals with 16 points to her credit. Joan Condette scored 13 of the 19 points for Trenton.

So far neither of the teams has had much of a reception at their games. Come on kids, let's see more of you out at the next game supporting your school teams.

B. C. I.—Barbara Bennett 8, Diane Gibson 6, Diane Gourley 16, Eve Robbins 2, Beth Wilbur 4, Carol Weston, Dene Lawrence, Elinor McCormick, Joan Walden, B. J. Goodwin. Doris Kerr 6, Helen Weston.

Trenton—Lillian Bassett 2, Betty McCaulie 1, Geraldine Harry 3, Joan Condette 13, Fran Brown, Lois Weese, Sandra McCrue.

Minor Hockey Playoff Results

The Maple Leafs, Bruins and Black Hawks won the first game of a two game total points to count series, in the bantam section of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association on Saturday morning.

Maple Leafs won a 4-3 verdict over Rangers in the first tilt with Hagerman scoring twice and assisting on another. Ryan tallied once and added two assists for the winners while Ferguson picked up a goal and an assist. Elliott and Matthews topped the losers with one goal and an assist each while the other markers were scored by Chris and Bishop.

Bobby Hull paced the Bruins to a 2-1 win over Red Wings with a goal and an assist with McLean scoring the other goal and Rowbotham assisting on one. St. Louis scored the Red Wing goal assisted by Ab Wright.

Black Hawks shutout Canadiens 4-0 in the final game of the morning on goals by Spafford, Gill and a pair by Culloden. McCann and Woods drew assists.

These same pairings meet next Saturday morning in the second and final game of this series.

Buffalo Bisons Defeat Hornets By 5-3 Score

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets safely atop the American Hockey League were jolted 5-3 by Buffalo Bisons yesterday.

The Hornets, however, took their Saturday tilt over Indianapolis 6-2. Other Saturday scores were: Buffalo 4, Syracuse 2; Cleveland 4, Cincinnati 2; Hershey 7, St. Louis 4.

In the other games yesterday Indianapolis Capitals handed Hershey Bears, western division leaders a 4-3 setback, St. Louis won 4-1 over Cincinnati, and Cleveland beat Providence 5-2.

At Buffalo third-period goals by Vern Kaiser and George Pargeter enabled Buffalo Bisons to trip the Hornets 5-3, before a crowd of 6,532.

Other Buffalo marksmen were Demarco, Pete Durham, and Loren Davis, Andy Barbe, Bob Solinger and Bill Ezinicki scored the Pittsburgh goals.

At Indianapolis, Bert Hirschfeld, Larry Wilson, Hugh Coplin and Earl Reibel counted for the Caps while Sam Bettio with two and Arnie Kullman scored for Hershey.

At Cincinnati, Jackie Hamilton slammed home two goals for the Flyers and Steve Hrymnak and Pat Lundy got one apiece. Nick Mickoski produced the only Mohawk goal.

At Providence, Cleveland stretched their unbeaten string to 15 straight by defeating the Reds.

Vic Lynn, Ken Davies, Jerry Couture, Cal Stearns and Jerry Reid were the Baron marksmen, Paul Gladu and Kenny Smith got the Providence goals.

Stirling Bows To Marmora 5-3

Marmora. (Special.)—Showing a complete reversal of form from the previous night, Marmora's Trent Valley League hockey team won a 5-3 decision from Stirling in the third game of a best-of-three series to decide the right to advance into the playoffs against Wellington.

Played on the former's rink, it was viewed by the largest home crowd of the season, 750 people being in attendance.

Trumble, Marmora captain, practically won the game single-handedly, firing home three unassisted goals.

Stirling scored their goals in the second period with the Mason and Wright lines clicking for one each. These two lines were very aggressive all evening.

Gray of Marmora scored the prettiest goal of the evening in the first period.

The game was held up for ten minutes in the first period as Bates, Stirling goalie, was struck below the left eye with the puck and needed first-aid.

Marmora entertained Wellington on Monday night in the first game of a best-of-five series in the Trent Valley Central Section finals.

The teams:

Marmora: Goal, Killian; defence, Moynes, Gray; Centre, Forestell; Wings, Lavender, Trumble. Alternates, Jones, Stewart, Mantle, Brown, Smith, Darrah and Doyle.

Stirling: Goal, Bates; defence, Mowat, Tanner; centre, Wright; wings, Hunter, Stapley. Alternates, Robson, R. Mason, Garvin, Bastedo, Wannamaker, B. Mason, McCrory, Harden.

Canadians Take Hockey Title At Olympic Games Tieing Final Match With U.S. 3-3

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Oslo, Feb. 25 (CP)—The city of Oslo finished packing away the 1952 winter Olympic games today and found the last layer of championships decidedly Canadian.

The final event of the final day for title-seeking fell into Canada's hands. Before a jam of 10,000 cheering fans in the downtown Jordal stadium, Canada's hockey players from Edmonton played the United States team to a 3-3 draw retained the hockey crown the Ottawa R.C.A.F. Flyers won in 1948.

But the biggest crowd spectacle and the glamorous outdoor wind-up in this country of outdoor-sports lovers was the ski jumping championship on famed Holmenkollen Hill.

While 150,000 people cheered from the hillsides, Arniff Bergmann, who came from Revelstoke, B.C., to compete for his native Norway, soared to victory with two near-perfect jumps.

Bergmann left his home in Trondheim only two years ago. He went first to the United States and then on to Revelstoke, married and settled down.

As far back as last August he got the Olympic itch—to ski and jump for his old homeland. Bergmann won the Norwegian championship and moved on to the Olympic games.

Now that he is Olympic champion—at only 23 years of age—he is satisfied. He plans to go back to Revelstoke next month and make his permanent home there.

Canada's hockey championship was forecast in Oslo even before the games opened, but the boys had far from an easy time in the final round last night.

Undefeated String

The draw with United States gave Canada an undefeated string of seven wins and the one tie. It was the only championship for Canada in the games, and it was Canada's fifth since the hockey title was officially recognized back in 1924 and was then won by the Toronto Granites.

Since then the only time the championship has left Canada was in 1936 when Great Britain's team, with an injection of Canadian blood, took the title.

It looked at first as if Canada would sweep through the tournament with eight victories. Late in the first period Billy Dawe, the shifty Canadian centre who fired the winning goal in Canada's 3-2 win over Sweden, picked up a pass from Billy Gibson and scored from eight feet out.

Louis Secco made it 2-0 only 16 seconds later, driving in a pass from George Abel.

The Canadian march was brought to an abrupt halt in the second period. Johnny Mulhern raced in to take a pass from Jerry Kilmartin and beat goalie Ralph Hansch.

Caught Flatfooted

Less than two minutes later the Canadians were caught flat-footed in their own defensive zone and Ruben Bjorman streaked down to score the tying goal.

But the Canadians began pressing and shooting, keeping goalie Desmond under steady fire. In the last minute of the middle period defenceman Jack Davies skated the length of the ice and let drive. The puck bounced off Desmond's pads into a scramble. Don Gauf came tearing in, got his stick on the puck and drove a shot into the net under Desmond's outstretched arm.

The Canadians maintained the territorial and shooting advantage in the third period, but the Americans' desperate power plays finally tied the game up again—this time for good.

Made No Mistake

At 17:52 Jerry Kilmartin whipped over a pass. Defenceman Johnny Sedin was parked at the Canadian goal-mouth. He snared the puck and made no mistake, slipping it in before Hansch could move.

The Canadians, swamping the Americans with a shots-on-goal margin of 58-13, missed plenty of scoring opportunities. Dawe, Gibson, Secco and playing-manager Frank Sullivan all hit the goalpost with shots.

Ski-jumper Bergmann's victory was the seventh championship for the Norwegians in the 22 events of the games. With three more places in the first six also to Norwegians, the host country picked up a flock of points to finish in front in the unofficial team standing.

Among the 30 countries—represented by 1,187 athletes—Norway finished far ahead on points—based on 10-5-4-3-2-1 for the first six placed in each event—with a total of 125½.

The United States was second with 89½ and Finland third with 72.

Finland Boosts Total

Finland boosted its point total on Saturday when their skiers won two events and placed well up elsewhere among the point-winning six. Lydia Wiedman, 28-year-old typist, won the 10-kilometre race for women and Finland's four-man team won the 40-kilometre ski race.

The Norwegians were expected to make a show of the field in the ski jumping and they didn't disappoint their fellow-countrymen. Bergmann was scored with 226 points—based on distance and style in two jumps. His best distance was 223 feet 1¼ inches. His friend and hometown boyhood chum, Thorbjoern Falkanger, placed second with 221.5 points, matching one of Bergmann's long leaps with the same distance. Karl Kolmstrom of Sweden was third, and Halver Naes of Norway and Tory Brutscher of Germany tied for fourth.

Two jumpers from Three Rivers, Que., were Canada's only entrants. Jacques Charland, 21-year-old protege of Luc Laferte, had one leap of 203 feet seven inches, and was scored with a total of 190 points, placing 25th.

Laferte made 200 feet 1½ inches on his first leap, then took a tumble on his second when his ski came loose. This cost him many points for style and he finished with a total of 162.5 points, placing 41st in the field of 44.

Coach Says Figure Skating Not Up To Par

Toronto, Feb. 25 —(CP)— This year's Olympic figure skating was not near the calibre of the 1948 competitions, Sheldon Galbraith, coach of the Canadian Olympic figure skating team said yesterday on his return from Norway.

"Barbara Ann Scott could have won . . . all by herself," said Galbraith who coached the young Canadian ice star through her triumphs four years ago. "Jeannette Altwegg the English winner, was wonderful in her school figures, but her free skating was nowhere near that of Barbara Ann's.

"Europeans put a great deal of emphasis on the difficult school figures, but they aren't even half the points. Their free skating, although it is improving leaves much to be desired. They're learning but they have yet to master the techniques of putting music and skating together"

He said Suzanne Morrow of Toronto who finished sixth in the ladies' singles looked "very good in her practice sessions, but just didn't get going in competition. Her type of skating just isn't suited to the outdoor Olympic conditions.

"Suzie is used to competing indoors where the crowd is close and she can feel their presence. Over there it was outside in a stadium seating 26,000 persons. It was just like putting a small rink in the middle of Varsity Stadium. She never did get used to it."

Mr. Galbraith was very pleased with Peter Firstbrook of Toronto who placed fifth in the men's singles. "This was Peter's first trip you know. He put up an excellent show and we're all proud of him."

Trenton Defeats Glen Roys 9-7

Climaxing an uphill battle in the third period of a Trent Valley Hockey League playoff game at the Memorial Arena on Saturday night, Trenton Jewellers won a 9-7 decision over the Belleville Glen Roys.

The game was the first of a best of three semi-final series with the second game slated for Trenton Arena tonight. The winner of this round will meet Trenton R. C. A. F. for the southern division championship.

Mac Watson and Sturge Leavey paced the visitors, firing three goals each including the winning and insurance markers. Moe Jones, Hank Filion and Bob Campney acquired singltons while defenceman Lou Schmidt assisted on three goals.

Leo Goyer scored three goals for Glen Roy while assisting on another, Tim Williams also scored twice. Brian Mulvihill and Doug Bone also scored and Bob Hatfield set up three goals.

The visitors were down four goals at one time during the second period but rallied to climb within two of the lead by the end of the chucker. Then they turned on the power in the third to knot the count at 7-7 with only six minutes to go in the game.

Mac Watson scored what proved to be the winner just after the three-quarter mark and the Glen Roys battled furiously to knot it up again.

Just before the final whistle, Sturge Leavey sunk the insurance goal to wind the game up.

The Teams

Trenton Jewellers: Goal, Hill; defence Campney, Schmidt; centre, A. Scott; wings, Watson, D. Barr; subs Beale, Leavey, Jones, Carswell, Filion, MacDonald.

REPRESENTS SASKATCHEWAN

Saskatoon, Feb. 25 (CP) —The Frank Hastings rink of Nipawin Saturday won the right to represent Saskatchewan in the Canadian Curling championships at Winnipeg March 3-8.

Hastings won the Saskatchewan title by defeating the Dr. Wilbert Hewitt foursome of Carlyle 9-4. The victory gave Hastings the two-of-three series in straight games as he had won the Friday game 10-8.

HOOD-LIFTER

WE'RE WEARING CUSTOMERS' SHOES

We didn't realize this ourselves until we looked through our records the other day and counted up the Used Cars we've delivered in the past seven years. Then we counted the number of customers who bought these cars and we found out that each one of our customers averaged three cars each since we've been in business. So we asked one of them, who had just taken delivery of his fifth used car from West End Motors, "What is there about our cars that keeps you coming back as a customer?"

His reply was simple: "Your cars are no better than most of the cars in town, nor are they any cheaper. But at West End Motors I know what I'm buying and I'm buying the car I want. It's because your salesmen are putting themselves in my shoes, and are taking the attitude that they themselves are buying the car FOR ME, not selling the car to me. I found by this time that I can buy a Used Car at West End Motors with my eyes closed. It eliminates guess work. I used to be afraid to buy a Used Car, but when I can buy one the way West End Motors sells it, it makes it a pleasure to deal."

We agree, natch. We've made a lot of friends in Belleville and we made them by wearing the customer shoes. And remember, too, we'll be here when you come back, whether in a week or in 5 years.

Arnfinn Bergmann's Family, Friends Celebrate Olympic Ski-Jump Victory

Revelstoke, B.C., Feb. 25—(CP)—An Olympic victory for a European nation was cheered today at this ski town in Canada's west.

Although officially he won the Olympic ski jump yesterday for Norway, Arnfinn Bergmann's feat is considered here as a triumph for Revelstoke.

Bergmann is the handsome young Scandinavian who conquered Revelstoke's hills and captured the heart of a Revelstoke beauty.

The international romance started in February, 1950, when Bergmann visited Revelstoke's tournament of champions with a seven-man Norwegian ski-jumping team.

First, he conquered the 80-metre Nels Nelsen hill, taking first place in the tournament's jumping event.

Then, as the former Vera Rodcliffe tells it:

"I guess you could call it love at first sight."

"The visiting team stayed at my grandmother's house where I helped with cooking and dishes and things.

"Arnfinn and I went out together a few times and he said he'd like me to see Norway sometime. In May I flew to Norway and we were married in Oslo on July 15."

Mrs. Bergmann is a skier, too. In fact, she was up the mountain when word reached here of Bergmann's Olympic triumph.

Only One Regret

Townsfolk had only one regret: That Bergmann was unable to do his jumping for Canada.

Bergmann's mother - in - law, Mrs. Francis Carlson, said his application for Canadian citizenship was not filed early enough to make him eligible for the Canadian team.

"He would have competed for Canada if it had been possible," she said.

Mother and daughter said Bergmann's victory carried out the wish of his father, who died in Norway late last year.

"To win the event was his greatest ambition," Mrs. Bergmann said. "Just before Arnfinn's father died he urged my husband to get on the Olympic team. I wish he were with us today."

Although Bergmann told reporters he planned to return to Revelstoke and settle down, his wife said he might be recalled for a few months compulsory military training in Norway.

"If that happens I shall have to stay here because there is a serious lack of housing in Norway," she said.

Mercurys Clinch Playoff Spot In Senior Group

(By The Canadian Press)

Owen Sound Mercurys clinched a berth in the Ontario Hockey Association senior playoffs Saturday by drubbing Brantford Redmen 10-4 while Hamilton Tigers;—their only rivals for the fourth and final playoff spot—bowed 5-2 before the cellar-dwelling Sarnia Sailors.

The victory moved Mercurys into a third-period deadlock with Brantford. Tigers, in falling before Sarnia for the first time in 10 starts, finished only three points out of contention for post-season play.

Mercurys close out the season with a postponed game at Sarnia tonight.

Stratford Indians hold down first place in the six-club circuit and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen fill the runner-up slot.

In O. H. A. junior A play, a Sunday afternoon game that saw Toronto Marlboros and Guelph Biltmores battle to a 3-3 tie, held the Marlies to their three-point margin over Bilts. A 9-2 Saturday night win over the tail-end Oshawa Generals gave Toronto its three -point edge.

The other half of the Sunday twin bill at Maple Leaf Gardens —witnessed by a record crowd of 13,056 fans—saw Toronto St. Michael's rally for a 4-2 victory over Oshawa while at Windsor, the sixth-place Kitchener Greenshirts edged the ninth-place Spitfires 7-6.

Other Saturday night games gave Barrie Flyers a 9-5 win against Waterloo Hurricanes while Galt Black Hawks bested St. Mike's 5-3.

Burlington Scores Three

At Owen Sound, Tom Burlington scored three goals for Mercurys and Buck Forslund clicked for two. Mike Bukacheski, Johnny MacDonald, Bill Allum, Paul Parker and Ray McCallum scored one each. Bud Kemp scored a pair for Brantford. Bill Russell and Bob Bragagnola added the others.

Bill Gardiner, John Lardner, Val Federonick, Johnny Sheddon and Ollie Haddon divided Sarnia goals. Paul Miocinovitch and Gordie Peebles blinked the light for Hamilton.

Andy Bathgate led Guelph's Sunday attack with two goals, Ken Laufman, the league's top scorer, banging in the other. Wally Maxwell, Parker MacDonald and Steve Karrys scored for Marlboros.

Billy Lee, Murray Costello, Ron Wallace and Neil Buchanan were the St. Michael's Sunday scorers. Herve Dejordy and Bob Attersley scored for Oshawa.

Eric Nesterenko led Marlies Saturday with four goals while Chuck Lumsden scored two. Danly Maxwell added the others. Bob ly Maxwell added the others.Bob Holden and Herve Dejordy scored for Oshawa.

Doug McKenny paced Barrie with three goals while Ron Stewart, Chuck Wood, Fred Pletsch, John Martan, Ken Mohns and Hilly Menard added singletons. Ron Murphy, Ken McNeil, Don McIntosh, Paul Oliver and Charlie Brooker tallied for the losers.

Tommy Fyles and Jim McBurney each scored two goals for Galt while Jim Conacher added the other. Ron Wallace, Jim Logan and Bob Sabourin clicked for the St. Mike's squad.

Sunday at Windsor, Orv Tessier led the Kitchener attack with three markers. Ed Edmundson tallied twice. Red Novak and Joe Ingoldsby added the others. Joe Zorica, Bill Skov, Bob Brown, Don Craven, Bill Waters and Bill Robertson were Spitfire scorers.

French-Canadian Greatest Showman At Olympic Games

(By The Canadian Press)

Luc Laferte may be no hot-shot as a ski jumper against the world's best but the cheery French-Canadian with the twinkling eyes turned out to be one of the greatest showmen at the Olympic winter games in Oslo.

Luc was all set for his jump Sunday at the ski-jumping championship. A crowd of 150,000 persons looked on.

Luc shot out of the chute. When he landed one ski came off and Luc went skidding along on the seat of his pants. As he twisted and turned, the other ski broke loose.

Luc was unruffled. When he stopped he stood up, bowed from the waist in all direction and clasped his hands above his head like a boxer acknowledging plaudits.

The huge throng let out a roar.

Luc placed 41st in the field of 44.

Jack Burke, Jr., yesterday calmly sank a 12-foot putt on the 18th hole for an even par 72 to win the $10,000 Houston (Tex.) open golf tournament. His 72-hole total of 277 was 11 under par and six strokes better than his nearest rival, amateur Frank Stranahan with a 283. Burke won $2,000 first money.

Elmer Lach, Montreal Canadiens' veteran centre, Saturday night broke the National Hockey League total-points record of Bill Cowley. A goal and three assists gave Lach 550 points, two more than the 548 record set by Cowley.

Ross McAllister of Toronto Boulevard defeated Jim Carnwath of Woodstock in the Ontario junior badminton tournament Saturday in Toronto to take the boys' A singles trophy. Scores in the three games were 15-8, 4-15, 15-8.

A Negro has been signed to a Texas League contract for the first time in the history of the 64-year-old baseball circuit. He is Ray Neil, 26-year-old second baseman, whose signing of a Dallas Eagles contract was announced yesterday in Dallas by owner R. W. (Dick) Burnett.

Tony Hemmerling resigned yesterday as coach of the faltering Seattle Ironmen, telling owner Frank Dotten he felt he was not able to make the club produce properly. A short time later team members elected veteran defenceman Danny Sprout to Hemmerling's job. Saturday Seattle defenceman Jack Jackson was suspended indefinitely from organized hockey.

won the Bronze Baby Trophy, emblematic of the women's senior intercollegiate basketball championship, with a 36-34 victory over McGill University of Montreal in Kingston.

G. F. Grant's Toronto rink won the 16th annual members and guests annual granite bonspiel at the Seigniory Club, Que., this weekend: The team which included F. Goforth, M. Tellis and G. R. Sproat, went undefeated in three rounds of play to pile up a total of 18 points to win the three day 'spiel in which 28 rinks took part.

Cent. Ontario Bowling League

Belleville Recreations held first place in the Central Ontario Bowling League when they defeated Trenton David's 5 points to 2. Recreations rolled 3730 against 3499 for the losers. High for the locals was R. Saylor with 907 (321), J. McKenzie 731, H. Ryan 726 (306), and J. Legault 700. For David's D. Mason rolled 833 (349), W. Gill 710, E. Whitney 709.

Guay's in Trenton played hosts to the Belleville Bowl-O-Drome and took seven points from the visitors. Guays racked up 3627 while the Belleville team had 3337. Leading the Trenton attack was H. Ormshaw with 838 while C. Tyler had a 894. Cec Hardwick was high for the locals with 747 (348).

ALL HAD HAND IN SCORING

Oslo, Feb. 25 (CP)—All players, except the goalies, had a hand in the harvest of 71 goals Canada scored in winning the Olympic hockey championship. The other teams in the round-robin series scored only 14 goals against the Canadians.

All the players didn't see service in all eight games, but the least number scored by any one player was two. Left-wing Billy Gibson had the highest total, 14. The most for a player in a single game was Englebert Miller's five in Canada's 15-1 defeat of Germany.

Kidnapped Girl Soon Found

Daughter of a wealthy Montreal manufacturer, three-year-old Barbara Nemeroff, was kidnapped from her crib and held for $50,000 ransom. A few hours after her abduction she was found by police in front of a department store in the company of a 22-year-old former employee of the girl's father. She was unharmed. The kidnapper had entered the Nemeroff home, forced a maid to dress the girl, then carried her out after pausing to drop a ransom note under the door. — Central Press Canadian.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The convention signals in bridge change their meanings slightly in different positions. But their basic purpose is always there. As when north and south held this pair of partnership hands:

NORTH	SOUTH
♠A K Q J 10 9 8 4 3 2	♠6
♥None	♥9 8 6 4 3
♦5	♦A K 5 4 3 2
♣K 3	♣A

This is how the bidding went:

West	North	East	South
1 C	2 S	Pass	3 C
Pass	3 S	Pass	4 D
Pass	4 S	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 S	Pass	6 S
Pass	7 S	All pass

The three club bid by south is an overcall in opponent suit. It says that south will lose no tricks in clubs and the bidding must keep going to at least a game.

An overcall in opponent suit has two basic purposes. One is to say that no tricks will be lost in the suit bid by opponents. The other is that the partnership should reach at least a game.

When used by the first player of a defending side it shows these things. Specifically the number of tricks it shows is not less than nine; theoretically enough for a game force.

When used by responder of defending bidder, it also shows these things. But now it does not promise nine tricks. It shows only tricks enough to make game with what partner promised.

Therefore, the three club bid by south tells north they will lose no club tricks and that game is assured. If south can make such a promise, north is certainly elated at the prospects.

So, it is no wonder that north keeps telling how sound is his spade suit. And when south goes to six, no wonder north goes to seven. And some bridge players live dangerously.

Stranded Actor

Once one of the best-known actors of Europe, 76-year-old Oscar Beregi has lost his Hungarian citizenship because of anti-communist activities. British Parachute Into Red Territory

Into a jungle clearing in North Central Malaya, British parachute troops were dropped by a combined force of RAF and RAAF aircraft. The clearing lies in a bowl of 4,000-foot mountains, and the dropping operation was a race against time. The site of the air-drop was a remote area of Central Malaya, inaccessible by road or river. Communist bandits were using the area as a rest and training area, and for the growing of food. Food is becoming one of their great problems, since the Malayan government introduced severe restrictions on the movement of foodstuffs by road. On the way to the dropping zone the heavily equipped paratroops, shown here, were cramped inside their Dakota aircraft. Many landed on trees and bushes. — Central Press Canadian.

At half time B.C.I. had only a point lead but went on to defeat the homesters by 15 points.

Gerald Goyer turned in a superb performance scoring 16 points, followed closely by Wayne Bovay with 10. Matthews played well for B.C.I.

For the losers Coathup, Blair and Diamant hooped in six apiece.

Lineups:

B.C.I.—Goyer 16; Bovay 10; Gault, Batchelor, Bennett, Soule 4; Campbell 1; Matthews 7; Farmer 2; Jackson, Varcoe, Wagar 1.

Napanee—Davis 5; Coathup 6; McAlister, Medd, Blair 6; Howitt, Diamant 6; Parcher, Allison, Babcock 3; Shaw.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reeding the paper and shaking his head to himself as if he didn't approve of the news, and I said, Hay pop, how is it I haven't got a middle initial?

I always knew you'd ask me that some day, but I'm not a man that goes around ansering questions before they're asked, so I've waited patiently, pop said. The truth is, a middle initial is just a mystery that fizzes out as soon as peeple discover what it stands for, and sooner or later they're going to find out, so the whole thing is hardly werth starting in the ferst place. Look what happened to John J. James, he said.

What did? I said, and pop said, Well, if his middle initial had stood for something impressively unusual, like Jimsonweed, he could of gone through life with his head held high, but his full name really was John Jack James. In other werds it gave the effect of 3 ferst names without even a last name, and John J. James kept slinking around hoping that nobody would ask him what his middle initial stood for, till at last he developed an inferiority complex and failed in whatever he attempted, which was very little. You wouldn't like that to happen to you, would you? pop said.

No sir, but just the same I'd like to have a middle initial like most of the other guys, I said, and pop said, This is where I came in. Very well, I'll give you a middle initial that stands for something really distinctive. I neerby re-christen you Benny Pooover Potts, he said.

The result being I'm thinking of signing myself B. P. Potts from now on, if I dont forget.

AT THE CAPITOL — Treachery and violence keynote Republic's new drama, "Surrender," which will be the attraction at the Capitol Theatre tonight. John Carroll and Vera Ralston are the romantic co-stars. On the same program "Surrender," starring Vera Ralston, John Carroll and Walter Brennan.

ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S CARTOON:
A THICK GLASS DOES NOT STAND HOT WATER BETTER THAN A THIN ONE. The reverse is true. Glass is a bad conductor of heat. In a thick glass tumbler the inner layers of the glass are heated before the outer. Heat causes expansion, and the outer layers are burst by the expansion of the inner. (1. "Popular Fallacies" — A. Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, February 26

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—You breezy, sometimes fiery natives will have to put the breaks on today. Hold your emotions in check. Be diplomatic or you'll find yourself doing a lot of explaining.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—With sound action you can come through fine. Use your conscientious standards in duties, all activities and you should be well satisfied by night. Really relax after work.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Fewer complications, hindrances than you may expect. You are endowed with foresight, intuition; today is a day to use them cleverly toward achieving goals. The unexpected may offer advantages.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—You could be tripped into following wrong road or persons, so watch yourself and others carefully. Concerted action in business will be effective. Don't act on assumption only, study facts.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Fine period for advancing in reconstruction, contracts, mining, engineering, manufacturing, progressive merchandising. Don't rush or force issues; take things in stride but with due confidence.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Same type of day for you as for Leo generally. But you seldom rush things, so you might put on a little extra pressure here to gain your credits. Avoid presupposing, anxiety.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Mixed influences most of day. Don't have too tight restrictions. Get into the swing of new, improved methods. Avoid over-criticism, it may prove obstacle to clearer thinking, benefits.

October 24 to November 22—Scorpio—Be philosophical. Tasks, problems may irk. Remain calm, within and without. Your judgment may be tested at times, don't let that stymie the real ambition and fortitude natural with you.

November 23 to December 22—Sagittarius— Situation may arise that will change outlook a bit in a.m., especially in business, finances. Watch closely how competitors are acting, double-check each matter carefully.

December 23 to January 21—Capricorn—Many considerations. First your duties, then the outside interests which benefit. Certain reactions to problems will need extra study. Reflect critically, calmly.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius) — Most indications during early hours will give you idea as to how to chart day properly. P.M. aspects brighter, mostly for business, money and general affairs.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces) — Star configurations mildly favorable. Examine each item on your schedule, be alert for new flaws as advantages. Romance, marriage, family interests highly sponsored from 4 p.m.

YOU BORN TODAY: Generally fine disposition with a kind word or helping hand for your fellow neighbor, friend. Industrious, and you do think in a well-balanced manner. You don't like to rush things, want to know exactly what you are about. Idealistic, imaginative. Ingenius at times. Like things done in orderly fashion, finished to one's best ability, including your own. Many actors, lawyers, doctors, teachers, artists, designers, instructors of languages born under Pisces. Avoid anticipating trouble worrying.

Birthdate: Victor Hugo, French poet, dramatist, novelist; Wm. F. (Buffalo Bill) Cody, Indian scout, soldier; Madeline Carroll, actress.

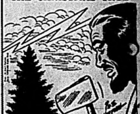
GREEK TEACHER

William Lily, English grammarian who died in 1522, is believed to have been the first teacher of Greek in London.

WHY WE SAY THE CHRISTMAS TREE



. . . A pagan custom

The Christmas tree had its origin in Rome where people hung gifts on trees in honor of their god, bacchus . . . Fir trees became Christmas trees in the eighth century when St. Winfred started to cut down an oak tree being used as an idol. Before he finished, lightning struck the tree, but spared a small fir tree beside it. For this reason, the fir tree was designated "Christ's tree" and is used today.

Even an Editor Could Make One

The once disparaging comment "that picture must have been made with a milk bottle lens" has lost its punch. For Dr. F. G. Back, optical designer, has created a camera lens made out of a milk bottle that will take pictures good enough to please a city editor. Dr. Back says anyone — even editors — can make a lens from an ordinary milk bottle with the know-how and some $25,000 in equipment. Here Dr. Back examines one of several empty milk bottles to find the best optical glass for his "milk bottle lens." — Central Press

Catholic Women's League Sponsors Attractive Tea

On Thursday afternoon a lovely and largely attended tea was held at the home of Mrs. F. R. Ross, 16 Moira St., East under the auspices of Belleville sub-division of the Catholic Women's League of Canada.

The guests were admitted by little Miss Linda Ross and Mrs. E. Logan directed them upstairs to the guests' rooms to leave their wraps. Mrs. J. E. Boyd, president of the league, received with Mrs. Ross, and Mrs. W. Allore was visiting hostess.

Lovely Tea Table

Mrs. R. Rashotte and Mrs. J. Boyle invited to the tearoom. Here in the dignified mid-Victorian decor of the spacious room, was the beautifully appointed tea table centred with a silver bowl of spring blooms flanked by triple silver candelabra holding pale yellow candles. At either end silver services gleamed over a hand crocheted ecru lace cloth

Pouring during the afternoon were Mrs. H. Barrett and Mrs. L. Callaghan; Mrs. D. V. Doyle and Mrs. F. G. Cushing; Mrs. W. Davidson and Mrs. T. Fluery. The servers included Mrs. E. Haines, Mrs. L. Quinn, Mrs. F. Deacon, Mrs. V. Carroll, Mrs. P. Mercier, Mrs. E. McCallum, Miss A. Doyle, Mrs. G. Donoghue, Mrs. A. Whalen, Mrs. E. Bowers, Mrs. T. Morrison, Mrs. H. Glen, Mrs. M. Robertson, Mrs. J. Trualsch, and Mrs. C. Cox.

Replenishing were Mrs. P. Feeney, Mrs. J. Kelly, Mrs. V. McIntyre, Mrs. A. Meagher, Mrs. A. Black and Mrs. J. Vinkle made the tea.

The bake sale was conducted by Mrs. George Lee, Mrs. M. J. Kennedy, Mrs. W. Frawley and Mrs. D. Beaton. An unusually generous assortment of delicious looking pastries was completely disposed of.

Mrs. A. Morrell sold chances on a large hamper of groceries. This was won by Miss Gertrude Lynch, 77 Front Street, South. Featured also, was a chest of silver flatware, on which Mrs. Burley sold tickets. This was won by Mrs. H. Wakefield, 82 Queen Street.

Mrs. A. Wilkinson was treasurer for the afternoon and Mrs. E. Lally distributed tickets on door prize —the floral table centre was won by Mrs. A. Skinner, 46 Catherine Street.

Mrs. H. Lamp and Mrs. R. Tracy drove their cars to collect home-cooking. Mrs. George O'Brien was general convener of this very successful event.

The basket of groceries was donated by Frank Domenico and Mrs. Morrell while the flatware was given by Paul Mercier.

Mrs. D. MacKinnon Talks on 'Buying'

The dinner meeting of the Belleville Soroptimist Club was held in Lattimer's Town Room. The president, Gladys MacDonald, called upon Frances Bennett to introduce the speaker, Mrs. Dorothy MacKinnon. Mrs. MacKinnon is a graduate of the University of Toronto in Home Economics and a member of the Consumers' Section of the Department of Agriculture during the war. She chose as her subject "Buying".

The speaker contrasted the old grocery store with its open barrels, cases, and bulk merchandise, with the modern groceteria, that uses every psychological approach in displaying its packaged merchandise.

This change has kept pace with living conditions which passed from the old roomy homes with cupboards, storage and large cool cellars, to the modern small home, flat or apartment with warm basements, small cupboards and limited storage.

Adds to Living Costs

All this service of small packaging adds to the steadily rising cost of living, the speaker pointed out, giving an example of packaged carrots of one pound costing 25 cents and three pounds of the identical carrots in bulk for 29 cents at the same counter.

While packaged merchandise is sanitary, attractive, less apt to spoil in handling and easily stored it is more expensive and a cautious buyer while not wishing to deter business, feels that business should not deter the buyer from getting what she wants and reasonable value for her money.

The same principles apply to the buying of clothes, household furnishings and other commodities. If a resistance is built up by the consumer against unwanted designs in clothes, the designers and manufacturers are more than willing to meet the demands for functional, attractive goods.

For example given here was the short existence of the "new look" era, also streamlined stoves add to the appearance of a kitchen, but almost every woman prefers a stove with a high oven—but where could one be found in modern displays.

Good Buying

Attention was called to the generation today that never knew cheaper prices, finer materials or more pleasing, functional design and it was mentioned that those who had had experience along these lines should lead the way in good buying.

The Consumers' Branch was an outgrowth of the War Time Prices and Trades Board. It was non-political, and non-sectarian, being just a group of timely alert Canadian women, who were instrumental in having the brief for the sale of oleomargarine submitted to the government and who now are preparing a similar brief regarding the price and weight packaging of soaps and detergents.

Mrs. MacKinnon was thanked by Mrs. Laura MacLauchlin for her instructive and analytical talk and the club as a whole felt added interest in the producer-consumer problem.

MAY BUILD DOCK

Sarnia, Feb. 23 — (CP)—Sarnia may become the first Ontario city with a multiple - floor parking lot. Mayor W. C. Nelson said yesterday that the city may consider erecting a deck above the present public parking lot on Front St.

CAMPBELLFORD

Business, Professional Women's Club Elects New Officers

Campbellford—Two minutes silence, in memory of the late King George VI was observed by the business and professional women of Campbellford at their monthly meeting in the council chambers here on Tuesday evening.

The president, Jean Morrison, read the constitution to which an amendment was made allowing former business and professional women to become associate members, and as such to take part in all club activities, without a vote. She also exlpained the aims and helpful ways the club can benefit members.

Mrs. Pewtress to Speak

Meetings from now on will be held on the first Thursday of each month. The next meeting will be a dinner meeting, at which Mrs. Pewtress, acting regional adviser to the club will be the guest speaker.

Chairmen and committee were named as follows: membership, Barbara Smith, Donna Carswell; program, Helen Gorman, Orpha Clegg; ways, means and publicity, Eve Spencer, Helen Hall, Mamie Winstanley; International, Kathleen Ferris, Kathleen O'Shaughnessy; bulletin, Jean Ayrhart, Marie Crosson.

Telegrams of congratulations to the new club were received from the Cobourg club and the Toronto, Leamington, London clubs, as well as two from Nova Scotia.

After the discussion of business, a short discussion was held on the aims and activities of the club, and the members decided they had joined a worthwhile organization.

USE PRISONERS

Moscow, Feb. 25 — (AP)—The Russian press said today Americans are using Chinese and Korean war prisoners for atomic-bomb experiments. The papers said the charges originated with the Chinese communist organ, Jen Min Jih Pao in Peiping.

Friends are glad to see Mr. W. Leslie De Groffee home after spending more than a year in Prince Edward County hospital.

Miss Lola Cockburn, of Rochester, N.Y., is spending some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Cockburn.

Mr. Harold Cahoon was taken by ambulance on Sunday to Kingston General Hospital to undergo further treatment on his leg which was broken several weeks ago.

Mrs. Arthur Sanders was a recent weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lou Blanchard of Brockville.

Mr. and Mrs. Don East of St. Johns, Que., spent a few days recently with his mother, Mrs. Harry East.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Baxter and Miss Sylvia Stark arrived home on Tuesday after a two months' holiday in Florida.

Miss Helena Barker was taken by ambulance on Saturday to Prince Edward County Hospital; her many friends are hoping she may soon be able to return home much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Hough and family, of Toronto, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Denike.

WALLBRIDGE

Wallbridge—The funeral of Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson was largely attended on Friday afternoon. Lawrence as he was known by many people, will be greatly missed in all kinds of work as superintendent of the Sunday School, teacher of the boys' class and member of the choir. He was always helping in all church organizations. Much sympathy is extended his his wife and children in the loss of a loving husband and father.

Mrs. J. Chisholm is spending a week with her daughter, Mrs. J. Hendrick and Mr. Hendrick.

95th Birthday

Mr. Allan Logan of Port Arthur and mother, Mrs. R. Logan, of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Tucker, of Belleville, called on Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris and Mrs. M. Harris on Sunday evening. Mrs. R. Logan is spending a week at the same home with her mother who celebrated her 95th birthday on Tuesday.

Mrs. Harris is quite well and still reads without glasses and recalls many things when she was young and her mind is alert to all happenings.

On her birthday she was remembered with many cards and flowers from her relatives and friends.

Her three children Frank Harris, Mrs. E. Tucker and Mrs. R. Logan were present and in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kemp and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Kemp and their two little daughters Sharon and Joanne called, the children being Mrs. Harris' great great grandchildren.

Pictures were taken of the five generations. Mrs. Bruce Kemp is also well known in Wallbridge being the former Miss Doreen Johnston. She spent her school days here and her father, Mr. Wilfred Johnston was cheesemaker for a number of years.

All spent a happy time. The table looked pretty with the birthday cake in the centre with its 95 lighted candles.

All wished Mrs. Harris more happy birthdays.

MOIRA

Moira—Mr. and Mrs. Blake Ketcheson, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketcheson, Mrs. Nelson Welsh, Mrs. George Foster and Beverely attended the funeral of the late Lawrence Ketcheson, held at Wallbridge United Church last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketcheson, Linda and Owen, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lake, Stirling. Mrs. Ketcheson's mother Mrs. Lake returned with them.

The young people enjoyed a skating party last Friday evening in Mr. Thompson's field and then to the vestry of church, and had a cup of hot cocoa and cookies.

Mr. and Mrs. George Williams and John, Mrs. P. W. Williams, Springbrook, were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kellar.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ellarby are spending some time with their daughter, Mrs. Bill Hazzard and Mr. Hazzard in Belleville. Mr. Ellarby is confined to his bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McInroy and Diane were Sunday supper guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Maines and family, Thomasburg.

Victory Class

The regular meeting of Moira Victory Class was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Blake Ketcheson on Thursday evening taking form of a box social.

The president, Donald McInroy presided for the devotional and business part and Mrs. McInroy for the program. Rev. Morley Clarke conducted the study book on "Evangelism".

The evening concluded with selling of beautifully decorated boxes and social hour was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus Mumby, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Mumby and Grant, and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketcheson were Friday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Martin, Thomasburg.

Mr. David Mumby spent the weekend with relatives in Springbrook.

More Precious Than Rubies

By Nina Wilcox Putnam

Alma Conroy avoided the chance of meeting Joe Denton and went directly to her place at the long workbench under the high windows

An air of unusual excitement pervaded the room, and with an effort Alma recalled the cause. The annual auction of the sweepings under the grilled floor had been held and the winning bid had been $7,000, an unusually large sum. The floor would be taken up that night and as always there was betting among the men as to what the assay of the sweepings would amount to.

"Higgins and Co. will be stuck and my $5 says so!" said a voice. "I've been powerful careful with my tray this season!"

"I haven't blown enough gold to fill a bird's tooth!" said another.

Old Victor Blanchard chimed in. "It is really remarkable how very small is the amount we lose. Yet if someone were careless with a big stone today, Higgins might do well!"

"Funny thing a new firm like Higgins getting it. First time in years that the Mammoth Gold-buying Company hasn't outbid them all." The comment ran on and on.

New work had been laid out for Alma. The pair of clips had been enlarged to what the journeyman called "a litter" a necklace of almost identical pieces which could be separated into clips, a breast pin and bracelets. The stones were mostly medium small diamonds with some sapphire "shavings"—thin stones to be worked off into a floral design. The jewels were not stock but the private accumulation of a customer who wanted them reset. It was a job carrying extra responsibility because the stones did not belong to the House.

Alma was grateful for an absorbing task and set about it with a sort of fury which she hoped would obliterate her personal problems. She did not intend to allow herself to think and she was not going to face Joe Denton.

At noon she refused to go to lunch but had a sandwich and coffee brought to the bench. She drank the coffee but could not eat, and returned to her labors almost without stopping. From time to time throughout the afternoon, Old Victor watched her enxiously and when just before closing time he got ready to depart, he touched her lightly on the shoulder.

"Stop!" said he. "Everyone is leaving early because of the floor. Come cherie, you have done enough for the day!" Alma turned heavy eyes on him.

"I'll stay a while," she said, trying to smile "just long enough to finish this one clip. Please don't urge me, Papa Victor; I really want to do it."

He shrugged and left her, reluctantly, and when he had gone the big room seemed very silent and empty, but Alma was not conscious of the fact. It was only when she felt another presence close to her, that she looked up from her work. Then she saw Mrs. Denton, smiling at her from the wheelchair. "I hope I didn't startle you," said the older woman. "My chair runs very quietly and I sometimes forget it's like sneaking up behind someone on rubber soles."

"Oh hello, Mrs. Denton!" said Alma.

She wasn't surprised, now that the first shock was over, at seeing the cripple there. Mrs. Denton could manoeuvre her chair with ease and was a frequent visitor in all parts of The House.

Mrs. Denton took every advantage of her helpless condition, and her appearance she contributed to remind one of Whistler's famous portrait of his mother, though Alma sensed that under the soft costuming and the mild air of sweetly-sad resignation, was a will of iron.

"Was there something special you wanted, Mrs. Denton?"

"No," the voice was at once both plaintive and very cheerful "I just came up to say goodbye. I leave on my vacation very soon."

"Oh yes! Joe's taking you to Mexico, I hear!"

"The doctor thought the sunshine might do me good. Well, I'm sorry to have missed the others. I'll be too busy to get back up stairs before I go. Not that I suppose they care whether they ever see an old wreck like me again."

Mrs. Denton daubed at her eyes with a large cambric handkerchief leaned back wearily, and dropped the handkerchief to the floor. Alma watched the witch-like face anxiously for a moment, until Mrs. Denton pulled herself together with an apologetic smile.

"Well, I must be going!" she said. "My handkerchief . . . would you mind, dear? I can't quite reach it."

Alma retrieved the handkerchief and received a too-grateful smile

"I hope you—and Joe—have a pleasant trip Mrs. Denton."

"Thank you, my dear! Goodby!"

Alma watched the old woman wheel herself off and then deliberately delayed putting away her work in order to avoid having to go down in the same elevator.

After Mrs. Denton was safely out of sight Alma Conroy suddenly realized how tired she felt. It was now just past the usual closing time and she was so nervous and exhausted that she scarcely remembered handing in her tray to Mr. Youmans, or getting home. She ached with fatigue but she was glad to have beaten her troubled thoughts for at least a few hours.

As she opened the door of the apartment it was obvious that this time Tommy really had gone away. The half-open bureau drawers, the signs of a hasty packing were evidence of a tardy departure. She sighed with relief, heated a bowl of soup and when she had drunk it lay down on the living room sofa, the evening paper in her strong, beautiful hands.

The next thing she knew it was nearly midnight. She was wide awake, electrified by a sudden fear. Had the biggest diamond the one for the centre ornament been in her lock tray when she turned it in?

She could not remember having seen it. Yet it must have been there. Nobody could have taken it for she had been alone at the bench except for Mrs. Denton, who could not have reached the tray without standing—a physical impossibility. Mr. Youmans must have checked but for once he might have been guilty of an oversight. A cold chill seized her as she recalled the jokes and bets about the sweepings and remembered that she had worked too fast and under pressure.

Mr. Youmans would think her mad, calling up at such an hour, but she could not endure to wait until morning. She thumbed through the telephone directory feverishly, but there was nothing listed under the old man's name. Of course not, she remembered, impatiently flinging the book aside. He lived in the suburbs somewhere—but where, oh where? Alma could not remember where.

Well, what good could calling Joe do anyway? If that stone was under the wooden grille it had already become the property of Higgins & Co. By now the vacuuming would have been done, the carpenters be busy laying the new floor so that the room would be ready for occupancy when the jewelers arrived in the morning. And Alma would have to stand the loss to the client. It would take years to pay off such a debt.

But worse, far worse, was the disgrace. At Trumbull's carelessness was a sin beggaring description. She did not sleep again that night. Her twin consciences became active.

"Well," Aunt Pleasant's voice reminded her "you let sinful thoughts take the place of honest work. Serves you right."

"Poor little foolish one," Gran' Bijou was being sorry for her. "You have a grand passion for your husband. It is broken up and you pay for it. One always pays for love!"

Alma was at the employees' entrance before the night watchman had left The House. She was waiting when Mr. Youmans arrived and opened his steel cubby Hole with maddening deliberation. Her lips were dry with fright as she posed her question. Youmans peered [illegible] his bifocals.

Then his mild voice lifted her like a drowning woman, a safety.

"Yes, it's here all right, yes indeed. Don't apologize, my dear, people often get this sort of fright at floor time."

Alma took her tray with a sort of sober reverence. The clean scene of new lumber wafted out to her as the day guard unlocked the work room door. The day settled down to a semblance of normalcy, and when Old Victor came in she was able to tell him of her scare almost as if it had been amusing.

"Ah! But it is not so funny!" he observed. "I know how you felt for once, when The House was down on Union Square, a big diamond flew out of my pincers and—pooph! right out through the open window. There was no fly-screens in those days But by the grace of goodness and a nice Irish gendarme, we finally found the stone—under a forshythia bush in the park!"

Little Benny's Note Book

I was downtown with ma, and ma had to stop and wait for me while I looked in a store window at a lot of machines and stuff, and she said, Oh for land sakes stay here and gawk, I want to run into the Mary Loo gift shop a few minutes. Wait for me down at the corner, she said

And she kept on going, and after a while I got tired looking in the window and went down to the corner and ma wasn't there, and after a while I thawt I saw her across the street, and I thawt, G, she must of ment over on that corner.

And I ran across, but it was another lady the same shape, and just then I saw ma standing over on the corner where I just was, and she was looking around in all diffrent directions like somebody looking for somebody, and I thawt, G, she thinks I'm lost. Oh boy, I bet she thinks I'm in a police station or somewheres, waiting to ge found. Oh boy, I bet she'll be glad to see me again, I thawt.

And I started to run across again at the wrong time, being just when the traffic was changing, and peeple blew their horns and screetched their brakes, and the traffic cop blew his whissle, and I kept rite on going and I saw ma vatching me with her mouth open, and as soon as I got there she grabbed a hold of me and started to shake me, saying, You crazy silly senseless thing, are you crazy?

Well jimminey roozelem, ma, aint you glad to see me again? I said, and ma said, I'm glad to see you alive in one piece, you crazy thing.

And she shook me pritty near the hardest I've ever been shook.

Proving I was rite about her being glad, but not quite that glad.

Remember when you got

The Most Wonderful Bike in the World?

Sure you do!

Even now you can picture how your first bike looked in all its glorious, sparkling newness . . . how the other kids envied you . . . and how, suddenly, you felt that you had wings!

And do you remember how you got the money for it? The dimes and quarters you saved out of your allowance weren't enough. So you earned extra change doing chores. Slowly, so slowly, the total grew. Then, one great day, the bike was yours!

You learned then about the necessity for saving to get some of the things you want most. But has time dimmed your memory of the lesson you learned so long ago?

If so, remember — nothing has changed your needs for money in the future. Nor has any magic substitute been found for thrift.

Today, millions of Canadians are practising their good habit of thrift by keeping up their life insurance payments to protect their families, while saving for the future. They've discovered that, to reach their goals, they must put money aside regularly.

Are you following their example?

Life insurance works for you these other ways:

Every dollar you set aside in life insurance (or save in bank deposits or savings bonds) helps to check inflation, thus protecting the value of all your money.

Life insurance helps improve your living standards, too. For a large part of each dollar you pay in premiums is invested for you in ways that help provide new homes, schools, highways, power plants and other vital projects throughout the nation.

Thus today, when you put aside money in life insurance, you are providing security for yourself and your family . . . working to check inflation . . . and promoting progress for all.

American Ban On Canadian Meat Held Severe Blow

May be Permanent, Livestock Men Fear

Ottawa, Feb. 26 — (CP) — An embargo by the United States on import of Canadian meat and livestock because of foot-and-mouth disease in southern Saskatchewan may be be a blow from which Canada's $2,000,000,000 livestock industry will never recover.

That was one among a number of possibilities which emerged from the confusion following announcement yesterday of the embargo and of the measures Canada will take to stamp out the contagious disease.

Western livestock traders were the first to suggest that livestock interests in the U.S. will try to keep the embargo indefinitely. Last year Canada shipped $130,000,000 worth of cattle, hogs, sheep and goats and meat from these animals to the U.S.

With loss of the U.S. market, drastic price cuts were forecast. The federal government took the view that prices might not be seriously affected. However, trade came to a virtual standstill on western livestock markets and traders generally forecast a price drop within the next few days.

Immediate Effects

These were the first effects of the embargo across the country:

1. Nine municipalities adjacent to Regina were indefinitely quarantined. Movement of livestock, hides, grains and feed was stopped. Even residents' movements were restricted.

2. Herds on 22 infected premises were marked for slaughter. Federal and provincial veterinary officials checked for other signs of the disease. About 100 agricultural officials converged on Regina.

3. The federal government promised compensation for farmers whose livestock is slaughtered.

4. Trade in livestock was slowed or halted in the west. Movement of livestock was restricted. Two packing plants in Regina closed down.

5. Deputy Minister of agriculture, J. G. Taggart prepared to present Canada's position to Hume Wrong, Canadian ambassador in Washington with a view to getting the embargo relaxed.

6. Prime Minister St. Laurent called an emergency cabinet meeting. Agriculture Minister Gardiner cancelled a holiday and prepared to return from Seattle.

7. Grain prices declined on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. The status of feed grains, not under embargo in the U.S. which buys large quantities in Canada, likely to be discussed at the Washington talks.

The quarantine was the first step in confining the disease in an area where slaughter and burial would eradicate it. An estimated 1,350 animals—worth $360,000 healthy—will be slaughtered. At the highest possible price provided by the federal government for compensation this could cost $117,000.

But this cost would be small compared to the loss of a lengthy embargo. A similar embargo on Mexican livestock was imposed by the U.S. in 1946 and still is in effect.

Much Free Advice

Amid the predictions of disaster for the industry and heavy price cuts, plenty of free advice was forthcoming from cattlemen and political figures.

British Columbia's livestock commissioner, Dr. W. G. Gunn, urged a general quarantine to keep prairie livestock out of B. C. Alex Merger, president of the B. C. Federation of Agriculture took a similar stand. But the B. C. government decided to leave the matter up to the federal government.

In Saskatchewan, the leader of the Progressive Conservative party, Alvin Hamilton, suggested the federal government set up a producer board to ensure orderly marketing, especially of surplus hogs and cattle.

He also wanted surplus livestock made available to Britain under any terms obtainable.

Experts in Ontario forecast losses of up to $5,000,000 for Ontario livestock breeders who lose their U. S. markets. They forecast no meat shortage since most of Ontario's consumption is filled from home-grown herds.

Quebec agricultural sources foresaw similar serious losses. Hog dealers and breeders likely would be hardest hit by loss of U. S. markets. The eventual effect on retail prices was unpredictable.

Man Arrested On Leaving Plane At N.Y. Airport

New York, Feb. 26 (AP) —A man wanted for questioning in a $19,600 Los Angeles bank holdup was seized by FBI agents at La Guardia field early today after his description had been checked by radio with a plane coming in from the west coast.

In Los Angeles where police were notified of the arrest, Lt. George Stoner identified the prisoner as John Richard Bayless, 37.

A branch of the Bank of America in Los Angeles was robbed yesterday as movieland customers waited in line, unaware of the holdup.

A TWA spokesman said the FBI had radioed a description of the wanted man to the plane as it flew over Pittsburgh. Capt. B. K. Steussi 37, passed word to the hostess.

The hostess, Jeri Starr, 21, spotted the passenger in seat No. 6 and gave a description to the captain.

The man's description was radioed back to the FBI agents at the field, and double-checked.

Unused Weapons Will be Given To NATO--Times

New York, Feb. 26—(CP)—The latest and previously-unused weapons of the United States will soon be at the disposal of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the New York Times says today.

Where the weapons will be kept, how many there are and how they will reach their destinations, must remain a guarded secret, the Times says in a dispatch by Benjamin Welles from Lisbon.

But the very fact that such terrible engines of war, and particularly of retaliation, were virtually at hand, is of great significance to the strength of the Atlantic alliance, the story says.

Also considered of great military and political significance in Lisbon was the fact that U. S. production of these arms had reached the stage where the U. S. government can widen the area where it stored them.

It was known that a few senior ministers of the British government now are anxious to set up with the U. S., a joint strategic air command.

Now there was at least good reason for the establishment of a joint board to plan strategic air operations wherever war might necessitate them.

Britons, who played a vital part in the development of atomic energy, wanted more to say in the use of British territory by the U. S. and the planning of future air operations.

There was every reason to believe that this point was brought to President Truman's attention by Churchill in their recent talks and that after hard bargaining, great concessions were made in points of view of the two countries.

BACK-BENCHERS FIRST TO SPEAK ON THRONE SPEECH

Large Public Works Plan on Tap Says Frost

Toronto, Feb. 26—(CP)—Two newly-elected members of the Ontario legislature today launch debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Back-benchers John Robarts (PC-London) and John Root (PC-Wellington North) thus open the traditional weeks-long debate which gives members an opportunity to speak on practically any subject they choose. Some of them used their turn on the floor to discuss the attractions of their own constituency.

The house, now in the first full week of its 1952 session, yesterday was told by Premier Frost that the government has a large public works program on tap but is delaying it at the request of the federal government, which feels such activity might increase inflation and step up competition for supplies of materials needed for other purposes.

He made the announcement in reply to J. B. Salsberg, the legislature's only Labor-Progressive (communist) member, who asked the government to do something to help "thousands" of unemployed persons. Mr. Salsberg represents St. Andrew riding in Toronto, one of the cities with an unemployment problem.

Mr. Frost said the unemployment in the case of men able to work is due to "very largely artificial" reasons, such as federal credit curbs and the defence program.

He said federal officials expect that after April 1, more men will be at work than ever before.

Provincial secretary Welsh tabled reports dealing with the province's finances and with the operation of its liquor control and licence boards during the fiscal year ending last March 31.

Comfortable Surplus

The public accounts report said the government had a surplus of $37,182,032. Premier Frost, who also is provincial treasurer, in his budget speech last spring forecast a surplus of $22,974,000. He said yesterday that revenue from corporation taxes was heavier than usual

Mr. Welsh announced that the Ontario Liquor Control Board made a net profit of $41,194,385. At the end of March there were 1,959 liquor outlets. The liquor licence board reported that during the fiscal year it issued 92 new licences and suspended 31 others.

During the year, sales of liquor, beer and wine increased 6.9 per cent to a record $210,473,812.

From the $37,182,032 surplus, a total of $21,698,350 was transferred to sinking funds for debt reduction and a small amount was put aside for maturing railway certificates. This left a final surplus of $15,483,682.

Net ordinary revenue for the year ending March 31, 1951 was $265,272,106 and net ordinary expenditure was $228,090,074.

Total assets of the province were estimated at $877,653,901 at the end of the year and the net funded debt was $582,717,500. Net unfunded debt was $104,734,611.

In the discussion on unemployment, Welfare Minister Goodfellow said the government's policy was that unemployment relief for men able to go to work was not the responsibility of the province or municipalities. The unemployment was caused largely by factors over which the federal government had control and Ottawa was the only government with the taxing facilities and administrative machinery to relieve the situation

The report tabled by Mr. Welsh showed that sales from the Liquor Control Board's stores totalled $97,093,521, from brewers retail stores $106,815,718 and from wine company stores $4,564,573.

Foxy Frenchman Bluffs His Way Into Free Transatlantic Round Trip

Le Havre, France, Feb. 26 — (Reuters) — Lucien Curty, 53, bluffed his way through a free transatlantic round trip to New York by wearing a steward's jacket when he got on and off a luxury liner, it was disclosed in court today.

Curty boarded the Ile de France here Jan. 4. Once aboard, he hid the steward's jacket.

He spent the night on a deck chair on the promenade deck. when asked whether it was not too chilly, he replied he had asthma and his cabin was "too stuffy". He solved the food problem by buying sandwiches in the bar.

When the liner arrived in New York, Curty put on his white jacket and passed United States immigration officials.

He started looking for a job but no one wanted to hire him. With his savings gone, Curty decided he would have to return to France. He waited for the Ile de France, put on the white jacket, and got aboard again.

Last Thursday, Curty again drew out his steward's coat but this time French police detained him as he lingered on the gang-way at Le Havre.

He was sentenced to one month in jail.

Canadians Can Look Forward To Longer Lives Due to Strides In Fighting Serious Diseases

Ottawa, Feb. 26—(CP) — Canadians, with the hazards of infectious diseases largely overcome, can look forward to longer lives.

The federal health department estimates that if Canadian boys and girls survive their first year of life they can, on the average, look forward to about 68 and 70 years of life, respectively.

At the turn of the century, the life expectancy of Canadians was about 52 years. By 1931, the situation had improved to a point where males, surviving after their first year, had a life expectancy of 64 and females of 65 years. In 1941, the expectancy was 66 for males and 68 for females.

The life-expectancy figures were among those included in the department's report for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1951.

The report contained these other highlights:

1. Despite the increase in life expectancy, Canada is still a "young" nation, with 70 per cent of her population under the age of 40.

2. Birth and marriage rates have dropped from their post-war peaks and the divorce rate has increased to 37.7 per 100,000 of the population—a rate four times greater than that of 20 years ago.

Heart Chief Killer

3. Heart and arterial diseases, affecting at least 800,000 of Canada's 14,000,000 people, are the chief killers, causing 24.7 per cent of all deaths in 1950.

4. Cancer is another major cause of death—it caused 17,000 deaths in 1950, or more than 14 per cent of total deaths.

5. About 41 out of every 1,000 live births still fail to survive the first year of life, but the maternay mortality rate has declined to 1.1 from 5.8 for each 1,000 live births in 1930.

6. Poliomyelitis, usually considered a summer disease, showed through an outbreak in Prince Edward Island that it can strike in fall and winter months.

7. Accidents rank first among the causes of death through school age to about 40; during 1950 motor vehicle accidents took 2,281 lives and other accidents 5,277, a total of six per cent of all deaths.

8. The tuberculosis mortality rate has dropped to 22 from 87.7 per 100,000 population in 1921.

9. The T.B. rate among Indians is 399.6 per 100,000 compared with 549.8 of 1947 and 480.1 of 1948.

10. Canada has an estimated 625,000 sufferers from arthritis and rheumatism, "but some improvement may become evident in the future as a result of the increasing availability of cortisone and acth."

Addiction on Increase

11. Narcotic addiction is on the increase, and some teen-agers have appeared among the new addicts.

12. The program of national health grants is helping the provinces to improve their medical and treatment facilities.

The report contained a review of the activities of the family allowances division of the department. The review, tabled in the Commons during the fall session of parliament, showed that more than $1,561,773,766 has been paid out in family allowances since they were inaugurated in 1945.

Various references were made to the use of new drugs against diseases, formerly fatal in many cases.

Respiratory diseases still rank among the chief causes of death, said the report, "but their incidence has been rapidly declining since the introduction of the sulpha drugs and antibiotics."

Despite the fact that an anti-diphtheria vaccine is available, there were 49 deaths from the disease in 1950.

Multiple sclerosis, a baffling disease for which no cure has yet been found, causes about 200 deaths annually. The disease causes a form of paralysis of the muscles.

"One of the greatest health problems today is presented by mental illness," said the report. "While it is difficult to assess the full extent of mental illness in the population various estimates have appeared which suggest that as high as 50 percent of illness may be attributable to this cause."

Allied Officials Say Atlantic Army Will Have to Wait Until '55 for German Troops

Bonn, Germany, Feb. 26 (AP) — Allied officials said today that the Atlantic army will have to wait at least until 1955 for the 12 German divisions it counts on to help defend the west.

Despite the green light given the European army by the Atlantic Allies at their Lisbon conference, these officials said that recent political developments, especially in France, have set back the previous timetable calling for combat - ready German troops by 1954.

The sources here explain the situation thus:

The Germans will need two full years from the starting point to call up, arm and train 300,000 to 400,000 men to serve with the six-nation European army.

The outlook now is that not a single German soldier will be drafted before early 1953.

Nor do these prospects for German manpower for western defence take into account a possible change in the West German government. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's pro-rearmament coalition faces an election fight in the summer of 1953 with the bitterly anti-rearmament Socialists.

The Socialists warned last weekend that they would continue to oppose German participation in the western defence system "under present conditions," even if they take over the government next year.

They have demanded immediate elections.

Can Recruit Troops

Although the Germans are free to make preparations now for recruiting troops, they cannot put men into uniform until:

1. The six West European nations — France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands, and Luxembourg — complete the draft treaty for the European army.

2. The six parliaments ratify the treaty.

3. The German parliament approves a separate conscription bill.

With the European army scheme facing stiff battles in the French and German parliaments and perhaps in Belgium, Allied officials believe the ratification process will take months.

Some German leaders feel that the fight over conscription in Bonn will roll on for months too—perhaps into 1953.

The United States is expected to speed German rearming with equipment, funds and training personnel, but the barriers to the quick formation of German units are enormous, Allied officials said.

The Germans have no training areas, no airfields, no pilots, and no officer corps or non-commissioned officers experienced in the latest techniques of warfare.

Country Girl Wants to Go Back to Farm

Montreal, Feb. 26 — (CP) — Alice Lachance, a shy country girl of 19, is going back to the farm.

Blue-eyed Miss Lachance, eyewitness of last Friday's kidnapping of three-year-old Barbara Nemeroff, was quizzed by police almost 12 hours, following the abduction.

She found the experience so upsetting, she said today, and is going back to her parents' farm at St. Luc in Dorchester County. She was employed as a maid by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Nemeroff only six weeks.

She was alone in the house with Barbara, and asleep in her room, when the abductor gained entrance to the home. He ordered Alice to dress the child, threatening her with violence if she made a sound.

When she was certain the kidnapper was gone, she telephoned police and was brought in for questioning until the child and the abductor were picked up Saturday.

"When Barbara was found," Mr. Nemeroff said, "I broke the news to Alice myself at headquarters. She collapsed. She cried. All she wanted to do was go back to the country."

NO ONE INJURED

Mullens, W. Va., Feb. 26. (AP)—Fifty movie patrons calmly walked out of a burning theatre here yesterday, minutes before the roof collapsed. No one was injured in the $125,000 fire.

YOUTH TO FACE ARRAIGNMENT ON ABDUCTION COUNT

No Decision Regarding Mental Examination

Montreal, Feb. 26—(CP)—Sixteen-year-old Robert Patenaude, held in the kidnapping of a three-year-old, will be arraigned in social welfare court today.

The announcement was made last night by Chief Judge Ephrem Filion, who said he had not decided whether Patenaude will be remanded to criminal court. The social welfare court is the name of the juvenile court in Quebec.

Judge Filion also said there could be no decision regarding a mental examination until the arraignment.

Police said yesterday they would charge the accused with abduction and breaking and entering.

Maximum penalty for kidnapping in Canada is 25 years.

In police line-ups, Patenaude has been identified as the man who entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Nemeroff and made off with their child, leaving a note demanding ransom of $50,000.

That was late Friday night. The youth was picked up, and the child returned to her parents Saturday morning as they walked along busy St. Catharine Street, less than 12 hours after the little girl had been abducted.

Police made Patenaude's seven-page confession public yesterday and said he admitted the abduction, saying he only did it to "frighten her parents."

Story Told

This story continued as follows: He worked for Nemeroff, owner of Paramount Leather Goods, for 15 days he watched the Nemeroff home. Friday night he checked to see if the family was home. then, seeing the family car was gone, he sought entrance by the front door and, when the maid failed to recognize him climbed up the back stairs of the duplex.

He found the back door open and went through the house to the maid's room, his face masked by a yellow scarf He ordered 25-year-old Alice Lachance, to dress the child.

"She (Barbara), was crying all the time," said the youth.

"I told her we were going to see her mother and she stopped."

According to his own story, Patenaude selected the clothing for the child and handed her a pet doll. Then he taxied away from the Nemeroff home and spent the night in a hotel room with the child. He put her to bed he said, and slept beside her, fully clothed.

When overtaken by police after Mrs. Margaret Henry recognized him and the girl from a broadcast description, Patenaude was shuffling along the street a pace or so behind the tot, planning to meet the parents or their emissaries with the ransom in a department store.

Foot-And-Mouth Disease Spreading; U.S. Market Closed

Americans Increase List Of Banned Imports

Ottawa, Feb. 26. (CP)—Federal government officials disclosed today that fresh cases of dreaded foot-and-mouth disease have turned up in the Regina area forcing a widening of the rigid quarantine thrown about the Saskatchewan capital 10 days ago.

Meantime, hopes dimmed that the Canadian government might be able to persuade the United States to ease an embargo clamped yesterday on shipments of Canadian livestock and meat.

A dispatch from Rouses Point, N.Y., disclosed that U.S. customs authorities already are blocking shipments of Canadian grains and some vegetables—a move that likely will spread across the 4,000-mile Canadian-U.S. border.

While western authorities prepared to destroy all animals known to be infected with the virulent disease, a government spokesman here reported that an immigrant is being questioned as the possible source of the disease.

New Outbreak

Word of the new western outbreaks came from J. G. Taggart, deputy minister of Agriculture, who said the infection has been uncovered on two farms in the Regina district town of Elmsthorpe.

It now joins the nine other municipalities that have been brought into an iron-clad quarantine. All are within a radius of 35 to 40 miles of Regina.

U. S. embassy officials here said there is a possibility the U.S. may consider extending its embargo to include Canadian grains. The Rouse's Point dispatch tended to confirm this.

At Rouse's Point, Dr. L. E. Bruncher, U. S. agricultural representative, said the American ban imposed yesterday includes hay and straw, grasses, rice, wheat and other grains, and legumes, such as peas and beans. These are in addition to livestock and meat and their by-products.

Trip Cancelled

Mr. Taggart cancelled a proposed trip to Washington to confer with American authorities on Canadian measures to eradicate the disease.

He said: "There are good reasons for the cancellation, but I cannot make them public."

The immigrant being questioned, while not identified, is known to have worked on the farm of Leonard Waas, about 40 miles from Regina, where the first outbreak was reported last Nov. 26.

In the wake of the U.S. livestock and meat embargo and restrictions on movement of live cattle from western points, prices began fluctuating in the east.

At Montreal and Halifax beef prices were reported climbing as a result of the possibility that available western supplies may decline.

Western cattle men predicted a decline in beef prices in the west, unless farmers held back their cattle from market. There were no reports of any immediate rush by farmers to cash in on their stocks.

In the infected area, slaughtering of animals is expected to start today. Officials in Ottawa said only cloven-hoofed animals would be destroyed. There would be no slaughtering of horses, dogs or cats.

Consideration was given to the possibility of changing western movement of livestock, but while plans were drafted, they likely will not go into effect for many weeks.

No livestock can be moved out of the stockyards of Prince Albert, Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw. Cattle from Alberta can move eastward if there is no stop-over in the restricted area. There are no restrictions on the movement of Alberta cattle and meats westward to Brilish Columbia.

Police Widen Search for Girl

Queenston, Ont., Feb. 26 (CP)—The search for Violet Pollock, missing 20-year-old grade XIII student, widened today as police attempted to locate a 17-year-old neighbor.

George Turner, who lives one-half mile from the Pollock fruit farm which overlooks the Niagara River, also has been missing since Saturday afternoon, the same time Violet left her home. Police said they might have eloped.

Violet's 24-year-old sister, Dorabelle, who started out to search for her Saturday afternoon, suffered fatal injuries when struck by a diesel freight locomotive on a level crossing about eight miles from the Pollock farm.

The girl's father, John Pollock, expressed fear Dorabelle had met with foul play but police said they are certain she was struck by the locomotive.

When Turner left home driving an old coupe he told his family he was going to visit relatives in several nearby towns. However, the relatives haven't seen him.

Mrs. Pollock said: "I pray there was an elopement."

Pet Macaw Dead

Port Stanley, Feb. 26 — (CP)—Robert, this Lake Erie resort town's most colorful inhabitant, died today. He was 48.

British - Guiana - born, Robert came here 26 years ago. Thousands of summer visitors were greeted by his cheerful, if somewhat raucous "Hello's" from his place in front of Fred Jones' service station.

Year after year, persons returning here would make their first stop at the beach road garage to renew acquaintances with him.

Robert seemed healthy enough when he retired last night but when Fred Jones went into the garage this morning he found his pet macaw dead on the floor.

Churchill Charges Labor Govt. Made A-Bomb But Did Not Inform House

London, Feb. 26 (AP) —Prime Minister Churchill said today that the Labor government succeeded in making an atom bomb for Britain but failed to inform parliament about the development.

Churchill spoke in the House of Commons after a blistering Labor attack upon his foreign policy. Herbert Morrison, former Foreign secretary, accused Churchill of making belligerent statements, endangering world peace and the chances of reaching a Korean truce.

Churchill, in referring to the atomic bomb, said "quite a new atmosphere on this subject was created" when he informed United States officials of developments here during his Washington visit last month.

Churchill told the House of Commons:

"I was not aware until I took office that, not only had the Socialist government made an atomic bomb as a matter of research, but they had created, at the expense of many scores of millions of pounds, the important plant necessary for its regular production.

"This achievement is certainly a real advantage to us."

Churchill's Conservative government came to power when Labor lost the general election Oct. 25. Within the last few days the cabinet has announced Britain will conduct experiments with atomic weapons in Australia this year.

Morrison resumed the debate, broken off by the death of the King with a demand to know whether the Prime Minister's speech to the U.S. congress represented a change in British policy in the Far East. He accused Churchill of speaking with different voices in Washington and London. In Washington, the prime minister gave the impression Britain fully would support the U.S. in any vast extension of the Korean conflict to communist China. In London he had said there was no change in British policy.

Morrison described these as "wooly" statements and demanded to know if there was any shift in British policy on China.

Churchill replied:

"I made it plain a month ago that I was opposed to action that would involve us or our allies of the United Nations in war with China. I have never departed from this view in any way publicly or privately."

Churchill then said the Labor government had kept news of atomic developments from parliament and added:

"There was no reason why parliament in time of peace should not have been made fully aware, not of course of the technical details, but of large-scale new departures in policy adopted on so grave a matter."

ALEX R. WILSON NEW SUPERINTENDENT AT C.N.R. TERMINAL

Alex R. Wilson, former Canadian National Railways superintendent at St. Thomas yesterday took over as divisional superintendent at Belleville. He succeeds the late Raymond Carr who died suddenly some days ago.

Mr. Wilson is no stranger to Belleville having been stationed here as assistant superintendent four years ago and was also acting superintendent for six months. From Belleville he went to Capreol and then to St. Thomas.

BELLEVILLE TALENT WILL BE USED AT RINK OPENING

Belleville talent will take a leading part in the entertainment at the official opening of the Tamworth arena on Friday. Taking part in the opening night program at the new arena in the Lennox and Addington county village will be the Kinsmen Boys' Band and members of the Quinte Skating Club.

Members of the local Kinsmen Boys' Band will "play" Premier Leslie Frost into the arena for the official opening while skating club members will do fancy skating numbers. The local Glen Roy Hockey Club, Belleville's entry in the Trent Valley League, will play an exhibition game.

Dramatic Club Earns Fair Praise From Adjudicator

While the Belleville Collegiate Dramatic Club did not win any prizes or plaques at the Eastern Ontario Secondary School Drama Festival held at Queen's University over the weekend, it earned fair praise from the adjudicator Michael Meiklejohn CDA.

Said Meiklejohn, "The Belleville club selected a farce as its entry but it did not quite reach the desired effect. Instead the players managed to attain only good comedy which was not what the author Anton Tchekof had intended. He felt, nevertheless that the play generally was well done and naturally treated.

The adjudicator liked Donna Cameron as the leading lady but felt that Douglas McIlraithe as the leading man did not quite attain the desired effect. William Cooke, in a short role was excellent. Charles Sloan was director.

The Milburn Trophy awarded for the best production went to Kingston CI Dramatic Club with the Faculty Players Plaque being won by the Napanee C.I.

Schools from Trenton, Peterborough, Belleville, Brockville, Cobourg, Kingston and Napanee took part in the festival.

HIS THIRD TRY

New York, Feb. 26. (AP)—Dr. Frank P. Graham leaves by plane today for another attempt to settle the dispute between India and Pakistan over control of Kashmir. Dr. Graham, the United Nations representative in the mediation attempt, is to report back to the U.N. Security Council by March 31. It is his third try to get agreement.

Past Presidents' Night Observed By Kinsmen Club

It was Founders' and Past Presidents' night at the local Kinsmen Club meeting Monday evening when birthday messages from the club founder and national president were read. Past presidents of the local club had charge of the meeting with Kin Newton Wilbur in the chair.

Speaker for the night was District Governor Bill Maass of Verdun, Que., who recalled the founding of the Kinsmen Club 32 years ago in Hamilton by Hal Rogers and four other veterans of World War 1 who returned to find they had lost their friends.

The original club at Hamilton was formed for fellowship but soon the club developed into a service organization and branches were formed at Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver. In 1930 there were 32 Kinsmen clubs and in 1939, the year before the war—there were 77 clubs in Canada.

There are now 271 clubs with a membership of close to ten thousand.

The Kinsmen "Milk for Britain Fund," a national venture during the last war has been declared one of the best war jobs by a service club on the North American continent. Fifty million quarts of milk were sent to Britain.

Today the Kinsmen club is looking for another national project, which will serve to weld the clubs together.

Stresses Personal Service

But Governor Maass stressed the necessity for personal service in the community by club members and pointed out the importance ;of club expansion, He paid tribute to Deputy Governor Murray Davis who he said "had done a splendid job."

The speaker, was introduced by Murray Davis and thanked by Orliff Lloyd. Jeff Marvell of Sarnia, past president of the club, was present at the meeting.

A report on the Kinsmen community swimming pool was given by "Buster" LaBarr, who said the pool would be definitely opened during the first week in June. He said the swimming pool had been one of the greatest service club projects in the city and local residents would long thank Kinsmen for their vision. "Every kid should learn to swim," he said.

A message from Hal Rogers, club founder was read by Arthur Cruji, while Frank Lang read the message from national president, Sidney Welsh.

Architecture Subject of Talk At Rotary Club

Architecture from the unknown to the known was topic of a talk to the Rotary Club on Monday by William A. Watson, M. Arch., in which he dealt with the subject from ancient to modern times.

Mr. Watson termed an architect as one who designs and directs the construction of a building, or the person in whose mind the form of the building has actually been conceived, as contrasted with the actual construction, which is organized and carried out by contractors and builders.

"The term architect has always been used to describe the master-builder since the dawn of history," the speaker said. "Throughout the early civilizations of Egypt, Greece and Rome, architecture was held in honor as 'mother of the arts' and during the unsettled centuries, which followed the fall of Rome to the barbarians, the art found sanctuary with the monastic orders who kept alight the lamps of learning and brought it to its full flowering in the magnificent cathedrals of the Middle Ages."

He continued by saying that Europe experienced the rebirth of the art and learning of Greece and Rome, and this period of renaissance has produced in Europe a type of building design which has influenced architects to the present day.

Roots Lie Deep

"The roots of architecture lie in the human need for shelter," he continued, "and building has therefore been ranked with food and clothing as one of the primary necessities of life." He stated that those building which have survived from the past indicate that the attention of the master-builder was directed toward monumental types while the humbler varieties of shelter received scant attention, adding that today the growing complexity of life has multiplied the types of buildings required to shelter human activity, and that each requires the skilled planning that only an expert can give.

Mr. Watson told the audience about the number of architects in each province and the provisions of membership in the architect's association, as well as the nature of the work.

He stated that modernistic architectural design with large plain surfaces or long beautiful sweeps and flat roofs, windows of tremendous size and a minimum of ornamentation, has been brought about by the machine age. He contrasted this to the pyramid of Giza, which took 20 years to build after the causeway, which took another ten years, and that 100,000 men had been employed in its construction. Mr. Watson added that the amount of stone used in the pyramids construction would build a highway of crushed stone from New York to San Francisco.

Expendability Keynote

"Expendability" Mr. Watson said "is the keynote of modern design and production, whether of buildings of housewares, automobiles, aircraft, pencil sharpeners or pocket lighters. Anything that in structure outlasts the utility of its design, utility measured by today's fast changing standards, is by today's measurement, poorly made."

The speaker summed up his talk by stating that "from the first thinking on a project through to the completion of it, many months and often years pass by, but throughout the whole period the desire for a first-class project persists in the architect's mind."

"The co-ordinating of many minds and hands in the carrying out of many trades," he concluded, "presents a challenge. Sometimes this co-ordination is baffling to attain, but the successful finishing of the project makes the effort worth while."

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Fred Deacon and Harold Mott extended the appreciation of the club following the address.

Other visiting Rotarians and guests included Major John Patterson of the Riverdale Salvation Army hostel, Alec R. Wilson, newly appointed superintendent of the Belleville branch of the CNR, Bernard Grady, program director of the Y.M.C.A., James Davis of the Chamber of Commerce, Ted Jones of Ottawa, C. Craig of the Department of National Defence, Walter Elliott of Stirling and "Bud" Punchard of the Northern Electric Company.

Birthday roses were presented on behalf of the club by Art Francis to J. Fred Wilson, John I. Dickey and Orland A. Pinkston.

City Business and Industry Seen Advanced by Actions Of U.S. Committee on Seaway

Washington, Feb. 26 (Special) — Belleville business and industry are seen advanced here today as a result of the U.S. Senate moves yesterday on the long-pending St. Lawrence seaway and power project. A $485,000,000 corporation to construct the St. Lawrence Seaway and power project was proposed in a Senate bill introduced yesterday on Senator Aiken of Vermont. The Aiken bill was in the form of an amendment to legislation authorizing American participation with Canada in the St. Lawrence project on which the Senate Foreign Relations Committee opened hearing yesterday.

Eight U.S. senators joined Senator Aiken in sponsoring the government corporation plan for building the seaway. The plan calls for the creation of a public corporation in which federal government would own $10,000,000 in government stock. The corporation headed by three commissioners to be appointed to six year terms by the president, would be authorized to sell $485,000,000 of bonds. The corporations indebtedness would be liquidated by ship tolls in sale of electric power generated at the project.

Chairman John D. Small of the Defence Dept. Munitions Board told the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee yesterday that the American share of the navigation part of the project would be $370,000,000 and the hydro electric project would cost $192,000,000. "The Canadian portion would be $251,000,000" he said. The U.S. and Canada signed an agreement in 1941 for joint construction of the seaway and power project but the pact has not been ratified by Congress. Last December the Canadian parliament voted to go ahead with the navigation part of the project without waiting for U.S. action. The 1951 agreement calls for a 27-foot ship canal in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence below Ogdensburg, N.Y. The canal would be on the American side. The present Canadian plan is to put the canal on the Canadian shore.

Administration witnesses told the committee yesterday that if Canada went ahead on its own, the U.S. would have no share in determining the ship tolls to be charged.

The committee was told the tolls would be higher under the Canadian plan because the Canadians would have to pay a higher rate on borrowed money than United States. The whole subject is expected to produce sharp conflict and debate at this session of the U.S. Congress.

Crime on Decrease in City According to Chief's Report

Crime is on the decrease in Belleville according to the annual report of Police Chief Walter Probert which shows the number of cases before the court during 1951 to be slightly over 400 less than in the year previous.

During the past year there were 1599 cases before the court, as compared with 2005 in 1950, and 2040 in 1949.

In addition to the number of court cases being less than a year ago the city has been quite free of major crime with breaking, entering and theft cases being the most serious offences. The chief did not attribute this entirely to the activity of the police department but to a large degree, to the splendid class of law abiding citizens in the community.

Motor vehicle accidents, however, are on the increase with 593 such accidents, or 112 more than a year ago, being investigated. There was but one fatality as result of motor accidents but 42 persons were injured.

Bat 100 Per Cent

The city police department batted 100 per cent in recovery of stolen autos. Twenty-nine motor vehicles were reported stolen and all were recovered as well as five cars being recovered for other police departments. There were 113 bicycles reported stolen of which 92 were recovered.

Parking meters brought a revenue of $22,684 to the city. Of this amount $21,275 was directly from the meters, while $1,409 was through parking tickets. Parking tickets are not handled as court cases, but are paid directly to the city.

Fines and fees collected in court amounted to $56,986, all of which was handed over to the magistrate for distribution.

Liquor Control Act charges were the most numerous of all cases handled in the courts. Of the total 541 cases were breaches of the LCA with 449 of these being for intoxication.

17 Charges

There were 17 charges of dangerous driving laid during the year and 16 cases of drunk driving. In both instances these were down from the previous year. There were three charges laid under the new section of the criminal code — "drive, while ability impaired by alcohol."

Careless driving charges totalled 59; speeding charges numbered 178 and 168 motorists were charged for failing to observe "stop" signs.

Four persons were charged with theft of motor vehicles and nine appeared on charges of "joy riding".

Breaking, entering and theft charges numbered 13, and straight theft charges totalled 33.

Of the 1599 cases brought before the court, 26 were dismissed by the magistrate and 43 cases were withdrawn by the Crown.

School Guards

The Chief noted there were now 11 adult school guards giving attention to school children crossing heavily travelled streets in school areas. This with other safety features was said to have undoubtedly lessened accidents.

The city now has an area of close to 2000 acres and about 65 miles of streets, plus laneways and rear entrances that require patrolling by police officers.

In conclusion Chief Probert noted that the court room and Magistrate's office were in a deplorable condition and required immediate attention. Also the outside of the police station required painting badly and should receive attention as early as possible.

Obituary

LATE PAUL BELISLE

The funeral of Paul Belisle who died suddenly in Windsor on Saturday last was held at St. Michael's Church this Tuesday morning. Solemn High Mass was celebrated by Very Rev. Dean L. Garvin, assisted by Rev. J. J. Buckley as Deacon and Rev. L. Dubbury as sub-deacon. Many beautiful floral tributes and spiritual offerings testified to the esteem of the deceased.

Mr. J. Trudeau, general manager of Metropolitan Stores of Montreal, along with many store managers and employees from various stores were in attendance at the funeral.

Rev. J. J. Buckley said the prayers at St. James cemetery.

The bearers were Vincent Carroll, Ernest Cook, William Frawley, John Quinn, Robert LaMoore and Maurice Callaghan, Jr.

Mr. Belisle is survived by his wife, the former Kathleen Quinn, and formerly of this city, one son, Peter, also two brothers, George and Jack Belisle of Noranda, Quebec.

MRS. NANCY ELIZABETH REID

Mrs. Nancy Elizabeth Reid, suffered a heart attack at her home and died suddenly on Monday evening. She was born at Frankford 52 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawrence and has resided in this community for the past 25 years and previous to that time at Frankford.

She was a member of the Anglican Church and surviving are her husband, John Reid, four sons, John of Belleville, Albert, Burton and Raymond of Thurlow township; three daughters, Mrs. Albert Kellar of Belleville, Mrs. Arthur Hill of Hamilton, Mrs. David McFarland of Frankford; four brothers Daniel, Nelson and Frederick Lawrence of Frankford, Edward of Oshawa, and one sister, Mrs. Thomas Sullivan of Frankford.

Resting at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

LATE WILLIAM ALLAN LAZIER

The funeral service for William Allan Lazier was held on Monday from the Grant Funeral Home with Rev. Everett Smith officiating.

An I.O.O.F. service was held on Sunday night at the Funeral Parlors with Noble Grand William Flunder conducting the service, assisted by Donald Downey.

Bearers were Charles McDonald, Douglas Simpson, Donald Downey, Howard Akey, Claude Belnap and Gordon Miller.

Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

MRS. VELMA RUTH GIBSON

Taken ill a few days before, Mrs. Velma Ruth Gibson, 50 O'Hara Avenue, Toronto, died in St. Joseph's Hospital on Sunday. She was in her 28th year.

Born in Springbrook, the daughter of Charles Benson and the former Ida Webb, Mrs. Gibson was a member of St. Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw, and had only been a resident of Toronto for five months, prior to which she had resided in Springbrook.

She is survived by her husband, Arthur James Gibson, and three sons, Ronald, Denis and Robert Wayne.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Bert Willis of Springbrook, Mrs. O. L. Crosby of Trenton, and one brother John Benson of Toronto.

Resting at the home of her parents in Springbrook, the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. MINNIE MARY ANNE NICKLE
(Madoc)

Madoc— In ill health for the past 15 months, Mrs. Minnie Mary Anne Nickle, Madoc, died at her home on Tuesday. She was in her 48th year.

Born in Madoc township, Mrs. Nickle was the daughter of the late William and Mary Ault and had lived in the district all her life. She was a member of St. John's Anglican Church and of St. John's Guild and W.A. She was also a member of the Eastern Star No. 143; the Women's Institute, and the L.O.B.A. No. 1193. She was a former school teacher.

Surviving are her husband, Morrey Nickle and three sons, Glen, Fred and Douglas, all at home.

One sister, Mrs. John (Eliza) Beale of Cannifton, and three brothers, Carl of Tweed, William and Daniel, both of Madoc, also survive. Two brothers were killed overseas, John Ault making the supreme sacrifice in the First World War, and Robert in World War II.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

IN MEMORIAM

YOUNG. — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Wesley Young, who passed away February 26, 1951.

We lost a dad with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth untold,
Without farewell he fell asleep,
With only memories for us to keep.
We have lost, but God has gained,
One of the best dads the word contained.

—Ever remembered by son Stanley and daughter-in-law Amy and family. F26

YOUNG. — In ever loving memory of our dear grandfather, Wesley Young, who passed away February 26, 1951.

Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days.
Sincere and kind in heart and mind,
What a beautiful memory he left behind.

—Ever remembered by granddaughter Jean and husband Bob and family. F26

STRANGE CLERK IN STORE

New York, Feb. 26. (AP)—A strange clerk greeted a woman customer last night when she entered a drug store to buy cigarets. Unsure of the price, he enquired of the owner who was tied up at the moment in the back room. The clerk served her and she left. Then he pocketed the money and left with an armed companion, adding the price of a pack of cigarets to their $500 robbery.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 26—(CP)—Stock market prices declined steadily today in brisk forenoon dealings.

Trading was active as leading industrials changed hands steadily and a wide list of golds, oils and metals attracted speculative interest. Volume for the first three hours was 1,461,000 shares.

Papers, refining oils and manufacturing companies led industrials lower while steels weakened steadily. Utilities, agricultures, constructions and miscellaneous issues held gains and losses in balance.

Base Metal leaders dipped sharply as Consolidated Smelters, East Sullivan, Falconbridge, Golden Manitou, Hudson Bay, International Nickel, United Keno Hill and Waite Amulet posted losses ranging to about 75 cents. Estella, Pend Oreille and United Asbestos eased pennies.

Western Oil losses outnumbered gains about three to one. Canada Southern, Gridoil, Pacific Petroleum, Canadian Williston, Sapphire, Scurry and Husky traded steadily lower.

Senior Golds sagged. Dome and Lake Shore dipped fractions while Malartic eased pennies. Secondary issues posted a board majority of penny losses.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Feb. 26 — (CP) — A heavy cattle run was reported today at the Ontario stockyards caused by the embargo on U.S. export. Trade was dull with prices moving lower. Receipts: cattle 1,360; calves 140; hogs 400; no sheep or lambs. The leftover from Monday was 1,150 cattle.

Medium to good weighty steers were at $26-$29 while medium to good heifers sold at $25-$27.50. Good cows sold mostly $22-$33.

Calves sold steady at $34-$36 for choice vealers and from $22-$33 for common to medium.

Hog prices were at $26 for Grade A with sow prices not established.

There were no sheep or lamb sales reported.

Advance Parties Of Four Regiments Leave for Home

Tokyo, Feb. 26—(CP)— First steps toward effecting the change-over between units in Korea and those coming from Canada to relieve them have taken place.

Advance parties from the 2nd battalions Royal Canadian Regiment, Royal 22nd Regiment, and 2nd Regiment Royal Horse Artillery and "C" Squadron of the Lord Strathcona Horse have left Korea for Canada.

The change-over will be completed in June.

The parties now en route to Canada will arrange to take over quarters and equipment from the units now holding them and which are scheduled to leave for Korea shortly.

They comprise the second-in-command, the assistant adjutant and the regimental quartermaster-sergeant of each unit with the exception of the Vandoos, who command for field duties.

In charge of the parties are Maj. Jack Peterson, St. Thomas, Ont. (R.C.R.) Maj. Ben Lacasse, Montreal (Royal 22nd), Maj. Jack Orton, Shilo, Man., (R.C.H.A.) and Capt. Ken Kennedy, Halifax (Lord Strathcona Horse).

Business Boomed In Closing Months Of Fiscal Year

Toronto, Feb. 26—(CP)— The Ontario government's business boomed in the closing months of the fiscal year which ended March 31, 1951, and shoved the surplus of revenue over expenses to $37,182,032.

The amount, swelled by heavy returns from corporation taxes, was $14,207,682 higher than the surplus announced by Premier Frost, the provincial treasurer, March 6, 1951. His announced figure, an interim one, was based on 10 months' actual business and two months' forecast.

The province's largest source of income was from corporation taxes, which brought $76,254,321. The amount was about $4,750,000 above Mr. Frost's interim figure.

The province had other rich taxing fields, as shown in figures in the auditor's report tabled yesterday in the legislature.

The highways department, largest tax-gatherer for the province, took in $85,449,400 of which gasoline taxes contributed $65,092,398 and motor licences $20,330,695.

The liquor control board turned over $40,000,000 and succession duties brought $17,828,053. The hospitals tax on amusements collected $6,289,533 and race track bettors paid $4,158,881 to provincial coffers.

The largest expenditure was by the education department, which spent more than $57,700,000. The highways department had $47,188,467 in ordinary expenditure, together with $36,734,888 in capital outlays. Nearly $33,875,000 was spent on health and $23,938,000 on public welfare.

ATOMIC TOLL

It is officially estimated that 80,000 were killed in the atomic bomb explosion at Hiroshima in 1945.

Five R. C. Nuns Expelled From Communist China

Hong Kong, Feb. 26 — (Reuters) — Five European Roman Catholic nuns have been expelled from communist China after being accused at a mob trial of "eating the flesh of babies," Catholic authorities said here today.

The nuns were accused in vague terms of causing the deaths of 120,000 Chinese orphans. There were 42 children at their orphanage when the communists took it over last year.

The sisters, who arrived here last Friday from Chengtu in the western province of Szechwan, said they were kept under constant guard by communist soldiers in the servants' quarters of their orphanage.

The nuns said they were forced to stand with heads bowed as the "trial" wore on for four hours.

After each charge was made the spectators were called on to raise clenched fists and shout "We must avenge our children."

One orphanage employee claimed the nuns "ate two babies a day when they were fat and three a day when they were skinny."

She accused them of "plucking out the eyes of children to make medicine," giving sick infants medicine which was only flour, and eating luxurious foods while the orphans got scraps.

Three former orphans, all girls, were threatened with imprisonment if they refused to accuse the nuns at the trial, the sisters said. Only one consented to appear, however, and the trial was postponed 15 days because the communists had difficulty in finding accusers.

The nuns, who crossed the border from China into British territory last Friday, belong to the Order of Franciscan Missionaries of Mary.

Juvenile Charged With Kidnapping

Robert Patenaude, 16, will be charged in Montreal juvenile court with the abduction of Barbara Nemeroff. The youth, who read comic books in his jail cell, told police he "didn't know why" he had kidnapped the little girl. —Central Press Canadian.

Back home and enjoying her familiar tricycle, Barbara Nemeroff, 3, is shown with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Nemeroff of Montreal. The child was kidnapped from her crib and found 12 hours later walking down a busy street hand-in-hand with Robert Patenaude, 16, who was employed by her father. A $50,000 ransom note had been left in the Nemeroff home when the child was abducted. — Central Press Canadian.

Seven Women Assume Duties At Repair Depot

Trenton—Special— First seven of a number of W.P.'s slated for duty at the Repair Depot RCAF at Trenton are now on the job and others are expected at regular intervals from now on.

The women in blue will serve as supply, communications and radar technicians as well as typists and accountants.

Until recently the air force designation for women members was W.D., short for women's division. Now the women are called W.P.'s which means women personel.

POLICE BLOTTER

Youths testing their aim with catapults are believed responsible for smashing about 25 windows in the Smith Cartage Warehouse in the Bleecker Ave. district. The proprietor this morning complained to police that the above number of large-sized windows were broken and marbles were found inside the building, apparently having been shot with catapults.

A break-in was reported at Walker's Hardware. One of the employees last night visited the premises and when he entered the building he heard someone running on the second storey. An investigation was made but the intruder escaped. Entry was gained through a skylight. A small amount of cash was missing from the store.

In city magistrate's court this morning before Magistrate C. A. Thoburn, a local resident pleaded guilty to assaulting a police officer and was assessed $50 fine and costs of $30, including a doctor's bill and the cost of cleaning the officer's uniform. A charge of obstructing an officer against another resident was laid over.

Hearing of a number of LCA charges and traffic charges, completed the court.

REDISTRIBUTION LONG OVERDUE

Even before the results of the 1951 dominion census were announced it was pointed out in these columns that some of the federal constituencies were much larger in population than others. While it was admitted that it would be impossible and perhaps not even desirable to divide the country into constituencies that would be exactly equal in population, the statement was made that it was obviously unfair for a voter in one part of the country to have six or eight times the voting power of a voter elsewhere.

Since the census has been completed and its results made public, it can be seen that the situation today, largely due to population movements during the last few years, is much worse than it was when the 1941 census figures were used as a basis of comparison.

Here are a few examples: Robert H. McGregor, Progressive Conservative, represents 159,652 residents of York East in the House of Commons. York East is just outside Toronto. Charles A. D. Cannon, Liberal, represents 9,999 residents of the Magdalen Islands. The Magdalen Islands are in the St. Lawrence River, in Quebec. A. Rodney Adamson, Progressive Conservative, represents the 126,420 residents of York West. William J. Major, Liberal, represents the 17,702 residents of the constituency of Glengarry. Both York West and Glengarry are in Ontario.

Wentworth, which surrounds Hamilton and is represented by Frank E. Lennard, Progressive Conservative, has a population of 119,728. Welland, represented by Dr. William M. McMillan, Liberal, has a population of 123,233.

The average population per constituency, across the whole country, is 54,031. There are nine constituencies in Ontario alone with populations of less than 30,000, or about half of the national average. These are: Bruce, Glengarry, Haldimand, Hastings-Peterborough, Huron North, Middlesex West, Prescott, Renfrew South and Wellington North. There are seventeen others in Ontario which have populations of between 30,000 and 40,000 or about 15,000 less than the national average. These discrepancies are by no means confined to Ontario. Although we have not the figures at hand to prove it, we have no doubt that the situation in some parts of British Columbia and Alberta, where there have been extremely heavy population growths in recent years, is as much out of line as it is in this part of the country.

If there is any good reason why the people who live in one part of the country should have sixteen times as much voting power in deciding who is going to be sent to the House of Commons as those who live elsewhere, we would like to hear it. It is not suggested that the St. Laurent government is entirely responsible for this condition — it has been going from bad to worse for several decades. Only token attempts to remedy it have been made.

But the government in power cannot evade responsibility if it allows this unfair system of representation to continue. A vote in York should carry as much weight as a vote in Glengarry, or any other part of the country.

JUDGE SEES INJUSTICE

While he was trying a manslaughter case in Toronto a few days ago, Hon. E. R. E. Chevrier, a judge of the Ontario Supreme Court, criticized sections of the Criminal Code which give judges the option of imposing fines or jail terms.

Said Mr. Justice Chevrier: "These sections which allow options of fine or imprisonment are discriminatory. They allow a rich man to pay a heavy fine and get away with a light sentence or none at all. On the other hand, a poor man who cannot borrow from the bank or from his friends and has a fine imposed must serve time in jail. I have never approved of that, but it is the law."

More power to Mr. Justice Chevrier.

SHROVE TUESDAY

I still can hear the mother say:
"Tomorroy Lent begins,
When we shall seek, from day to day,
Forgiveness for our sins.

"This evening when you come for tea
I'll serve a special treat.
Then ready will the pancakes be—
As many as you'll eat.

"But when the evening prayers are said
We'll turn to simpler ways
And follow as the Master led
For forty nights and days.

"We'll ask the Lord us all to bless,
As He has done before.
We'll serve ourselves a little less
And God a little more."

Ice is now being cut in the bay and Chairman of the Board of Health, Mr. J. V. Doyle, states that samples will be sent to Toronto to be analyzed. The same treatment will be given all ice which is imported into the city.

Mr. R. R. Stiver and Mr. Everett Smith of the local Hydro Utility office are attending a convention having to do with electric refrigerators in London, Ontario.

Mr. E. V. Illsey, President of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce addressed the Oshawa Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon yesterday.

According to the final census figures the population of Canada is 10,374,196, as compared with 8,788,483 in 1921, which is an increase of 1,585,713 or 18.04 per cent.

30 YEARS AGO

Feb. 26th., 1922

The Belleville Horticultural Society is being reorganized. The committee in charge of the undertaking is working under the direction of Mr. T. Blackburn, the chairman of the "Better and More Beautiful Belleville" committee of the Chamber of Commerce. One hundred and fifty citizens have so far given pledges to become members of the society.

At a special meeting of the city council the water rate for the Ontario School for the Deaf was set at $1,175. per year for a term of three years. A new retort for the gas works was ordered to be purchased at a cost of $1,225., F. O. B., Belleville and installed. The tender of James V. Ross for alterations to the police station at a cost of $555.85 was accepted. The chief of police was requested to enforce the snow by-law.

The members of the Rotary Club will attend the evening service at Bridge Street Church next Sunday and will be addressed by the Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker.

Mr. Henry Foltz has been elected a member of the Separate School Board in the place of Mr. J. J. MacCallum, who has left the city.

The house of Mr. George Huffman, 9th. concession of Madoc township, was completely destroyed by fire on the 22nd. inst.

Some neighboring towns are preparing to organize lacrosse teams. This example might well be followed in Belleville; there is plenty of talent here in this line of sport.

Capt. Waters will leave tomorrow for Dawson City where he expects to remain for some time.

Mr. F. B. Parker of Stirling, a member of the County Council, was in town today.

Mr. Stewart Masson, barrister, spent yesterday in Madoc.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The telephone company does not care how much or how little you use your phone; the rates are the same. In some homes, the telephone does not ring three times a day, and is used no oftener from inside. In other homes, it goes all day. Some people, particularly women, employ the telephone for going visiting. Part of the routine of their every day is to get on the phone and spend long, cosey visits with, perhaps, a whole group of their friends and acquaintances. It is a wonder they do not take advantage of that "conference call" system the telephone company provides, by which half a dozen businessmen can all get on their telephones together. But this costs extra.

In the home of one of my friends, there is a sign right above the telephone: "No conversation on this phone to go more than 3 minutes. Watch it!"

And by "watch it," he means that his wife and family are to time themselves on their watches. He grows furiously angry whenever any of them transgresses this rule. For cutting off long-winded people who call in over the three minutes, the simple device is to say: "I'm sorry, there's somebody at the front door. I'll have to go.

To all protests from his family, he merely says: "If you want to visit them, go and see them. Or invite them in. But that telephone is a means of rapid communication. I don't want its chief function destroyed by you people making a social convenience of it."

The telephone company is no help to him in his lone crusade. He pointed out to them that they charged for long distance calls on the basis of time. Why not, he demanded, charge for ordinary telephone service on the same basis, so that those who use it more pay more than those who use it little? Why not, he enquired, make three minutes the length of a regulation call, the connection automatically being broken at the end of three minutes, the customer having to re-dial to continue it?

He is one of those cranky men, full of ideas which nobody, not even his family, appreciates.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE TRIPOD OF SECURITY

Worry is a sin. Jesus designated it as such when He said, "Be not anxious" (Matt. 6:32). The apostle Peter had the same thing in mind when he said: "Cast all your anxiety upon God, for He careth for you" (I Peter 5:7).

Many people have a very limited and inadequate idea of the nature of sin. Murder, theft and adultery, they admit, constitute sin. The use of profane language and lying they also consider sinful. But beyond these evils, many people have no conception of wrongdoing. They do not realize, for instance, that coveting is one of the greatest of sins. And so is pride, and so is the love of money.

But the sin we all commit and over which we make no fuss whatsoever is the sin of worry. We talk about our worries and share them with our friends. We behave as if all the issues of life depended upon us. We never seem to realize for a moment that the God who made the world still controls it and that if the very hairs of our heads are all numbered—as Jesus said they are—then everything that happens in our lives is of infinite concern to God.

The Bible has a good formula for burden bearing. It declares that every man must bear his own burden. It also says that we are to bear one another's burdens. And the final admonition is to cast our burdens upon the Lord. On that tripod of truth, life rests in security.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

OLD AND SNUG

It would seem an impertinence for me to give "advice" to those who are my elders, but I've made some discoveries about old age pensioners and retired folk in this past year which I'd submit respectfully to those older people whose time, happily or not, is their own.

I've become convinced that the odds on contentment for the aged are a good deal more attractive in the country than they are in the city and offer in evidence some personal encounters.

I know a half-dozen or more elderly people in the city and two in particular whose sole income is the pitiful government pension.

They live with their childen. They have a feeling not merely of guilt as an extra burden, but a strong feeling of dependency upon them.

These two complain with bitterness about the size of the pension and, of course, not without reason. It is far from adequate.

But it seems to me that they've given in too easily to an outlook of resignation or, to give it a harsher look, self-pity.

There's another man I know, a proof-reader who gave me a great deal of help when I was starting in the newspaper business. I had been happy for him when he retired because young people have the naive idea that retirement is a pleasant prospect.

One day a year or so ago I met my old friend on the street. He looked 20 years older.

He was living in a room in a hotel. He didn't know what to do with himself. Forty-odd years of the routine had dulled his ability and his appetite for everything but the job.

* * *

In the past year, living in the country, I've come to know a large number of elderly people, most of them old age pensioners who have found a way of living that, for all its limitations, is a happy one.

Above all else—and this, I think is the most important of all—They've found a sense of independence.

They're everywhere in our neck of the woods. Some, the luckier ones with the planned nest-eggs, have bought small holdings. Others, single men in most cases, have rented shacks and small cabins.

There's hardly a day, driving into the village to shop, that we don't pick one of them up and it makes pleasant listening to hear their stories.

By most standards they live austere and lonely lives, but in the summer there's a gathering place in the village, a couple of benches under shade trees and the club is in session every day.

In the winter? I asked one old age pensioner who has a small one-room shack near us how he escaped boredom in the winter.

"Hell," he said, "I just keep busy."

* * *

My favorite old man has a one-room cabin about a mile from our place. I see him three or four times a week.

He has a sweet Irish brogue that 40 years in Canada haven't dimmed. When it occurred to me that I might write a column on this topic I asked him some questions. He said this:

"I'm a city boy (boy!) myself, but when I got the pension I knew the city was no place for me. It's no place for anybody who's got the years on 'im. Too much noise. Too much rushin' around. You get to feelin' lost, as if you don't belong, no good to anybody.

"Started makin' trips out into the country lookin' for the place to settle down. I could stay with my son, but, hell fire, he's got his own life to lead.

"Well, I found this cabin. Costs me $10 a month an' I cut my own wood, grow a few vegetables, play nursemaid to a couple o' hens.

"It was all new to me. I started livin' a new life at 70 and I'm not regrettin' it. The money's not enough for all I'd like to do, mind you. But I'm getting by nicely."

* * *

This seems to be the case with most of the old timers I've met out here. They're able to live within their small incomes because they live very simply and, in most cases, grow a certain amount of their own groceries.

There's one couple—great favorites of everyone around here—who are almost a model for this kind of life. They'd had a couple of thousand dollars in the beginning, but now they live on their pensions. Their original investment was a doll-like cottage of just two rooms on a pleasant acre of land.

When I drive by there I almost always see them out-of-doors, working on their garden. They keep a few chickens and some bees.

I'm told their only extravagance is books and several times I've seen the old gentleman at the drug store getting his week's quota of pocket editions.

Most old people in the city, I would think, would envy their life. Yet it does not seem to me to be impractical except in those cases where infirmities would rule out the country life.

Life might indeed begin at 70, even on the disgraceful hand-out we provide for our older citizens, and I wonder that more don't take the chance.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IF YOU LOVE ENOUGH

No one can honestly dispute the fact that love is the greatest force in the world. Have it in your mind and that mind will keep reaching outward, far and wide. Have it in your heart and your heart will keep getting bigger and warmer toward everything in nature and in life.

The late Dr. George Washington Carver, the amazing Negro scientist, once said: Anything will give up its secrets if you love it enough." None are so wholly confidential as those newly in love. The entire world, then, is a thing of wonder and beauty.

The most fragrant flowers in a garden are those which have been watered and nourished with the love of the one who planted and attended them. Even life must be loved if you would make it a grand success and a thing of joy. The substance for happiness lies all about us. It is pictured in the heavens, in the glory of the earth, in the gesture of the wind, the rain, the snowflakes, and the rhythmic bend of branches.

Love scenes are forever going on among the flowers, insects, animals and birds. With the flame of love alive in the heart capacity for happiness and achievement is enhanced by leaps and bounds! There is no power so potent. What a dramatic sentence from the Bible is that one which states: "For God so loved the world."

One of my favorite characters in fiction is that of Sydney Carton in "The Tale of Two Cities" by Dickens. He was a man who willingly offered up his life for the love of another. If you love enough no sacrifice seems too great as an offering to it. Inbred is the love of a mother for her offspring, both in the world of nature and in human life.

Dr. Carver so loved the commonest flowers and weeds that they readily gave up their secrets to him. And they will do it for any of us—if we love enough. People who love their work go furthest and mount highest! Love is, as Drummond once said in a famous book of his, "the greatest thing in the world."

COFFEE IS GOOD FOR THE HEART

A small dose of caffeine, the quantity a cup of coffee contains, stimulates the heart, increases the pulse rate and the force of heart beat and so tends to increase blood pressure. Physiologists and pharmacologists generally ascribe these effects of caffeine or coffee chiefly if not entirely to its action on the nervous system. For caffeine or coffee is primarily a brain and nerve stimulant.

The active principle (alkaloid) in tea is identical in effect with that of coffee, as is that of mate. In fact much of the caffeine used in medicine is extracted from tea and some from mate. Caffeine is the active principle in Brazilian guarana, too.

Nervousness, irritability, jumpiness, insomnia, palpitation and other disturbances of heart function, digestive disturbances and morning headache are the most common manifestations of chronic poisoning from excessive coffee drinking. If the victim continues to drink too much coffee other symptoms ensue, but this is still a health column.

A cup of tea ordinarily contains only a quarter or a third as much caffeine (sometimes called theine) as a cup of coffee. Coffee contains a volatile oil (like that of orange peel) which develops the pleasant aroma on roasting. Some physicians believe this oil accounts for digestive disturbances which some coffee drinkers have if they indulge in a second cup. Roasted coffee contains about 12 per cent of tannic acid.

Although tea leaves contain only about half as much tannic acid (tannin) as roasted coffee, the type present in tea is much more effective, for instance, as a wet dressing for burns—freshly boiled (not just steeped) tea to keep gauze (washed cheesecloth) dressings wet for a day or two, or a kind of tea leaf poultice may be applied over a layer of gauze or cheesecloth.

The tannin in tea is much more astringent in effect on the stomach and intestine than that in coffee.

It is because of the tannin in coffee that meticulous care is necessary when brewing coffee to see that it does not boil, not even for a moment. Boiling extracts more of the tannic acid, which makes the liquid taste like soft-shoe chowder, and drives off into the atmosphere most of the aroma, the volatile oil which should impart flavor to the coffee.

Neither tea nor coffee is a beverage for children. Only persons over 16 years of age may take tea or coffee without injury to health.

The gentle stimulation one gets from a cup of tea or a cup of coffee is not followed by appreciable depression or let-down. A cup to cheer but not inebriate is good hygiene.

Regardless of any obsessions the charlatans and nostrum mongers have contrived to plant in the popular mind concerning the effect of coffee (or tea if you prefer) on the heart, the truth is that caffeine in any form has a beneficent influence on the heart. It tends to dilate the coronary arteries and thus permit a better supply of blood (oxygen) to the heart muscle. This is scientific medicine, children, and no long-distance "specialist" or trick food vendor can dispute it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Old Timer

Daughter-in-law has engaged a maternity specialist to see her through until the birth of her baby six months hence. The specialist tells her it is uselses to take calcium and D capsules, as calcium taken by mouth cannot be absorbed... (E. M. H.)

Answer—Perhaps your daughter misunderstood—of course all the calcium the body gets is taken by mouth. Send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet Preparing For Maternity. I hope the specialist is not trying to sell your daughter "shots."

How to Gain Weight

My son, 19, 69 inches tall, weights 123 pounds. He is so anxious to gain weight..(Mrs. S. J.)

Answer—Send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet How to Gain Weight. Whatever else he may do to gain he should invariably get 8½ hours sleep or bed rest and remember he can't "make up lost sleep."

Medical Society's Directory

We have lived in this city (in the midwest) only a few months. How go about finding a good family physician? The county medical association has a service which gives one a list of doctors in any section of the city, but that is like picking one out of the directory...(Mrs. M. F. L.)

Answer—Ask your neighbors, people you meet at church, at work, at school, PTA etc.

Pearson Asked to Take NATO Post

In Lisbon, Portugal, Canadian External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson, as chairman of the North Atlantic Council, reviews a guard of honor parading for the ninth session of the council. Pearson has been asked to become secretary-general of council with headquarters in Paris but it is not certain that the Canadian government will accept. — Central Press Canadian.

Alberta Government Accused Of Paying Hidden Subsidy To Spur Interest in Racing

(By The Canadian Press)

The Alberta government has been accused of providing hidden subsidy to stimulate interest in horse racing and betting.

Liberal leader J. Harper Prowse, the opposition leader, said in the legislature at Edmonton yesterday the government had paid such a subsidy for the last nine years and that it amounted to $538,000.

The province levies a five-percent tax on all money bet through pari-mutuels and pays a commission to track operators for collecting it. Mr. Prowse said such organizations as the Edmonton Exhibition Association and the Calgary Stampede Association were permitted to retain one-fortieth of the tax as a commission.

"But when the James Speers Corporation, which conducts fall and spring meets in Calgary and Edmonton, collected the rents on meets under their sponsorship, they were permitted to retain 50 per cent of the tax as a commission for collecting it."

A special committee of the legislature yesterday recommended that compensation to injured workmen be bosted from 66 2-3 per cent of a man's wages to 75 per cent.

Niles Buchanan, A C.C.F. member of the Saskatchewan legislature, said in the throne speech debate at Regina that when oil becomes important in his province—"and as long as the C.C.F. is in power"—the citizens are going to benefit. He said that in the neighboring province of Alberta, the ordinary farmer and laborer has not become better off because of Alberta's oil-fostered prosperity.

Action Urged

Action to solve the Doukhobor problem was urged in the British Columbia legislature by Walter Hendricks, a Liberal. A committee has been considering it for two years. The fanatical sons of freedom have held the Kootenays in terror periodically for the last 50 years by outbreaks of arson and bombings.

At Winnipeg, Agriculture Minister F. C. Bell advised Manitoba farmers to withhold cattle shipments rather than try to sell them on markets where prices had fallen as a result of an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan. He said he thinks it will be "some months" before an embargo on cattle shipments from Winnipeg to eastern Canada will end.

Throne-speech debate starts today in the Ontario legislature. Premier Frost said yesterday that his government has a large public works program ready as a partial cure for unemployment but is holding it back at the request of the federal government, which feels that starting it now might increase inflation and further boost demand for materials needed for other purposes.

A public works program also came in for discussion in the Nova Scotia legislature. Premier MacDonald said his government has spent $65,000,000 on public works since 1949 and such projects as a Canso causeway and a Halifax-Dartmouth bridge are still to come during the remaining two years of the program. He answered opposition charges that the $100,000,000 public works plan launched three years ago had been "scrapped."

AGAINST TEACHING FRENCH

Toronto Feb. 26 (CP)—Raymond Beriault, director of Adult Education for Ontario, said Saturday night that nothing could be more dangerous for Canada than the assimilation of French into English Canada. He told the Upper Canada Lodge of B'Nai B'Rith that to crush one of Canada's two languages, two cultures or two religions, would destroy Canada's chances for a unique way of life that was not a pale copy of Britain or the United States.

DEAR FISHING TRIP

Barrie, Feb. 25 — (CP) — On the ice of Lake Simcoe, Lorne Reid, 33, of Palmerston, backed his car into a fishing shack half a mile from shore. The owner objected and called police. District Jewish Residents Hear Splendid Talk Pinchas E. Lapide, an assistant director of the consular division, ministry for foreign affairs, state of Israel, addressed a gathering of the Jewish residents of Belleville, Trenton and Picton in the auditorium of the Jewish synagogue on Sunday evening.

Mr. Lapide, an ex-resident of British Columbia, left Canada at the age of 15 and went to Palestine, where he joined a pioneer settlement in Lower Galilee.

At the outbreak of war in 1939 he joined, with all his group, a Jewish brigade of the British army and served under Generals Wavell, Montgomery, and Alexander until 1946. He served in the western African desert, Malta, Sicily and in Italy where his group fought next to the 1st Canadian Armoured Division. In 1945 Mr. Lapide was a liason officer in Vienna for the Big Four commands.

In 1946 he was discharged from the British service with five medals including the Military Cross for "valor beyond the call of duty," and returned to Palestine, where he served in the Israeli army in their war of liberation.

Upon discharge from the latter service, Mr. Lapide joined the Israeli foreign office where he is employed in his present capacity.

Two-Fold Visit

Mr. Lapide stated that his visit to this country is two-fold. He returned partly out of desire to see his native land but, more importantly, he is part of a five-man crusade whose express purpose is to enlist the sympathy and active assistance of Canadians for the rescue of the last 100,000 Jewish orphans, strays and waifs left over today in Europe and the Middle East.

The following is part of the text of his address:

"These children between the ages of 13 and 16, mostly sons and daughters of parents who were burned, gassed, or otherwise destroyed in any other of Hitler's ingenious ways, children who were born about the time Hitler invaded Poland in 1939 and who thus have never known any normal living conditions since birth, are the children whom we hope to save.

"A team of psychologists and experts from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem who toured these countries last fall came back with a report, the gist of which is, that if these children are not saved before the year's end there may be no one left to save in 1953.

"The reason for this is simple in that a child of such tender age can stand just so much punishment, spiritual or physical, but once the breaking point is reached, the child goes sour and is beyond saving.

Tighten Belts

"We in Israel, in the light of this report, have tightened our belts and stiffened our already stringent austerity program to the point where we live today on a diet of three eggs and one pint of milk a week and one and one-half ounces of meat every ten days.

"We do this in order to share our limited resources with the stream of immigrants coming into our country, especially with these youngest, and hardest hit, victims of the late war who are in need of rich food and warm clothing more than anybody.

"But unfortunately the job of saving 100,000 children in such a short time is too vast a task to be shouldered by a small nation like ours singlehanded. This is why, some five weeks ago, five people in Israel in various government positions, have left their desks and taken their annual leave. They have gone back to their native countries in order to explain the urgency and vital humanitarian aspects of this compelling cause. One man has been sent to each of Canada, Australia, South Africa, United States and England.

Many Donors to Cause

"I am very happy to say that on the first leg of my three-month trans-Canada tour, I have been able not only to infect the Jewish communities with my enthusiasm, but am proud to say that amongst the donors to our cause are prominent members of both the Anglo-Saxon and French communities.

"This to me, is not only important as far as the dollar value of their contributions is concerned (and it costs $600 today to bring in one underprivileged youth, take him to one of 120 Boys' Towns in Israeli, build him up and love him up into a normal child) but is to me, additional proof that people in this country understand that the rescue of this last remnant of Hitler's legacy, is a non-political, non-factional and non-denominational cause of paramount humanitarian importance.

"In conclusion, I would like to take this opportunity of commenting on this so-called Arab-Jewish enmity I have heard so much about over here.

"We in Israel who are embarking today upon what may well be the greatest mission of love ever undertaken by any government, the ingathering of all the persecuted exiles of our people from the four corners of the earth, we do this at great sacrifice and immeasurable toil. We have hatred toward no one, least of all to our neighbors, the Arabs.

"It is our most ardent wish and fervent prayer that the day may not be distant when we shall be able to do, what we've been endeavoring to do these last three years, to establish normal, peaceful relations with all peoples and nations sharing with us that troubled part of the world called the Middle East."

Believed Head of Drug Traffic

Loafing for a Living

The "Loafing" or "Pen" type dairy barn is just one of the many recent improvements in farm buildings. You will be looking into new types of buildings, and new ways to arrange present buildings before you go beyond the planning stage of construction or repairs. Modern farm buildings are designed to save labour, protect herd health and lead to greater profits.

Discuss your financial problems with the local Commerce manager. He represents a bank that has for many years taken a keen interest in promoting better farming and in looking after Canadian farmers' banking needs. Why not pay him a visit?

WEDDINGS

RUTHERFORD—WRIGHT

Campbellford.—The marriage ook place in Stanwood United Church on Friday afternoon of lena Wright, daughter of the ate Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Wright, nd Allan Rutherford, son of Mr. nd Mrs. Harold Rutherford. The ev. Howard Beare officiated.

The church was decorated with multi-colored carnations. Miss Bernice Wright rendered the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Alred Wright, wore a gown of white satin with a lace yoke, and veil of white lace. She carried bouquet of red roses.

The wedding attendants were, Miss Jean Wright and Miss Annie Brunton. They wore similar resses of blue and peach taffeta with blue flower hats, and caried nosegays of pink and blue flowers.

Mr. William Rutherford was est man with George Brunton nd Lawrence Meiklejohn acting s ushers.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the ride where her brother, Mr. Alred Wright, assisted her aunt, ta Brunton, in receiving.

The happy couple left for a wedding trip, the bride wearing a lue serge suit for travelling. On their return they will live in Stanwood.

CLARKE—LEAVENS

On Saturday, February 16, at p.m., Gilead St. Andrew's church was the scene of a pretty wedding when Rev. W. R. Merrick united n marriage Flora Mae Leavens, aughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keneth Leavens, Corbyville, to Jack Douglas Clarke, son of Mrs. Eva Clarke, of Halloway, and the late Mr. Carl Clarke.

The church was attractively ecorated with ferns and mixed lowers.

Mr. Garnet Sills, Corbyville, provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Floyd Ray, of Halloway, who ang, "Because", and "Always".

The bride, given in marriage y her father, wore a strapless own of soft pink taffeta in balerina length with overskirt of white Chantilly lace, and small acket of matching lace with lilypoint sleeves and Queen Ann colar. Her lace headdress held her ingertip nylon tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of Briarcliffe roses and hyacinth bells tied with white lacelon ribon.

Miss Carol Ross, Corbyville, was the bride's maid of honor, attractively gowned in lime green ace over taffeta, of ballerina ength with matching headdress and nosegay of roses, pansies and reezia.

Mr. Roger Robson, Halloway, was groomsman and Flying Officers Bill Clarke, brother of the room, and Jack Sloan, Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held at the ome of the bride's parents, with ighty guests present. The table was centred with the wedding ake amid folds of white tulle, osebuds and candelabra, and was et beneath an archway decorated with pink streamers and large white wedding bell.

The bride's mother received in gown of forest green tissue aille wearing a corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by e bridegroom's mother in a gown f lace over crepe in keepsake lue with corsage of red roses.

For travelling to Toronto, Niagara, Port Colborne, Philadelphia, and New York, the bride chose a suit of beige Bedford cord, winter white coat, with chocolate brown accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke will reside at Halloway, where the bridegroom is a successful farmer.

Prior to the wedding, there was a cup and saucer shower with Mrs. Arthur Balcanquel and Miss Wanda Swan as hostesses held in the bride's honor, when she received 26 beautiful cups and saucers.

FLINTOFF—CLARKE

The marriage of Jacqueline Florence Clarke, of Bowmanville, and Carl Cooper Flintoff, of Orono, was solemnized recently in the rectory of St. Joseph's Church, Bowmanville, with the Rev. F. K. Malane officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Clarke of Bowmanville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Oswald Cowan, of Orono, and the late Mr. Glen Flintoff, of Oshawa.

White snapdragons formed the background. Given in marriage by her father the bride was gowned in the traditional white satin designed with triple bouffant skirts of nylon falling into a graceful chapel train. A small winged collar and illusion neckline styled the bodice of imported Chantilly lace and long mitts complemented the wee puff sleeves. Her nylon tulle veil fell from an Anne Boleyn bonnet of Chantilly lace and pearls and she carried a white Prayer Book with white orchids, and white African gladiolus with streamers entwined with fluer-de-lis.

Miss Margaret Flintoff, of Oshawa, sister of the bridegroom, was maid-of-honor wearing apple green nylon marquisette with a forest green French velvet cloche with ostrich plume trim. Deep pink roses and forget-me-nots comprised her Colonial bouquet.

Mr. Paul Delaney, of Newcastle, Ontario, was best man.

To receive the guests at the wedding breakfast which was held at the Balmoral Hotel, Bowmanville, the bride's mother chose a navy blue ottoman two-piece floor length dress with a matching hat. The bridegroom's mother who assisted was in a long dress of lady love lace and crepe with a lilac hat. Both wore corsages of roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Flintoff left on a wedding trip to the United States and on their return will live in Oshawa. For travelling the bride changed to a tomato red dressmaker suit with matching coolie hat and black accessories and a grey lamb topcoat. White orchid and African gladiolus comprised her corsage.

Guests were present from Hamilton, Toronto, Goderich, Timmins, Peterborough, Orono, Newcastle, Whitby, Belleville, Oshawa, Bowmanville.

The bride is an employee of the Oshawa Branch of the Bell Telephone Company and the bridegroom is an employee of General Motors and is a member of the Barron Hockey team, Bowmanville.

Mrs. C. W. Burr Delights W.A. With Travelogue

On Friday afternoon, the Women's Association of Bridge Street Church met in the ladies' parlor for their February meeting. Mrs. R. H. Wray presided and conducted the regular business.

The afternoon's program prepared by the group convened by Mrs. E. Denyes and Mrs. G. E. Harron, was then presented.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. Harron from the February devotional prepared by Mrs. J. M. Wood, a member of the local association, for the Dominion Woman's Association Council of the United Church of Canada. The theme being "Home". This was followed by a beautiful solo, "Bless This House", by Mrs. W. Burgoyne, accompanied by Mrs. J. R. Guthridge at the piano.

Mrs. C. W. Burr, speaker for the afternoon took the society in imagination with her on her recent trip to the British Isles and the continent of Europe.

Colorful Trip

Leaving Montreal on the "Empress of Canada" and disembarking at Liverpool, and travelling by bus up through the lake district to Windermere and Grasmere, the famous Gretna Green was one of the stops made before continuing on through to "Robbie Burns" country to Glasgow.

Here a colorful 12th of July celebration was in progress. From here the tour turned eastward through "Rob Roy" country across to Edinburgh, down the coast to Newcastle, Stratford-on-Avon and thence to London.

Leaving England, the travellers took a boat train to Norway, from Norway they continued on to Sweden, Germany, Holland, Belgium, France, Switzerland, Italy; returning through France and across to England with a visit to Ireland completing a most memorable and enjoyable trip.

The return voyage across the Atlantic was foggy and the shores of Canada were a most welcome sight.

Mrs. Burr described vividly some of the places she visited in Europe. The city of Hamburg in Germany, which was so heavily bombed during the war, is being rapidly rebuilt. Bismark's monument and St. Michael's Church are two interesting landmarks in this city.

Land of Flowers

Holland is a country of rich soil where quantities of beautiful flowers are grown for the home market as well as for export. The dairy-farming industry is also important here. The cleanliness of the people, their homes, barns, streets, in fact the whole country, makes a most favorable impression on the tourist.

The speaker described in detail a flower market visited at The Hague during their national flower week.

In Amsterdam, the official capital of Holland, there is an interesting city clock which strikes every quarter hour and plays a little tune.

Travel on the canals in Amsterdam is extensive, although in most parts of the country nearly everyone travels by bicycle. The quaint wooden shoes are still being worn by many of the people and are sometimes left outside the door when they enter their houses.

As time was running out, the guest speaker touched briefly on some of the cities visited in France. The palace at Versailles, the scene of the Battle of Waterloo and the Royal park were but a few of the historic spots visited.

Mrs. Denyes thanked Mrs. Burr for a most interesting afternoon.

The Mizpah benediction closed the meeting after which tea was served by the group in charge.

MINERAL WEALTH

Besides coal, Queensland has rich deposits of gold, copper, tin, lead, silver, zinc, limestone, wolfram and ironstone.

BIG TERRITORY

The Fly River in Papua, administered by Australia, is 650 miles long and navigable by steam launch for 500 miles.

Belleville Theatre Guild Presents Play At H-S. Association

The Shannonville Home and School Association held their Founder's meeting last Tuesday evening, with the president, Mrs. Kilburn, in the chair.

After the reading of the secretary's and treasurer's reports, a lively discussion took place regarding plans for the improvement of the schoolgrounds to provide a summer playground for Shannonville children this year. The possibility of providing new swings and a slide was thoroughly discussed and work in this direction should commence with the good weather.

The members of the Association were fortunate in having a presentation from The Belleville Theatre Guild entitled, "Scattered Showers". Following the play, Mrs. G. A. Bradford, president of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association, Belleville, and Mrs. Martin, also of Belleville, discussed the three types of child care demonstrated and made clear to their interested audience which type was most effective in producing a happy, well adjusted child. Those taking part in the play were Mrs. "Bud" Punchard, Mrs. G. Thompson and Miss Hilda Burley.

Rereshments were served by the refreshment committee and a hearty vote of thanks was given to The Belleville Theatre Guild.

Fifth Belleville Cubs, Scouts Group Hold Father-Son Banquet

In memory of Lord Baden-Powell founder of the Scout movement, which at present, is the world's largest organization, the annual father and son banquet of the Fifth Belleville group was held in the Prince of Wales school on Friday night with an attendance of 107.

Chairman of the group committee Mr. Howard Burley, introduced the guest speaker and the Cub and Scout leaders.

The Reverend Duncan McTavish opened the meeting, speaking briefly of the usefulness of Scout training to the boys in their mature life.

Mr. Frank Follwell, M.P., guest speaker, told of his training as a Scout and its usefulness to him through the years of his life. He also told of the Scout law and how it works; and of the training of Scouts for better citizens, mentioning Canada as being one of the greatest countries in the world, and adding that through the training of the younger generation, it would be more able to take the responsibilities of a great democracy.

Scout Master Bernard Fox thanked the fathers for coming out to the banquet, and reminded them that although the group is a new troop it is shaping up fine and soon will be one of the best. He also invested four boys in the Scout Brotherhood.

Assistant Scoutmaster, John Babcock, told an interesting story he had heard from the past master, now District Commissioner, Arthur Jackson.

Mrs. Tice, Cubmaster, welcomed all present and presented first stars and badges to four of her boys.

The Ladies Auxiliary was thanked for the fine dinner they had provided by Mr. J. Townsend. Mr. Burley also expressed his appreciation to all concerned for an enjoyable evening.

'Garlanding The Flowers'

By CHARLES ANDREW TUPPER

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Henry A. Brant reported in the "Obituary" column of the Ontario Intelligencer of Friday, February 15th, made mention of her considerable writings in poetry and prose on Indian lore and of her assistance in these spheres to the Canadian poet, Wallace Havelock Robb, author of "Thunderbird." In amplifying this statement it might be well to state that she had been busy ever since the year 1925, in her leisure moments, both by voice and pen in attempting to bring the "greatness" of the old-time Indian through the surface of discrimination and create a better understanding between "the white brother" and the red man.

Brilliant Mohawk Record

Well-known in the literary and poetic world by her writings, Mrs. Brant drew the attention of many to the history and brilliant record of the Mohawks at Tyendinaga Reservation, Deseronto. An example of her persistent influence in this direction may be noted in the full-page feature article, written by her daughter, Gladys Eileen, which appeared in the Ontario Intelligencer, Saturday, January 7th, 1933, of which I have a copy. This, however, was just one isolated instance of a long line of efforts to present the case of the Indian.

Her record of achievement in this field did not go too long unrecognized by her own peoples, for a deputation, headed by Chief Johnson from Oshweken came down to Deseronto with an Indian brass-band and all the trimmings, and, they nominated and bestowed upon her her Indian name and title, "Kajeje Yohsta" meaning "Garlanding The Flowers." Although it is difficult to translate into English, it could also mean something like this — "Her presence among the flowers enhances their beauty".

Royal Mohawk Princess

In any case, she was a Princess in the royal line of the ancient dynasty of the Mohawks, at the same time being directly descended from that famous Indian chief of Canadian history, "Tehkarihogea Thayendanegea" more familiar to students of today as "Captain Joseph Brant", in honor of whom the city of Brantford, Ontario, derives its name . . . and whose Indian surname still graces our own local "Tyendinaga" township and reservation, although the spelling was simplified somewhat for white-man's easier understanding.

With this brief resume, it is easy to understand the present writer's interest in this almost legendary, poetic Mohawk-Indian "Princess" just recently passed on to "Happier Hunting Grounds." Pursuing this interest led to a firm friendship and a greatly increased knowledge of Mohawk-Indian history and lore and of the founding of The Confederacy of The Five Indian Nations by Dekanaweda and his aide, Hiawatha. Particularly did the "Princess" love to speak in recent months, even though far from well, of her ancient forefathers. In line with the precepts of Holy Writ, she "honored her father and mother" back through the generations, but especially, back to Dekanaweda, founder of The League of The Five Nations, whose object was peace!

Provided Model

The constitution and example of this "League" is said to have provided a 'model' to which the framers of the American Constitution referred to for "tips" or inspiration! (This fact is referred to on P.P. 209 of the 845 page biography "Benjamin Franklin" by Carl Van Doren). However, it was the Mohawk-lore-portion of this that Kajeje Yohsta sought over a period of years, to make known both to her own people and to the white-man. And to further this, she answered the former Belleville poet, Wallace Havelock Robb's plea for help in Redman research work, and assisted in this to aid him in his recently published historic epic entitled, "Thunderbird."

Back of it all, was her intention to honor in some way, the good name and traditions of her ancient people and especially the founder, "Dekanaweda!"

This main goal, however, after years of spare time effort, seemed as remote as ever! Little serious impression seemed to have been made on public opinion, either Red or White-man. . . it looked much as if she would take that last voyage without ever seeing her dream become a reality!

Dream Realized

She became ill last August and went to the hospital in Belleville, and summer passed into autumn and the months dragged on into winter and into a new year and up through January until the evening of Feb. 6th, 1952 when a long-distance phone call from Wallace Havelock Robb, of Abbey Dawn announced —"that the secretary of the Akwesasne Mohawk Counselod Organization of Hogansburg, N.Y., had just made known their decision and intention of erecting a memorial in honor of Dekanaweda at a spot at or near his birthplace on the Tyendinaga reserve at Deseronto. . . and would I carry this news to Kajeje in person, as time was running out!" The news was taken to her in the hospital and made her last few days that much brighter in the realization that her life-time work had born fruition! Three days later she passed peacefully away in a sleep!

With the foregoing facts to mind, my wife and I proceeded to the Gardner and White funeral chapel on the 14th February at Deseronto. It was a beautiful and impressive service all the way through. Besides those already mentioned in the obituary report, those present included Mrs. White and Mrs. Herbert File, M.A., of Napanee, Mrs. Ella E. Tupper of Foxboro and Mrs. Edna B. Robb of Abbey Dawn.

Tribute Rendered

At the funeral chapel, Wallace Havelock Robb, wearing the feathered headdress bequeathed to him in 1948 when the Deseronto Mohawks made him a chief with the name "White Eagle," delivered a moving and beautiful funeral oration in tribute to the life-work and achievements of Kajeje Yohsta . . . announcing also the successful results of her life-long dream, that a memorial to honor Dekanaweda would soon become a reality! "White Eagle's "Elegy" in tribute to the ancient and good name of the Red-man's forebears, commenced in true Mohawk manner with an invocation to "Ha-wen-ne-yoh" (the Creator) to "hear us." Referring to her being of the "Turtle Clan" of the Mohawks, he continued:

"Beloved Kajeje Yohsta!
Turtle and Princess Keeper of the Mohawk Light,
Yea, and poet-kindler of compassion—
The newer light more kindly in the Whiteman Soul—
Well hast thou served thy people."

In keeping with the approaching spring season, Mr. Robb likened her flowering works in these lines:

"Lo! thou has gone from us, Kajeje Yohsta,
Even as the moccasin of Easter
Thunders down the trail,
Even as the flowers of thy vision
Opening, springlike, in the Dark Forest
Of the Whiteman Soul—
A Myriad Light of Love . . ."
(Aside-motion as to ceremonial fire)
"Incense of Love and Beauty!"

In conclusion "White Eagle" intoned solemnly:

"Farewell, thou Vestal Mohawk Princess!
Thou Soul now with the Infinite!
Farewell, thou Daughter of Light!"

Contact Club Holds Most Successful Bridge and Euchre

The Contact Club held its annual bridge and euchre last evening in Christ Church parish hall with 41 tables of bridge and 17 of euchre in play. Always a success, this time the evening seemed to be brighter, gayer and more satisfying than ever before. An illusion, due in a large degree, not only to the wonderful throng of guests, but also to the bright, attractive spaciousness of the renovated parish hall.

The new dumb-waiter aided greatly in the work of serving the refreshments, and also added to considerable comedy as the comments of Fred Beeby came over the 'inter-com' more loudly than he even dreamed.

Great credit goes to all Contact members who had worked hard for the success of this event by giving their co-operation to the conveners. The conveners of the bridge were, Mary and Jack Fletcher; of the euchre, Stewart and Della Bull; collector of prizes, Margaret Shappee; of tickets, Dorothy Halbert; of tables and chairs, Betty Ling and Dorothy Sloan; of refreshments, June Flindall and Gwen Kelleher; while George Ling, Jack Fletcher, Willis Jackson gave extra assistance in the collection of the tables and chairs.

Bridge prize winners included, ladies' high, Mrs. A. Wonnacott, Irene Tatham; consolation, Barbara Miller; men's high, A. Wonnacott, M. Button; consolation, S. Wonnacott.

Euchre prize winners, Mrs. M. Davis, Mrs. W. Lancaster; consolation, Miss P. Sills. Men, W. Lancaster, W. Jackson; consolation, K. Greene.

A big 'thank-you' to the many guests whose support of last evening's party made of this annual bridge and euchre a most heart-warming success.

Women's Activities

CANADIAN LEGION L. AUX.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion held its regular meeting recently with Comrade Bean presiding.

Two applications for membership were accepted. A social evening is to be held in March with the Carrying Place group as guests.

Mrs. Dolder was presented with a coffee table in appreciation of her years of faithful service as standard bearer.

Six parcels are to be mailed to the Belleville boys in Korea.

The meeting was concluded in the usual manner

VICTORIA AVE VOTA-VITA

Last Tuesday, the Vota-Vita Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church met at the home of Helen Hales. With Marjorie Hales leading, the meeting opened with the singing of choruses and hymns.

The president, Margaret Hagerman, read a seasonable poem, "Canada's Prayer"

Marjorie Hales presented an interesting "Watch Tower".

Little Miss Dianne Hales, a special guest this evening, gave a humorous reading entitled "Angela's Missionary Box", and received so much applause that she gave an encore "Maggie Swartz".

Marie Lowery conducted the devotional period reading Psalm 121.

Miss Jean Thomson proved to be an interesting story teller giving the life story of the missionary, Muriel Spurgeon.

an important discovery in the relief of pain!

Science progresses . . . for 50 years we have used little white tablets—acetylsalicylic acid—for relief of pain. Today this familiar pain killer is available in a new form without the disadvantages of acidity, insolubility and bitter taste. It is called DISPRIN and is sold at druggists everywhere.
DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.
DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief.
DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't marry again till you're sure it's for good

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 22, and have been married and divorced. I have two children.

I'm going now with a man of 33 who is in the Air Force and is stationed near the town where I live. He wants to marry me, but I can't bring myself to it because of my children.

Do you think I should marry him and let him be the stepfather of my children? I love him enough but I can't make up my mind about this.—S. D

Dear S.D.:

Because you have already had one unsuccessful marriage, don't you think you should be specially careful about any second marriage? You certainly don't want to have another failure.

You are right to hesitate for your children's sake, as well as for your own. Children have a very difficult adjustment to make when their home is broken up, and the experience very often indeed leaves permanent scars on their lives. It would be most unfair to them to take any step toward a new marriage unless and until you were as sure as it is humanly possible to be that this time you could give them a home that would be happy and secure.

All this being the case, I advise you not to think of marriage with this chap from the Air Force right now, but to give yourself ample time to know exactly what you are doing, and how good the chances are that everything will work out well.

Says girls "don't know how to hold a boy"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The boy I have been going with for about five months told me that what is wrong with us girl is that we don't know how to hold a boy after we get him.

It seems that when a girl first starts going with a fellow he does everything to please her, and then after awhile he gets tired of it and thinks it only right for the girl to start acting like she really goes with him and not to depend on him all the time.

This boy is a very nice fellow and I would like to know how I can hold him. I will soon be 16 and he will be 18, and if I don't try to hold him now I won't get the chance later on.—E.B.

Dear E.B.:

If I understand you correctly, what you mean to say is that after a boy has been attentive and taken the initiative in giving a girl a good time for awhile, he then thinks he should be able to relax, while she takes over the responsibility of planning the activities together.

I don't see why planning dates shouldn't be a co-operative affair, with the boy sometimes making the suggestions and the girl doing it other times. Don't you think this is a sensible way to operate?

As for how to hold a boy, if you can't hold him by being natural and friendly—in short, by just being yourself—you're certainly not going to be able to do it by trying to think up new ideas. Presumably a boy likes a girl for what she is, and wants to be with her because he enjoys her company and they have good times together. If the girl is to keep worrying about making herself into something different, or about staging special entertainment for the boy all the time, their friendship is not going to last very long anyhow.

If your boy friend doesn't like you for yourself, let him go, and wait for the one to come along who will want you just as you are.

Pill May Cure Dread Disease

In this little pill, physicians hope they have a cure for tuberculosis. The pill, one of two types developed at Seaview Hospital, New York, will be tested in Canadian hospitals as soon as its action on T.B. patients is dinitely established. Message From Shrove Tuesday Authorities

This will reach you when it is about time for you to be eating Shrove Waffles that I am describing today. Never mind—the recipe will be handy all during Lent and I have special word from the Shrove Tuesday Authorities that waffles are an acceptable substitute for pancakes. Since eggs are waffles' strength and my weakness, waffles and I are going to be close companions for the next six weeks. Want to tag along?

SHROVE WAFFLES

Two eggs, 2 cups sour milk or buttermilk, 2 cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons very soft shortening or oil or use instead of the sour milk or buttermilk 1-2 cup skim milk powder and 1 2-3 cups water and 1 tablespoon sugar and omit the soda and increase the baking powder to 4 teaspoons., Sift together all of the dry ingredients used (this includes the skim milk powder if used). Beat the eggs and beat in the milk or water and soft shortening. Beat in the sifted dry ingredients until batter is smooth. It is very thin. Pour onto hot waffle iron covering only 2-3 of surface at centre. These are light crisp, airy and downy. Lovely waffles; even good warmed over in the waffle iron. When maple syrup prices are out reach try corn syrup.

OATMEAL PANCAKES

Let soak together for 10 minutes 1 1-2 cups ready-to-cook rolled oats (the 5-minute kind) and 2 cups buttermilk. Beat in 1-2 cup sifted flour, 1 teaspoon each sugar, soda and salt, 2 beaten eggs. This is a thin batter too. Bake on seasoned griddle. To keep pancakes hot place between folds of warm towel in warm oven.

QUESTION:

Would you please send me a calorie chart. My girl friend and I are trying to lose a few pounds . . . we are housewives. . .I have three children 10-7-3. . .as you can image we do not have much time to sit and twiddle our thumbs. . . my girl friend has a 3-year-old. Please tell me how many calories in 1 8-oz. cup all-bran. . .tried some of your recipes which turned out well. Is there any special way to cook carrots. The whole family loves them all but the boy 7. He will eat them raw but that is the only way.

I can some of my own winter vegetables in soup and it tastes grand on cold days. I have not seen anything like it. Here is how I make it: 2 small baskets of ripe tomatoes, small onions, small carrots, small yellow and green beans, green and red sweet peppers, salt and pepper to taste. I have not put down any special amount of vegetables. I use the odds and ends of the garden produce. I peel tomatoes and cook in open kettle, as if to just plain can them. Peel and add veg, and cook until done, put in sealers, add acid and seal. This keeps very well as the acid in the tomatoes keeps the veg. . .my children are howling for their breakfast, the three-year-old wants dressed, the seven-year-old wants to know if his elbows are clean, the ten-year-old wants me to help her find one shoe, so I guess I will close or my happy home won't be so happy any more. It is 7 a.m.—Mrs. Ross A.

ANSWER:

More power to you Mrs. A. May your good nature carry you through many difficulties ahead. One cup bran contains 100 calories; don't ask your 7-year-old to eat cooked carrots—let him have them raw. They are much better for him as long as he chews them well. Wonderful for the eyes; remember the air force eats them by the bushel. Now I have a question. Will you please watch exactly what you put into this marvellous sounding soup next summer and then send me the ingredients. Tell me times too. And what is the acid you speak of? Were his elbows clean?

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Today's courtesy tip

Don't talk to one of two persons, and ignore the other. Sometime you may find yourself in the position of "the person ignored" . . .and you won't like this a bit.

She plans to be hostess to her hosts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been entertained so graciously and so generously by some friends of mine, husband and wife, whom I am visiting for several weeks, that I would like so much to take them out to dinner at a good restaurant. So as not to have them at all embarrassed about the payment, I thought of giving the husband, before we leave the house, the money for paying the dinner check. I want them to select any dinner they wish regardless of cost, but I wish you would please advise me how to suggest this to them. Should I first give my order to the husband so that they will feel free to order, or should I ask the wife to make her selection first? Besides the ordering could you suggest anything else to make this a happy event?—Frances T.

A most friendly and gracious plan-for-hospitality. and I am sure your hosts will be delighted to be your guests for this Happy Occasion! But I do urge you to make all your plans ahead of time. When you have chosen the restaurant, go there (don't tell!) to consult with the maitre d'hotel or headwaiter or whoever has charge tell him your plan. the date and hour, and which meal (Saturday or Sunday luncheon or dinner might be more delightfully convenient and more leisurely), and then ask him for suggestions as to their specialties, give your order, pay for it, and give him a tip (say, a dollar). It might also be possible (usually is) to add to the check the tip for the waiter. This is the gracious way to give your party. . . then no embarrassment, no hesitation about ordering. (And for an "extra, added attraction," why not give the wife a festive corsage to wear, and the husband a boutonniere, perhaps a red or white carnation?)

Concerning children in bridal party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This is the wedding party: two ushers, two bridesmaids, one junior bridesmaid, ten years old—maid of honor—two flower girls, five and seven, about the same height—and a ring bearer, ten years old. What would be the order of the processional? The recessional? (Would it be proper for the junior bridesmaid and the ring bearer to walk from the altar together?)—L. L.

The processional: first, the ushers, together; next, the junior bridesmaid, alone; next, the two bridesmaids, together; next, the maid of honor, alone; the ring bearer, walking alone; the two flower girls, walking together; and last, the bride and her father.

The recessional: the bride and bridegroom; next, the two flower girls, together; next, the ring bearer, alone; maid of honor, either alone or with best man; the two bridesmaids, walking together; junior bridesmaid, alone; last, the two ushers together. Or the shorter bridesmaid may walk with the shorter usher; followed by the taller bridesmaid walking with the taller usher. If the bridesmaids and ushers are to walk together, the junior bridesmaid would walk alone, following the maid of honor. It would not be proper for the junior bridesmaid and the ring bearer to walk together, either in the processional or recessional. Quite often the flower girl and the ring bearer walk together, but not a junior bridesmaid and the ring bearer.

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

Eye shadows are glamorizing

If accomplished skillfully and with restraint, lightly-tinted eyelids are the final make-up flourish. They are not for the girl who practises the paint-and-run policy, laying on the complexion decorations too lavishly or too hurriedly. It is only the one who has educated herself in the correct use of cosmetics who is entitled to play with this special item of the make-up box.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate

It takes flair to get away with eye shadows.

It is the superlative detail of complexion artifice. To get away with lid pigment, a woman should have flair, be fastidious about grooming, have her hair-do sleek down to the last little tress. They are not for daytime wear. But when the lights and the merry evening are on, they impart a sweetly-mysterious, come-hither look. It is worth any girl's while to make this small investment and to experiment. Or, she can patronize a make-up bar where the attendant will try out various colors, show the cash-customer precisely and exactly how to use them.

Blue is the good old standby, and a great favorite. It is suitable and becoming to blondes and brunettes. If the eyes are blue, there must be a close color relationship between them and the application on the eyelids.

If the blue is a dark shade and the eyes are light, the eyes will lose character and sparkle. So, if you are a blue-eyed lovely, consider that point and make a careful selection.

The redhead will find a pale green becoming. It will bring out the glory of her flaming thatch. This rule also holds goods for the girl with copper-colored hair, though, in addition, she should try one of the rich bronze shadows before deciding which is most becoming.

Be wary of brown and grey shadows. They are seldom effective. Browns are inclined to look smudgy, and greys may make the skin look colorless. Mauve is the happy choice of the white-haired lady whose skin is of delicate texture and possesses the transparent quality that often comes with the birthdays. There's a dainty lilac shade that is also pleasing on the more elderly beauty-seekers. Blue-greens make the grade for the girl with clear skin and hazel eyes.

Shadows come in cream form, also in compacts. The creams are easier to apply. You spread them along the line of the lashes and gradually work upward, doing a fade-away as you come to the upper ridge of the eye socket. Never extend them beyond the far terminal of the eyebrows. There you are, lady! All dressed up with a new and prettier face.

Indian, Eskimo Youngsters Receiving Formal Education In Big Edmonton Hospital

Edmonton (CP) — In classes without classrooms 374 Indian and Eskimo patients in the Charles Camsell Indian Hospital here are receiving a formal education denied them previously through circumstances of environment and geography.

Their classroom is a hospital ward. Their desk is a hospital bed. There is no age limit. In fact, 233 of the pupils are adults and 141 children.

There are more than 500 patients in the hospital but as school doesn't begin until they reach six years not all of them are enrolled.

Lessons are conducted by a principal and four teachers on the tutorial system. Teachers move from bed to bed. Nurses, orderlies and other members of the hospital staff help. Some of the older pupils assist in teaching the younger ones.

Come From Afar

Students come from all over Alberta and from the Alaskan border to the eastern reaches of the Northwest Territories. 25 of them don't speak English at all. A number can just make themselves understood.

Magnitude of the job facing the teaching staff is indicated by the fact that approximately two-thirds of the pupils are in the first three grades of school.

For the children, teaching follows closely the Alberta course of studies, with emphasis on reading, writing, language and arithmetic.

With adults, there is a different approach. Many of them have had no education and to these the fundamental are offered just as they are to the children.

But an effort also is made to impress upon them a broader outlook so that when they return home they will want to see that their children are given an opportunity for an education and that they will take advantage of it.

School principal Fred N. Dew, a former Edmonton school teacher, said special attention is paid to "directing education to rehabilitation."

Need New Jobs

"We are forced to face the fact that many of these patients cannot return to trapping or laboring jobs," he said. "We don't try and stop them going home when they are released from hospital. In fact, they want to go home and we want to help them.

"Many have the old Indian philosophy of taking things as they come, but with a little help they can fit into jobs in offices."

The school was organized with a dual purpose. The therapeutic angle was to make the school a morale builder for bed-ridden patients who previously either had ing from tuberculosis.

The other reason was to carry on or begin studies for the patients who previouly either had no opportunity to attend school or at best a limited opportunity.

The Indian Affairs branch of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration and the Northwest Territories administration are rated above average in artisday schools to increase opportunities of education for Indians and Eskimos in remote areas.

Some pupils in the hospital classes accomplish the work of two or three grades a year. They are rate dabove average in artistic ability and at least the equal, if not superior, to their white counterparts in mechanical ability.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tomorrow night the junior Hawklets trek to Peterborough where they take on the Peterborough Triple Links in the fourth game of their best-of-five semi-finals junior "B" series. The youngsters came through with a neat performance in Peterborough to take a one-game lead after splitting their two home games with the Links and if they come up with the same brand of hockey tomorrow evening they should take the series three games to one. But don't bet the family bank roll on that prediction. The Linkers are not out of the playoff woods by a long shot and they'll be a desperate squad out there tomorrow evening battling in an effort to pull the tying game out of the fire and force the fifth and deciding game scheduled for Memorial Arena here next Saturday night. The Hawklets will have to come up with their best to knock off the Links whether it be in Peterborough tomorrow night or here on Saturday.

* * *

And while on this junior "B" matter the Kingston Vics came up with a surprising upset the other night when they turned back the powerful Lindsay Kinsmen in the third game of their semi-finals series and now the teams are all even-steven with a win, a loss and a tie. Just goes to show what this unpredictable game of hockey can produce. The Vics, more or less stepping stones in schedule play have shown surprising form against a team supposed to brush them aside with more or less ease. But Maxie Jackson's crew have shown themselves to be amazing money-game winners and have struck a chips-down stride that has surprised the entire group. They meet Lindsay tonight in Kingston in the fourth game of the series.

SENIOR RACE

In the senior race the Peterborough Petes have clinched first place with the rest of the pack bunched closely and here, too, anything can happen. At time of writing the score of the Kingston Sacs - Peterborough Petes game played last night was not available but if the Sacs won it means a two-place deadlock between them and the Eagles with both three points up on the Hawks. That means the Hawks have cinched the cellar slot since they have only one game left to play. However if Petes took the Sacs the Friday night game here between Hawks and Sacs means a playoff for third position. We'll have the Petes-Sacs score before going to press.

TENNIS CONCLAVE

The annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Tennis League has been set for the Quinte Club clubhouse on Thursday, March 13 at eight o'clock. Invitations have been extended to such clubs as Point Anne, Batawa, Trenton; Holloway Street Church, St. Andrew's Church, RCAF, Trenton. and naturally the senior and intermediate clubs of the host organization. The league had a very successful season last year and the coming one promises to be as good as any of its predecessors.

GLENS, TRENTON HERE TOMORROW!

Glen Roys evened their Trent Valley Hockey League southern section semi-finals playoffs in Trenton last night defeating the Jewellers by an 11-4 score to square the series at one game each. Glens lost the first tilt 9-7 here last Saturday night and the teams clash here tomorrow night in the third game of the series to determine the right to meet the Trenton RCAF Flyers for the sectional title. The game last night was a rousing battle and tomorrow night the squads will toss everything they've got in what should be quite a joust.

TORONTO PLAYERS MOST DURABLE

Toronto Maple Leafs have eight players on their team who have taken par in every game played by the Leafs this season. Detroit Red Wings are next with seven durable members who've played in every game the Wings have engaged in this term. Chicago, Boston and New York each have four members who have played in all games played by these teams. Montreal Canadiens have only two members on this season's team who have taken part in every game played by the Habs.

EIGHT PLAYERS SCORE HAT TRICK

Eight players in the NHL have scored Hat Tricks up to February 21, The players are Floyd Curry, Maurice Richard, Bernie Geoffrion, Paul Meger and Dick Moore, Canadiens, Gordie Howe, Detroit, Dunc Fisher, Boston and Ed Slowinski, Rangers.

BUSES FOR FANS TOMORROW NIGHT

The Belleville Hockey Association is placing buses at the disposal of fans who want to go to Peterborough tomorrow night for the Hawks-Links junior "B" game. The buses will leave the arena at 6.30 p.m. Tickets are available at Bill Cook's Tobacco Store and must be secured in advance.

SACS SOCKED 'EM!

And here's that Kingston - Peterborough Petes score. The Sacs defeated the group-leaders by an 11-9 count to park our Hawks gently but very firmly in the cellar slot. And that means, with fourth and first teams, and second and third clashing in the playoffs that the Doranites meet the Petes in the best-of-five semi-finals with Kingston and Eagles jousting in the other bracket. From here in it will be a dogfight between Eagles and Sacs to decide second and third places since the team finishing ahead gets the odd game at home.

Dutchies Play Mercurys Saturday

Kitchener, Feb. 26 (CP)—Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen have agreed to play the second game of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A semi-finals against Owen Sound Mercurys Saturday. The clash was originally scheduled for Friday.

The Dutchmen entertain Owen Sound here Wednesday in the first game of their best-of-five semi-final series.

Stratford Indians and Brantford Redmen meet in the other section of the semifinal.

Champion Loses In Bonspiel

Brantford, Feb. 26 (CP)—Defeat of the defending champion marked the first day of the three-day sixth annual Brant Curling Club's Men's Invitation bonspiel here.

Sy Smithers of Galt, whose rink carried off the Johnson's Trophy last year, was eliminated in the second round in a 7-11 loss to Jack Nash's London rink.

Twenty rinks were eliminated from the main event in the first four draws.

Wings' Gordie Howe Has NHL Scoring Title 'In The Bag' According to Loop Figure Men

Montreal, Feb. 26—(CP)—Big Gordie Howe of Detroit, with at least one goal a game for eight consecutive games, was tabbed by National Hockey League statisticians today as the man who appears to have the 1951-52 scoring title virtually clinched.

With 35 goals and 29 assists, Howe is six points ahead of Montreal's Elmer Lach whose forte is assists—45.

Back of Lach are Ted Lindsay of Detroit and Don Raleigh of New York, tied with 48 points each. Next come Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens with 44—25 of them goal points—and Sid Smith of Toronto and Johnny Pierson of Boston with 43 points apiece.

In Front For Goals

Howe is far in front for goals. Geoffrion's 25, along with a similar tally for the ailing Maurice Richard of Canadiens, is the closest top mark to the Detroit winger. Lach, with 45 assists is tops in that department and during the last week established an N. H. L. point record for scheduled play of 192 goals and 358 assists. This shattered the record previously held by Bill Cowley, former Boston Bruin, of 548.

Lach's 358 assists in 12 seasons of play also is an N. H. L. record.

Detroit remained at the top of the league standings with 81 points but Canadiens pulled ahead of Toronto and into second place with 64 points against Toronto's 62. New York Rangers now hold down fourth place with a three-point edge over Boston and Chicago Black Hawks occupy the cellar.

Detroit's Terry Sawchuk leads all goalies in shutouts with 11 and in goals-against with 101 against in 57 games for an average of 1.77.

The bad-man of the league: Boston's Gus Kyle with 119 minutes in the penalty box. But Toronto, with 656 minutes, is the most penalized club.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said last night in Toronto that the hearing dealing with Toronto defenceman Gus Mortson's alleged kicking of New York Rangers' Hy Buller had been adjourned until Wednesday in New York.

Mortson appeared before Campbell last night after being given a match penalty Feb. 19 for what referee George Gravel called "deliberately trying to injure Buller. The game ended in a 3-3 tie.

Also attending the hearing were Joe Primeau, Hap Day, referee Gravel and N. H. L. referee-in-chief, Carl Voss.

Elmer Burkart, 34-year-old general manager of Ottawa Athletics, thought Philadelphia A's were "darn fools" to buy the Ottawa International Baseball League franchise, he told a service club in Ottawa yesterday. But later he changed his mind about the purchase from New York Giants. One factor was that advance seat sale was double last year's when Giants fielded Ottawa's first International League club.

Coach Carl Voyles of Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Big Four Football Union yesterday in Hamilton expressed the opinion that the weekend ruling allowing eight United States imports, could break the backs of some Canadian clubs. "That additional expense of the other import may well prove just too much for us to bear . . . Instead of eight imports, the Canadian Rugby Union should have worked in reverse and chopped them to five. Then we could concentrate on developing Canadian players."

With 23 prospective playing members for the 1952 season, the St. Catharines cricket club will enter the John Ross Robertson Trophy competition for the Canadian cricket championship. A. E. Mix was re-elected president last night and Doug Crowley secretary-treasurer. Art Keir will be team captain.

Dagmar Rom, 23, beautiful Austrian movie actress and Olympic skier, and Gunther Peis, 24-year-old Munich magazine editor, announced yesterday they will be married in Oslo today.

Dr. Edith Summerskill, member of parliament and no lady to back away from a fight if it's in politics, said yesterday in London she will attempt to introduce a bill to outlaw boxing in Great Britain. In November, 1950, when she was Minister of National Insurance in the labor government, she referred to a fight which had the fans goo-goo-eyed as a "most degrading spectacle."

Galt Black Hawks Trim Waterloo; Sudbury Wins

(By The Canadian Press)

A trio of games went by the boards in the three major Ontario hockey leagues last night. One was a playoff fixture while the others were league tussles.

In the north Sudbury Wolves took a one-game lead in their best-of-seven Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A semi-finals at North Bay by edging the Black Hawks 3-2 while the cellar-dwelling Sarnia Sailors closed out the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A season at home with a 9-5 win over third-place Owen Sound Mercurys.

In junior OHA play, the third-place Galt Black Hawks stood firm in Waterloo with an 8-3 decision on the eighth-place Hurricanes.

The second game of the Sudbury North Bay series is scheduled for Sudbury Wednesday night while Owen Sound and Kitchener-Waterloo open their OHA senior A semi-finals at Kitchener the same night.

Frank Ringler, Gord Heale and Lorne Smith tallied for the Wolves in their win while Ron Ractelane and Vic Jackson scored for the Hawks.

George Gosselin, Vern Gardiner and Rolly Beauchamp paced Sarnia's attack with two goals each while Bill Shedde, Harry O'Connor and Don Emms added the others. Owen Sound scorers were Bill McComb with two and Harry Kazarian, Ray Leckie and Bill Allum with singles.

Jim McBurney, Bill McIntosh and Jack Switzer were the best for Galt with two goals each. Tony Poeta and Alfie Horne added the others. Roger Maissoneuve scored all three Waterloo goals.

Brig. Rockingham Sets Up Winning Goal in Contest

With the Commonwealth Division in Korea, Feb. 25 — (Reuters) — Brig. John M. Rockingham set up the winning goal yesterday as a team from the 25th Brigade Headquarters defeated the officers of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry 3-2 in a hockey game played on the frozen Inkim River.

Rockingham, playing defence, made a shaky length-of-the-ice attack, passed to Capt. Dodd P. Fenny of Dundas, Ont., who scored the winning goal and promptly collapsed on the ice.

In reply to shouts from 300 soldiers watching the game as shells whistled overhead toward the communist lines, Rockingham replied: "I practised that for more than three hours in my tent last night."

Dozens of cameras were trained on Rockingham, commander of the 25th, every time he got the puck. There were great cheers from the men every time he 'skated across the ice in a sitting position,' as he described it later.

One of the games stars was Chaplain Maj. Joe Cardy of Port Credit, Ont.

Cardy's single goal was disallowed, but the referee hastily explained:

"It wasn't dirty playing, Sir. You were just offside."

Rocky said later that he had known headquarters would win, though he had only played one game before in his life.

"I have aches and pains all over now," he said ruefully.

Laufman Extends Junior Scoring Race Lead

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP)—Ken Laufman, the second-place Guelph Biltmores' high-scoring centre, stretched his Ontario Hockey Association Junior A point total to 136 this week a full eight in front of the league-leading Toronto Marlboros' Danny Poland.

Laufman added eight points in a single game last week and then potted another goal against Marlies Sunday. He has 51 goals and 85 assists. Poland has collected 58 goals and assisted on 70 others.

Guelph's Ron Murphy is third with 117 points. He is tied with Poland in the goal-scoring department with 58 markers.

Toronto Marlboros' Don Head continues to lead the goaltenders with a 2.50 goals-against average. Ed Chadwick of Toronto St. Michael's is close behind with a 3.35 average and Guelph's Ken Lessor is next with 3.78.

Cougars Claw Stampeders 6-4

(By The Canadian Press)

Walt Atanas scored three goals to lead the last-place Victoria Cougars to a 6-4 victory over Calgary Stampeders in the only Pacific Coast Hockey League game last night.

The victory in Calgary left Cougars in the league cellar, two points behind the seventh-place Stampeders. Stamps remained six points out of sixth and last playoff berth.

Eddie Dorohoy aided the Cougar cause with a pair of goals and Bob Frampton got the other for Victoria

Hal Brown scored twice for Calgary, Cy Thomas and the league's leading scorer George Agar getting singletons.

Area Nips Office, Shop Ties Street In Electric Games

Area G defeated Office by a 6-5 score and Machine Shop and Water Street battled to a three-all tie in Northern Electric Hockey League games.

The Area-Office game was a close-fought affair with both teams scoring in the first and Areas adding three to the Office two in the second. Philp tied the score early in the third but Areas came back with two mid-period goals by Jones and Cornell to take a two-goal lead. Little scored near the period end to cut the margin to 6-5.

Little led the Office attacks with two goals and two assists. Lynch scored twice and Philp got the other. Jones fired three goals for the winners with Cornell getting one and two and Graham and Stephens one goal each. The latter drew an assist.

Water Street raced from behind in the third period to overcome a three goal lead scored by Machine Shop in the first two periods. The teams battled hard in an effort to break the deadlock but hard checking kept both squads off the score sheet.

Wetherall and Wardhaugh tallied for the Shoppers in the first period with Pucnasik adding the third in the second heat. Barrett, Gregory and E. Barrett fired home the Streeters goals in the closing session.

Norway Scores Runaway Win In Winter Olympic Games; USA is Second; Canada Tenth

Oslo, Feb. 26—(CP)—A shift in skiing dominance from Sweden and Switzerland to Norway and Finland upset the balance of power in the 1952 Winter Olympic Games and gave the host Norwegians a runaway victory.

When the sixth—and largest—winter carnival under Olympic auspices closed last night, Norway had scored 125½ points in the unofficial, but traditional, scoring table that allows 10 points for a first place gold medal, five points for second and then 4-3-2-1 for other placings in the first six.

The United States, with its best-balanced team in the history of the winter games, was a surprisingly strong second, but its total of 89½ was a long way behind Norway. Canada was 10th with 18½.

Four years ago, at St. Moritz, less than 14 points separated top-of-the-table Sweden and the fourth-place Americans. Sweden scored 79 points, trailed by Switzerland with 71, Norway with 69½ and the United States with 65¼

Hockey Didn't Count

This time—leaving out hockey which didn't count in the 1948 totals — Sweden managed only 25½ points and the Swiss 21.

The change from the deep, heavy snows of the Alps to the thinly-covered treacherous, icy slopes of the Norwegian mountains cost the Swedes and Swiss dearly. Also Norwegian determination to win their own games was not to be denied.

The Swedes scored 16½ points in the skiing events here at Oslo compared with 55 at St. Moritz. The Swiss scored only seven, compared with 48 in their own country.

Norway, on the other hand, more than tripled its 1948 ski total, jumping from 24 to 80½.

Finland took over third place here with 72 points after running sixth at St. Moritz with 40.

Dick Button of Englewood, N.D. was the only champion to repeat his 1948 victory as he easily outclassed the field in men's figure skating.

Most of Canada's points came from the unbeaten Edmonton Mercurys who breezed to the hockey title with only a tie against the United States team marring their record. Speedskater Gordon Audley of Winnipeg and figure-skaters Suzanne Morrow and Peter Firstbrook of Canada were other Canadian point-winners.

The final unofficial point standings for the 22 events: Norway 125½; United States 89½; Finland 72; Austria 60; Germany 50½; Sweden 29½; Italy 25; Holland 24; Switzerland 21; Canada 18½; Great Britain 13; France 10; Hungary 4; Czechoslovakia 3; Belgium 1; Poland 1; Japan ½.

Countries which took part in the games but which did not score were Argentina, Australia, Bulgaria, Chile, Denmark, Greece, Iceland, Lebanon, New Zealand, Portugal, Romania, Spain and Yugoslavia.

TWO EXECUTED

Bellefonte, Pa., Feb. 26 (AP)—Joseph D. Chambers and Edward J. Bryant, both 28-year-old Philadelphians, were executed early Monday in the electric chair at Rockview penitentiary. The two had been sentenced to death for the fatal beating of Joseph Saturno, 60-year-old wine dealer, in a robbery that netted only $2.

Pontiacs Defeat Madoc 9-3 Before 1100 Fans

Bancroft—Overcoming a two-goal deficit Bancroft Pontiacs came from behind to win the third of their semi-finals with Madoc in the Hastings-Addington Hockey League by a score of 9 to 3, in the local arena on Friday night, 1,100 paid to see the game.

Big Joe Kavanagh was back for the game and his presence meant as much to Bancroft as the addition of Rocket Richard or Ted Kennedy. A physical and health education student at Queen's University, Joe, one of the mainstays of the championship team of 1950-51, gave the team that added touch that paid off in the second and third periods.

For two periods Jack Hatch was a regular whiz in Madoc's net, as he was stopping double the number of pucks that came in McGhee's direction. At 19.24 in the second Elwood Brough tied the game and his brother Norman made it one up for Bancroft at 19.59. From then on Jack was in hot water up to his ears.

In the third period Bernie Shapiro and Don Tanner were changing lines at practically every whistle, and this strategy of keeping them fresh and fast in the final frame paid off with five additional goals while Durant's men went scoreless.

Madoc's scorers were Goodchild, Reynolds, and Fred Nickle, while N. Brough 5, Delyea 2, E. Brough 1 and D. Maxwell 1, counted for the Pontiacs.

Lineups

Madoc: Goal, Hatch; defence, Lister, Nayler; centre G. Nickle; wings, Smith and Tufts; subs, Reynolds, Carswell, Thompson, Keller, Shadbolt, Lavender, Goodchild, Stewart, F. Nickle, Ross.

Bancroft Pontiacs: Goal McGhee; defence Stringer, McAlpine; centre E. Brough; wings, N. Brough, Kavanagh; subs, Bruce, T. Maxwell, D. Maxwell, Stuckey, Green, Delyea, Dugald, Hattin, Hogarth, Young.

Powell Gunning For Two Titles In A.H. League

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)— Ray Powell of Providence Reds, virtually assured of the American Hockey League scoring crown, has his sights trained on the goal-getting and assist titles.

The veteran centre leads the league with 87 points and also tops the circuit in goals with 34 and assists with 53. No player in the league's history has ever led all three scoring departments in one season.

Jackie Hamilton of St. Louis and Steve Wochy of Cleveland are tied for second place in the scoring race at 68 points apiece. Wochy also is second in goals with 33 and Hamilton in assists, 46.

Goalie Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh is in the van for netminding honors. Mayer has the best goals-against mark, 2.48 and has the most shutouts, five. Pete Durham of Buffalo is the penalty leader with 156 minutes in the box.

NO FIRE STARTED

Barrie, Ont., Feb. 26 — (CP) — An accident on a highway just north of here looked like a perfect set-up for a disaster last night — but nothing happened. A moving van knocked a big gasoline truck into the ditch and 150 gallons of gasoline was spread over the road. No fire started and no one was injured.

Pruden, Vejar Said in Shape

New York, Feb. 26 (CP)— Both Fitzie Pruden of St. Catharines, Ont., and Chico Vejar, who meet in Friday's main bout at Madison Square Garden, were given certificates of physical fitness yesterday at the offices of the New York State Boxing Commission.

There was some feeling in boxing circles that the 4 to 1 odds on Vejar, New York University dramatic arts student, were out of line.

Last time Pruden appeared in the Garden he was a decided underdog to Tony Janiro but confounded the odds-makers by whipping the favorite.

Pruden feels that the fates have finally gained him the right opponent for the break every fighter looks for.

"This it is," said Pruden. "If I can't beat this kid, I have no right looking for any more rainbows. Who is Vejar and whom did he beat? Sure, he's got a lot of wins and a lot of knockouts but he never met Fitzie Pruden before."

"I've had a lot of bad luck in my boxing career but this is definitely a change. I came in as a last-minute substitute against Tony Janiro and everybody thought Janiro would wipe the canvas with me. I did pretty good. But then I had to pick on Ike Williams, Kid Gavilan, Don Williams and Ross Virgo as opponents. Every fight was close and some I thought I won but they went against me. I'm not letting this get away. They think Vejar is a big shot in boxing. Well, if I lick the big shot, that makes me one. I'll lick him."

Pruden has one of the best left jabs in boxing, can punch and takes a punch well. He may have a bit too much ring savy for Vejar's whirlwind offensive.

As a kid himself, in 1949, he almost toppled Billy Graham. He was good enough to beat Beau Jack and every fight he's been in, win or lose, has been close and exciting. He is also no longer hampered by cuts which have cost him quite a few fights against top-notchers. This is his chance and he means to take it.

Wins Motorbike Title Third Time

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 26—(AP)— Dick Klamfoth yesterday became the first rider ever to win Daytona Beach's coveted 200-mile national motorcycle championship three times.

The Groveport, O., farm boy rode a British Norton to victory again, repeating his 1949 and 1951 wins.

Klamfoth negotiated the 48 laps around the 4.1-mile beach road course at 87.77 miles an hour. It was slower than his record last year of 92.81.

Nortons have captured the Daytona 200 four consecutive years.

Glen Roys Even Playoff Series With Trenton

Trenton (Special) — In a game climaxed by a swingfest between Leavey and York, Belleville Glen Roys tied up the semi-final series here last night by drubbing Gould's Jewellers 11-4. The third game for the southern division honors of the Trent Valley League will be played in the Memorial Arena in Belleville Wednesday night.

In reversing Saturday night's defeat the Glen Roys featured a tighter defensive game and greater scoring punch. Plumley was hurt in the first period but continued to star despite the injury.

Except for the first half of the second frame the Jewellers looked belabored and decidedly off color. And when Williams and Cousins scored while the Gould squad were shorthanded their goals set off a spree that ran over into the last period and resulted in the onesided count.

B. Mulvihill with three goals and an assist paced the scoring for the Roys while teammate Tim Williams with a pair and a helper followed close behind. Bill Hurst equalled Williams' feat.

Beale, Scott, Watson and B. Johnson netted Trenton's total.

The teams:—

Belleville — goal, Plumley; defence, Hurst, York; centre, Cousins; wings, Loveless, Mulvihill; alternates, L. Goyer, Williams, Hatfield, Meagher, F. Mulvihill, Maracle, Bone, Adams; Trenton — goal, Hill; defence, Campney, Schmidt; centre, Bob Johnson; wings, Watson, Barr; alternates, Beale, Leavey, Jones, Carswell, Filion, McDonald, Scott.

Officials: Don Barrett, Rossmore and Phil Scarrow, Trenton RCAF.

ASKED TO TAKE CUT

Toronto, Feb. 26 — (CP)—Pay cuts, not increases, were suggested last night by the Board of Education of suburban York township. The board decided to ask secondary school teachers to a meeting to discuss a reduction in salaries. The present contract calls for a minimum of $2,600 for non-specialists, $2,800 for specialists and a maximum of $5,800.

Trustee Arnold Cross said the small home owner "can't stand it any more and is going to lose his home if the tax rate keeps climbing."

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Selecting by vote the one considere rightly or wrongly, as the outstanding at lete of the year, male and female, is comparatively easy chore, for the reason th your memory isn't overtaxed in making th selection. It isn't very difficult to look ov your shoulder, 12 months back, and name the stand-outs; be cause they're still fresh in your memory.

But suppose you get involved in one of those pointless a guments, pointless because unproveable, about who was th greatest in any one sport over the years, not the year, and the your headaches begin. For instance:

Who is Mister Baseball?
Or Mister Boxing . . . or Football . . . or even Mister (Mrs.) Racing?

What name comes to mind first when the talk turns to the sports — the all-time hero through the years?

No man or group has ever given the answer, but the argu ments make the best fuel when the hot stove league opens u the damper.

The greatest names of sport are not always the finest pe formers. They do, however, combine ability with the mo valuable asset — color.

Babe Ruth not only hit more home runs than any oth man, but every move he made was news. Even to his famou stomach-ache. The Bambino was probably the most colorf figure ever to hit baseball. Many declare Joe DiMaggio greater player, and of course there are legions who insist th Ty Cobb, with his breath-taking speed on the bases, his dead hitting, and his daring, was in a class by himself. And oozed color, too. To which the Ruthians retort that the Ba was a great pitcher, a catcher, a first-rate outfielder and t greatest home-run hitter of all.

Was Jack Dempsey the top figure in boxing's histor Veteran ring fans insist Jim Jeffries was a better heavywei champ, Fitzsimmons a harder hitter, Jim Corbett more skilf and undoubtedly that hero of the eighties, the mighty John Sullivan was more boisterous. Yet no one has approached t gates Dempsey attracted and few have matched the slashi fury of the colorful Mauler in the Willard and Firpo figh Who gets the nod in boxing?

Since the dawn of football, the fans have fought over th favorites. They bring up Jim Thorpe, the Carlisle Indi whose plunging and kicking are legendary. Jim has ma virtually every all-star eleven listed. But they can't for Red Grange, the Galloping Ghost. And in Canada they that Lionel Conacher was probably the equal of either, a far greater all-round athlete than Grange.

Racing has its immortals in Citation, Exterminator and S Biscuit. Yet most racing fans in America start and finish w one name — Man o' War. The jockey heroes will be T Sloan, Earl Sande and right on down to Johnny Longdon Eddie Arcaro.

Track and field has produced many great names — Olym and world champions. Who comes first? Is it Charlie P dock, the "world's fastest human", or Paavo Nurmi, the scrutable Finn, or fleet Jesse Owens, the scourge of the N in the '36 Olympics? Or Clarence DeMar, seven times win of the gruelling Boston marathon?

What of golf? Is it Bobby Jones, the only man ever win the "Grand Slam", or Walter Hagen or today's Ben Ho Tennis and Bill Tilden, wrestling and Frank Gotch or (Strangler) Lewis.

You wanna headache? Pick 'em yourself!

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

ollywood, Feb. 26—(AP)— e dancing Champions—Marge Gower—offer this advice to p stop the rising divorce rate: bands should take their wives out dancing more often.

The couple have certainly made dancing pay dividends. They think that foxtrotes and waltzes can prove profitable for any wedded pair.

"Why should romance stop after marriage?" argued Marge. "A boy and a girl dance their feet off when they're courting. As soon as they step before the preacher they give up dancing entirely. It never occurs to them that dancing could be just as much fun after they're married."

"The most romantic thing a couple can do is dance," Gower countered. "There's no other way they can get so close."

Dubs Can Learn

What if the husband's foxtrot is the kind that might be considered grounds for divorce?

"There are plenty of dance schools that could cure that," Gower replied.

Although they spend a good many of their workday hours dancing, the Champions still like to flit around the dance floor when they go out at night.

"I enjoy nothing more," said Marge.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxpert talks out of both sides of his mouth at the same time. One side is moaning that he is off two aces in the slam he has bid. While the other side scoffs at ace-showing conventions.

A player was giving me a song and dance about the pitfalls in my ace-and-kings showing convention. To describe how partner threw him down with it he showed me this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠A	♠K Q 8
♥K 9 8 7 3	♥Q J 5
♦10	♦K 8 7 6 4
♣A K Q J 10 6	♣9 3

It seems their bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
2 C	Dbl	2 D	Pass
2 H	Pass	3 H	Pass
6 C	Dbl	6 H	Pass
Pass	Dbl	All pass

Opponents took their two red aces and the slam was a wreck in a jiffy. South put up the beef that the north responses were too encouraging for a hand without an ace.

It goes to show you how hard a player may try to put the blame on his partner. Especially the type of player who is too stubborn to employ the efficient signals available for safeguards.

In answer to an opening bid of two in a suit, north sure did have the stuff for encouraging replies. If south has aces enough the north hand might even be enough for a grand slam.

South had plenty of time to find out if the north encouraging replies included any aces. He could have bid four no-trump to find out. Five clubs in response would have told him no aces.

All this south could have done before going to six. Learning that two aces were in the hands of opponents, south could have bid five hearts and made himself and partner happy.

Those who cry will sometimes try to blame it on the other guy.

End of Trail for Most-Sought-After U.S. Bank Robber

Willie "The Actor" Sutton, one of the 10 most wanted criminals in the U.S., is shown in custody of policemen and a detective after his arrest in Brooklyn, N.Y. A long-time fugitive from a Philadelphia prison which he broke out of on Feb. 10, 1047, Sutton was picked up by two detectives who recognized him on the street and positively identified as the leader of three bandits who strolled into a branch of the Manufacturers Trust Company in New York on March 9, 1950, and exited with $63,942. The most sought-after bank robber in the country, Sutton, whose exploits and disguises have become criminal legend, also has been mentioned by police in many other recent big jobs — including the $1,500,000 robbery of Brink's, Inc., Boston armored car service, in 1950. — Central Press Canadian.

Mixed Commercial Bowling League

Short Circuits and Sun Rays were seven point winners in the Mixed Commercial League at the Bowl-O-Drome last night. They defeated Egg Heads and Whiz Bangs respectively. Five point winners were: Jets, Bombers, Live Wires and Hy Rollers from Marketeers, Smasheroos, Power Pins and High Liners. KVA's took the odd point decision over Symons 4 to 3.

Scores were: Short Circuits 3419, Egg Heads 2657, Symons 3317, KVA's 3274, Sun Rays 3025, Whiz Bangs 2675; Jets 2896, Marketeers 2570, Bombers 2840, Smasheroos 2576, Live Wires 2650, Power Pins 1803, Hy Rollers 2579, High Liners 2457.

Vince Sagriff led the men with 836, followed by Jack Fitzgerald 764, Russ Jones 763, Ken Peoples 748, Maurice Reid 739, Art Whalen 729, Russ Vandervoort 670, Fred Clarke and Bill Shaw 654 each.

High for the ladies was Margaret Fairbairn 744, Marie Bell 690, Lela Nelson 687 and Barbara Young 654.

Pickering Takes Midget Playoffs

Bancroft—Pickering Midgets waltzed through a 12-1 win over Coe Hill Apsley Combines in a midget "D" playoff game in Bancroft Arena Saturday night. The win gave Pickering the round by a total of 25 to 2.

Fielding one of the best teams to be seen in town in recent years, the Ontario midget "D" champions of 1950-51 had a heavy, fast-skating, smooth passing, cool-headed outfit that outclassed their lighter and younger opposition.

However, the Coe Hill-Apsley team, handled by Ken Foreacre and Bill Houle, played a game that gave the few fans their money's worth. In their team are many youngsters who are still bantam age and practically every player has still two years or more of midget hockey. It was a well-coached aggregation that looked better than the score showed.

Tucker scored the only goal for the Combines while McKee 4, Rommer 3, Pearson 2, Rudat, Comport and Beamer scored for Pickering.

Lineups:

Pickering—Goal, Barnett; defence, Dawson and Shortreed; centre, McKee; wings, Comport and Beamer; alts, Pearson, Remmer, Barkey, Moffatt, Found, Rudat, Pyette; coach, Bye; manager, Kech.

Coe Hill-Apsley Combines — Goal, Landon; defence, G. Crosby and Martin; centre, Landon; wings, M. Crosby and G. Crosby; alts. W. Tucker, McCormack, Rollins, G. Crosby, Whitmore, Lennon, Everett; manager, Foreacre, coach, Houle.

Referee—John Falaise of Pickering.

May be Returned

Ottawa, Feb. 26 (CP)—An official said Mon., the government has not been able to find a use for a mansion at Niagara Falls, given it a few years ago by the widow of Sir Harry Oakes, millionaire mining man.

He said the government has been discussing with Lady Oakes the question of returning the estate to her, but the matter has not been decided finally.

The $20,000 "Oak Hall" and 10 acres of land were donated by Lady Oakes with a view to development as a cultural centre. The official said it had not been possible to work out an appropriate project at a reasonable cost.

The island of Zanzibar, as the seat of Arab power, dominated the trade of East Africa until recent years.

AT THE McCARTHY — The low-down on a come-on girl is found in Columbia's "Pick-up", now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Beverly Michaels and Allan Nixon star with Hugo Haas and Howland Chamberlain in a drama of a man who went too far — he married the girl! Second feature is "Chain of Circumstance," with Richard Grayson and Margaret Field.

AT THE BELLE — Tyrone Power and Ann Blyth are the love interest in 20th. Century-Fox's Technicolor romantic drama, "I'll Never Forget You," showing at the Belle Theatre today and Wednesday with a special Technicolor featurette, "Paris, City of Fashion," introducing new styles from the Old World.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, February 27

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Progressive day, returning good for good, advantages for right effort. Clever management enhances. Avoid changes not purposeful or because of restlessness. Extra care handling machinery, tools.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Encouraging for your special interests, gaining more knowledge of your occupation, improving your talents and smart management. Day cautions against recklessness. Be happy.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Excellent Mercury and Venus rays augur for success in your particular work, in journalism, advertising, most written matters and other brain work. Sensible care and tact advised, too.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Your Moon neither stimulating nor hindering in tendency but with other planets very auspicious it is up to you to gain in any worthy endeavors, and especially in familiar matters.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Should be profitable period with your Sun and Venus, plus Mercury friendly. These sponsor intelligent activities, artistic, scientific professions, all things requiring some mental work.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Have no qualms about advancing in what you try. Inspiring day. There's an admonition handling dangerous tools, machinery, driving vehicles.: More care! Mental keenness, writings aided.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Encouraging, helpful planet configurations. Among top sponsored: Lawyers, judges, teachers, scientists; research in medicine, chemistry, electricity, etc. Can be happy day, too.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Saturn, Uranus warn against needlessly changing methods or plans working satisfactorily. On other hand, keep up real improvement, bettering things. Constructive action, sound matters first.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Fine Jupiter aspect now spells new achievement for you who strive to earn it. Finances, business, trades, domesticity, social services and the purely mental under fine rays.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Some restraint and curbing restlessness or hapless changes and you should round out a fine day. Your occupation will yield better returns. Sound investments, expansion favored.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius) — Uranus position here stresses accuracy, good timing, especially in urgent duties. Recheck for flaws. You should have a very good day, things being generally normal.

February 21 to March 20—Pisces—Forethought, care stressed in matters pertaining to liquids, the sea, and exacting confidential nature. Day on whole favors all worth while interests and activity.

YOU BORN TODAY are idealistic, imaginative, kindly, industrious, and usually more talented than you realize. But you may be too shy at times, may fear to try the unusual or daring. At times we must venture if we wish to advance as our talents and ability deserve. Don't worry if all your tries don't materialize as you wish. Keep striving, have faith and pray for that which is best for you and yours. Associate with enterprising, honorable people. [illegible] reach top.

Retail Price Wars Still On In U.S., AP Survey Shows

By WALTER BREEDE, JR.

New York, Feb. 26—(AP)—Are retail price wars flaring up again in the United States?

"Yes," many independent merchants report. "Cut-throat price cutting threatens to drive us out of business."

"Nonsense," scoff other retail experts. "Current pricing policies are following the usual February pattern."

An Associated Press survey of retail price competition in 24 U.S. cities gives this general picture of conditions, six months after the bitter price battles of last summer:

Price wars still are going on in several major retail centres. But they're being fought in a different way. It's an unofficial undercover style of warfare, concealed from the buying public but no less real and deadly than the noisy fracas of six months ago.

Why the continued price wars? Small retailers unanimously pin the blame on the U.S. supreme court's decision last spring which pulled the props from fair trade laws in 45 states. The court's action paved the way for price cutting of nationally - advertised brands.

Faced with heavy inventories and lagging consumer demand, many stores are reported still using marked-down branded merchandise as "bait" to attract store traffic. That's the complaint from the small independent merchants. Big stores defend the policy as one which results in lower prices to the consumer.

New Gimmicks

But even where price competition is violent, as in New York, you no longer find it proclaimed in fat black type in newspaper advertisements. Instead, merchants are resorting to the "unadvertised special," with reductions on branded products that may range from 10 to 50 per cent below the manufacturer's list price. The price is lowered from day to day, quietly and without fanfare. How much it is lowered generally depends on what the competitor across the street is doing.

Then there are the fat trade-in allowances paid by some dealers. And the dealers who later give the customer back the old range or refrigerator he traded in.

In many cities discount houses do a thriving business in nationally-advertised refrigerators, rugs, toasters and television sets at substantial reductions from manufacturers' list prices.

A top merchandising executive of one of New York's biggest department stores confirms that unofficial competitive price-cutting is in full swing, particularly in the Herald Square area where Macy's and Gimbels slugged it out last summer. But the New York merchandising moguls—remembering what happened in the summer— would prefer to avoid another open war, he says.

Featured in New York's "unofficial" price war at present are small electrical appliances, long-playing phonograph records, sewing machines, cosmetics, drugs and books.

Items like refrigerators and television sets are being sold at substantial discounts in hastily-rented lofts and warehouses by dealers who have sprung up overnight.

Battle of Pipes Ends Without Shot Being Fired

With the U. S. 2nd Division, Korea, Feb. 25—(Reuters)—The battle of the bagpipes, which threatened to turn ally against ally in dreadful combat along the Korean united front, ended yesterday before the first shot was fired.

"We will take immediate action," said a 2nd Division officer when told that Britain's King's Own Scottish Borderers had taken vociferous objection to sharing their exclusive Royal Stewart tartan with the Americans.

"It was all a mistake anyway. We didn't know anything about Royal Stewarts. I personally thought it was a McDougall."

The opposition from the kilted Borderers reached its climax when they learned that the Second Division's new bagpipe band had ordered kilts of the Royal Stewart plaid.

"We just wrote to Glasgow, Scotland, and asked for 10 sets of bagpipes. Then we wrote ,and asked for kilts to match the plaid of the pipes. I'm inclined to suspect a communist at work in the bagpipe factory," said Lt.-Col. William Kernan.

"We don't know much about these things in America. Say, where do you think we would get some literature about this tartan business? We don't want any more international incidents."

Handouts for Koreans

Winter is a hungry time in war-torn Korea. Children, pregnant women and the sick line up for their daily milk ration — one bowlful of hot, powdered milk served at mid-day. Only about 100 in a camp of 1,200 refugees at Namyang, near the Yellow Sea, qualify for this ration. — (CP from National Defence.)

Korean Economy Out of Kilter, Hits Civilians Says Bill Boss

(Editor's Note: This article is one of a series dealing with winter conditions among civilians in war-torn Korea. It is based on a two-week survey by Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer with the Canadian forces.)

By BILL BOSS

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Seoul, Korea, Feb. 26 (CP)—The "land of the morning calm," as Koreans call their country, is driving economists crazy.

For years they've been taught that plentiful commodities for which there is small demand sell cheaply.

Not this year in Korea.

Rice is the staple food and a standard medium of exchange in this country. The 1951 crop was 75 per cent of normal despite the war. The markets are fat with it. The people aren't buying: one-third are on relief and the rest can buy only one-third of what they need.

But the price of rice is soaring. During the last two months it has gone up 20 per cent. It costs more than five times as much as last spring.

And then there's cotton. When a commodity is scarce and in great demand, prices usually go up. Now cotton is expensive in Korea but by no means as expensive as it should be by Korean standards.

Korean economists say their economy is stable when one large mal (20 litres) of rice costs as much as one pil (40 yards) of cotton. Right now rice is seven times more expensive, though no raw cotton is being imported for civilian use and almost all weaving capacity is being used for army uniforms.

Three Factors

Simply, the topsyturvydom is caused by three main factors:

1. Failure of the republic of Korea to mobilize and control its economy, to gear itself economically for war.

2. The United Nations policy of scaling relief to what it considers the "budgetary capacity" of the Korean government.

3. The Korean republic's trading on the conscience of the United Nations and trying to avoid civilian unrest by making the refugee problem a U.N. worry.

Shoes are an instance. Koreans prefer their own type made of rubber and shaped something like an Indian canoe.

Shoe factories were restored, the U.N. civilian assistance command imported 3,000 tons of raw rubber and turned over almost as much reclaimed rubber to the industry. Now shoes are on the market by the hundreds of thousands.

Get Western Boots

But refugees are issued the much-more-expensive western army boot or ill-fitting, donated cast-off footwear. Why? Because:

1. The government will not buy the shoes for the refugees.

2. C.A.C. doesn't insist that the government buy the shoes because they aren't "within its budgetary capacity" and also lest government purchases in a free market cause inflation.

3. C.A.C. won't buy them either, because of the same inflation argument.

On the other hand, reverting to rice, C.A.C. says it isn't particularly keen to see a rice - rationing system. Officials say privately that the government hasn't storage and distribution facilities for implementing a controlled program, and enforcing one would mean strengthening a police force already undesirably strong by democratic standards.

Amid all this, with poor civilians and refugees suffering from both sides' "hands off" policies, republic of Korea government employees and the Korean armed services are living better than ever before.

They get their rice cheaply from government warehouses. They are allowed to buy, at special prices, the textiles left over from government orders.

C.A.C. economists say such privileged citizens are eating at least twice as much as in normal times, though the government says that's not true. But the ordinary civilian is having a thin time this winter.

Laval Carnival Beauty Queens

While Prime Minister St. Laurent was receiving honors as one of Laval University's outstanding graduates, his granddaughter, Louise Samson of Montreal, right, was being honored in a different manner. She was selected runner-up as queen of the Laval sports festival. Left is Louise Galipeau, queen of the carnival. — Central Press Canadian.

Strike Settled

Toronto, Feb. 26—(CP)—Fifteen Toronto printing firms have reached an agreement with the striking A.F.L. Bookbinders Union and will go back to work today.

The strike of the 1,500 bindery workers was originally called to enforce demands for parity between men and women in the trade on cost-of-living provisions in a proposed agreement.

The agreement provides an hourly increase of 27½ cents for men and 20½ cents for women and a union shop. This will boost pay rates to $1.95 and $1.10 respectively. The union had earlier agreed to settle for 23½ cents for men and 12½ cents for women.

AWAITS INSTRUCTION

Port Stanley, Ont., Feb. 25 — (CP) — Fire Chief Blake Berry will begin a campaign to enforce fire safety regulations in cottages used as year-round residences here. He said he had reported the high incidence of hazards to the Ontario Fire Marshal's office and was awaiting instructions for the enforcement of safety regulations.

POSTPONES DECISION

Oakville, Feb. 26 — (CP) Council last night postponed a decision on the purchase of a water monitor, a device to test the radio-activity of water in the event of an atomic attack. A civil defence authority said any attack on Toronto or area would include an underwater burst to contaminate the water supply.

Germans Fear Rearming Likely To Hurt Exports

By JACK HENRY

Duesseldorf, Germany, Feb. 25 — — (Reuters) — German industrialists who helped to build Hitler's war machine now are reluctant to back post-war rearmament because it will harm their exports.

Rearmament in western countries, particularly Britain and the United States helped West Germany to expand her export markets in 1951, a record post - war year for German foreign trade.

The Association of plastic manufacturers admitted that West Germany tripled her plastic exports in 1951 partly because rearmament in the United States and Britain caused a reduction in their exports.

Economic authorities say the rearmament programs also benefited German exports of electrical goods and appliances, some kinds of machinery, fine mechanics, optics and precision tools.

Business Thrives

Machinery exports, for instance, reached a record $560,000,000 last year, or almost twice as much as in 1950. Total production in 1951 also set a post-war record.

Exports of electro-technical goods, in which Germany was the leading country before the war, doubled in 1951 compared with 1950 and brought West Germany to third place among world exports, behind the U. S. and Britain but ahead of France.

The longer rearmament is deferred in West Germany while Britain and the U. S. devote more and more of their resources to it, the better chances German exporters have of strengthening their position abroad.

Boom End Feared

German industrialists generally regard the rearmament drive as a short to medium-term affair. They fear that armament export orders, as distinct from exports of civilian goods, might leave them with idle production plants when the rearmament boom ends.

Rearmament would not hit West Germany's export markets hard if she could get additional raw material allocations, mainly wool, cotton and non-ferrous metals. But, economists say, if more countries go in for rearmament, available raw material supplies will have to be even more tightly distributed.

West Germany at present is carrying out minor foreign rearmament orders, mainly for Britain.

Half a Ship is Better Than None

Leaving the stern of the tanker Mercer, after it broke in two off the coast of Massachusetts, was a hazardous operation for the crew. Thirteen of them elected to stay on the remains of the ship and were taken in tow to Boston. They will collect salvage money. —Central Press Canadian.

STUDENTS GUIDE GUESTS

Kingston, Feb. 26 (CP) — Queen's University threw off academic aloofness Saturday as students became instructors and hosts to more than 4,000 visitors from Kingston and Southern Ontario who toured the university in the third annual "open house." Aimed at interesting prospective students and acquainting parents and friends of current students with university activity, students in arts, science and medicine displayed the academic and social range of campus life.

WOLF KILLED

Lindsay, Feb. 25 — (CP) — Howard Degeer trapped a wolf on his farm nine miles south of here last week. He tracked the animal down and succeeded in killing it with a cedar fence rail.

Possible Raise In Hydro Rates Is Forecast

Toronto, Feb. 26— (CP) — A possible increase in hydro-electric power rates was disgused yesterday by the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association and the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities at their annual conventions here.

Ross Strike, second vice-chairman of the hydro-electric power commission, told the O.M.E.A. that the St. Lawrence seaway would produce the cheapest power that Ontario could generate even if the United States did not take part in it. U.S. participation would reduce the cost of power, he said.

D. P. Cliff of Dundas, president of the O.M.E.A., said the power commission is selling power at lower rates than in the 1930's and demand is increasing. Generating capacity now was being taxed to its utmost to meet demand and pay operating costs without increased rates.

Hydro should have a 10-per-cent reserve of generating capacity to meet a possible dry year, he said. The logical source of new energy was the St. Lawrence project.

There would inevitably be an increase in hydro rates and they might well be put up in the near future to provide a reserve for plant expansion.

SEED THE BEST

Toronto, Feb. 25 — (CP) — The crops branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has urged farmers to "seed only the best and feed the rest" if they are going to produce the 250,000,000 bushel grain crop that is the province's 1952 objective. They are asking farmers to check their grain supplies now.

PASSENGERS ESCAPE

Inglewood, Ont., Feb. 26— (CP) — An automobile driven by Herbert Smith of Terra Cotta yesterday rammed into the side of a freight train. The front end of the car was ripped off but Smith and his two passengers escaped injury.

More Precious Than Rubies

By Nina Wilcox Putnam

The old man insisted that Alma come out with him for a good lunch. Finding Joe absent from their table was like a reprieve, but his vacant chair was an eloquent reminder of him.

Everyone else, excepting of course Tommy, was in his usual place and this time no secret was made of the excitement everyone was under. There had been another theft. Alma had never dreamed that White Marie could lose her composure to such an extent. The older woman's cheeks were flushed, her eyes snapping with indignation.

"This time Mr. Muncle will have to do something more than just sit back and let justice lag along!" she was exclaiming. "When my department is robbed, it is too much! Something must be done about my honor—even if there is publicity. the police must be told. They must be told if every newspaper in the country prints the story!"

Mr. Smith of Silverware broke in. "But where were they taken from? Your department, or repairs?"

"What does that matter, since they are practically in one?"

It was true, Alma Conroy thought White Marie's department, where gems were appraised and the storage room for repairs adjoined and both opened off the same little corridor into which there was no approach except through the reception counter door.

In both rooms row upon row of cabinets containing shallow partitioned drawers stood elevated upon a short round of steps caused by a slight difference in the street level, and it would take an agile thief indeed to reach these cabinets and make a getaway, the more especially so as the two departments often worked together and an intruder would have been sure to encounter White Marie, Mrs. Denton, or one of two trusted secretaries.

What on earth had happened, Alma wondered? White Marie was soon pouring out the story to Old Victor Blanchard.

It seemed that some few days ago, a woman, a rather ordinary looking housewife, had brought in an old fashioned brooch to be repaired. She had said it had been her mother's.

"I looked at it once only," said Marie, "when I knew that the design was familiar. The stones were not important, but I knew the piece itself had some value—some peculiar value, which I could not remember right away. So I asked this woman very sharply if she is sure this was her mother's brooch? She blushed and said well no, it was not. She had seen the brooch in a pawn shop and bought it for 50. And now her husband was angry and said she had thrown the money away. She had brought the pin in, really, hoping to find out that her husband was wrong."

"And he was wrong, White Marie?" Old Victor was eager and interested, as though he anticipated something clear to him through his long intimacy with her.

"Yes, my Victor," said Marie Leshinka. "For when I looked at the back of the pin through my strong lens I saw the engraving we have been watching for now these many years."

"To Victoria from Albert," said old Victor.

She nodded and a sort of gusty sigh blew around the table. Even Alma, a comparative newcomer, knew about the brooch which had never been recovered after the theft of the Queen Victoria jewels from the British Museum, and of the standing offer of a $25,000 reward which the British government had posted with every reliable jeweler for its return.

The brooch, which completed a gift set, had at last found its way heaven only knew by what devious journeyings into the hands of a Bronx housewife, and thence to Trumbull's. It was an event of the first importance in the world of jewelry.

After a short silence White Marie lifted her bowed head. "And now the brooch is gone—stolen! I told the woman to come back today and I would let her know what her find was worth. Meanwhile, of course, I had the woman investigated and cabled to London for details and a confirmation."

"And the woman—is it that she is not a real Bronx?" Old Victor's shaggy eyebrows puckered rather comically with the earnestness of his question.

"The woman is all right. Exactly as represented. And entitled to the $25,000. But the brooch is gone."

"Was anything broken open — in the office, I mean?" Alma asked.

"Nothing."

"What does Mrs. Denton say? Isn't she awfully distressed?"

"Of course. But she says the brooch was there just before she left at closing time. She saw the department locked up. And she talked to you, Alma, very late, just before she went home. Is that not so?"

"Yes," Alma nodded. "She came up to say goodbye and she was as usual—calmly sweet and sour! Will she go on her holidays now?"

"I think so. Why not? She came in to work for half a day, and she's coming back tomorrow morning. She's very upset of course. Like the rest of us, she's been watching for that pin for years."

"Madame Leshinka, you're right. said Alma. "This time something really drastic must be done to get back that trinket—we don't want the British government down around our ears!"

Alma was echoing the sense of solidarity which the others felt too; Trumbull's problems were always preeminently their personal problems.

"And meanwhile, whoever has got hold of the pin is in line to collect $25,000," said Mr. Smith from Silverware, not without a wistful touch of envy. "That's a lot of money—a lot of money!"

There was no sign of Tommy, no word from him when Alma got home that night. Again the place had that empty lost look which rooms seem to acquire when the man of the house is gone. It was made even more lonely by the abscence of Joe Denton's usual solicitous telephone call. They had had so many gay and happy evenings together— the three of them! And now all that was gone!

Alma Conroy was very tired and she slipped willingly into sleep. Hours later, she awoke with a start. Tommy had come home, very drunk this time. She could hear him stumbling around in the darkness. She snapped on the light and found him sprawled on the living room sofa.

"Tommy! Where have you been? What have you been up to?"

But Tommy was too far gone to recognize his wife or to know what he was saying.

"Wash'll you have, everybody?" he shouted. "This round's on me! Ever'body in the whole doggoned bar! Washall it be, folksh?"

"Oh, Tommy, you beast!" she cried despairingly. "Come to bed! For heaven's sake come to bed and sleep it off!"

But Tommy couldn't make it unaided. As Alma undressed him he muttered and shouted alternately, and it was evident from his broken talk that he had done what he always did when he had money in his pocket: been in some bar buying drinks for the crowd and building up his ego by playing the big shot.

Finally she managed to roll him into bed, where he passed out immediately. Alma, trembling from her efforts, picked up his clothing. She hung his coat on a chair and had begun to fold his trousers when she noticed the bulkiness of one pocket. Although it was not her practice, she slipped her hand inside and drew out an incredibly large roll of bills.

The second pocket yielded another, this time less bulky but in larger denominations. She was by now too shaky to count them, but even her cursory examination told her that Tommy had been carrying at least $10,000! What did it mean?

Feeling sick with worry and fatigue she thrust the money back where she had found it, handling it gingerly as though it were soiled. For the moment she could not, think about that money— about what it might represent, why it was there. But the explanation had better be a good one, she decided grimly. Then suddenly she felt very sorry for herself. Hot, stinging tears welled up under her lids as she looked at the unconscious body of her husband. She had a sudden longing to escape but she was worn out and there was no place to go—not at this hour.

Alma was making coffee next morning when Tommy came to painful life. Even before he spoke to her it was plain that his first thought was for the money and she could glimpse him stumbling to his feet, snatching up his clothing and counting the bills with trembling fingers. Then his voice came hoarsely.

"Alma! Did you take any money out of my pockets last night?" She came and stood in the doorway, watching him with a curious mixture of despair and pity.

"Yes, I did."

"Thank goodness!" His drawn face relaxed a little.

"But I put it all back, though. Every cent." Tommy blanched.

"No!" he exclaimed. "Don't say that, Alma! You can't have done that. I'm short. Give me that money for heaven's sake and stop fooling!"

"Tommy, I'm telling you the exact truth," she said evenly. "I had put you to bed, and I couldn't help noticing that you had a lot of cash on you. But I didn't keep any of it. On my word of honor!" He sat down suddenly on the edge of the bed, staring at her with horror-stricken eyes.

"Then I'm more than $300 short!" he said miserably. "Alma that money isn't mine. I was trusted with it. Good heavens! What do you suppose I have done?"

"Can't you remember?"

"I went several places. I had some cash of my own—about $50, and I was drinking. There was a good crowd in one spot and I bought them a few rounds. Then a fellow tipped a doorman $5. I wanted to show off so I did the same—only I must have given the doorman a fifty or maybe more, because there was quite a sensation over it."

"Where was this? Perhaps you can get the tip back."

"I can't remember where it was. But I know I grabbed a supper check for a pretty big crowd, somewhere along the line. People I never saw before, confound it!"

"Whom does this money belong to Tommy?"

"It's in connection with this confidential job at The House, Alma. I may have to turn it over by six o'clock tonight. What am I going to do? Oh help me, Jewels, help me!"

The expression on his face was different from anything Alma had ever seen there before—a genuine remorse melded with a clear realization of what he had done. He pulled himself together and spoke quietly and with unusual directness.

"I've been a complete fool!" he said. "And I've never been so frightened in my life as I am right now. Not because of what the results of this may be, but because I see that I bought the situation. For the sake of a few drinks. What an idiot! If I can pull out of this one I'll never take a drink again, so help me!"

"Tommy, you've said that before," Alma reminded him quietly.

Weather Stops Aerial Strikes Against Reds

Seoul, Korea, Feb. 26—(CP)—Allied airmen today sat out the slowed-down Korean war. The weather stopped aerial strikes against the reds for the first time since Christmas.

Only weather reconnaissance planes took off. They looked for holes in the snowy overcast hanging above the Korean hills. Fifth Air Force pilots flew only 14 sorties today—lowest number in two months.

Weather stymied all Fifth Air Force night fighters Monday night. Only 217 sorties — about one-third of the usual number—were flown in daylight Monday. The planes cut communist rail lines in 15 spots and destroyed 27 supply buildings and 190 vehicles. Two days earlier, 772 sorties blasted red rails in 143 places.

Ground action was almost at a standstill Monday. Eighth Army headquarters reported a few light patrol actions and some artillery fire.

Allied mortars broke up a Chinese communist attack on a patrol east of the Pukhan River on the central front in Monday night's biggest scrap.

Allied artillery hit scattered enemy groups Monday, inflicting 65 casualties.

Strike-Bound

With all bus, street car and cablecar lines idle as a result of a strike, San Francisco's Market St. took on this confused appearance after the public was forced to come to work in private autos. Police rescinded all parking regulations and autos were allowed to be parked on the now-useless trolley tracks in the middle of the street, in an effort to find parking space for the thousands of cars that were driven into the city. — Central Press Canadian.

COST DIME TO CALL

Toronto, Feb. 26 — (CP) — A dime will be needed to operate public telephones in Toronto after March 15. Telephone installers have almost completed the work of converting some 5,800 public telephones in the Toronto area for operation at the new 10-cent rate for local calls.

Supply Minister Wins Confidence Vote in House

London, Feb. 26—(Reuters) — The Conservative government defeated an attempt last night by the Labor opposition to censure Winston Churchill's son-in-law, Supply Minister Duncan Sandys. The vote was 250 to 208.

Socialists accused Sandys of forcing the resignation last week of Steven Hardie, millionaire socialist, from the chairmanship of Britain's state-owned steel industry board.

But Sandys replied that Hardie resigned because he had been outvoted by his colleagues on the board.

The quarrel centred on the raising of the average price of steel by £4 a ton, announced yesterday.

Hardie contended it should have been met by government subsidy to help avoid inflation.

German Immigrant Sought As Carrier Of Cattle Virus

Suspected of Bringing Foot-and-Mouth Disease

Ottawa, Feb. 27—(CP)—The R. C. M. P. appealed to Canadians today to help locate a German immigrant farm worker, suspected of carrying the foot-and-mouth disease into Canada.

The immigrant, identified as Willi Bruntjen, a German who speaks no English and doesn't know he's wanted for examination and questioning, was last located at Port Arthur yesterday.

The R. C. M. P. immediately informed the agriculture department that it had located the man and would bring him to Hull, Que., laboratories for inspection. Then the man disappeared. The R. C. M. P. said it had no details of the disappearance.

"All we know," said the R.C.M.P. "is that he got on a train, probably at Port Arthur or nearby Fort William, yesterday and headed east towards Toronto or Montreal."

Take No Chances

The R.C.M.P. had no idea what train he had taken. But it was taking no chances. A two-province manhunt has been launched with all trains moving eastward from Port Arthur to Montreal being searched.

In addition, railway stations in Manitoba and Ontario are being watched and hotels and rooming houses checked.

Bruntjen, described as a tall, well-built man, between 25 and 30 years of age, apparently does not suspect that he is wanted for questioning. There is no charge against him.

The R.C.M.P. said when last seen, he was wearing a grey topcoat and was hatless. He has dark brown hair.

"We would appreciate the help of Canadians in helping to locate this man," the R.C.M.P. said. "Anyone finding him should get in touch with the nearest detachment of the R.C.M.P."

"We don't believe the man understands that he is wanted for questioning," the R.C.M.P. said.

Worked On Farm

Yesterday, the agriculture department said the man, reported to have worked on a south Saskatchewan farm where the disease first was uncovered, had been located and was being brought to Hull, Que., laboratories for examination and questioning.

"The R.C.M.P. informed us yesterday afternoon that the man had been located and was being brought to the laboratories," a spokesman for the department said today. "Now we've just got the information from the R.C.M.P. that the man still is missing."

Bruntjen worked on the farm of Leonard Waas, four miles north of McLean, Sask., where the first foot-and-mouth infection was reported Nov. 26. The immigrant was employed there from Nov. 18 to 21. He later went to Winnipeg.

The R.C.M.P. does not believe that the disease was brought into Canada with the deliberate plan of infecting Canadian cattle. However, there is the possibility that the virus may have been brought into Canada on the immigrant's clothes, or effects

FATHER STILL ABSENT

San Antonio, Feb. 27 — (AP)— Police are holding a little boy who said he pulled the trigger of a gun that killed his mother. His father handed him the gun, the boy said, and after the shooting told him: "I'll get you a new mother." Officers aren't sure whether it's a real murder mystery or childish fancy. The lad, about 4, was brought to a nursery by his father on Feb. 17. The father hasn't returned.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—Synopsis: Although the past few days temperatures encouraged premature dreams of summer warmth and sunshine, White River's reputation for cold weather remains unmarred by registering 15-below this morning while balmy southern counties had trouble getting below 30 degrees above. These conditions will persist with considerable cloudiness in all regions on Thursday and a few snowflurries in central and northern regions tonight. The cooler air is still expected to stay north of Georgian Bay area although it comes a bit further south each day

Home Conditions Shocking Says Crown Attorney

Ottawa, Feb. 27 — (CP) — A coroner's jury last night ruled that Madeline Robert, three-month-old daughter of Mrs. Emile Robert of suburban Eastview, died Feb. 7 as a result of bronchial pneumonia, undernourishment and lack of care.

The jury recommended that the future care of the remaining five children of the family be supervised by a welfare organization.

Assistant Crown Attorney E. Houston described conditions in the home as "shocking."

Seven members of the Robert family shared one room in a converted house where they lived, slept and ate. A single wood stove in the room failed to provide proper warmth.

The family's living conditions came to light after the baby died in hospital Feb. 7. Dr. Desmond Magner testified that an autopsy showed that the baby's body was covered with sores and rashes, that she was undernourished and suffering from acute bronchial pneumonia.

The 27-year-old mother fainted in the courtroom after testifying as to the circumstances preceding the baby's death.

Massey to Wear Colorful Uniform Of High Office

Ottawa, Feb. 27 — (CP) — Rt Hon. Vincent Massey will wear the colorful uniform of the Governor-General's office when he opens parliament tomorrow.

It will be the first time since 1939, when the late Lord Tweedsmuir then presided at the parliamentary openings as Governor-General, that the uniform has been worn by a holder of the vice-regal office. It has been presented to Mr. Massey by Lady Tweedsmuir.

In the intervening years, the two succeeding Governors-General — the Earl of Athlone and Field Marshal Lord Alexander — were high-ranking military officers and, by custom, wore their service uniforms.

Mr. Massey will not wear the uniform when he is installed in the Senate chamber tomorrow morning. He will don it only for the parliamentary opening at 3 p.m.

It is of dark blue cloth, with silver trimmings on the coatee and a broad strip of silver cloth down the trousers. The cuffs and collar are backgrounded with scarlet cloth and the silver shoulder epaulettes bear the rose, thistle and shamrock of the United Kingdom and the imperial crown.

Mr. Massey will wear Wellington boots with spurs, a silver sword, a cocked hat with white swan plumes and a cloak.

CHURCHILL WINS CONFIDENCE VOTE BY 318 TO 285

His Foreign Policy Accepted by House

London, Feb. 27 —(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill won a House of Commons confidence vote on his foreign policy last night after asserting his pledge of "prompt, resolute and effective" action in Korea only continued policies set last May by the former Labor government.

He disclosed also that the Labor regime of Prime Minister Attlee secretly set up a plant for regular production of atomic bombs and had produced an atom bomb.

Churchill won the confidence vote 318 to 285, a margin of 33 votes. Liberal party backing swelled his nominal Conservative edge of 14 votes.

His revelations on Korean policy and the atom bomb came Churchill said, from cabinet documents which he had no chance to see until his Conservative party ousted the Laborites in last October's general election.

His disclosures brought confusion and anger among Labor members. This may sharpen the division between such moderate leaders as Attlee and Herbert Morrison and the left-wing faction led by Aneurin Bevan

The confidence vote came on a Labor censure motion accusing Churchill of making secret military pledges to President Truman. Labor critics charged these pledges were hinted when Churchill promised in a speech to Congress in Washington last month that Britain would take "prompt, resolute and effective" action if a Korea truce were reached, then broken by the communists.

Denies Secret Agreement

Churchill denied making any secret agreement with Truman. He said Attlee's government reached a secret military understanding with the United States last May to take joint action "outside Korea" if communist planes badly blasted U.N. forces from Chinese bases.

Churchill said Attlee was justified in making such arrangements and added:

"We conformed in principle to the policy of our predecessors and, indeed, in some respects, it might be said that we did not commit ourselves even as far as they had done."

Bevan denounced Churchill for what he called cowardly disclosures of cabinet secrets and demanded, without success, that Churchill produce the actual documents to prove his statements.

The prime minister said he still is convinced the U.N. would make a mistake to start a war with communist China and "few adventures could be less useful or fruitful" than to launch defeated Nationalist leader Chiang Kai-Shek on a new mainland war against the reds.

Accused of Keeping Secret

Furious uproar broke out on the Labor benches at Churchill's disclosure the Labor government established a plant for regular production of atomic bombs and produced the bomb which is to be tested this year.

Churchill accused the Labor party of keeping the secret of the atomic bomb plant with "Machiavellian art" so it could accuse the Conservatives of warmongering during the election campaign.

Attlee denied this. He said he had been ready anytime to talk with Churchill and believed Lord Cherwell—Churchill's scientific adviser who now heads the British atomic program—had been kept fully informed

There had been no official announcement that Britain was producing atomic weapons until 11 days ago, when the government said tests would be made this year at the Woomera desert range in Australia

Beecham Says Movie Mood Music 'Just Noise, Ridiculous, Distracting'

Los Angeles, Feb. 27—(AP)— To the sensitive ear of Sir Thomas Beecham, the crusty British symphony conductor, movie mood music is "just noise—ridiculous and distracting."

"It is even more painful than my sciatica," he told a press conference yesterday.

The 72-year-old baronet, leader of the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of London, is here for two guest performances as conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra.

"Most film music," he said, "has nothing to do with the story. It's just noise, loud, silly . . . We seem to have trouble deciding whether the music is to accompany the picture—or the picture to accompany the music."

Pressed to comment on music and other subjects, Beecham said:

"I'm not going to have you bring a lot of musicians and composers down on my neck. I definitely will not express any opinion on anything American. I will not make more enemies than I already have."

On a previous visit, Beecham declared the United States had "no elements of culture." For this he was denounced by women's groups.

"I will not," he snapped, "incur the wrath of women in my present sciatic condition."

Scaffolds, Forms, Tarpaulins Destroyed in Point Anne Fire; Loss Estimated at $75,000

Loss which could run close to $75,000 resulted at Point Anne Tuesday evening when fire destroyed scaffolding, wooden formwork and tarpaulins surrounding two huge concrete mixing tanks which were under construction.

The fire was discovered about five thirty, half an hour after the day shift had quit work. The flames quickly ate into the wooden framework and were soon out of control, despite efforts of Point Anne fire-fighters and members of the Belleville Fire Department who raced to the scene. Plant and construction workers also assisted.

For a period of half an hour the blaze was a spectacular one as flames leaped high into the air and at the height of the fire could be seen from Belleville. The blaze was also in full view of No. 2 highway a mile to the north.

May Have Damaged Cement

Construction of two 80-foot diameter concrete tanks was commenced early in December with pouring of the 21-foot walls on the last tank being completed only last Thursday. Formwork was still in place on the tanks and it is feared the fresh concrete may be damaged.

However, officials of the Canada Cement Company and of the Carter Construction Company declined to state whether the tanks would be damaged. It would be several days before this could be determined, it was stated.

Over 100 men had been working on the project since early in December, it was stated.

Origin of the fire was not determined but it was reported special lamps used to maintain heat for curing the fresh concrete could have been responsible.

Destroyed in the blaze were thousands of feet of lumber used in formwork for the two large tanks, and also for scaffolding and catwalks. An estimated 200 tarpaulins used to cover the tanks also were destroyed.

A southwest wind blew the flames and sparks away from other buildings in the area but construction materials and buildings used by the construction company were endangered.

The two concrete tanks which were under construction were to be used for holding liquid mixtures used in cement making. One was a "clay" tank and the other a "slurry" tank.

The construction firm was about a month ahead of schedule in building the two tanks and it was believed the time could be made up.

Iron Deposits at Marmora Said 'Important' by Company

New York, Feb. 27. (CP)—Iron deposits at Marmora, in Eastern Ontario, are described as "important reserves" in Bethlehem Steel Corporation's annual report.

E. G. Grace, chairman, says Marmora and Romeral, Chile, were two places where work was started in 1951 on new iron mines.

"It is too early to estimate how much these operations will yield, but they are important reserves," Grace's report declares.

Present plans for the Marmora deposit include tripping of a heavy cap of limestone to expose the underlying ore, most of which will be mined by the open-pit method.

The report also mentions Bethlehem's plans for using Labrador ore.

"We also entered into a contract to take ore from Labrador when that source gets into operation," it says. "We have made considerable progress in concentrating the low-grade ores of the northwest. Experimental shipments have been made, and the results indicate that this will be a worthwhile reserve."

Grace says the company's annual capacity will be expanded to 18,400,000 net tons by the end of 1953. The company produced a record 16,405,677 tons of ingots last year.

Queen in Black Holds First Investiture

London, Feb. 27—(Reuters) — The Queen, dressed simply in a black frock set off by a pearl necklace and diamond brooch, today held the first investiture of her reign in the state ballroom of Buckingham Palace.

She conferred knighthoods and other awards on more than 100 persons.

Following the same ceremony as her father before her, the Queen stood in front of twin gold-and crimson chairs of state. The Duke of Edinburgh stood beside her in naval uniform.

Top decoration presented was a Victoria Cross to Pte. William Speakman of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders. The citation said Speakman, though seriously wounded, led charges against withering machine-gun fire in Korea last November, fighting an overwhelming enemy force to a standstill.

In battle-dress jacket and tartan trousers, the six-foot, six-inch soldiers stepped forward, towering over his Queen.

She pinned the V.C. below his other ribbons, spoke to him for a few minutes and shook his hand.

Fifty-six new knights knelt in turn before the Queen, who dubbed them lightly on shoulder with a state sword.

Other men honored for bravery in Korea, Malaya and other overseas theatres stepped up one by one to receive their awards.

Duncan Sisters Open Another Chapter in Career

Hollywood, Feb. 27—AP—The Duncan sisters, who made and lost millions as "Topsy and Eva," opened another chapter in their fabulous career last night by staging a comeback.

A capacity crowd packed the Saddle and Sirloin Restaurant in nearby San Fernando Valley and cheered the old-timers. After 45 minutes of their comedy and songs, Rosetta (Topsy) and Vivian (Eva) bowed off in tears.

They won't admit their ages—"because if we did people would say we're 12 years older than that." They are in their late 50s, but they performed with the zest of starlets. — Vivian played the piano and Rosetta, always the comedienne in the act, bounced around and kidded with the audience.

The Duncans are resuming their career after a 10-year lapse.

One reason for their return is that their lives soon will be filmed, with Betty Hutton as Rosetta and Ginger Rogers as Vivian.

"We wanted to prove to people that we weren't dead," Rosetta said.

The Duncans' career ranged from the courts of Europe to the bankruptcy courts. Like last night's performance, their first one was in a restaurant —Tait's in San Francisco, in 1916. Gus Edwards discovered them in a Coney Island amateur show and sent them to Broadway success.

The act broke up when Vivian married silent film star Nils Asther and retired to Europe. The Duncan's fortunes faded with the crash of 1929.

Earlier Closing Of Cocktail Bars Asked in Brief

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP) —Earlier closing of cocktail bars and other liquor outlets and a ban on liquor advertising were asked by the Ontario Temperance Federation in a brief presented to Premier Frost today.

The brief also asked that a local option vote be required in all communities of less than 50,000 population before cocktail bars are permitted to open. Those are the terms of the present regulations, but the request was based on an unconfirmed report that the government plans to do away with the requirement for a vote.

BAN RICE EXPORTS

Hong Kong, Feb. 27—(AP)— Thailand, one of the few countries with a rice surplus, has banned all rice exports. Spokesmen said this British Crown colony was not generally alarmed over the ban, which presumably is temporary while Thailand sets up a new system of import-export control.

BATMAN QUOTED AS SAYING 'I HAVE KILLED TWO'

Court Told Lanoie 'Very Stable Person'

Pembroke, Ont., Feb. 27. (CP) —An army captain testified today at the murder trial of Spr. Joe Lanoie that he took an automatic pistol from Lanoie shortly after two soldiers were shot to death last Dec. 31 at Petawawa military camp.

Capt. Fred Bickell said he had taken the gun from the soldier after a man identifying himself as Lanoie called him at 4:35 a.m., and told him over the telephone:

"Come and get me, I just killed two men. . . I have killed two —one upstairs, one downstairs."

The 36-year-old prisoner is charged with murdering Spr. James W. Caufield, 30, of Pine Falls, Man., and Cfn. Clifford E. Johannson, 19, of Saskatoon, Sask. He is on trial for the killing of Caufield.

Capt. Bickell said he drove to the headquarters officers' mess, where he found Lanoie with a gun in his hand and ordered him to throw it down.

He said Lanoie replied: "No, I don't throw down my gun. Come get it. I won't hurt you."

Offered No Resistance

Capt. Bickell said Lanoie offered no resistance as he walked up and took the gun.

He said Lanoie appeared "groggy and stuporous", and was apparently in "the very happy mood you often see with inebriated people."

Capt. Bickell said that he had found no evidence of any struggle, though a bedroom had a deranged appearance as though a drinking party had been in progress.

Eight witnesses testified for the Crown yesterday. Among them was Cpl. W. H. F. King, in charge of the mess, where the bodies of the two men were found.

King said he received a telephone call in his quarters early the morning of the slaying and a voice which he said was Lanoie's told him:

"I have killed your two barmen. Will you come up?"

He said he told Lanoie to "go to bed and don't bother me at this time of the morning." But when the call was repeated two or three minutes later and then the provost corps also called, King dressed and left for the mess.

At the mess, King said, he was greeted by Lanoie with: "It's a good thing you didn't come sooner. I had one for you."

Lieut. B. H. Goss, one of the officers for whom Lanoie worked at Petewawa, told the court Lanoie was "a very stable person" who did an excellent job of his work. He said he had never seen Lanoie drunk on the job.

The gun allegedly used in the shooting was the property of Lieut. Goss, who said he kept it in the drawer of a bedside table in his room. The room was always locked but Lanoie, as his batman, had a duplicate key to the door.

Earlier, Staff-Sergeant W. W. Sutherland, ballistics expert of the R. C. M. P. Rockcliffe crime detection laboratory, said the bullet taken from Caulfield's neck definitely had been fired from the pistol identified as the one taken from Lieut. Goss' room.

Authority on Royalty Declares First English King Was Egbert

London, Feb. 27 — (CP) — An authority on royalty said today he can't understand why Britain dates her kings from William the Conqueror, 1066.

Cyril Hankinson, editor of Debrett's Peerage, said if he had his way the first would be Egbert, king of the English from 802 to 839, or Edward the Elder, son of Alfred the Great and ruler from 901 to 924.

"It's a bit of a mystery why we start from 1066," Hankinson said in an interview. "Before that, of course, there were the seven kingdoms and before that the tribal kings."

He has written to professors of history at several universities and to the Royal Historical Society, but nobody can suggest any better reason than that William was the first "undisputed" king.

Hankinson doesn't accept this because, he says, Egbert obtained allegiance from the other English kings of his day while Edward the Elder was acknowledged King of all England, the other kings being reduced to earls.

As for queens, Hankinson is emphatic that Elizabeth II is the sixth ruling sovereign on the distaff side. He doesn't count Lady Jane Grey — some credit her with reigning nine days — or Boadicea.

Hankinson said he has received letters from Canada suggesting Boadicea should be included but he thinks they're out of line. Boadicea, who goes back to Roman times, was merely queen of the tribe of Iceni with sovereignty over Norfolk, Suffolk and Essex.

U.S. May Ease Embargo on Cattle, Other Products

May Permit Imports Canadian Dressed Poultry

Ottawa, Feb. 27 — (CP)—The Agriculture Department today intimated that the United States embargo on Canadian livestock and other products may be eased.

The embargo was imposed as a result of an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in South Saskatchewan.

A department statement quoted "American authorities" as saying the U. S. foot-and-mouth disease regulations against Canada will be applied "for the present," but that "some changes in these regulations may be made because Canada is well-staffed with experienced veterinarians to carry out control measures."

Officials disclosed previously that they had hoped the American embargo, applied across Canada, may be eased to apply to products from the infected area only.

"Until more is known concerning the extent of the outbreak and other factors," the department said, "no immediate indication can be given as to the duration of the embargo."

The department said it was possible that the U. S. may permit imports of Canadian dressed poultry under regulations made by the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry.

It believed it may also be possible to ship cured and cooked meats into the U.S., under specific U. S. regulations, as well as animal by-products. However, different treatment will be given each of the products before allowed across the border.

Meanwhile, the department said that reports from Regina are that all sick animals in the infected area are being investigated, but so far no new cases of foot-and-mouth diseases have been established.

Establish Disinfection Centre

The departmental report from Regina said that a disinfection centre has been established and all trucks carrying livestock products to the city are being directed through it.

Equipment supplied by the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation program is being used to provide animal burial grounds. The numbers of qualified veterinarians reaching Regina are increasing day by day. U.S. and Canadian animal pathologists are standing by in Regina to give assistance.

In Ottawa, federal officials sought clarification of the action reported to have been taken by British Columbia and Ontario to ban the movement in their provinces of western livestock in order to prevent a possible spread of the disease.

Embargo Details

Seeking clarification of the American embargo, the department said it has received a dispatch from Washington giving these details of the embargo.

1. Shipment into the U.S. of live cattle, sheep and swine and fresh, killed or frozen meat from these animals is prohibited.

2. Hay and straw for feeding material, bedding or similar purposes are subject to quarantine at port of entry for not less than 90 days, and must be handled as directed by U.S. authorities.

3. Animal glands, organs and similar material used for pharmaceutical purposes can be exported to the U.S. if the material is in tight containers and conforms to other specified regulations.

Naval Officers Want to Know How to Scare Fish

Washington, Feb. 27 —(AP)— What's the best way to scare fish?

United States naval officers and Idaho officials hope to find the answer before the navy starts dropping depth charges in Pend Oreille Lake sometime after April 15.

The Idaho Lake is considered the best in the country for the deep water bombing tests.

Pend Oreille also is one of the best trout-fishing lakes in the country—the home of Giant Kamloops —and that's why officials are trying to figure out how to keep the fish out of the way.

Expert anglers are invited to make suggestions.

The navy plans to detonate small "pilot" charges in the lake before each big blast in attempt to disperse the fish.

Also being considered are noise-makers such as clatter machines and a vibration apparatus.

The navy has agreed to buy Kamloops eggs in Canada and have them hauled to an Idaho hatchery after the tests to replace those killed.

Sir Oliver Franks May Decline NATO Post

Ottawa, Feb. 27. (CP)—If Britain's Sir Oliver Franks definitely refuses the job of secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, External Affairs Minister Pearson is expected to reconsider his own stand against taking it himself.

Reports from London today said Franks, British Ambassador to the U.S., has said he can't take the N.A.T.O. job. Mr. Pearson's only comment here this morning as chairman of the N.A.T.O. Council of Ministers was that he has not yet been notified of Franks' decision but that he expects to hear later today. He said he still hopes Sir Oliver will take the job.

He declined to comment further.

It was learned, however, that Mr. Pearson was offered the job at Lisbon but was one of those who wanted Franks to have it. If Sir Oliver can't be talked into taking it, Mr. Pearson is expected to reconsider his own position because he is known to take a serious view of the job's importance to western defence and security.

POLICE REQUESTED TO AID IN SEARCH OF MISSING GIRL

City police have been asked to assist in locating Gladys Craig, 18, 29 Wallbridge Road, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Craig, who has been missing from her home since yesterday morning. The girl was said to have left home to go to work and has not been seen since.

She is described as being 5 ft. 4 inches in height, weighing 114 pounds and with blonde hair. She was wearing a green station wagon coat and was carrying a brown shoulder bag.

Any person knowing the whereabouts of this girl are asked to contact the city police or the girl's parents.

JOHN DEERE DAY SHOW AT B.C.I. WELL ATTENDED

It was a 'full house' at the Belleville Collegiate Tuesday evening for the annual John Deere Day show when rural residents of the Belleville district attended to see motion pictures on the latest in mechanized farm equipment. As well as films of general entertainment those in attendance saw "Oddities in Farm Equipment" and "What's New in Farm Equipment."

Thomas Montgomery, territory manager, welcomed those attending, while at the conclusion of the show Ivan May, district leader, expressed his appreciation.

Ash Wednesday Opening Day Of Lenten Season

Today is Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent in the western church, so-called because of the ceremonial use of ashes as a symbol of penitence in the service for the day.

The ceremony is of great antiquity being confined at first to those performing a public penance. Later it was extended to the entire congregation. In 1191 its universal use was first sanctioned by Pope Celestin III.

The present custom in the Roman Catholic Church is to take the ashes, made by the burning of the palms or their substitutes used in the ceremonial of the previous Palm Sunday, and after a prayer, the priest dipping his thumb into the ashes, marks those present as they kneel with the sign of the cross on the forehead, or in the case of clerics on the place of tonsure.

Of the Reformed churches, the Anglican Church and the Protestant Episcopalian Church in the United States alone have a special service for the day.

Lent, the vernal or spring fast of the Christian Church is observed, in preparation for Easter by members of the Greek, Anglican and Roman churches. The original fast of spring which preceded Easter was of forty hours duration this being the number of hours that intervened between the death and resurrection of Christ.

Additional days were added, their number varying in different churches. Today the Lenten length is accepted as 40 days.

Pet Spaniel Almost Drowned In Moira River

Apparently smitten by a wanderlust, "Blackie" a pet spaniel owned by W. Scrymgeour, 31 Bettes St., had his journeying come to an abrupt halt last night when he fell into the Moira River and almost ended his life under the ice in the Bay of Quinte.

For the fact that he is still living and apparently none the worse for his experience "Blackie" can thank three employees of Northern Electric who heard the howls of the dog as it struggled to get out of the water off the old dock on Water Street. Don McFadden, Stan Creeggan and Ted Hurst heard the dog as they worked the night shift at the plant and went to his rescue.

The thoroughly soaked puppy, all covered with oil slime, was taken into the plant and warmed by the furnace. He was later taken home and today was reported little the worse for his experience.

Canadian Trade Fair Outlined To Kiwanis Club

"International trade fairs date back to the time before Christ," said G. F. Bannerman, M.B.E., director of the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, in addressing the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday, "and although they differed somewhat from what we have today, they are basically the same in that they are an exchange of goods and skills."

Mr. Bannerman was speaking on behalf of the Canadian International Trade Fair, being held in Toronto in June 1952, and stated that its launching was a first for North America.

The speaker dealt with the launching of the trade fair program in 1946 and the reasons, stating that studies made in Ottawa revealed many scarce articles which would have to increase production to a point of availability, also that credits and gifts in aid to our Allied countries would be used, creating a demand for further production.

Lands, forests, mines and waters were responsible for 80 percent of Canada's total exports, according to Mr. Bannerman, and if the sale of their products fell off, there would be a subsequent drop in the sale of manufactured goods as well, he said.

"Thus authorization for an international trade fair in 1948 was granted," said the speaker, "as it was felt to be the only way to enable Canadians to earn by their own skill and develop materials of their own country."

Essentially Business

He stated that it was essentially a business proposition, interested in corporations, retailers and buyers who roam the world trying to improve their own countries. "The public is of secondary importance" he said.

Mr. Bannerman elaborated on the 1952 fair, dealing with exhibitors and displays, mentioning various countries which will be participating and with their displays.

In summing up his address, Mr. Bannerman put forth his reasons for thinking that the trade fair was an essential part of our democratic program.

"Unfortunately the world is divided into two camps," he said. "The communist world, covering a large part of Asia and Europe, believe that the state is the whole thing and the individual means nothing. Communists try to break down international trade, increase the cost of living and debase the currency of a country. If they succeed in doing this, they can do almost anything with a country," he emphasized.

"Our world has three choices" said the speaker. "Either subsidize Europe, enable them to make things to sell to us in fair competition, or let them go on their own and ultimately fall into communist hands."

Fair is Contribution

"I firmly believe that we must do a combination of the first two," concluded Mr. Bannerman, "and for this reason, I submit the Canadian International Trade Fair as a contribution toward this effort."

Mr. Bannerman was introduced by Kiwanian Bill Riley and the appreciation of the club was expressed by Kiwanian Lawrence Kells.

Prior to the address, president Harold Carruthers reviewed the 'Pack Up Your Troubles' show, recently concluded by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville. He commended several of the club members for their participation in making the show a success and extended the president's rose to Bill Sinclair, Jack Warner, Gordon Base and Ted Clarke.

Vice-president John Thornbury presented Harold Carruthers and Charles Cawker with orchids for their outstanding contribution of time and effort toward the same project.

The attendance prize, donated by Fred Symons, was won by Harold Carruthers.

Obituary

LATE WILLIAM HEASMAN

The funeral of William Heasman, R.R. 4 Stirling in the River Valley community, was held in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling on Monday afternoon, February 25th and was largely attended.

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker conducted the service and a former pastor Rev. E. W. Rowland, Peterborough gave a comforting message. Rev. A. Leslie, Warkworth gave the prayer. Mrs. William Reynolds sang "The City Four-square".

The bearers were Messrs. Roy Bush, James Park, J. L. Donohoe, Clarence Scee, Harry Morrow and Walter Lindenfield.

Interment was made in Stirling Cemetery beside his wife who predeceased him a few years ago.

LATE MISS SARAH E. WRIGHT

The funeral of Miss Sarah Elizabeth Wright, formerly of Rawdon township, was held on Monday, February 25th from the Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling to St. James the Minor Church for Requiem Mass at 9.30 a.m. The bearers were Messrs. Arthur Hagerman, Earl Benson, Philip McAvoy, John Courtney, Claire Tanner and Vincent Farrell.

Interment was made in St. James' Cemetery.

ROBERT ALLAN McLEOD
(Trenton)

Funeral services for Robert Allan McLeod were held on Tuesday, February 26th, from the residence of his son Carl McLeod, 28 Ferry Street, Trenton, to Grace United Church where the service was conducted by Rev. G. A. Puttenham.

Mr. McLeod died in Trenton Memorial Hospital on Saturday, February 23rd, following an illness of three weeks' duration. He was in his 79th year.

Born in Maynooth, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan McLeod, Mr. McLeod had lived in the locality for the past 18 years, prior to which he had resided in Frankford. He was predeceased by his wife, Harriet, in 1934.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. J. W. (Bernice) Fox of Belleville, Mrs. George (Eva) Foster and Mrs. Jack (Grace) Lawrence of Frankford, four sons, William of Belleville, Carl of Trenton, James and Robert of Frankford, three sisters, Mrs. Henry (Elizabeth) Lloyd of Bannockburn, Mrs. Jack (Jane) Green of Bannockburn, Mrs. Josh (Annie) Anderson of Queensborough, three brothers, Hugh of Belleville, Israel and Samuel of Niagara Falls, seven grandsons and six great-grandsons.

Bearers were Donald McLeod, Kenneth Lawrence, Ralph McLeod, Ernest Foster, Jack McLeod and Floyd Foster, all grandsons.

Entombment was in Frankford Cemetery.

CATHERINE H. MACAULAY
(Trenton)

In poor health for the past three weeks, Catharine Helena Macaulay, R. R. 3, Trenton, died at Trenton Memorial Hospital on Saturday, February 23rd. She was in her 79th year.

Born in Murray township, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ambrose, she had been a resident of this locality all of her life. A member of St. Alphonsus Church, Wooler, she was also a member of the Catholic Women's League. She was predeceased by her husband, John B. Macaulay, in August, 1950.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Emmett O'Malley (Margaret) of Trenton, Mrs. Leslie Cox (Catherine) of R.R. 3, Trenton, and five sons, Ambrose, Bernard, Jack and Robert, all of R.R. 3, Trenton, and Arthur of the town of Trenton.

Also surviving is one sister, Miss Minnie Ambrose of Trenton, 30 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The late Mrs. Macaulay rested at the family residence, R.R. 3, Trenton, until Tuesday. Requiem Mass was offered in St. Alphonsus Church on Tuesday by Rev. F. L. Richea.

Bearers were her five sons and a grandson, Jack Macaulay Jr.

Interment was in Mount Calvary Cemetery, Trenton.

THREE RESCUED

Tokyo, Feb. 27 (AP) —Three men who jumped from an exploding B-29 weather reconnaissance plane off Guam have been rescued by a United States navy ship.

Air and sea search is continuing for two others who jumped with them yesterday. Five others presumably died in the explosion.

The three were picked up by the navy tanker Tombibee from a life raft dropped to them by a B-29 rescue plane.

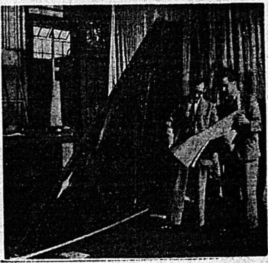
Federal Cabinet Meets Over Cattle Disease Outbreak

Appearance of the hoof disease in Saskatchewan cattle has started a search for a German D.P. suspected of having imported the virus as a communist sabotage plan. He worked on the farm of Leonard Waas, of Indian Head, Sask., just before appearance of the disease in the herd owned by Waas. An emergency meeting of the federal government was called by Prime Minister St. Laurent when the U.S. placed an embargo on all Canadian beef. The embargo could last a year and could do incalculable harm to prairie economy. — Central Press Canadian.

Britain Produces Plastic Plane Wing



A pioneer step toward an all-plastic airplane in this British-produced plastic delta-shaped wing which will be shown at the 1952 British Industries Fair from May 5 to 16. Plastic aircraft promise to be much easier to build than present-day metal planes, and from 50 to 80 per cent cheaper. The British expect the delta-shaped plastic plane to be airborne within two years. — Central Press Canadian.

Guy N. Pitney 'Very Much Alive' In California

Mr. Guy N. Pitney, of Fresno, California, and formerly of this city, was unofficially reported "dead" by a former hockey-playing colleague, but he bobs up alive and well.

In a letter to the sports department of this newspaper, Mr. Pitney, who was a member of the Belleville juniors, Ontario hockey champions in 1901, recalls that he was a member of the team whose photograph appeared in the Taylor Delicatessen, Footbridge, a short time ago.

"I am still alive," Mr. Pitney writes, "although I don't play hockey any more. I still take a keen interest in the leagues (and I hope the Maple Leafs win that cup again)."

He has been in the photography business in Anaheim, Cal., for the past thirty years, but is now retired.

"Am sorry to hear all the boys of that team are gone with the exception of Hugh Galway and Sandy Burrows (and myself). I would like to get their addresses so I can write to them."

Mr. Pitney is a brother of the late Percy Pitney, formerly with the Post Office here, who passed away three years ago.

The former Belleville hockey player's present address is "Vic's Park", R. 1. Box 560, Fresno, California.

Housewives Can Expect Drop In Beef Prices

Calgary, Feb. 27 (CP) —Housewives can expect a drop in the price of beef about next Monday a spokesman for the retail trade said here yesterday.

He pointed out the current drop in producer to wholesaler beef prices would come into effect about that time. For the rest of this week retailers will be paying high prices for the beef which was purchased by the packing houses before the announcement that hoof-and-mouth disease had broken out in the Regina area.

Today prices at the stock yards ranged from $1 to $2 lower following similar setbacks Monday. The run of cattle was very light as producers held back for the market to solidify.

Directors of the Alberta Cattle Breeders' Association will meet here Saturday to review the implications of the outbreak.

ILLEGAL DEALING

Buenos Aires, Feb. 27 — (Reuters) — The Argentine consul in Vienna, Jose Ramon Virasoro, has been dismissed from the foreign service. The Argentine embassy in Vienna last week confirmed that Virasoro had been involved in illegal currency and drug dealings.

ABOLISH CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Jerusalem, Feb. 27 — (AP) — Israel's parliament, the knesset, gave approval last night to a bill to abolish capital punishment for murder. If it passes final readings, hanging would be the penalty only for treason and for Nazi war crimes.

WILL OBSERVE DAY

With British First Commonwealth Division, Korea, Feb. 27—(AP) — Welsh soldiers in Korea will observe St. David's Day Saturday by wearing and eating 2,000 leeks, the Welsh national symbol. The leeks are coming from Japan for the First Battalion, Royal Welch Regiment. Traditionally, each soldier will wear a small leek on his headdress and eat the larger leeks at noon.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP) —Industrial prices dipped sharply today in early afternoon stock market dealings while other sections weakened steadily.

Industrials, golds, base metals and western oils opened irregularly as mixed support checked yesterday's decline. Within the first hour, however, support weakened and prices sagged.

Steels, refining oils, banks and manufacturing companies led industrials lower while constructions, foods, textiles and miscellaneous issues weakened steadily. Retail stores bucked the trend with a scattered list o. fractional advances.

Base metal losses outnumbered gains about four to one. Anacon Lead, Chromium, Cons. Smelters, Golden Manitou, International Nickel, Noranda, Quemont and United Asbestos posted losses ranging to about $1.

Western oils declined steadily in active trading. Anglo-Canadian, Calnorth, Gridoil, Home Oil, Okalta, Scurry, Commonwealth Petroleum and North Canadian traded lower.

Senior golds were unchanged but secondary issues—Campbell, Pioneer, Sladen and Laluz—eased pennies.

EMPLOYEES GET INCREASE

Chicago, Feb. 27 — (AP)—International Harvester Company will grant 75,000 non-managerial employees a three-cents-an-hour wage increase because of a rise in the cost of living. A company spokesman said the increase would raise the average straight-time earnings to $2.02 an hour. The increase is effective March 1.

Chances for U.S. Price Decontrol Of Steel Bright

New York Feb. 27 (AP)—Chances for U.S. price decontrol of steel products were described as "very bright" today by the Iron Age, metal-working trade weekly.

"Steel consumers have joined the industry in building a fire under this issue," the publication said. But it added:

"The government will continue to drag its feet on decontrol until the wage-price issue is settled. This is in line with its policy of being reluctant to decontrol anything that might later become tighter."

The Iron Age described Detroit as currently one of the softest areas in the steel market.

"Auto steel buyers are sizing up what is being offered and taking their choice of tonnages available" it said. "Some are not taking up their entire quota, although the unwanted portion has not exceeded five percent for most firms."

But cold-finished bars are extremely tight in all quarters, the trade weekly reported, as big tonnages of this item are going into a military product.

"Indications are that non-defence customers may be cut still deeper on this item in the third quarter," it added.

Steelmaking operations this week were placed at 101 percent of rated capacity, up half a point from the previous week.

Husband Knifes Wife, Companion On City Street

Ottawa, Feb. 27 — (CP) — Stano Pantusa, 40-year-old Italian immigrant, today was remanded for a week without plea on a charge of wounding with intent to maim after the double stabbing Tuesday night of his wife and a male companion.

Pantusa's wife, 33-year-old Mrs. Adelina Pantusa, is in serious condition in hospital with multiple knife wounds about the chest and neck. Doctors say she will recover.

A friend, Carmen Versace, 24, was cut about the face in the attack and was treated at hospital.

Police said they could furnish no motive for the attack. They said Mrs. Pantusa and Versace, both employed at a downtown cleaning firm, were walking along Aberdeen Street when they met the woman's husband.

The three stopped and talked for several minutes. Suddenly, police said, Pantusa whipped out a "dagger-like" knife from his pocket and started slashing at his wife and Versace.

Following the attack, Pantusa allegedly fled. He was arrested shortly after by police.

20 Government Bills Introduced In Legislature

Toronto, Feb. 27—(CP)— The Ontario legislature today gets down to work, with the start of debate on the first of the 20 government bills introduced so far.

The house, which assembled last Thursday, started another phase of its business yesterday when John Robarts (P.C.-London) launched the throne speech debate with a plea for a new and sounder basis of taxation at the federal, provincial and municipal government levels.

Concern over the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease among cattle in Saskatchewan also was voiced yesterday and Premier Frost announced that the federal government had compiled with Ontario's request for an embargo against shipments of cattle from the west to Ontario.

The premier said the disease was highly contagious and had no known cure, and thus no step was too strong to prevent its spread. He said he had promised the federal government the help of provincial agricultural officials in trying to avoid an outbreak in Ontario.

In opening the throne speech debate, Mr. Robarts made the traditional motion for an address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. he was seconded by John Root, (PC-Wellington North).

Mr. Robarts said the real estate taxation powers of municipalities had "an absolute limit which is being rapidly approached." He urged a "realistic" approach by Ottawa to avoid the possibility of "something approaching disaster" to municipalities.

Question Raised

The question of the western outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease was raised at the opening of the house's business by W. M. Nickle (PC—Kingston) and opposition leader Farquhar Oliver. Both expressed concern over the consequences to Ontario farms if the disease should spread from the west and Mr. Oliver urged a special check be made on cattle which were in transit from the west when the embargo was put in effect.

Lands Minister Scott introduced a bill which implements one of the recommendations of the royal commission on forestry. It consolidates the provisions of eight statutes covering the major administrative work of the lands and forests department. The aim of the consolidation is to reduce confusion and overlapping in the present statutes.

AIR BEATS RAIL MILEAGE

Washington, Feb. 27 — (AP) — Air travel mileage in the United States exceeded pullman travel mileage last year for the first time. The Civil Aeronautics Board said domestic airlines flew 10,500,394,000 passenger miles last year, while rail travel on pullmans totalled 10,432,306,000 passenger miles. A "passenger mile" is one passenger carried one mile.

Parliament Opens Its 1952 Session On Thursday

Ottawa, Feb. 27—(CP)—Parliament opens its 1952 session tomorrow amid historic circumstances.

The members of the Commons and the Senate will convene a few hours after the formal installation of Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey as Canada's first native governor-general, succeeding Field Marshal Lord Alexander.

Mr. Massey will be sworn in at 11 a.m. EST in a glittering ceremony in the high-ceilinged Senate chamber and at 3 p.m. he will return there to read the traditional Speech from the Throne opening the new session of parliament.

As parliament meets, it will find five vacancies in the Commons and 17 in the Senate, some of them created by the deaths of sitting members since parliament concluded its special fall session late in December.

The Commons standing:

Liberals 183; Progressive Conservatives 45; C.C.F. 13; Social Credit 10; Independent Liberal two; Independent four; vacant five; total 262.

The Senate:

Liberals 77; Progressive Conservatives eight; vacant 17; total 102.

The Speech from the Throne, expected to run approximately 1,400 words, is the parliamentary vehicle through which the government announces its legislation program for the session. It traditionally is secret until read to the Commoners and Senators assembled in the Senate chamber, but some inkling of its contents already is known.

It is known, for example, that the administration intends to proceed with the controversial annuities bill which got some study last fall but was sidetracked by the heated debates over resale price maintenance. This measure raises the ceiling on federal annuities to $2,400 a year from $1,200.

There also will be legislation resulting from the report of the royal commission which spent two years studying Canada's transportation problems. Several bills based on that report were adopted last year.

In the international field, parliament likely will be asked to ratify the Japanese peace treaty signed last September and also be asked to approve a new extradition treaty with the United States.

The biggest parliamentary story traditionally is the annual budget, with its tax adjustments. The budget this year is expected to be introduced early in April and may include some tax relief in specific fields. No general reduction of taxes is expected.

Several important parliamentary committees will be appointed, including one to study defence expenditures and another to redraft the boundaries of constituencies on the basis of the 1950 census.

Five of Family Burned to Death Near Montreal

Montreal, Feb. 27 (CP) —Five members of a family died early today when fire swept their home in nearby Ville Ste. Pierre.

Dead are:

Hugh Morton, 71.

Marion Morton, 65, his brother.

Mrs. Maria Morton, 42, Hugh Morton's daughter-in-law.

Sheila Morton, 13, her daughter.

Rita Morton, 8, another daughter.

A third daughter, Isabel, 15, escaped from the burning house.

The cause of the fire is unknown. An inquest will be held.

Mrs. Morton's husband, Robert, who was working as a power-plant supervisor at Pine Falls, Man., flew to Montreal today when his surviving daughter advised him of the tragedy.

TAKES INDUCTION TEST

Hollywood, Feb. 27 — (AP) — Edward G. Robinson, Jr., 19-year-old son of the actor, took his pre-induction physical examination yesterday. He will know in a few weeks whether he passed it. The youth was ordered out of his father's house recently after he eloped to Mexico with 21-year-old Frances Chisholm, television actress. His father also stopped his $70 weekly allowance.

Mayor Lamport May Impound Books of C.N.E.

Toronto, Feb. 27 — (CP)—Mayor Lamport said today he will apply for a blanket injunction on all affairs of the Canadian National Exhibition.

His statement followed an announcement Monday that Fred S. Quirk, C. N. E. treasurer, would be called back from his vacation in Florida to explain a discrepancy in figures received by a special committee investigating C. N. E. contracts with amusement operators.

At that time, Robert H. Saunders, first vice-president of the C. N. E., said in an interview that "information we were given was not correct."

Elwood Hughes, general manager, said a difference of $2,000 involved in the 'wrong information' was "obviously a clerical error."

Today Mayor Lamport said he will ask the city solicitor to seek an injunction to restrain the C. N. E. executive from access to C.N.E. books until a private audit has been made.

Mr. Saunders said a special meeting of the contracts committee will be called for later today to clear up "what seems to be a misunderstanding between the mayor and the committee."

PROBLEM FOR FROST GOVERNMENT

There are indications that the Frost government is going to be asked, during the present session of the legislature, to amend the laws governing the disbursing of taxes for educational purposes. At present, a school board or a board of education decides how much money it would like to spend, sends a demand to the municipal council to raise that sum, collects and then proceeds with its spending program. Since it is easier to spend money than to collect it, mayors and councillors have for years been urging the government to give them at least partial control over educational spending. Since it is more fun to spend money than to twist it out of the taxpayers, school board members have consistenly opposed any change in the present system.

According to figures issued by the Ontario Bureau of Statistics and Research, which is an agency of the Ontario government, the average weekly wage received by all persons gainfully employed in Greater Torcnto last November was $49.05. It is true that Greater Toronto is not quite the same as Toronto, and it is also true that the $49.05 figure does not include self-employed persons and those who operate businesses of their own, but it still gives us a fairly accurate idea of the income of the average Torontonian, which works out to about $2,600 a year.

Here are some of the annual wages paid to its employees by the Toronto board of education: bricklayer, $4,698; electrician, $4,489; plasterer, $4,176; plumber $4,176; carpenter, $4,176; painter, $3,758; teacher, up to $5,800; dentist, $5,165; physician, $5,634.

If it is accepted that the income of the average wage earner of Toronto is about $2,600, it can be seen by comparing this figure with any of those in the preceding paragraph that the employees of the Toronto board of education are doing nearly twice as well as the other wage earners of Toronto; in other words, the employers, or the taxpayers of Toronto, are receiving only a little more than half as much money as their employees.

It is known that wages and incomes are, in general, somewhat higher in Toronto than they are in the smaller centres of population of Ontario, but we fancy that the relationship between the average taxpayer's income and that of the average civic employee is about the same in a smaller community as it is in Toronto.

Employees of school boards, as well as other civic employees, may think that the present discrepancy between the wage of the civic employee and that of the taxpayer is desirable and proper, but we fancy that the average taxpayer has a different viewpoint. But perhaps nobody cares what the average taxpayer thinks, or what he wants, either.

TIME FOR ACTION

Evidence continues to accumulate that there is something wrong in the Canadian department of immigration. There have been at least four riots in the hostels which the department maintains for housing its immigrants and displaced persons. In at least one of these riots, several persons were injured and several others jailed. Some weeks ago, it was disclosed that between 300 and 400 Italians had entered the country on forged visas and were being rounded up in Montreal. Since then, it has been disclosed that several employees of the immigration department who were operating at a place called Karlsruhe in Germany had resigned or been dismissed following revelations that an undisclosed number of persons of unstated racial origin had been admitted to Canada through bribery and in defiance of the regulations.

Surely it is time an effort was made to end these abuses and make sure there is no recurrence of them. Even if it is admitted that this country needs immigrants — something which many people will dispute as long as there is so much unemployment — the need for careful screening of the type of immigrant who is admitted should be obvious.

Canada may need more people, but people who gain entry to the country by illegal methods are not likely to make ideal citizens.

ASH WEDNESDAY

For forty days and forty nights
Temptations of the world He met;
Its pleasures and its rich delights,
The power that proud men strive to get,
And offered all, He turned away,
God's servant here content to stay.

The world still seems a wilderness
Where men are tempted to betray.
There is a worship of success
That still is leading men astray;
A selfish love of power and fame
That leave the burning brand of shame.

Now we are being asked today:
'Til forty days and nights pass o'er
From all that tempts to turn away
And give our hearts to God once more;
To brave the sacrifice of Lent
And in God's service be content.

Four Perish In House Fire At Prince Albert

Prince Albert, Sask., Feb. 27 — (CP)—Four boys—the oldest 13 and the youngest four months— died yesterday when flames swept through their farm home about 130 miles east of here.

Victims were 13-year-old Charles McGratten and his brother Lester, 12; Ross, eight and Glenn four months.

Three other children in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Norman McGratten escaped.

RCMP investigating the tragedy, said it is believed the fire started from one of the stoves in the two storey frame house.

RCMP said the mother and a daughter, five-year-old Norma, are in hospital being treated for burns. Mrs. McGratten's condition is believed serious.

Lawrence, 17, and Ronald 10, escaped without injury.

The father was some 26 miles away hauling wood when the fire broke out.

BY JACK SCOTT

A LADY'S DREAM

This column is my wife's idea. It is directed to anybody who may have two or three hundred thousand dollars. I think it is a pretty wonderful idea.

My wife reads my columns before I send them to the paper, correcting the spelling and putting the apostrophes in those "it's" where an apostrophe ought to be.

Yesterday I wrote about old age pensioners, suggesting that many might find a happier life in the country. My wife read this, put in six apostrophes, looked up and began to talk about her idea.

This is the way it sounded.

Why not a real estate development solely for old age pensioners? Not as a charity or anything like that, but as a straight business venture, in planned housing.

Let's agree, first, that most old people on small pensions would like to live away from the city. Let's agree that, more than anything else, they'd like a home of their own and a feeling of independence.

All right, we've seen quite a few who've achieved that in our neck of the woods, many of them from the city. But not everybody can manage it.

For one thing, small places aren't always easy to find, either to buy or to rent, and older people haven't always the vitality or the means to get about looking for a place. Also, there are a great many elderly people who wouldn't enjoy the lonely life, particularly if they're alone in the world.

So why not set up a community of older people in homes especially designed for them and their income?

* * *

Now, let's pin it down. We've discovered that the Gulf Islands are like a dream place for pensioned or retired people, beautiful scenically, the balmiest climate in all of Canada, close enough to Vancouver and Victoria for any emergencies.

Let's take Salt Spring Island which is the one we know best.

Supposing a syndicate, or Mr. X—our hypothetical millionaire with a heart— were to buy a large tract of land, a thousand acres, say. It could be any kind of land, not necessarily the choice property.

On this land we would clear a hundred homesites, leaving the rest of the land as timbered as possible. We'd drill as many wells, on the gravity system, as would be necessary. We'd pipe in electricity from the main line.

Now we'll build 100 homes as the nucleus of our experiment.

* * *

These homes will be very small, but attractive, designed by an architect for simple living, but with some esthetic consideration. There would be one large room and a bathroom for single people, two rooms and a bathroom for couples. They will be well insulated for winter, oil or electrically heated.

The one and two-room idea may seem cutting it pretty fine, but we've seen several "cabins" of old age pensioners, one in particular that cost only $800, that are amazingly homey. The design is everything, not the size.

We don't want any motor court or auto camp effect. Each of these small homes will stand on its own lot, and, as far as possible, will be isolated from the others. Each will have its own space for a garden.

We'll rent the single cottage for $10 a month, the double for $20. That means that an old age pensioner would spend only one-fifth of his income on housing.

* * *

The communal aspect will not be an intrusion on privacy. There will be a small central hall for meetings, library, card games, picture shows and so on and there will be a central commissary for groceries and administration (old age pensioners will be employed), there will be facilities for horseshoe pitching, outdoor checkers and the like. But those who want to live-alone-and-like-it may do so.

Whatever plans there are for communal living will originate with the tenants and there will be no feeling of supervision or control.

This is neither welfare-statism nor charity. The scheme should be designed to pay itself off and make a profit. It it proves to be succeeding— and why shouldn't it?—it will be the first of many, a younger generation's thank-you to the older generation.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON ADVERTISING

Most of my early life was spent in the advertising business as a writer of advertising. I loved it, for my ability to sell was every minute challenged. If my copy didn't sell, it was of little value, no matter how well written.

The purpose of an advertisement is to sell the product described. The talk should be as intimate as though the prospective buyer stood before the writer of the advertisement. Too many advertisements are displayed merely to attract attention. Mere bigness of space is not enough. There is an enormous waste in space merely because of bigness. Convincing sincerity should be the outstanding characteristic of any advertisement.

And simplicity—what an art! Few things are more serious to average human beings than spending their hard earned (highly taxed) salary. They want the truth about what they buy and they want it told in simple terms. No fooling, or side talk. The "little woman" is the court of last resort in most cases, and you've got to be honest and to the point when you talk with her. White space is often as good a salesman as space in type!

The genuine reputation of a product is always displayed in its selling announcement. So its merits must be convincing. It's the integrity of a product that keeps its sales ever mounting. An advertiser has got to believe in what he sells, and believe in those to whom he seeks to sell. He wastes their money when he advertises unwisely, or untruthfully.

Keep your eye upon the small business advertiser and encourage him. He knows he will never be a big advertiser unless he makes good on his product from its inception. He needs friends. All great advertisers began small. Confidence in their product made them great!

All published advertising is silent selling, so that the personality of an advertisement is very important—no waste of words, no illustration that does not act as a prop to the copy and illuminate it. But no matter what its form, if it sells, it's good advertising!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The handyman is quietly disappearing from society. But the harder it is to find anybody to do odd jobs such as tending furnaces, cutting grass, mending doors, repairing chairs, building a shelf or redding up the cellar, the better off are those few among us who still follow this ancient and casual profession. So hard to find are they, that they command wages on a par with skilled workers. Anybody foolish enough to haggle over wages with a handyman is promptly short of a handyman. To know a good handyman is one of the more important social distinctions among the well-to-do.

There is a quiet little Englishman who goes about my town in a bowler hat and carrying a small black valise like a doctor's. His life work is polishing and conditioning fine walnut and mahogany furniture. In his small bag he carries his waxes and oils, leather and cheesecloth pads and a few simple tools. He has regular rounds, calling on a couple of dozen homes that are keen on having their furniture in perfect shape all the time. He is an expert at taking an old piece of furniture that somebody finds in a second hand or antique shop and reconditioning it. He can repair and reglue. He is, of course, among the higher brackets of the handyman craft; he might even be credited with having a profession. But since he makes a very good living, has no overhead at all, and is in jealous demand amongst a circle of people who guard his name, address and telephone number as though they were something extremely precious, and not for every Tom, Dick and Harry to be given, this quiet little man demonstrates the possibilities of small specialization in the age of mass production.

A man could probably fill his life with profitable work merely by putting up over his door a simple sign: "Handyman."

ANTIQUATED HOSPITAL HOKUM

A medical colleague is incensed by my efforts to teach the young husband who is a man and not a nincompoop that his place is at his wife's side when their baby is born. My colleague complains that some young men take this seriously and demand . . . and my colleague tries to explain in words of one syllable why the physician or the hospital cannot permit the expectant father to share his wife's joy, happiness or whatever betide.

One of the doctor's objections to my teaching is reasonable enough, but it arises from a misunderstanding which I deplore. The young men who "demand" admittance to the delivery room or create a disturbance in the hospital or picket the place do so of their own accord, not by my advice. Indeed, I'd say anyone who behaves like that deserves a term in jail.

The time to settle the question of presence or absence of the expectant father during the birth of his baby—provided, of course, his wife wants him to share the miracle with her—is when engaging the physician. If the physician recoils at the idea, let him or her go back to the nineteenth century and let the father look up a physician with twentieth century training.

With as much assurance as though he were discussing the matter with some—well, with the characteristic gall of a trick specialist, my colleague reminds me that, it always has been the aim of good obstetrics to keep infection out of the delivery room.

In view of what goes on in delivery rooms in some institutions where the nincompoops are confined in the monkey cage while the doings go on, that is downright funny.

In my scrapbook is a clipping of one of my own columns in which I advocated what has since become known as "living-in", constant attendance of the expectant father before, during and after delivery, etc. Alongside this is another clipping from a newspaper in the middle west — an open letter to the editor from the superintendent of a 19th century hospital explaining in droll style that the doctors and nurses in the delivery room are far too busy to stop and take care of fainting husbands. Finally a letter from a reader who was confined in the hospital in question; her husband wanted to remain with her and she begged the unsympathetic hospital managers, doctors, nurses to bring him to her, but, my dear (imbecile, the man might bring infection into the delivery room. No, they advised the husband to go home, it would be hours yet, but they'd call him when the baby arrived. So the poor gullible geek went home. As soon as he was out of the place a whole class of student nurses were led in, and each young student proceeded to examine the patient . . . a typical example of the doings in delivery rooms in 19th century institutions.

Send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on Asthma.

Nervous Breakdown, Eh?

Two members of my family had nervous breakdowns. If my daughter, an only child, should plan to marry would it be necessary to mention this? (A. S.)

Answer—I have no idea what you are concealing under the vague designation. If there is any question of sanity the opinion and advice of a physician who knows the facts should be sought by your daughter and her prospective husband.

Red, Chapped Hands

My daughter, a student nurse, is having a lot of trouble with extremely red and chapped hands. Hand lotions she has tried are of no avail. (Mrs. A. S.)

Answer—Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and I'll send the booklet Save Your Skin, which contains recipes to prevent and relieve such trouble. Others who want the booklet inclose 25c for it, together with stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Strength for the Day

LIFE INVOLVES CONFLICT

Psychology makes a great deal today of tension and conflict. We are told that twisted personalities are the result of violent conflict going on between the conscious and the unconscious mind. Especially a sense of guilt is supposed to be devastating to human peace and the development of sound moral character.

The psychologist insists that if we can get rid of conflicts in the mind we can have a thoroughly sublimated personality, well integrated with its environment. But regardless of how we may feel about our shortcomings, a profound sense of guilt must necessarily rest upon anyone who views himself and his actions realistically.

As we look at the great figures of history, one of the things which characterized them most was their inner conflict and the fact that they were not integrated into their environment but that they challenged this environment and were in constant coflict with it. The more one ponders the biographies of men and women who have made beneficient changes in the life of the word, the more is he impressed by the fact that every human being, just because he is a human being, is going to have much inner conflict; and he had better get himself ready to live with such conflict.

The psychologists dream of peace arising out of a life free of frustration is largely unrealistic.

'Buy British' Drive in Canada Suggested in B.C. House As Memorial to King George

(By The Canadian Press)

A "buy British" campaign in Canada as a memorial to the King was suggested yesterday in the British Columbia legislature.

Maurice Finnery, a Liberal, said such a drive would be a better tribute than all the words spoken in the King's memory. He proposed that all Canadians, as well as business organizations and federal and provincial governments, buy as much as possible from Britain in preference to United States goods.

Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta replied to charges that his government had paid $538,000 "hidden subsidy" to horse racing interests. He called the charge, made Monday by Liberal leader Harper Prowse, "scandal-mongering and gutter politics."

Mr. Prowse said the subsidy was given to the race organizations for collecting the provincial tax on pari-mutuel betting.

The premier announced that the government proposes to put a ceiling on the amount of pari-mutuel tax grant and to change the system of payment. He said the reason the grants did not show in the public accounts was that the accounts dealt in net revenues.

A liquor commission report tabled in the Nova Scotia legislature showed a $1,000,000 drop in sales since 1950. Liquor sales yielded a profit of $9,907,448 for the 16 month period ending last March 31. Rum sales were up from the previous year but beer, whisky and gin were down.

Set Up Committee

The Saskatchewan legislature voted to set up a committee to inquire into prices of farm machinery. It will look into production costs, selling prices, sales, performance, distribution and use of farm implements and repair parts.

Labor Minister S. E. Mooers of New Brunswick expressed optimism about the future of labor in his province. He said 15 of the 16 industrial disputes referred to his department last year were settled without a work stoppage.

In the Ontario legislature, Lands Minister Harold Scott introduced a bill consolidating eight statutes to provide a single authority for most of the Lands Department's work. Throne-Speech started with John Roberts, a Progressive Conservative, urging a realignment of taxation fields among the federal, provincial and municipal governments.

The outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan was discussed in several legislatures. The Governments of Ontario and British Columbia announced bans of shipments of Saskatchewan cattle into their provinces.

KILLED WITH SHOVEL

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 27—(CP)—A speedy road worker said yesterday he caught up to a running wolf and killed it with a shovel. Lawrence Pallet, a laborer on a road gang, said he spotted a 100-pound wolf lurking in the brush beside the road. It started to run, and Pallet, on foot, gave chase.

BANCROFT

Agent Moved To Sydenham

Bancroft—H. M. Snyder, Canadian National Railways agent at Bancroft, left town Friday to accept a similar position in Sydenham. A veteran railroader, Mr. Snyder has been the local agent since 1948. Before this he was agent at Maynooth, Gananoque and Detlor. Until a regular appointment is made H. R. Botting of Trenton is the relieving agent.

As a keen fisherman and a great sports follower Mr. Snyder was well known throughout north Hastings. His three sons have followed him into the railroading trade. Alwin is assistant agent at Bancroft; Gerald holds a similar position at Madoc and Victor is operator at Pickering. The two married daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Snyder, Mrs. Maurice Adams and Mrs. Ewart Rupnow, live in L'Amable and Detlor.

Four Senators Urge Favorable Action on Bill

Washington, Feb. 27—(AP)—Four senators Tues. urged favorable action on a bill to authorize the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Appearing before the senate foreign relations committee were Senators Theodore Green (Dem.-Rhode Island), Blair Moody (Dem.-Mich.), George Aiken (Rep.-Vt.) and Herbert Lehman (Dem.-Lib-N. Y.)

Moody urged that the committee report the bill favorable to give the senate an opportunity to vote on the matter.

"This in all probability," he said, "will be the last chance the United States has to participate in this project."

He said Canada has determined to build the $818,000,000 project itself if the U. S. again turns it down.

Aiken, sponsor of an amendment to provide for the financing of the project through sale of $485,000,000 in bonds to the public, said opposition to this "great international development" stems from the railroads and power interests and "their financial supporters."

The northeast, he said, is "starved" for new hydro-electric power which the St. Lawrence could provide.

Green said "our dalliance" in building the project "has injected a very serious element of discord" between the U. S. and Canada.

Lehman contended that allegations that the project would be harmful to "local interests" is pure fear-mongering."

SEEK AMENDMENT

Mimico, Feb. 27—CP—Mimico town council last night decided to seek an amendment in the Ontario traffic act to allow each municipality to set its own speed limit to meet local conditions. Flexible speed limits will produce more co-operation among motorists than arbitrary limits was the view of the council.

First Teachers' Strike in N.S. Is Settled

Sydney, N. S., Feb. 27 — (CP) — Nova Scotia's first teachers' strike ends today.

Cape Breton county's rural and village teachers decided yesterday to return to their classrooms under an agreement granting them a $100 cost of living bonus plus another $100 for married men. It allows them to make up lost teaching days, thus safeguarding their seniority and pension qualifications.

The 243 strikers walked out Jan. 31 to back up demands for a $300 yearly increase, taking some 5,500 students from school.

Antigonish rural and village local of the Nova Scotia Teachers' Union, however, is still on strike, involving 94 teachers and about 2,000 students. They walked out Feb. 18 when similar demands for $300 yearly increases were rejected by county council.

The Cape Breton local also asked the N. S. T. U., the Education Department and municipalities to form a commission to study the teachers' salary problem.

The teachers struck when county council rejected salary demands and referred them to provincial officials.

Reiterates Stand

The province reiterated its stand that such increases are a municipal responsibility and the municipalities claimed they could not afford any increases.

A social meeting of Cape Breton county council later offered the bonus, at first rejected by the teachers.

Vice-president Cameron Sears of the Cape Breton local told yesterday's meeting "We have won a moral victory and the case of the teachers has won public recognition and support."

Education Minister Hicks said earlier he was sympathetic to the idea of a salaries commission but could not guarantee cabinet approval.

The province states it is carrying the larger share of education costs — 55 per cent this year, plus a grant over and above the basic salary scale.

Salaries range greatly under floors set by the government, starting at $650 for teachers without formal training and averaging $1,717 for all full-time teachers last year.

HIGHER BUS RATES

Kingston, Feb. 27—(CP)—Higher bus fares will become effective here March 1. City council last night approved the new rate schedule that will price tickets at three for 25 cents and a cash rate at 10 cents. The lines operated at a loss of $6,000 during October and November on the old rates.

Children's Aid Society Holds Board Meeting

The Board of the Children's Aid Society met on Thursday afternoon with the president, Mr. F Wilson, presiding.

Due to the illness of Mr. Lockyer, Miss Corbett presented the superintendent's report. Three new protective cases came under protective care during the month and two adoption cases were closed.

Miss Corbett reviewed a special case where it had been necessary to take four neglected children under the protection of the Society. The problems and difficulties due to the lack of home care were explained by Miss Corbett. A discussion followed the report.

Mrs. M. Quinn Gives Interesting European Travelogue

Members of the Holloway Street United Church W.A., met in the Sunday School rooms on Thursday afternoon, with the president Mrs. L. Van Osten, presiding.

Following the business session, Mrs. G. Dobbs took the chair. Mrs. Hutchinson gave the devotional with the theme "Christian Living in the Home". She was assisted by Mrs. Thurston.

A solo "Jesus is My Neighbor", by Mrs. R. Bell, was greatly enjoyed.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. F. Wilson introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Mary Quinn, matron at the O.S.D. Mrs. Quinn gave a travelogue on her European trip of last summer, taking her audience with her to London and through the villages in Cornwall and Devon and then north to the Scottish Highlands. From there to Holland the land of the windmills, and on to Brussels where a stop was made at a lace factory.

The journey continued on to Vienna with its canals and gondolas and into Italy at Florence and Rome.

The return was made through the Riviera and up through France to Paris.

Mrs. B. Moorman expressed the appreciation of everyone present when she thanked Mrs. Quinn for bringing her journey so vividly to the W.A.

Mrs. Dobbs and her group served tea. Mrs. Murphy thanked the group for a most pleasant afternoon.

World Day of Prayer To be Observed In St. Thomas' Church

On Friday afternoon, the women of the city will assemble in St. Thomas' Anglican Church for the World Day of Prayer, joining with the women of the world in one unbroken chain of prayer for a better world for all people.

"From dawn on the Fiji Islands to dusk on the Arctic Island of St. Lawrence, women of 104 countries will unite in services of praise, penitence and dedication, as hymns and prayers ascend to the Father of all.

"The day underlines the year-round bond among the Christians of the world, a bond naught can sever. To the millions of God's children who wait upon Him in prayer and seek to learn His plan for all, the call goes out for spiritual fellowship across and through all barriers. Such united prayer, by God's grace, may become a great power because it builds understanding and mutual concern for one another and binds together all the people of God".

"Therefore I say unto you, what things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them,"—Mark 11:24.

Harmony Studio Club Celebrates 2nd Anniversary by 'Boys' Night'

Monday evening the Harmony Studio Club celebrated the second year of its inception by holding a musical evening under the auspices of the boy members, at the home of Mrs. E. Veley, R. M. T., Harriet Street.

The evening opened with the singing of "God Save the Queen," followed by a most gracious welcome given by Mrs. Scott to the fathers who were special guests for the occasion of "Boys' Night."

Miss Barbara Dix gave an interesting talk on the founding of the club after which Jean Stevenson was installed as a new member, and Mrs. Veley reviewed the theory signs, adding two more key signs.

Bruce Smith, who presided over the program, gave a brief talk on "Why Boys Should Study Music," stating the effect of music on the individual, the pure pleasure derived from it, and the safe and profitable use of leisure time, which in this modern day is becoming increasingly important.

Music Important in Life

"Music is and will become a more important element in the life of the individual and the community, provisions are being made for its cultivation on a larger scale than even before. Therefore, the place of music in the curriculum of the school is yearly assuming more importance, and it is no longer considered elementary education."

Mentioning the things, a few of which had been brought to his attention, why boys in particular should take piano lessons, Bruce stated that piano is the foundation for all music; the piano can stand by itself as a musical source where very few other instruments can; as it needs no accompaniment; the study of piano may lead to other avenues of musical expression as the organ, the orchestra, band or voice.

Fine Hobby

As for the band or orchestra, it is more apt to apply to a boy than to a girl, because of his extra strong wrist. Music also makes a fine hobby, both in the pleasure it gives to one's self and to others as well as providing additional income.

Bruce closed his talk with an appeal to boys in general to think more of music, the wealth of expression it provides, and the deep satisfaction one gets in making his own music.

Following the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the boys in Cub uniform.

The program which follows, was given entirely by the boy members of the club: Gordon Fudge, "Jack and Jill"; Dennis Kerruish, "Robin Hood"; Gary Oliver, "Hurrying to School"; Ronald Flindell, "Sun of My Soul"; duet by Dennis and Richard Rowbothom, "The Blacksmith's Song," by Spalding; Richard Redford, "Theme," Hayden; Wayne Flindell, "Orange and Lemons," folk song; Dennis Rowbothom, "Slumber Song," Shubert; Richard Rowbothom and Douglas Aselstine, duet, "Waltz," Engelmann; theory review by the teacher; Wayne Wickett "Capricio," Hayden; Roger Ling "Chorale," Bach; Bruce Dobbs, "The Yellow Butterfly," MacLachlan; Paul Campbell, "Minuet," Bach; Randell Cowells, "Sonatina," Clementi; Roger Ling, "Sea Song," Dunhill; Robert Gilhem and teacher duet, "Little Boy Blue March," Engelmann; Robert Gilhem, waltz by Schumann; Richard Rowbothom, "L'Avalanche," Steven Heller; Douglas Aselstine and teacher, duet, "The Emerald Polka," Englemann.

By request, a musical appreciation number, "The Barber of Seville," by Rossini, was given by Mrs. Veley and Miss Grace Veley, bringing to a close a delightful anniversary program.

BEULAH W.M.S.

The February meeting of the Beulah W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Earl McMaster with 14 members and two visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Earl Benson, opened the meeting while Mrs. S Twiddy had charge of the worship service. The scripture was read by Mrs. M. Shaw, which in turn was followed by a reading given by Mrs. A. Cooney.

Mrs. K. Bray had charge of the study book, outlining how the Gospel is preached in 19 languages in Ontario, which makes it easier for all new Canadians.

Those who gave readings included, Mrs. A. Wood, Miss C. Prest, Mrs. P. R. Cooney, Mrs George Wood and Mrs. E. Benson.

The business period was directed by the president. Various activities included the donation of a quilt top by Mrs. S. Twiddy.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Earl McMaster for her generous hospitality in opening her home for the meeting.

Refreshments were served following the close of the meeting, and a social half hour spent.

FOUND DEAD IN SHACK

Peterborough, Feb. 26, (CP)—Ford Lindsay, believed 76 years old, was found dead in his shack Monday in nearby Duoro township.

He was found lying across his bunk. The body was frozen and coroner, Dr. Herbert Young, said it was impossible to tell how long he had been dead.

No inquest will be held.

Mrs. E. Quincy, Edmontonian, Collects Buttons

Edmonton—(CP) — When a friend in Rhode Island first told Mrs. Earl Quincy of Edmonton about button collecting, she scoffed at the idea.

But that was 10 years and some 4,000 buttons ago. Today, Mrs. Quincy has one of the finest collections of buttons in North America. She is a charter member of the Rhode Island State Button Society.

"Buttons are antiques in miniature," she says. "Button collecting opens up a background in research of the theatre, arts, history, clothes and customs of the times."

Many Varieties

Mrs. Quincy has buttons of early bone, calico buttons worn by frontier women, buttons of ivory from India which were used to convey secret messages, silver buttons with the heraldic crests of English nobility, bridle buttons from the Vanderbilt stables, cameo buttons of Jenny Lind, miniatures on French court beauties painted on silk and even the lowly overall button each with its own story.

The discs worn as ornaments on Roman and Greek togas were the forerunners of buttons, Mrs. Quincy explains. The nobility wore them as jewelry.

Francis I of France, had 13,600 gold buttons on a single costume and Louis XIV once paid $14,000 for a diamond and jewelled button.

Started In 1850

Women weren't admitted to the button world until 1850. Later, Queen Victoria, in mourning for her consort, popularized jet and black glass buttons.

Every button opens up new channels of research. Mrs. Quincy is writing a book about the golden age buttons, popular between 1820 and 1850.

Mrs. Quincy says the hobby of collecting buttons goes back only to 1938 although many a grandmother kept her button string, spurred by the legend that "she who collects 999 buttons will never have to sew them."

There's a special button shop in New York for unusual buttons and in Hartford, Conn., the state museum has a collection of 90,000 buttons.

With 4,000 buttons in her collection to choose from, Mrs. Quincy's favorite is the first one she saved.

It is a large gold button of bees and a bee-hive which she found in her grandmother's button box and wore to school in Rhode Island.

The giant of her collection is a redwood button which is 10 inches in diameter and three inches thick. Mrs. Quincy fills its five holes with tapers and uses it as a sandwich platter when she entertains.

But even a leading button collector can be foiled.

Mrs. Quincy's sister recently finished a new dress for her. Which buttons would look best on it? They delved through the 4,000 buttons—and couldn't find three to match.

SUNBEAM MISSION BAND

White's District—The Sunbeam Mission Band of White's District met at Quinte View School on Friday afternoon with the president Asa Copeland presiding. One minute of silence was observed for the late King George VI followed by the singing of "God Save Our Gracious Queen."

The Bible story "Onesimus the Runaway Slave" was read by Donald Bowers. Memory verses were repeated.

"You Have a Wonderful Talent" was read by Marilyn Bowers and Grace Goldie. "Off For a Boat Ride" was read by Asa Copeland. A quiz of "World Friends" stories was given by the leader with the girls having more correct answers.

The junior girls and boys gave the names of objects in a picture starting with the letter "C". The girls were winners again.

The study book "The Twins Make Friends" was read by the leader, Mrs. Leonard Young after a quiz on the previous chapter.

The children have started work on a crib quilt which is to be used for a white gift at Christmas.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Should she forgive?

There isn't a single one of us, I imagine, who hasn't at some time been faced with the necessity of deciding whether or not to "forgive" someone who has hurt us.

The trouble is, that this business of "forgiving" is so complicated, and doesn't always work out the way it's supposed to. When one really "forgives", in the true meaning of the word, all hard feeling between the two people involved should be wiped out, and their relationship should start out all over on a fresh basis.

A dictionary definition of the word states that to "forgive" means "to give up resentment". But over and over again, it happens that forgiveness is only a manner of speaking, while the emotion of resentment is carried over, so that a relationship is permanently damaged.

Here is a wife who states that twice she "forgave" her husband's infidelity; the third time, she left him. Just what kind of forgiveness she extended to him, and whether or not its quality might have been, to some degree at least, responsible for the third episode, there is no way of telling from her letter. which reads:

"Twice in our married life of ten years, my husband has been unfaithful to me. Both times I forgave him, but when a few months ago, he started a third affair, I quit him in disgust and started divorce proceedings. He is still living with the other woman, though she herself is married.

Confidence Shaken

"I have one child, now two years old. My husband says he misses me and the baby very much and would be willing to end the affair if I will take him back. But he refuses to end it until I have given him my word to start our life together anew

"Naturally, my confidence in him is considerably shaken, so I just can't decide what to do. Do you think he is sincere and has learned his lesson at last, or will it be the same story over and over again? I do love him, in spite of all his faults, for he has many good points, and I am ill with worry over the whole thing."

Now the basis on which a decision in this very difficult situation will have to be made, of course, is whether the hope for a possible solution rests, most of all, on the wife or on the husband. In other words, which one, more than the other, should by a change of attitude. accept the responsibility for one more attempt to save this marriage?

For I hardly think there can be, or should be, an indefinite number of renewed attempts to turn an unsuccessful marriage into a happy one. Too many stops and starts in marital life can make a farce of the whole thing. Breaking off and making up again can become a habit, establish a pattern that will maintain itself continuously but never reach a conclusion. It is like a pair of competing runners in a race, who struggle along with first one, then the other, out ahead, but who never arrive at any finishing point.

So the first thing for this wife to do is to make up her mind that, since she seems to be sure she still loves her husband in spite of his infidelities, she will have one final try at reconciliation, putting everything she has into the effort to make it stick.

Having settled that first important point, her next essential step is to decide whether she or he must set the project in motion.

In order to decide this, she will have to go back and do some very careful and honest soul-searching, with view toward determining how sincere and how wholehearted her previous "forgivenesses" were.

Let's simplify it this way. She says that on both former occasions when she found out that her husband had been unfaithful to her she "forgave" him. But was it a real forgiveness? Did she, having forgiven him, put his indiscretions and her resulting hurts completely behind her and devote herself to making a happy home for him? When he came home at night from work was she ready and waiting with a loving smile and a good dinner? Did she try hard to plan their social life so that their evenings would be interesting? Was their home always open to his friends?

Still Suspicious

Or did she, because she had never really "forgiven" in the wholehearted sense maintain an attitude of suspicion toward him, so that if he came home late she at once questioned him about where had been, and with whom he had been spending his time? Did she make it quite plain to him that unless he could prove his innocence, he was forever suspect in her eyes because of his past behavior? Was she constantly reminding him, in one subtle way after another, that he had wronged and hurt her, and that she had magnanimously "forgiven" him but never forgotten what he had done? That she considered his whole future life must be devoted to humbling himself in the dust before her in an effort to atone?

If she can honestly say that she never, by word. look or attitude, intentionally made him conscious that his actions had wounded her beyond healing; if she is certain, beyond reasonable doubt, that she, instead, had wiped the books clean of the past and did her very best to keep the tone of their relationship as though the unhappy interlude had never been; then she is fully justified in believing that his is the responsibility for taking the initiative in this third, and last, attempt at harmony.

Cut Out the Past

And when I say that the responsibility is his I mean that it is up to him to clear away any vestiges of the past that could remain as stumbling blocks in the path of their marital peace. I mean that he has no right whatever to stay that he will not end his affair with his current mistress until she has promised to take him back. It is, on the contrary, her right to insist that when he comes to her with a plea to be taken back and a promise for the future, he shall come with no strings attached to his suggestions; that he shall prove his sincerity by cutting all of his past illicit ties before he approaches her.

Only she can say whether she herself has a perfectly clear conscience on her past handling of their difficulties. Only she can decide whether the major responsibility for the future lies with her or with him.

If she decides she can improve on her past performance, she must go all the way in forgiving him. If she decides that she has done all she can, she must stipulate that he come to her with unconditional sincerity of purpose.

Tomato Juice with Lemon
Baked Finnan Haddie
Hard-cooked Egg Sauce
Tomato Fritters
Fluffy Boiled Rice
Endive and Lettuce and Radish Salad with Garlic French Dressing
Orange Cream Sponge
Orange Sauce
Coffee

DIRECTIONS:

The amazing thing about this meal is that the judge ate it and appeared to enjoy every morsel. His wife told the hostess afterwards that when they were first married he had asked her politely but very earnestly never to serve him finnan haddie, for he had had enough in his youth to last an average man two lifetimes.

BAKED FINNAN HADDIE

is started by soaking the fish in cold water for 40 minutes. Drain it. Pour boiling water over and let stand ten minutes Drain. Have ready a baking dish which has been generously greased and then sprinkled with sifted dry bread crumbs. Place fish on these. Sprinkle with more sifted crumbs. Dot generously with butter. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for not more than 25 minutes. Test to see if it will lift away from the bone at thickest part. Place on hot platter garnished with tight border of tomato and lemon wedges alternately. Pass

HARD-COOKED EGG SAUCE

One-third cup butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 1-2 cups hot water or fish stock (use fish stock when you serve this sauce on boiled fish), 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 2 chopped hard-cooked eggs. Melt one-half of the butter, stir in flour and seasonings, then gradually the water or stock until thick. Stir over low heat five minutes, then add remaining butter in small pieces and hot chopped hard-cooked egg. Wonderful on steamed or boiled salmon.

TOMATO FRITTERS

These are a nuisance to make—but if you want to be a cook of chef-calibre you should make these once or twice so that you know how when you want to impress visiting royalty. They are worth all of the trouble. One 28-oz. tin tomatoes, 6 cloves, 2 tablespoons sugar and 3 slices onion are cooked gently together for 20 mins. Force through sieve. To the puree add the salt and pepper. Melt 4 tablespoons butter, stir in 1-2 cup cornstarch, and when blended stir in the tomato puree; cook 2 minutes stirring. Stir this into 1 beaten egg. Pour onto buttered shallow pan or platter to cool. When cold cut into squares or diamonds or strips, then roll in crumbs, beaten egg (diluted with 1 tablespoon cold water) and in crumbs again. Fry in deep or shallow fat and drain. A wonderful accompaniment to any fish dish.

ORANGE CREAM SPONGE

Three tablespoons butter, 1-4 cup flour, 1 cup scalded milk, 4 eggs, 1-4 cup sugar 1 tablespoon orange juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind. Melt butter, stir in flour, then stir in milk gradually until thickened. Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored and add the orange juice and grated rind to them, and while continuing to beat gradually add the sugar. Stir in the hot mixture. Fold in the egg whites which have been beaten stiff. Turn into buttered mold and steam 35 minutes, tightly covered. Serve hot with

ORANGE SAUCE

Beat 2 egg whites stiff and gradually beat in 1-2 cup powdered sugar. When very stiff add 1-2 cup orange juice and 1-2 cup chopped orange sections free of membrane. Serve as soon as possible.

Is it any wonder the judge enjoyed the whole meal?

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"The small sweet courtesies of life"

You aren't afraid to be courteous, are you? (Some people are!) You don't shrink from ever doing or saying a courteous thing, do you? (So many people do!) People who go forth gallantly to courtesy and enjoy the obligations of courtesy, grow strongly and charmingly in bravery of thought and heart. They grow in spiritual reassurance. Truly their lives are simplified, for they know their way around in the world of courtesy, of consideration for others, of ease and grace in their day-by-day contact with other people. Said the wise and kindly poet, Sterne, "Hail, ye small sweet courtesies of life, for smooth do ye make the road of life!"

This season's accessories smartly lighten dark basic dress

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to a wedding reception, following an 11 o'clock church wedding. The reception is to be held in a suburban restaurant which caters to this kind of occasion. Please may I have your advice as to the correct costume for me to wear? I have a black sheer-wool dress-suit; also a pastel sheer-wool dress-suit. Would either be appropriate; or if not, what would be?—M. J.

Either would be appropriate for this mid-day occasion. . .but my preference would be the black dress-suit, lightened with smart, interesting accessories. How about a small, white hat, so extremely fashionable at the moment, with white gloves, and perhaps one or two white flowers to wear, real or artificial? Or one of the new, very pert red hats, with white gloves and a small red afternoon purse? This season the accessories to wear with a basic black (or navy blue) dress are so dramatic and crisp and easy-to-choose that you will have a fine time dressing-up your black dress-suit so that it will be and will look just right for this wedding reception.

RAWDON

George Thrasher Revisits Ontario After 52 Years

Rawdon—The home of Mrs. P. Sharpe, sixth concession, Rawdon, near Wellman's, was the scene of a happy family gathering on Friday evening in honor of her brother Mr. George Thrasher of Fort Steele, B.C. who arrived that afternoon for a month's holiday.

This was Mr. Thrasher's first visit to Ontario in 52 years. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Thrasher of Madoc. In March 1900 when a young man, George boarded the train at Ivanhoe and travelled to the northwest where he resided at various places and just recently he decided to visit his sister, Mrs. Sharpe and his brother Mr. Roy Thrasher, of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, and all the other relatives in this district. Two brothers and a sister are deceased.

Mr. Thrasher was twice married while in the western provinces and both women are deceased.

For several years Mr. Thrasher has been residing at Fort Steele, B.C. He boarded a plane at Cranbrook, B.C., and landed early Friday at Malton airport, Toronto.

Stops at Winnipeg

Enroute there was a 20 minute stop over at Winnipeg. Here he had a brief visit with his nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thrasher, former Belleville residents. From Toronto he travelled via train to Trenton and arrived Wellman's at 1.30 p.m.

The family reunion group Friday evening included besides Mrs. Sharpe and her son, Jack, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tharsher, Mount Pleasant, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shaw and Wayne, Ivanhoe and Mrs. Clarence Douglas and children, White Lake. All enjoyed a delightful evening together and at the close, Mrs. Sharpe served refreshments.

On Saturday, Mr. Jack Sharpe and his uncle visited Mrs. Fred Thrasher, who is spending a few weeks in Belleville at the Hitchon home.

Several other family reunions are being planned in honor of the home-coming of Mr. Thrasher.

GORE

The Gore — Congratulations are extended to Mr. Pete Lott who was married in Belleville on Monday afternoon.

Mr. Wright, of Belleville conducted the service at Victoria United Church on Sunday in the absence of Rev. J. P. Henderson through illness. An impressive service for our late King was held.

Mrs. B. L. Redner spent Monday with friends in Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Redner and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Townsend were Saturday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Reg Barber, Huff's Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Hubbs and children spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Calnan, 2nd concession.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Green, Rawdon, were Wednesday guests of his brother, Mr. Kenneth Green and Mrs. Green.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoskin, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brickman attended the funeral of the late Mr. G. Vandervoort in Wellington on Monday.

Local W.I. members attended their euchre party at the Kiwanis Centre, Thursday evening.

Mr. Willie Fox attended the funeral at Coe Hill on Friday of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gunter.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brickman, Belleville, spent Thursday at Mr. Lorne Brickman's.

MARMORA

I.O.D.E. Chapter Elects Officers

Marmora—The annual meeting of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. was held on Thursday evening, preceded by a turkey dinner in St. Andrew's Hall served by the W.A. of that church. Mrs. Muriel Regan presided over a good attendance which included members of Norwood and Stirling chapters. The flag was brought forward by Mrs. K. English followed by the prayer of the order recited in unison.

Annual reports were then given all being of a satisfactory nature.

One new member was installed bringing the membership up to 47.

Mrs. Bud Wells as convener presented the report of the nominating committee. Their election followed. The new slate is as follows: regent, Mrs. Muriel Regan; 1st vice president, Mrs. Marjorie Hughes; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Alice Marett; Echoes secretary, Mrs. Peggy Drew; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Verna Fraser; treasurer, Miss Miriam Savage; educational secretary, Mrs. Dorothy Walsh; Standard bearer, Mrs. Florence Easton; councillors, Mrs. Jennie Young, Mrs. Nora Brownlie, Mrs. Dorothy Aitchison; Mrs. Clare Borland and Mrs. Dorena Shannon.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker Mrs. L. L. Skuce, of Milton, vice president of Ontario Provincial Chapter, was introduced by Mrs. Brownlie. The speaker gave an entertaining talk in which much humor was interspered on a trip taken by her to Europe in recent years.

She described personalities encountered by her in the various countries and depicted their various attitudes in life.

Mrs. Young voiced the thanks of all present for the address. Mrs. Helen Brady thanked the W.A. on behalf of the chapter before the meeting closed.

Consolidated School Pupils Visit Tweed Steel Works Plant

Tweed—Accompanied by the school principal, Mr. S. H. Connor, the boys and girls of grade seven and eight of the consolidated school, were shown through the Tweed Steel Works plant recently by Mr. Carm Atton and Mr. Russell Rodgers, who guided them, describing and explaining the work of the plant in its various operations.

It was for the Belle Island mine at Wabana, Newfoundland, that Tweed Steel Works recently completed a large order for conveyors which brings the ore to the surface.

The girls and boys were shown arc welding, the cutting of steel by the acetylene torch and how other machines were operated. The visit was undertaken to acquaint the students with the type of work that is carried on in the community and in line with the new course in social studies.

Hydro Officials Petition Govt. To Reduce Tax

Toronto, Feb. 27—(CP)—Municipal hydro officials yesterday petitioned the federal government to reduce the amount of tax charged on electrical home appliances.

The annual convention of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association said in a resolution:

"The additional tax imposes an additional burden on both new and established households and merely adds to the cost of living without any recognizable effect on inflation."

W. F. Bolton of Windsor said reductions are expected at the next session of parliament.

The resolution said that defence authorities should see that proper controls are placed on the number of appliances manufactured. It said this would prevent any hampering of the defence effort.

Frank H. Plant of Ottawa was elected president of the O.M.E.A. for 1952. Other officers are:

M. J. Elliott, Bowmanville, W. E. Theaker, Paisley, Sam Ashton, Port Arthur, W. P. Dale, Brampton, Dr. Fred Barron, Paris, C. K. Merner, New Hamburg, H. R. Henderson, Woodstock, and G. H. Fuller, Windsor, Vice-presidents; F. Butte, Chatham, K. A. Christie, Toronto; C. J. Halliday, Chesley, H. O. Hawke, Galt, G. Matthews, Peterborough, and G. F. Hutcheson, Huntsville, honorary vice-presidents.

R. H. Martingale of Sudbury was elected president of the association of municipal electrical utilities, which represents the engineering and administrative staffs of municipal commissions.

Other officials elected were: N. A. Grandfield, Galt, vice-president; R. S. Reynolds, Chatham, O. H. Scott, Belleville, and A. W. H. Taber, Fort William, directors; G. R. Davis, G. E. Chase, W. E. Lane, H. A. Howard, O. W. Harris, R. B. Chandler, R. Harrison, V. A. McKillop and E. A. Washburn, district directors.

General Pangalos Of Greece, Dies

Athens, Feb. 27 — (AP)—Gen. Theodorus Pangalos, 73, who was military dictator of Greece in 1926 with powers which even included shortening women's skirts by two inches, died today.

He staged a fake plebiscite to win election to the presidency after he became military dictator and abolished the constitution.

Revolutionaries led by Gen. George Kondylis overthrew him in 1927, jailed him in a Turkish fort on Crete and kept him there under charges of high treason. He was freed 23 months later by Prime Minister Sophocles Venizelos without being tried.

One Communist MIG Shot Down, Another Damaged

Seoul, Korea, Feb. 27 (AP) — U.S. Sabre jet pilots today shot down one communist MIG-15 and damaged another in a 10-minute fight in clearing North Korean skies. It was the first jet battle since Saturday.

The Sabre pilots said they traded firing passes with about 190 MIGs—50 in the morning, 80 early in the afternoon and 60 toward evening.

Ground action continued light. The U.S. Eighth Army's night communique reported only light patrol clashes all along the 155-mile battlefront.

The communique said the biggest battle was a 70-minute clash between an Allied patrol and 25 Chinese west of Chorwon on the western front.

United Nations forces on the general front reported light patrol skirmishes with red units up to a platoon in strength, mostly along the Kumhwa-Kumsong road.

In the east, two red squads fired on an Allied position west of the Mundung valley for 25 minutes at daybreak. Allied artillery shot back.

Around Tuesday midnight in the same area a company of reds attacked an Allied advance position for an hour and a half but was driven off by heavy Allied artillery and mortar fire.

Canadian Army Nurse Missing Since Dec., Found

Ottawa, Feb. 27 —(CP)—Lieut. Elizabeth Sansom, Canadian army nurse reported missing, found and missing again between Dec. 25 and Jan. 6, has been found, the army said last night.

A brief statement said the 26-year-old nurse was located in New York and would be returned to her Stanley, N.B., home. Miss Sansom "appears to have been a victim of amnesia."

She disappeared after boarding a train at Kingston, Ont., last Dec. 24. She was presumably going to spend Christmas with relatives at Sherbrooke, Que., but never arrived.

A search was started and army authorities here reported Jan. 5 that Miss Sansom had been found in good health. But the next day the statement was denied.

The army explanation was that the previous announcement was "based on information believed at the time to be thoroughly reliable but which has since proved unsubstantiated."

The army said Miss Sansom was in touch with her parents by mail. When her parents informed the army, Capt. Margaret Dewar, matron of the Kingston hospital, was sent to New York to locate the girl.

The army announcement said Capt. Dewar will accompany Miss Sansom to her parents' home "shortly" and Miss Sansom will remain there "until she returns to duty."

Six Charges Filed Against Hartford Doctor

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 27 (AP)—The Connecticut medical examining board yesterday filed six charges of "unprofessional conduct" against Dr. Donald F. Gigson, 50-year-old physician recently freed of a manslaughter charge in the death of an elderly woman patient.

Five of the charges related to the treatment of this patient, 74-year-old Elizabeth M. Ayres of Danbury whose property, estimated to be worth nearly $100,000, passed to Dr. Gibson when she died. She had shared her home with him and had made him joint owner of her property.

The sixth charge related to the death of Frank C. Wetmore of New Milford, husband of Dr. Gibson's present wife, Ann, 40.

The charge said Dr. Gibson operated on Wetmore in 1948 "in such a manner as to have hastened or caused" his death.

The board will hear the charges March 27.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

GLENS, TRENTON TONIGHT

The handwriting will be on the wall for either the Glen Roys or the Trenton Jewellers at Memorial Arena tonight. The squads rated two of the best in the Trent Valley League have battled strenuously all season renewing a rivalry between Belleville and Trenton that has been in existence for many years. Both have won a game in the current semi-finals series of their league division and tonight is the payoff joust. Both teams, it is understood are at full strength for the all-important struggle which should be worth viewing. The winner meets the Trenton RCAF Flyers in a best-of-five finals series, with the first game scheduled for Brighton (home ice of the Flyers) on Friday, Feb. 29th.

* * *

Trenton Flyers, Havelock and Marmora finished atop of the southern, central and northern division of the Trent Valley Hockey League according to final standings released by Secretary Dick Bridgman. All three are in section playoff throes with the second and third placers battling in the semi-finals. Tonight at Memorial Arena the Belleville Glen Roys and Trenton Jewellers finish off their best-of-three series in what should be a smart piece of hockey pastiming while Marmora and Wellington clash in Wellington also tonight in the second game of their playoffs. Lakefield and Havelock and Norwood and Hastings also play tonight. Sectional winners will move into a three-of-five series with the central section playing whichever other is available, quite likely the southern group. All finals series will be three-of-five affairs.

SOFTBALL ANNUAL, SUNDAY

Harbingers of spring, the annual meetings of tennis, soccer, softball and baseball organizations are peeking round the corner Hockey is approaching the playoff stages and bowling leagues are readying to hit the Knife and Fork departments. Trophies are being polished and new ones purchased. Golfers are casting longing eyes at garages, attics or wherever they park the clubs for the winter, and fishermen are gazing longingly at calendars and probably in some cases readying the box and rods for the grand opening. You don't need robins to remind you that the vernal season is in the offing in sports-minded communities.

And speaking of that is the word that the Belleville Commercial Softball League is holding its 6th annual conclave in Memorial Arena come Sunday, March 2nd starting at 2 p. m. President Don Lee announced the date yesterday and is confident that the meeting will attract all softball-minded people as well as the greater part, if not all of those stalwarts who helped make the league the qualified success it was in 1950.

One of the important features on the agenda will be the election of officers for the coming season. Also important is the selection of delegates to the annual convention of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association being held in London, Ont., at the Easter weekend.

And there will be discussions that merit careful consideraation on the part of all concerned. Entries in the two sections of the league will be accepted at the conclave but it is not compulsory for potential entries to submit applications here.

It is hoped the league will sponsor two sections, Intermediate "A" and "AA" as was the case last year. There is a possibility that a junior team may operate in 1952. This subject will also come under the heading of "discussion".

Softball last season reached its highest peak here since the inception of the loop and for many years previous. Last year the league became affiliated with the OASA and it should do likewise this season. The calibre of the game was considerably higher than any of the five previous years of operation, thanks to building and equalization of strength. Prexy Lee has done a good job during his years of office and as this department has suggested before, if he is available, he should be back in the presidential chair. However, if not, it is to be hoped that his successor will receive the same co-operation and in 1952 bring the game back to an even higher status. Remember the date. Next Sunday, Memorial Arena at 2 p.m.

SOCCER, TOO

On another sports front the fitba' laddies are readying for the coming season. On March 14th the Bay of Quinte Football Association holds its annual meeting at the YMCA starting at eight o'clock sharp. President Les Digby will be in the chair and delegates for all last year's squads will likely be in attendance. All proposed amendments, or new articles proposed for the constitution should be in the hands of Secretary F. Jones by March 1st. You can contact Mr. Jones at 56 Graham Street, Belleville, phone 3791W.

THIS COULD BE IT!

The junior Hawklets fit and rarin' to go are in Peterborough tonight in the fourth game of their semi-final series with the Triple Links of that city. A goodly number of supporters from this city are said to be making the trip to give the younkers some home-town support. Buses will leave the arena at 6.30 this evening for Peterborough for fan accommodation, but be sure and get your tickets at Bill Cook's Cigar Store before embussing.

Soviets Accuse Canadians, Yanks Of 'Throwing' Olympic Puck Game

Moscow, Feb. 27 (AP)—The Soviets have accused the American and Canadian Olympic hockey teams of a "behind scenes deal" by which the Edmonton Mercurys "threw" their last game with the Americans, thereby permitting the United States to win second place in the winter games.

(Canada and the U.S. played a 3-3 tie in their last game in the Olympic competition at Oslo. The draw gave the Mercurys the hockey championship and jumped the Americans from fourth to second place in the tournament. The tie also clinched second place for the Americans in team honors with 89 1-2 points.)

The Very Idea!

The Soviet press stated this morning that the "behind scenes deal was so evident that even the bourgeois Norwegian press was forced openly to make declarations on it."

The Soviets charged the alleged "deal" was aimed at keeping Czechoslovakia out of second place in the hockey competition.

(Czechoslovakia and Sweden finished in a tie for third place in the hockey competition. Sweden won third place by beating the Czechs, 5-3, in a playoff,)

There was no immediate comment from Canadian and U.S. sources.

Howe in The Limelight Again, Scores Winner for Red Wings As Team Nudges Boston 4-3

(By The Canadian Press)

Those fans who argue that Gordie Howe is the greatest right-winger in the National Hockey League added fuel to their fire in Boston last night when the 23-year-old native of Floral, Sask., scored the winning goal with less than two minutes remaining as Detroit Red Wings edged the Bruins 4-3.

Howe, the league's leading scorer, potted the winner at 18:46 of the final period for his second tally of the night. In scoring the pair—his 36th and 37th of the season—and assisting on another, he boosted his season's N. H. L. point total to 67—nine more than runner-up Elmer Lach of Montreal Canadiens.

9½ Games Ahead

Last night's victory moved Detroit 9½ game in front of the second-place Montrealers while the loss leaves Boston three points behind the fourth-place New York Rangers.

The game was played before only 4,049 fans, the smallest Boston crowd in more than 24 years. However, it took place in the smaller Boston Arena after a wooden awning collapsed Tuesday at Boston station ripping away some of the brine pipes in Boston Gardens, located above.

The Wings took a 2-0 first-period lead on goals by Alex Delvecchio and Ted Lindsay. Real Chevrefils put Boston back in the game at 6:41 of the middle session, but Howe's first marker was scored two minutes later.

Two more Boston goals by Johnny Peirson and Red Sullivan before the period ended deadlocked the issue. Howe's second tally late in the game provided Detroit with its winning edge.

Third-place Toronto Maple Leafs move into New York tonight for a game with the fourth-place Rangers.

The Leafs, who haven't won a game in their last six outings, will be operating under manager Conn Smythe's scrutiny for the first time since Feb. 10. He has been vacationing in Florida for the last few weeks.

Toronto may use rookie Jim Morrison, recently acquired from Boston in a trade for Flem Mackell, back on defence. Originally working on the blue line, Morrison has been moved up to centre upon joining the Maple Leaf organization at Pittsburgh in the American Hockey League.

The Rangers will be without the services of forward Jack Stoddard, out for the remainder of the season with a broken wrist. Stoddard suffered the injury when he collided with defenceman Jim Ross during a practice yesterday.

The Rangers obtained Stoddard in a December trade with Providence of the A. H. L.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, tabbed as the man to clinch the National Hockey League's individual scoring race, now is closer to making that prediction come true.

Howe scored two goals and assisted in another Tuesday night to bring his total to 67 points — including 37 goals which is tops in the league.

He leads second - place Elmer Lach of Montreal Canadiens by 9 points. Lach leads the assist column with 45.

Ted Lindsay of Detroit, who picked up two points Wednesday, is third with 50 points — 21 goals and 29 assists. He tops fourth - place Don Raleigh of New York Rangers by two points.

Edmonton Edges Victoria 4-3

(By The Canadian Press)

Edmonton Flyers last night staved off Victoria Cougars 4-3 to move within four points of the third-place Tacoma Rockets in the Pacific Coast Hockey League.

Motto McLean, Bert Giesebrecht, Eddie Joss and Colin Kilburn scored for the host Flyers. Victoria marksmen were Reg Abbott, Walt Atanas and Eddie Doroboy.

Tennis Amateurs Draw Suspension

San Francisco, Feb. 27 (AP)—Tom Brown, former United States Davis Cupper, and Harry Likas, once among this country's top 10, have been suspended by the Northern California Tennis Association for playing an exhibition with professionals.

It was understood the directors were prepared to reinstate the pair after they apologize. The ban will be recognized nationally until lifted.

Brown ranked No. 4 nationally in 1950. That year he plucked the only U.S. victory as Australia grabbed the Davis Cup, four matches to one. Both he and Likas played only in California tourneys last season.

They were suspended yesterday for playing an exhibition against pros Don Budge and Jack Kramer, perpetual pro king, Sunday at Pebble Beach, Calif. Amateur rules prohibit play in an unsanctioned tourney for which admission is charged without specific clearance from the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

Fans, Players Battle In Northern - Playoff

(By The Canadian Press)

Sudbury Wolves moved two games up in their best-of-five Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A finals last night when they defeated North Bay Black Hawks 6-3 before 4,000 rowdy home fans.

Twice fans and players mixed in the trigger-tempered tussle. One fan had his cheek split by Sudbury forward George Defelice when he jumped on the ice to back up verbal threats. Police quickly broke up a repeat performance during the second period when they ejected another invader off the playing surface.

Twelve penalties were handed out, three of them going as majors for fighting.

Two games were played in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A race last night.

Bilts Beat Spits

With the circuit fast approaching its final week, the runner-up Guelph Biltmores' 4 -3 win against Windsor Spitfires loomed as the most important of the two, the victory moving the Bilts but a point away from the league-leading Toronto Marlboros.

The other junior A clash saw Kitchener Greenshirts climb into fifth place in the 10-team loop with an 8-5 decision over Waterloo Hurricanes.

Brockville Ousts Clinton Comets

Clinton, N. Y., Feb. 27—(CP)—Brockville Magedomas advanced into the finals of the New York-Ontario Senior Hockey League last night with a 12-5 victory over Clinton Comets. The victory was the third straight for Magedomas who had come from behind a 3-1 deficit in games to take the best-of-seven semi-final four games to three.

Magedomas now meet Cornwall Falcons in the first game of the best-of-seven finals Friday in Brockville. Falcons took their semi-final with Gananoque Gans four games to one.

Mortson Strolls the Culprit Carpet for "Kicking" Incident

The much-discussed l'affaire Mortson awaits the evidence of the alleged victim in the case, Hy Buller, of New York Rangers. Mortson, Maple Leafs stalwart rearguard, is on NHL top brass carpet for allegedly kicking Buller in the New York - Toronto game on Feb. 6. At a meeting in Toronto, NHL president Clarence Campbell viewing moving pictures of the incident, decided they were inconclusive and postponed a verdict until he could get further evidence from Buller in New York. The Leaf "bad boy" is seen as he emerged from the preliminary "trial," with Hap Day, right and coach Joe Primeau, left. — Central Press Canadian.

Favor 'Forgetting The Whole Thing' As Buller-Mortson Probe Resumes

By MEL SUFRIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Feb. 27—(CP)—Sentiment appeared to be in favor of forgetting the whole thing today as President Clarence Campbell resumed the National Hockey League investigation of last Thursday's Buller-Mortson incident.

Gus Mortson, Toronto Maple Leafs defenceman, was under suspension for attempting to kick Hy Buller of New York Rangers in a game at Toronto last week.

Buller, for one, was reported to have told Campbell he didn't think Mortson was really attempting to injure him—the action for which the Leaf player was fined $100 and suspended. The Rangers appeared equally willing to let the matter drop.

However, Campbell explained in a telephone interview, it is customary for such cases to be disposed of at a time when the two teams involved are playing as will be the case tonight when the Rangers and Leafs clash here.

Decided Today

The question to be decided today was whether further action would be taken against Mortson or whether he would be cleared to take part in tonight's game.

Attending today's meeting, a continuation of the hearings which began in Toronto, were Campbell, Mortson, Buller, New York manager Frank Boucher and George Gravel, who refereed the game in which the incident occurred.

Boucher said yesterday that the Rangers have not pressed for any additional punishment for Mortson. He read a telegram which Buller had sent to Campbell, at the request of the N. H. L. president, in which he described the incident.

Buller's telegram said he was carrying the puck and collided with Mortson as he reached the blue line. Both players fell.

"He gave a half-hearted kick as he got up and did not injure me and it did not seem to me that it was an attempt to injure."

Acually, the Rangers had more important matters to worry about than that of a week-old incident in which no one was injured.

With regular goalie Chuck Rayner already sidelined for the season by a torn cartilage, the Rangers yesterday lost right winger Jack Stoddard when he suffered a broken wrist in practice.

Coach Bill Cook plans to alternate Jim Conacher and Reg Sinclair on the first line with Edgar Laprade and Ed Kullman in place of Stoddard.

Thus far the Rangers haven't appeared to Miss Rayner greatly, chiefly because replacement Emile (The Cat) Francis has been filling in well with the help of a tight defence. He is unbeaten in the four games since taking over.

LOTS OF NEEDLES AVAILABLE

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 27—(CP)—Indians on the nearby Garden River Reserve are considering going into the patent medicine business. Chief Danny Pine has received the second letter in three weeks from California asking for a pillow made of balsam or northern pine needles. Californians apparently believe such a pillow is the next best thing to a vacation in Algoma for persons suffering from sinus trouble who want a good night's sleep. Chief Pine says he has lots of needles available.

Wiry, 21-year-old Kay McNamee of Vancouver named top woman swimmer in Canada, wants to be a member of the Olympic swimming team.

She, with her 18-year-old brother Gerry, took the top swimming awards for 1951. Kay was awarded the Beatrice Pines Trophy and Gerry, for the second year in a row, the Sir Edward Beatty Trophy.

"I'm swimming better than ever," said Kay in Vancouver yesterday, "and looking forward to the Olympic trials. It would be nice if Gerry and I made the team."

Miss McNamee was on the 1948 Olympic team in London and made a world tour following the [illegible] British Empire games in New Zealand.

Dates for the Canadian senior ladies basketball finals were announced last night in Edmonton by N. M. Robertson, second vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association. The best-of-five series will be staged at the home of the Western Canada winner April 7-12.

The eight-team Pacific Coast Hockey League, stretching from seaboard to prairies, is looking for a record attendance of more than 1,000,000 this season. League headquarters in Seattle said yesterday the count after 213 games was 743,092. The best the P.C.H.L. has done previously was in the 1949-50 season when it drew 942,123 paying fans.

Maurice Podoloff is stepping out as president of the American Hockey League when his present term expires June 1, he announced following a meeting of the league's Board of Governors yesterday in Syracuse, N.Y.

The national 100-mile amateur motorcycle race at Daytona Beach, Fla., which has been postponed from Saturday, was cancelled yesterday, because of continued rain.

The Fabers—a five-man bowling team of the Bergen County League in Teaneck, N.J., (Monday) night piled up a three-game score of 3,754, one of the highest in the history of the 10-pin game The quintet scored 1,270, 1,227, and 1,257.

A big welcome is planned for Edmonton Mercurys when the Olympic hockey champions arrive home in mid-March. Team sponsor Jim Christiansen has wired Edmonton from overseas that Mercurys will arrive back March 16 or 17 after a series of exhibition games in England and on the continent.

Louis Camaleon Garcia, Spanish speaking infielder from Venezuela, has signed a contract with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, it was announced yesterday in Toronto. Garcia, who last winter accepted a $10,000 bonus from Chicago White Sox and then rejected it because he was homesick, played last season in the Venezuelan League.

Dagmar Rom, Austria's blonde Olympic ski star and movie actress and Guenther Peis, German newspaper man, were married before a Norwegian magistrate yesterday in Oslo. Norwegian ski fans jammed the street outside the marriage bureau to see the glamorous skier and her husband. Newsreel and press cameras filmed the ceremony.

Charles W. Rowan, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Lacrosse Association, said yesterday the association's annual meeting will be held in Toronto April 19. He said amendments to the constitution and by-laws must be filed in writing at least 20 days prior to the annual meeting. Nominations for executive officers must be filed 10 days before.

Kingston Vics Whip Lindsay 4-2 To Lead Series

Kingston Vics took a stranglehold on their junior "B" semi-finals series with the Lindsay Kinsmen last night defeating the group leaders by a 4-2 score to rack up their second win of the series.

Vics lead the series 2-1 with both teams having battled to a tie in the fourth game. The fifth game of the series will be played at Lindsay on Friday night.

If Lindsay wins and ties the series, the teams start from scratch in another series, or if time does not permit will play a sudden-death tilt on neutral ice, according to the OHA constitution.

BCI Girl Cagers Defeat Albert; Bow to Wellington

(By Bev. and Bette)

Monday night at Albert College, BCI trimmed the college seniors by a 49-5 score.

The seniors added another victory to their long list. As Albert College scored all their points by free shots BCI had little competition. Twenty-four fouls were called during the game, 18 going to Albert College, 6 to BCI.

The high scorer for BCI was Barbara Bennett with 15 points. Diane Gourley scored 11 points closely followed by Diane Gibson with 10.

High scorers for Albert College were June Thomson and Gayle Kelly with two points apiece.

BCI travel to Napanee Thursday where they will meet the Napanee seniors.

Lineups:

BCI: B. Bennett 15, Diane Gibson 10, Helen Weston, Diane Gourley 11, Eva Robbins 4, Beth Wilbur 2, Carol Weston, Dene Lawrence, Elinor McCormick, Joan Walden, B. J. Goodwin, Doris Kerr 9.

Albert College: June Thomson 2, Mary Mladsi, Bev Hill, Mabel Graham 1, Gayle Kelly 2, Joyce Passmore, Faye Biggs, Joyce Fleming, Ruth Lockhart, Carol Crawford, Sylvia Fitzsimmons.

Juniors Lose

In the collegiate gym on Monday night Wellington Juniors defeated BCI 30-13.

The BCI juniors played a good game but were unable to overcome the strong team work of Wellington.

The juniors are having a streak of bad luck, we hope they will do better in their future games.

Alberta Fox and Jean Faulkner were tied with four points each to their credit. Bryant was the outstanding player for Wellington scoring 24 of the 30 points.

Lineups:

BCI: Alberta Fox 4, Anne Bennett 3, Eva Hrachovec, Marjorie Kellett, Sandra Winter 2, Arlene Parks, Marg MacLaurin, Jean Faulkner 4, Donna McNish, Dawn La Rue, Jeanne Clarke.

Wellington: Bryant 24, Wair 4, Houlding 2, Darland, Ferguson, Brimley, Guernsey, Slaven, Guernsey, Parliament, Wilson.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

In the classics or the bridge games, chasing dough or building parks, we may strive to match the big names who have made their shining marks. Many who deserve it clearly miss the goal of being great. It so often happens merely by a simple twist of fate.

In a match for a national title was the deal shown here:

♠7
♥Q 8 6 4 2
♦Q 8 6
♣10 4 3 2

WEST
♠Q 9 6 5 4 2
♥J
♦9 5 2
♣A K 5

EAST
♠10 3
♥A 10 9 7 5
♦None
♣Q J 9 8 7 6

SOUTH
♥K 3
♦A K J 10 7 4 3
♣None

South and north reached a contract of six diamonds. During the bidding, north had bid hearts and east had made an immediate overcall in hearts. What did he mean thereby?

The rule is that such a bid admits losing no tricks in the suit; that the bidding must not stop short of game; that partner should show his longest suit to determine their best trump suit.

Many experts, however, employ this convention in anticipation of a tight situation that might develop. The purpose of it here was to signal partner for an opening lead in that suit.

West was familiar with this lead-directing tip-off and intended to comply. However, this expert elected first to lead his club king. What happened, as you can see, made a big difference.

A heart opening lead and a heart return would give west a ruff. This would defeat the slam. With the club lead, south had plenty of time to pull trumps after dummy duffed a couple of spades.

The lead of club king was to advise east that west also had the club ace. That it did not go through was one of those things. It lost the championship for this pair.

There are some interesting bidding features in this deal. Such as the type of defence that could be put up by east and west after south has opened the bidding.

Would you like to have me dig up some of it? Wait till I get my shovel.

PROTEST RAISED

Toronto, Feb. 27 — (CP) — An attempt by some teachers to clarify Toronto report card marking systems by adding plus and minus signs to the "outstanding, satisfactory" ratings has raised a storm of protest in the Board of Education.

Trustee Stewart Bell objected to the additional markings because they had been used without consulting the board. He was told public school Superintendent Philmister had told teachers they could make the change, but there was nothing official.

Judge Approves Settlement Of $2,150,000

Cleveland, Feb. 27 (AP)—Federal Judge Paul Jones yesterday approved a $2,150,000 settlement of claims resulting from the Noronic steamship tragedy in Toronto three years ago.

Out of 575 suits filed in the fatal fire, only ten claimants have rejected the settlement offer made by the Canada Steamship Lines, Ltd. Thirty-one others have not indicated whether they wish to approve or reject it.

Judge Jones set March 18 as the deadline for these 41 to participate in the offer or take their cases to court.

Those who have accepted by that date will present their claims to a court-appointed commissioner who will decide their share of the $2,150,000. Judge Jones indicated Ralph Vince will be selected for the job.

Originally, the Steamship Company said its offer would be withdrawn unless acceptance was given by all claimants. It since has agreed to settle separately with those approving the offer.

The Noronic, a luxury cruise ship, burned Sept. 17, 1949, with the loss of 119 lives. Claims resulting totalled some $19,000,000, with $700,000 the highest amount asked.

Most of the claimants live in Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

Unmarried Mother Says Doctor Paid $150 for Twins

Montreal, Feb. 27. (CP)—Dr. Leon Azoulay, alleged head of a ring dealing in black market babies, appeared in court yesterday for preliminary hearing and was confronted by an unmarried mother who said the doctor had delivered her of twins and paid her $150 for them.

Dr. Azoulay was ordered for voluntary statement Friday. The name of the mother was withheld.

The mother testified she had paid Dr. Azoulay for treatment given her during her pregnancy and that when the twins were born he urged her to give them to him for adoption.

She said he had promised that they would go to good parents and had her sign what he said were adoption papers. The papers were in English, which she could not read, and the doctor would not give her a copy—he would not even let her keep pictures of the babies, she said.

Herman Buller and Bill Dutka are charged with Dr. Azoulay with "depriving an unmarried mother of her babies." The hearing is continuing.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 27 — (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor, who has crowded more into two decades of living than most women accomplish in a lifetime, is celebrating her 20th birthday today with her new husband, Michael Wilding.

She is one of those gals who come along every few years to keep Hollywood an exciting place. Among her predecessors have been Mabel Normand, Jean Harlow, Lupe Velez, Lana Turner, Ingrid Bergman, Rita Hayworth and Ava Gardner.

Liz first showed her potentialities five years ago. Studio workers, who remembered her as the little girl in "National Velvet," turned their heads as she walked through the commissary. They were startled to learn that the little girl had suddenly developed into a gorgeous woman.

She was anxious to catch up with her appearance. She was impatient with the bobby-socker roles she was given and with her publicity as a lover of animals. The biggest thrill in her young life was when she was given her first grown-up role, as Robert Taylor's wife in "Conspirator." The picture was made in England, and it was then that she met her present husband.

Covering Liz Taylor's romances has been a hectic struggle. There was her first big romance with football star Glenn Davis. They shaped up as an all - American couple, and she waited for him while he was overseas in the army. But when he returned, the thrill was gone.

Then came her whirlwind romance and engagement with Bill Pawley. When that was punctured, Liz began to feel the sting of public censure. People snickered or clicked their tongues at her "engagements," and she was upset by the criticism. But not for long.

Nick Hilton, the hotel heir, was her third romance. Liz and Nick, were wed May 6. 1950. They were divorced eight months later. Liz sniffled that young Hilton cared more for the gambling tables than her on their European honeymoon.

And now Liz is again honeymooning in Europe. But the honeymoon will be cut short when Liz returns here for her next picture. The studio has titled it "The Girl Who Had Everything."

PROVIDE HOSPITAL PLAN

Hamilton, Feb. 27—(CP)—City council last night approved participation in a medical and hospital plan for civic employees at a cost of $54,000 for 1952. Contribution on the part of the city will be on a basis of 50 cents a month for single employees and $1.50 for married men. Those with children will cost the city $2.50.

AT THE BELLE — Tyrone Power, Ann Blyth and Michael Rennie are co-starred in the 20th. Century-Fox Technicolor romantic drama, "I'll Never Forget You," showing at the Belle Theatre tonight for the last times with an added Technicolor featurette, "Paris City of Fashion," introducing new styles from the Old World.

AT THE McCARTHY — Universal-International's "Week End With Father," opening Thursday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, is a delightful comedy-romance for the entire family. Van Heflin, Patricia Neal and nine-year-old Gigi Perreau head the starring cast of the new comedy. Heflin engages Jimmy Hunt, above, in a potato sack race while Virginia Field, left, and Patricia Neal are seemingly attracted to rugged Richard Denning, the latter in the role of a summer camp counsellor. "Week End With Father" was directed by Dougal Sirk and produced by Ted Richmond.

IT'S NOT GOING TO BE SO EASY TO GET RID OF ME, ANTON! YOU'RE OVERLOOKING SOME IMPORTANT ITEMS!
FOR EXAMPLE...?
FOR EXAMPLE, I'M SUPPOSED TO BE BEST MAN AT THE WEE DORZIE'S WEDDING...IF I'M NOT THERE, HE'LL START ASKING QUESTIONS!
OH, THAT HAS ALL BEEN ARRANGED, M'SIEU HAZARD!
WE HAVE LEFT A TYPEWRITTEN NOTE EXPLAINING TO M'SIEU WEE DORZIE THAT YOU HAVE SUDDENLY BEEN CALLED AWAY—URGENTLY! ANY QUESTIONS?

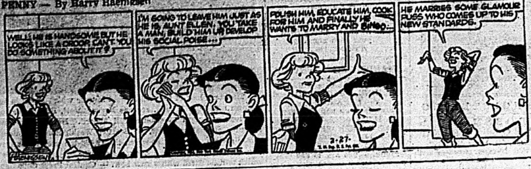
PENNY — By Harry Haenigsen



WELL, HE IS HANDSOME BUT HE LOOKS LIKE A DROOP. CAN'T YOU DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT?
I'M GOING TO LEAVE HIM JUST AS HE IS, AUNT ELLEN. YOU TAKE A MAN, BUILD HIM UP, DEVELOP HIS SOCIAL POISE...
POLISH HIM, EDUCATE HIM, COOK FOR HIM AND FINALLY HE WANTS TO MARRY AND BINGO...
HE MARRIES SOME GLAMOUR PUSS WHO COMES UP TO HIS NEW STANDARDS.

I LIKE ITALIAN RESTAURANTS, BUT I SHALL NEVER LEARN HOW TO EAT SPAGHETTI
IT'S SIMPLE
I CAN'T SEEM TO HOLD IT ON MY FORK IT ALWAYS SLIPS OFF
WATCH ME
YOU WIND IT AROUND YOUR FORK IN A BALL GET THE IDEA?
YOU CERTAINLY HAVE THE KNACK
THEN YOU CLOSH YOUR LIPSH 'ROUND IT, LIKE THISH. SHEE?
YES, BUT I HOPE I NEVER LEARN

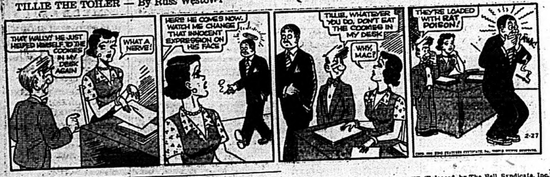
MAY I SPEAK TO CHERRY, MRS. RANK?... IT'S URGENT!
THIS IS THE THIRD TIME IN AN HOUR I'VE HAD TO TELL YOU, SHE'S NOT HERE!
HI, MARK!
JOHNNY, I'VE BEEN TRYING TO GET CHERRY ON THE PHONE ALL DAY WITH NO LUCK...WILL YOU PLEASE TAKE HER A NOTE?
YOU BETCHA, BOY!
AND HURRY BACK! I'M LEAVING TOWN TONIGHT, JOHNNY!

TILLIE THE TOILER — By Russ Westover



THAT WALLY! HE JUST HELPED HIMSELF TO THE COOKIES IN MY DESK AGAIN
WHAT A NERVE!
HERE HE COMES NOW. WATCH ME CHANGE THAT INNOCENT EXPRESSION ON HIS FACE

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, Feb. 28

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Sensible, less experimenting till sure. Influences clearer later. However you should plan. Go about regular duties, attending to immediate problems promptly.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Avoid pointless entanglements, getting into others' problems or "hair," you'll find enough opposition in your own backyard. Don't pass up difficult tasks, you can handle them.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Favorable aspects for personal and business affairs. No time to allow emotional or unstable tendencies to obstruct progress; could be costly. Domestic harmony greatly up to you.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—May have to freeze some prospects for a while. Be sure you are on right course. Don't follow every impulsive idea or outside suggestions, still give your own ideas due thought.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Be prepared for quick changeovers. Some uncertainties in some things. Certain plans may go astray but you stick at it and it will turn out okay. Protect your income, property, family.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Well meant words won't be enough. Sound, energetic action is all-round advice. Stars favor slower if safer way of doing things. Domesticity, marriage need gentle attitude.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—With proper allocation of energies, and taking important tasks first, you can come out with high score. Meditation, diplomatic conferences best road to follow for best results.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio) — Advantages may break fast and unexpectedly, especially pertaining to assets, properties, contacts and your business. Have an ear to what's going on, advance leads may be had this way.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Auspicious rays, very little contention, noticably absent in financial or professional matters. But some risky new ideas are not included, they always need careful consideration.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Some advance study needed now. All obligations, contracts, personal matters will be best handled with open mind, discretion, accuracy. Home duties, children's interests, socials achieve.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—A firm, determined front will serve you best. Planetary vibrations also add "extra care, tact!" Be observing, alert, and trust in God. Avoid places and persons that are not good.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)— At first glance things may not be inviting or to your liking. Look sharply for hidden advantages, openings. Don't give up on first try; you can unearth new gains with perseverance, grit.

YOU BORN TODAY are innately gentle, may "follow the leader" unwisely if you don't watch yourself. Take on something new once in awhile, it will develop your fine imagination, helps general activities. You can do more than realize, all you need is incentive. So don't be over-cautious and miss good chances. Generally a music and art lover; may lean toward science, literary work. Pep up your decisions, seek higher education and follow your religious training always.

Birthdate of Elizabeth Taylor, actress; Gene Sarazen, golf champion.

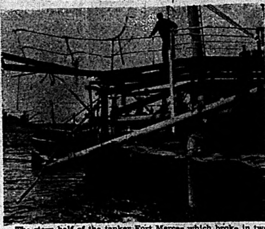
With New Face, to be Good as New



The stern half of the tanker Fort Mercer which broke in two in a storm off Massachusetts, reaches Narragansett, R.I., under tow of two tugs and with 13 seamen still aboard. Here one of the 13, Arthur Cunningham, oiler, of Seattle, Washington, examines the centre section, the point at which the 10,000-ton vessel was severed. The 13 will get salvage money reward for staying with the ship which will be fitted with a new bow. — Central Press Canadian.

More Precious Than Rubies

By Nina Wilcox Putnam

Alma Conroy repeated her words to her husband: "You've said you'd stop drinking before, Tommy. But this time the consequences are so serious that I suppose I've just got to help you, whether I believe your promise or not. But right at this moment I can't see where the money is coming from."

"You'll have to believe this promise, Jewels," Tommy said earnestly "because I mean to keep it. I guess it took a bad scare like this to get me on the wagon—but believe it or not, I'm there!"

He went into the bathroom to breakfast on the table absently as she considered what she might best do. She had $80 left in her bank account. Of course this emergency would come up the day after she had paid both the rent and the monthly bills!

Then, there were her savings. But the savings bank required several days' notice for a withdrawal and Tommy had to have the money before night. She could not ask Papa Victor to help her for the old man had only his intermittant earnings and a small nest egg. Besides he would suspect at once that Tommy had been up to something, and would ask too many questions.

How on earth was she to get $240? Joe Denton? Oh, no! She simply couldn't ask Joe. Neither could Tommy ask Denton for that matter—not just when he, Tommy, was supposed to have received a big salary boost! She stood stock still, a plate of fruit suspended in mid-air, feeling exactly as if she had run into an impassable wall.

Then all at once the little white radio answered her question. Musically it suggested that she sell her old gold and diamonds to the Mammoth Gold-buying Company.

At that moment Tommy stalked into the room, freshly shaved and dressed, and switched off the radio.

"Mind?" he asked. "I have the world's worst headache."

Alma merely shook her tawny head.

"Think of any way to raise the dough?" he asked.

"Yes. I'll have it here for you by 5.30 this evening."

He did not ask her how she intended getting the cash and she did not volunteer her solution

"God bless you, darling!" he said gravely. "You'll never know what you've saved me from."

"Are you going out?" He made a wry grimace

"I have to. There's a little unfinished business I must take care of. See you later, Jewels. You're a great girl!"

When he had gone Alma went to the drawer in which she kept a shoe box containing odds and ends of old jewelry—discarded gold settings, childish ornaments, ugly pieces inherited from her family, which she had stowed away thinking to remodel them some day in a leisure hour.

She ran them through her fingers now, remembering the history of some, puzzling over others. There were 2 heavy gold bracelets which she had entirely forgotten she owned. But there was one item, well remembered, which appeared to be missing. This was a pair of gold and moonstone cuff links which she had designed and made for Tommy's birthday the first year they were married.

Her taste had run to the florid in those days, and the cuff-links had been too large and too ornate. Later, she and Tommy had tacitly agreed that the links were suitable only for fancy dress and the gift had found its way into the old shoe box. But they were missing now.

She looked hastily through Tommy's things, but the links were not to be found and it was getting late. Alma made up her package without them. At lunch time she would take this package to the Mammoth Gold-buying Company. Her expert eye told her that she had enough stuff to obtain the amount she needed.

Undoubtedly Trumbull's would pay a higher price, but she did not dare take the things to The House for solvency was imperatively required by Trumbull's; employees were liberally paid, and not supposed to get into financial difficulties—the companies which insured the fabulous stock made sure of that! Alma tucked the package under her arm and went off to work.

Though she was late in reaching Trumbull's, Old Victor was not at the bench when she arrived. She began to work rapidly hoping that when he came his keen old eyes would not read the strained anxiety in her heart. But when he arrived at last her grandfather was fairly glowing with excitement and happiness. For once he was too deeply absorbed in his own concerns to notice anything wrong.

"My small beautiful!" he cried kissing her on both cheeks. "I have done it! It is approved!"

"Yes, but what, Papa Victor?"

"Surely you cannot have forgotten? My latest design, the Gold Star pin! The pin to be worn in memory of our heroes —in sapphires, diamonds and rubies for the haute monde, in plain gold or in patriotic enamels for the bourgeoise! Mr. Muncie has said okay."

"Mr. Muncie never said okay in his life!" she protested smilingly as she kissed him in return. "But I am so glad, Papa Victor! It is sure to be a great success!"

At lunch time Alma Conroy left Trumbull's a little after one o'clock and took her box of broken trinkets to the address she had so often heard over the radio.

It was a lovely day and Fifth Avenue was in its gayest mood, sparkling in the crisp sunshine as she walked downtown, drifting with the colorful crowds. Breathing the keen air made her feel stronger with that strange, electrical magic which New York at its best exerts.

But she was a trifle timid about what lay ahead of her. She had never been in a pawnshop in her life nor had an errand which in any way approximated her present one. But, she told herself, it was ridiculous to feel any embarrassment. Thousands of people did this sort of thing every day, that was obvious. But the slightly apprehensive feeling had not left her when she reached her destination.

The Mammoth Gold - buying Company was situated in a rather gaunt old-fashioned office building midway between the fashionable shopping centre and the loft-buildings further to the west. It had a dingy look about the entrance and judging from the paucity of names on the directory-board, most of the original occupants had long since moved uptown to better quarters.

Alma found the room number she wanted without difficulty and stepped into the hand-worked elevator along with a man carrying a mound of unmounted fox skins, a shabby foreigner with a portfolio under one arm and a couple of flashy-looking gum chewing girls, obviously returning from lunch.

At the 10th floor she got out and as the elevator door clanged shut behind her, stood looking around at the blank doors which confronted her on every side.

All the offices in sight appeared to be unoccupied. The Mammoth people must, she thought, get a very cheap rental in such a place. She hoped that this did not mean they would haggle over price! But that was hardly likely to be true of a firm which year after year had bid in the Trumbull sweepings!

The corridors ran from the elevators in such a way as to make it difficult to see at once in which direction the number she sought, lay. And then just as she was wondering which way to turn, the music coming from the radio down the hall to her left was interrupted by a familiar slogan. . .

This program is coming to you through the courtesy of the Mammoth Gold-buying Company, the oldest establishment of its kind in New York City. . ."

The announcer's voice filled the echoing corridor with a strange predominance, and Alma followed the sound of it to the open door through which the sound was pouring. At the threshold she paused and looked in, faintly surprised to find no one there. The radio, turned on full blast, seemed to have no listeners.

The office itself was an ordinary one such as she had expected to see, with a receptionist's desk behind a high counter shut off to the ceiling with a metal grille such as is common in any establishment where valuables are handled. Beyond were a couple of empty desks with work neatly stacked in piles typewriters and filing cases, while the far wall was broken by two windows which looked out upon the dingy bricks of the adjoining building.

A door marked "Mr. Wheeler, Private" led to the inner room. Alma raised her voice in competition to the blaring radio.

"Hello, there!" she called. "Can I get a little service, please?"

There was no reply and after a few minutes of waiting Alma found a buzzer under the receptionist's window and pressed it vigorously. She could hear it ringing in the private office, but, although she kept her finger on it steadily for quite a while, there was no response

Glancing at her watch, she began to grow impatient. Time was slipping by and she wanted to dispose of the things she had brought and get back to The House before she overstayed her lunch hour.

Obviously the receptionist here was overstaying her lunch hour, but it seemed incredible that a place of this sort would be left deserted with the front door open. And that radio! Someone in the private office had in all probability turned it on to check the company's broadcast and was very likely sitting in there deaf to everything else! Well they'd better come to life and take care of her.

With an indignant shake of her wrist Alma tried the gate which led into the main office. To her surprise it opened at her touch. She walked through and rapped smartly on the inner door.

There was no reply and after a moment's hesitation she turned the knob She could, she thought, apologize and explain her need for haste.

But there was no need for an apology. The room beyond was a scene of utter confusion.

Furniture had been overturned, papers were scattered everywhere and on the floor, lay the body of an elderly man, his snowy hair stained by the dark pool of blood in which he lay.

Defends His Home Against Raiders

Howard Prevatte, 30-year-old North Carolina farmer, stands at the door of his three-room cabin holding the rifle with which he fought off an attempt by masked raiders to seize him. When shots from the rifle drove off the raiders, Prevatte took his family to a neighbor's house. With him holding the fort here are James, Jr., Mrs. Prevatte and baby Shirley. Young Bobby looks warlike in front of his dad. Recently ten men, believed to be Ku Klux Klan members, were arrested for flogging a man and a woman in North Carolina. — Central Press Canadian.

Hastings Farm Forum

Four forums reported meeting on Feb. 18, each with an attendance of 14. The forums reporting were Brookdale, Foxboro, Hazzards and River Valley.

The four forums were agreed that increased freight rates adversely affect the farmer—grain is higher because of charges and also the farmer has to pay freight charges on machinery, tractors, trucks, etc. purchased over and above the actual cost.

As to a remedy, all four agreed that the St. Lawrence Seaway project should help. Truck competition is keen and has a tendency to lower rates.

Also Foxboro forum suggests besides the seaway project that we (1) reduce cost of labor; (2) reduce number of holidays so men will take care of their wages; (3) reduce number of holidays; (3) work 10 hours a day and 6 days a week.

Brookdale also has another suggestion. They suggest that a blower be placed at head of Great Lakes to move grain eastward similar to the movement of oil, and also that more processing plants be built to shorten distance of transportation.

New Beef Scourge Trypanosomiasis Found in Ontario

Transmitted by Parasite Canada's First Outbreak

Vancouver, Feb. 28—(CP)—Willi Bruntjen, 29-year-old immigrant, sought as possible carrier of the foot-and-mouth-disease ravaging Saskatchewan cattle, was found here today in immigration quarters and taken to R.C.M.P. headquarters.

Ottawa, Feb. 28—(CP)—The agriculture department disclosed today that a new cattle disease has been uncovered on an Ontario farm where a number of cattle have died.

The new disease was identified as a variety of trypanosomiasis, transmitted by a parasite. It has never before hit Canada.

The outbreak was uncovered at a farm at Kintore, near Thamesville, Ont., and first reports were that about a dozen cattle have died and more than two dozen are infected.

J. C. Taggart, deputy minister of agriculture, said the new cases had been under observation for a number of weeks.

Mr. Taggart said the exact variety of trypanosomiasis uncovered has not been finally determined, "but one thing you may be sure," he said, it is not foot-and-mouth disease."

"The disease dies with the animal. It is not contagious and we are confident it will not spread."

The department said the disease was uncovered at the "Heron" farm between Kintore and Thamesford. The cattle affected apparently had been purchased from some western area, but the department said it had no further details.

The farm has been placed under quarantine.

45 Head Slaughtered

Thamesford, Ont., Feb. 28—CP—The last of 45 head of beef cattle on the Wallace Heron farm were shot today in an effort to stamp out trypanosomiasis, a tropical disease new to Canada which began attacking the animals last month.

It was the first evidence of disease in Ontario cattle which to date have escaped the foot-and-mouth peril now affecting some cattle in Saskatchewan.

A quarantine was placed on the Heron farm, seven miles north of here, after 15 of the 45 Herefords sickened and died. The last of the herd was shot today and the carcasses buried in a trench scraped out of a frozen pasture.

Federal and provincial officials differed in their diagnosis of the disease. Federal government officials said it was trypanosomiasis. Provincial experts referred to it as anaplasomis, a rare disease, also tropical.

Unlike foot-and-mouth disease, the danger of contagion from this latest disease is believed comparatively slight. No other farms have been quarantined in the area long famed for its prize dairy herds.

Thamesford is 10 miles west of Ingersoll, one centre of the cheese producing industry in Ontario.

Deep burial of carcasses was ordered by the federal government after laboratory tests identified the disease. Apparently it is spread by ticks and resembles Texas tick fever.

Mr. Heron said he bought the cattle last fall in the Calgary area. A Holstein raiser until last November, he sold his milk cows and bought 45 year-old Aberdeen Angus and Hereford calves in December. He paid more than $8,000 for them.

At new year's they were "wonderful healthy animals," he said.

"Then on Jan. 10 I got my first look at an animal that had this type of trouble," said Mr. Heron. He described how he watched the herd wandering into the field. One of them lagged. He "sort of wobbled when he walked and his back jumped up."

Banned by Quebec

Quebec, Feb. 28 (CP) —Quebec province today placed an embargo on western cattle, horses, hogs and sheep from the three prairie provinces.

The announcement was made by Agriculture Minister Laurent Barre and brings to three the number of provinces which have placed an embargo on western livestock. The others are British Columbia and Ontario.

No Tax Changes Announced In Sask. Budget

(By The Canadian Press)

A record expendiutre of $65,873,390 is called for in the 1952-53 Saskatchewan budget.

No tax changes were announced in the budget, brought down in the Regina house yesterday by the C. C. F. government of Premier Douglas. It estimated revenues at $65,992,580, leaving an estimated surplus of $48,890.

Provincial Treasurer Fines said the province had decided to accept a one-year formula for the next five-year federal-provincial tax agreement, thus gaining a federal annual payment of roughrendering tax fields. ly $24,000,000 in return for sur-

The annual report of the provincial co-operatives department showed a combined business transacted by all co-operatives during 1950-51 reached a record high total of $359,914,170.

British Columbia also dealt with the federal-provincial tax agreement. Premier Johnson introduced a bill which will give the province an aditional $10,000,000 a year for five years in its tax rental.

Under the old five-year agreement expiring March 31, B. C. received an estimated $31,500,000 a year from the federal government for leasing these taxes. Under the new one it gets an estimated $41,200,000 annually.

At Winnipeg Provincial, Treasurer Turner told the legislature that Manitoba's "deadweight" debt has been cut by more than a third during the last 10 years. The term is applied to debts incurred for projects not self-containing.

Will Hold Inquest

Niagara Falls, Feb. 28—(CP)—An inquest into the death of Dorabelle Pollock, 24, who was fatally injured last Saturday when struck by a train, will be held March 7.

She left her farm home near Niagara-on-the-Lake late in the afternoon to search for her missing sister, 20-year-old Violet. She suffered a fractured skull when struck by a diesel locomotive on a level crossing about eight miles from her home.

Police have discounted her father's fears that she may have met with foul play.

Violet, a Grade XIII student in nearby Stamford high school is still missing.

Trumpeter Swans Return to Victoria Waters for First Time Since 1949

Victoria, B. C.,—(CP)—Trumpeter swans, one of the world's rarest wild fowl, have returned to Victoria waters for the first time since 1949.

Government naturalists say they believe this is partly due to an increase in the numbers of the birds and that it may mean the swan has won its fight against extinction.

The black-billed trumpeter was thought almost wiped out just a few years ago. Only a few pairs were then believed to be alive. The ringing bugle sound was rapidly becoming a rarity in its B. C. homeland.

But this year a survey by R. H. Mackay, dominion wildlife officer for B. C., showed at least 900 trumpeter swans in B. C. with other flocks thriving in Montana and perhaps western Alberta.

In recent years most of the trumpeters have wintered on Vancouver Island.

Dr. Clifford Carl, curator of the provincial museum, says that the survival of the swan is still a "touch and go matter." A sudden change in the narrow pattern of safety they have won could still wipe them out.

Civilization has robbed the fowl of the choicest feeding and resting grounds while predatory coyotes and mink continue to take a toll of the young.

No one as yet knows where the trumpeter nests. Naturalists place it no more exactly than "somewhere in the northlands." Many say that the secret of the swan may just as well be left uncovered because it may be a big factor in the bird's survival.

Five of the trumpeters were captured recently at Lonesome Lake, B. C., and sent to Britain as a gift to Queen Elizabeth II from the Canadian government.

EIGHTEEN MAKE JUMP WITHOUT SERIOUS INJURY

U.S. Transport Blown Off Course by Blizzard

Sydney, N.S. Feb. 28 (CP)—Eighteen United States airmen "hit the silk" to safety in a blinding blizzard early today and their big transport plane hurtled harmlessly into a wood at the edge of this steel city of 30,000

The men, 17 without previous jumping experience, took to their parachutes after 20 fruitless attempts to land at the nearby reserve airport. They abandoned the C-47 with fuel for only three minutes remaining. None was seriously injured.

One of the worst blizzards in a storm-dogged winter stalked the plane all the way on its hop from Westover Field, Mass It was en route to Torbay, Nfld. The plane narrowly missed dwellings on its final plunge.

The crew first tried to outrun the storm but conditions became steadily worse. The Westover-Yarmouth N.S., leg, normally a one-hour hop, took more than 2 1-2 hours.

They decided to land at the reserve airport, on the low-lying "barrens" a few miles from the menacing Atlantic.

Time and time again the big transport swooped over the airport —once to a height of 10 feet—but could not make the touchdown. Capt. T. E. Koblenski, his engines spluttering for fuel, stuck at the controls until all were gone and then leaped into the howling storm clad only "in shirtsleeves and parachute."

Impromptu Course

Staff Sgt. L. A. Redinter, a Pennsylvanian who had jumped four times previously, conducted an impromptu parachute course as the men hit the silk one by one.

"It must be the shortest course on record but it must have been O.K. We're all here," said one snow-encrusted survivor.

Chief dread of the airmen was that they would fall in the Atlantic but they also faced perils from the storm, with gales reaching 50 miles an hour. Several floated close beside high-tension wires that would spell instant death. Others dangled from trees for a time, bashed by the gale.

The escape door jammed at first but broke loose on a frantic second try. Lt.-Col. James A. Harron of Grosse Point, Mich., landed on a hilltop and had to be evacuated by a toboggan. He suffered several cracked ribs.

Ginger Spence and Harold Peverley, whose homes were directly beneath the plane's path, found the wreckage in a hardwood and spruce forest. The engines were about 50 yards from the fuselage and parts of the wings were scattered over several hundred yards.

The pilot said the storm had "chased us right from Westover."

WILL BE RECOMPENSED

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP)—Ontario magistrates assigned to jurisdictions outside of their regular area in future will be recompensed for travelling expenses.

On the recommendation of the Attorney - General, the cabinet has ruled that magistrates will receive $15 a day for expenses when obliged to stay overnight in cities and $10 a day in other municipalities.

Throne Speech Notes Govt's. Continued Concern Over The International Situation

Ottawa, Feb. 28 (CP) —In a sombre setting, the sixth session of Canada's 21st parliament was opened today with the reading of a Speech from the Throne that noted the government's continued concern over the international situation.

The 1,300 word speech forecast measures designed to meet domestic problems and to fulfill Canada's international commitments.

The speech was read by Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, installed a few hours earlier as governor-general.

The welcome to the new governor-general was tempered by mourning for King George. The mourning caused a curtailment of many of the colorful functions usually associated with the opening of a session.

"The situation throughout the world continues to cause concern and to require my ministers to devote a great deal of attention to our external affairs," said the speech.

"The government remains convinced that the nations of the free world must continue to increase their combined strength, in order to ensure lasting peace and security by the effective discouragement of aggression."

Reference to Service

Reference was made to the "distinguished service" of Canadian troops in Korea and to the dispatch of Canadian forces to Europe. Without elaborating, the speech said "amendments to legislation relating to our armed forces will be submitted for your approval."

Mr. Massey read the speech from the dias of the Senate Chamber where members of the Senate and Commons, representatives of the diplomatic corps and others had gathered.

He was dressed in the uniform of his office. It was made of dark blue cloth and trimmed with silver on a scarlet background. He wore Wellington boots with spurs and a cocked hat with swan plumes. He carried a sword.

Members and guests wore morning clothes, with the women dressed in sombre black.

Referring to the death of the King, the speech said that "in no part of the Commonwealth has the sense of personal loss been more deeply felt than in our country." Sympathies were expressed to members of the royal family and a pledge of loyalty was given to the new Queen.

As to legislation, the speech contained little not previously forecast.

Approval will be sought of a second contribution of $25,000,000 to the Colombo plan for technical assistance to underdeveloped areas. The Japanese peace treaty will be submitted for ratification.

Outbreak Mentioned

The outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease among cattle in Saskatchewan was mentioned.

Premier Frost Indicates Rent Controls in Province Will Come to End Soon

Toronto, Feb. 28—(CP)— The ending of rent controls in the near future in areas of Ontario with available housing was indicated in the legislature yesterday.

The government presented a set of regulations designed to gather together and simplify all existing rent-control statutes and regulations.

Several new provisions are contained in the regulations, however, and one will permit the government to lift the controls in any municipality, to take effect six months after the order unless the local council asks that they be continued.

Premier Frost said he hoped certain areas could be decontrolled immediately, but that the decision in each area depended on the local supply of accommodation.

"Our aim is to achieve total decontrol as soon as possible," Mr. Frost said, "but in some areas that will not be possible for some time."

Two measures aimed at broadening the probation and rehabilitation of convicts were brought up yesterday for second reading—approval in principle.

Extension of probation facilities, embodies in an amendment to the juvenile and family court act, passed without comment. But a new parole act was held up by the J. B. Salsberg (Lab. Prog.—Toronto St. Andrew). who moved adjournment of debate to allow members to comment. He said he approved both bills.

The house also set up a nine-man committee to keep a continuing examination of all rental problems. The committee will be able to meet when the house is not in session.

Brockville Man Chairman.

Its chairman is Gordon MacOdrum. Progressive Conservative members are Travel Minister Cecile, Attorney-General Porter, Harold Fishleigh (Toronto Woodbine), John Robarts (London), Clare Mapledoram (Fort William) and W. K. Warrender (Hamilton Centre). Opposition party members are Arthur Reaume (L—Windsor) and T. D. Thomas (CCF—Ontario).

The house today is scheduled to resume the throne-speech debate, with opposition leader Farquhar Oliver of the Liberals leading off.

The new rentals regulations continue the system of appraiser, but give them wider latitude than before to fix rentals on self-contained dwellings. They are to be guided by the general level of controlled rents on Jan. 1 of this year, and by the average amounts agreed on in two- year leases signed last spring.

The former courts of rentals appeals will be replaced with central boards. The boards will hear appeals as before, and will have wider powers than appraisers. They will attempt to conciliate landlord-tenant disputes but have the power to set an arbitrary rent.

May Sit at Night

The boards may sit at night for the convenience of landlords and tenants.

Several types of accommodation are exempted from control—the main one being dwellings under construction at Jan. 1, 1947. or completed since then.

Controls continue on "lodgings" —defined as dwellings in which the tenant does not have exclusive use of a private toilet. If rent ceilings are not fixed, the landlord must apply for an appraisal. Rents for lodgings in a landlord's home continue at the Feb. 25 level.

The regulations also provide for continuation of controls over self-contained dwellings, and set out the grounds on which landlords can ask for rent increases and for eviction of tenants.

All Police Court to Operate

Saturday work in all Ontario courts except police courts will be done away with by bills now before the legislature.

Attorney-General Porter introduced bills yesterday to put the five-day week into effect in County Courts and Sheriff's Offices. Bills have already been introduced to close Division and Surrogate Courts and Registry Offices on Saturday.

Mr. Porter also introduced a bill to do away with special juries, which now are provided for under the judicature act in cases involving libel or highly technical evidence. Anyone applying for a special jury must pay $400.

The attorney-general said abolition of the special jury was still "a very open question" and the bill would be sent to the legal bills committee for final decision.

The government was moved to make the change because of the requirement for the $400 deposit, and because it felt that the widening of public knowledge on subjects which might be reserved for special juries did away with the need for them.

An amendment to the securities act introduced by Mr. Porter would change the requirement for a prospectus to be sent out to a prospective stock purchaser in certain stock sales. The new bill calls for a summary of the prospectus to be sent with the first offer to the purchaser.

The summary would be more easily understood than the full form of the prospectus. The form and content of the summary will be subject to approval of the securities commission.

HUNDRED TONS OF WET CONCRETE BURY WORKMAN

Seven Others Injured But Only 3 Detained

Hull, Que., Feb. 28—(CP)—One hundred tons of wet concrete last night buried a construction foreman when seven workmen were injured in a collapse of a ramp being built at the partly-erected building here.

Theophile Lafleur, 54, of Hull, was standing below wooden forms while his workmen poured concrete into a 75-by-20 foot ramp. His body was recovered seven hours later. The section collapsed, dropping Lafleur and the others 25 feet into the basement of the building.

Three men— Marcel Peterson, 26; Rack Benoit, 30, both of Hull; and Antonio Maniaci, 32, of Ottawa—were detained in hospital. Peterson had head injuries, Benoit's were internal and Maniaci suffered severe head and body lacerations.

Four others—Gervasi Valentino, 40; Mazzareno Mancone, 23; Virgilio Busso, 36, all of Ottawa; and Leo Bisson, 41, of Hull—were released after treatment for cuts and bruises.

The search for Lafleur went on under searchlights because of the slowly-hardening concrete. Giant cranes hauled away tons of cement and steel supports.

Spokesmen for the construction company said the jacks supporting the cement may have collapsed, or the cement already poured may not have hardened sufficiently.

At hospital Valentino said the collapse occurred just before the crew finished for the night. Mancone said Lafleur, father of 10, had no chance to escape.

"I was putting in the cement and there was a sort of cracking sound," Busso said. "All at once the ramp started to go under my feet and then I just fell right to the bottom."

Police threw a cordon around the building, a four-storey structure of which three storey have been completed. They announced about 10 p.m., four hours after the mishap, there was no hope of Lafleur surviving.

Pay All Expenses

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP)—The Ontario government has set aside a fund of $200,000 to provide for the expense involved in the standardization of hose fittings in all municipalities.

The work is being carried out under the civil defence plan.

Under the scheme all municipal fire hose connections will be made interchangeable so equipment from one municipality can be used in another in an emergency.

Cost of the change over is being borne by the government, with municipal fire departments providing the necessary labor.

People of Small Town Free of Polio 7 Months After Taking Rabies Shots

Frost, Tex., Feb. 28 (AP)—Seven months ago nearly 400 persons in this small Texas town took five rabies shots each in an experiment to determine whether this would prevent polio.

Since that time no polio cases have been reported in Frost. Seven months ago seven of Navarro county's 12 polio cases were in the Frost area.

Reporting this today, doctors who made the experiment were careful not to claim the experiment had yet proved anything.

Dr. Herbert E. Hipps first advanced the idea, saying only that "people who have received rabies shots generally don't have polio."

Dr. Hipps said:

"We'll have more definite information on its success after about six months. By September we should know if our tests helped. Frost has a history which usually results in polio cases during August and September. If none occur this year we can be led to believe the experiment was worthwhile."

Despite Dr. Hipps' caution, people in the Frost area are enthusiastic. Dr. . L. Grizzaffi, past president of the Navarro County Medical Society, said many had told him they would be willing to take the rabies shots again.

"We aren't certain what caused the down curve, but we like to believe last summer's experiment might be responsible," said Dr. Grizzaffi.

The absence of polio here is counter to an unusually high winter incidence in Texas generally which has led Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer, to warn that the state may have a record polio year.

Dr. Will Miller, acting director of the Corsicana-Navarro health unit, said the program at Frost last year cost about $1,500 and will be offered again this year "if funds are available and the people are willing." The expense of the 1951 tests was absorbed by Dr. Miller and others.

The Corsicana doctor said he knows of no ill effects among those given the rabies shots.

Dr. Hipps said his theory is based on similarity between rabies and polio, both of which he believes are virus infections which attack the nervous system.

First Son of Canada To Serve Queen In His Homeland

Solemn Ceremony Before Glittering Assemblage

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, the first son of Canada to represent his Sovereign in his homeland, was installed today as Governor-General in the Senate Chamber with solemn ceremony.

The 65-year-old Chancellor of the University of Toronto took three oaths of office before a glittering assemblage in the gold-ceilinged chamber as the personal representative of the Queen.

Breaking a tradition that stretches back into Canada's Colonial past, he succeeds 17 Britons who have held that office since Confederation. His immediate predecessor, Field Marshal Lord Alexander, resigned to become Britain's defence minister.

Guns boomed a royal salute a military band played "God Save the Queen" and the Governor-General's flag fluttered atop the Peace Tower of the main parliament buildings as Mr. Massey — now titled "His Excellency" — stepped into what now is the highest office that can befall a Canadian.

Visited King Before Death

He took office in unique — and saddened — circumstances. He had been appointed by the King just two weeks before he died, and now becomes the representative of his daughter — Elizabeth. A close personal friend of the Royal Family, he was one of the last visitors at Sandringham before the king's unexpected death.

From the installation ceremony, Mr. Massey motored to Rideau Hall, the vice-regal residence in swank Rockcliffe Park which will be his official home for the tenure of his office. This afternoon, he returns to perform the first formal duty of his new office, opening the 1952 session of parliament.

The ceremony was ended by an address of welcome in which Prime Minister St. Laurent noted that Mr. Massey was assuming the office at a time of "universal and heartfelt" mourning for the King.

Expressing the satisfaction of the government with Mr. Massey's acceptance of the appointment, he recalled to new governor-general's services to Canada in two of this country's highest diplomatic offices — as first Canadian minister in Washington and as Canadian High Commissioner in London.

"The Canadian people," the Prime Minister said, "are confident that you will discharge with devotion and distinction your duties as the representative in Canada of Her Majesty the Queen."

Replying, Mr. Massey promised that it will be his "duty and responsibility to cherish and preserve" the fine traditions that have grown up around his new office over the generations.

Govt. by Technicians 'All too Prevalent' Says Mayor Whitton

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP)— Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa said yesterday that government by technicians is becoming "all too prevalent" in Canada.

If carried too far, she added, it could do much harm to the democratic way of life as any communist effort.

The chief magistrate of Canada's capital was speaking against a resolution at the annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association. The resolution would enable public utilities commissions to make their own appointments when vacancies arise. It was defeated.

"One of the things that is happening in Canada, from the House of Commons down to municipal governments," said Mayor Whitton, "is the confusion of technical administration of services with policy making bodies of elected representatives."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP)—Synopsis: Skies were generally clear over Ontario during the night but a weak disturbance moving south of the Great Lakes will spread cloud and a few light snowflurries through southwestern Ontario today. Temperatures are running a few degrees above normal for this time of year. Little change is foreseen, but the trend appears to be toward cooler temperatures for the next 24 to 48 hours.

SHE'S TOP WORKMAN

Winnipeg (CP)—For the first time in history, Winnipeg Lodge No. 1 of the Ancient Order of United Workmen named a woman to the chief office of "Master Workman." She is Miss Molly Hill.

EPILEPTIC VICTIM HAS SEIZURE ON FRONT STREET

An epileptic victim from Verdun, Que., gave pedestrians within his sight a bit of a scare last evening when as he was crossing Front Street he fell to the roadway in front of passing autos.

The 29-year-old man was enroute by bus to the Toronto area when as he passed through Belleville he got out of the bus to take a walk. He was crossing Front Street near the Hydro office when he took the seizure and fell to the pavement. He was taken to hospital in an ambulance.

Family Thinking Of Taking Home Won in Draw

Winners of a $40,000 "dream home" in Niagara Falls as result of an Army and Navy draw, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leal of Marmora are thinking seriously of moving into the new home.

Early this week the lucky winners motored to Niagara Falls to see their new home and Mrs. Leal is quoted by the Niagara Falls Evening Review as being very enthusiastic and wants to move in immediately.

Coming with the new house was a new auto and this is being offered for sale by Mr. Leal as they already have a 1950 model car.

Mr. Leal is a waiter at the Marmora hotel and the couple live in a rented apartment.

Scholarships Will Again be Given By Association

Wednesday evening at its regular meeting the Belleville chapter of the S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. announced its second annual singing scholarship competition for the girls and boys of the Belleville High School. As last year, the award will be to value of $100.00 each, for the successful girl and boy contestant, and the contest will be open to all students in good standing during the 1951-52 season.

Preliminary elimination contests are to be held by each of the schools, and the final competition will be held on the evening of May 5th in the auditorium of St. Michael's academy under the auspices of St. Michael's and Holy Rosary Parent Teachers Association. It is hoped that professor Haig of the College of Education, Toronto, who will be remembered for his fine work at last year's contest, will be available again to act as adjudicator.

Presentation of the scholarships to the successful candidates will be made at the second annual Harmony Night to be held by the Belleville Chapter early next October.

Detailed information concerning the rules and regulations governing the contest is available from the principals of the various schools or from Mr. R. L. Brettingham, 30 Crestview Avenue, Belleville.

WORK TO START SOON

Toronto, Feb. 28—(CP)—Mayor Allan Lamport yesterday assured residents of the Toronto Islands that work on a seawall along the lake side of the islands would begin as soon as contractors can move their equipment to the scene. The mayor told a delegation that he does not regard the wall as a cure-all for serious flooding and the city has other proposals in mind.

District Regatta To be Sponsored By Sea Cadets

At a meeting of the Navy League of Canada, held at R. C. S. C. C. Quinte, on Tuesday, presided over by Dr. J. Guthridge, plans were laid for future activities of the Sea Cadet Corps in Belleville and it was decided to issue invitations to Sea Cadet Corps at Kingston, Trenton, Port Hope, Lakefield and Peterborough for a regatta to be held on the 14th and 15th of June.

Present plans include sailing, rowing and swimming races between the various corps and a church parade an open-air drumhead service.

A report of the Area Inspecting Officer was also presented to the meeting and it was noted with great satisfaction that the inspecting officer had recommended an increase to the establishment of the corps from 50 to 100 with 11 officers. The area inspecting officer reported that great progress had been made in training equipment and esprit de corps.

Present at the meeting in addition to the president, Dr. Jack Guthridge and the secretary, Kenneth G. M. Ross, were Messrs Ross Stiver, Frank Grandame, John Black, John Watson, Morley Smith, Tom Henry, Charles Marriott and Lieutenants Boyce and Leach of the Sea Cadet Corps.

Plans were also made for the institution of a junior corps for boys age 12 to 14.

Dr. Russell Scott Again Heads Library Board

Dr. J. Russell Scott was reelected chairman of the Corby Public Library for 1952 at the annual meeting held recently. Mr. F. P. Cunningham was named vice-chairman with Miss Olive Delaney again being named secretary.

Other officers include L. A. Kells as chairman of finance; Mrs. A. C. Locke, chairman of property with the book committee being composed of J. E. Bateman, M. M. Hackett and Mr. Cunningham, with the board chairman and librarian Miss Olive Delaney.

Appointments to the board from city council include Dr. J. R. Scott, Dr. J. W. Kinnear and J. E. Bateman; from the public school board, Mrs. A. C. Locke, L. A. Kells, and M. M. Hackett, and from the separate school board, F. P. Cunningham and A. J. Black. Ex-officio member is Mayor A. M. Haig.

Book circulation at the Corby Public Library showed a very substantial increase for 1951. The total of books borrowed for home use was 89,597, an increase of 17,011.

Increase in Junior Dept.

Much of the increase was in the junior department which showed an increase of over 11,000 books. It was pointed out that it was in the boys' and girls' library that the foundation of good reading habits was formed.

Circulation of adult books increased by 5,225, the increase being mostly in works of fiction with slight increases in the reading of books of philosophy, religion and social science. Books of travel, technical books and craft books were not so widely read.

Two thousand, eight hundred and twelve books were purchased during the year, the book budget being a little over $5,000.

Films Widely Used

The film library was widely used with 1059 films being loaned during the year. The projector was booked for 52 different organizations. The film council now owns two projectors, three screens and has a library of 40 films, while in addition to this the local council belongs to the purchase pool of the federation of film councils.

A library of recorded music has been established at the library by the local Soroptimist Club. There are 31 members and last year 284 records were circulated.

The increase in the library grant by city council from 50 cents to 71 cents per capita will enable the library to provide better service and to bring it nearer current library standards.

Expenditures at the library during the year amounted to $17,232.79.

Staff members include Miss Olive Delaney as librarian, with Miss Kathleen Jones as assistant and Miss Joyce Watson as assistant in the boys' and girls' department. Elizabeth White and Maureen Wyatt are part time assistants. George Graham is library caretaker.

TOOK HOMING PIGEONS

Miami, Fla., Feb. 28 — (AP)—Victor Cascarano told police he thinks the loot taken from his home last night will come back. Thieves took 22 homing pigeons, with $220.

Obituary

LATE CHARLES BENJAMIN FAIRES

The funeral of Charles Benjamin Faires, Stirling was held in St. John's Church of England on Tuesday afternoon with his pastor Rev. H. C. Secker officiating and the hymns included Abide With Me.

Deceased was a veteran of the South African campaign and the First World War. His funeral was held under the auspices of Stirling branch No. 228 of the Canadian Legion under the direction of the president, Mr. Fred W. Houchin and the sergeant-at-arms, Mr. Charles Barnard. Members of the Legion formed a body guard from the Duffin Funeral Home to St. John's Church and the casket was carried by veterans of World War One. Messrs. R. A. Patterson, Joseph Whitehead, George Heasman, Harry Francis, Ernest Wannamaker and Fred Heasman.

Following the service at the church the Legion members paraded to Stirling cemetery where the interment was made. Mr. Bob Hulin sounded the Last Post at the graveside and each veteran dropped a poppy of remembrance and gave the army salute.

ROBERT ADDISON NORMAN

Picton—Former member of the Ontario legislature, and former Mayor of Picton, Robert Addison Norman died at his home here, Monday night. He had not been feeling well for a few days but had been down street on Saturday. He was suddenly stricken, a short time after his son, Gerald Norman had visited him. He was in his 96th year.

Mr. Norman was born, and always lived in the block where he died. Following his education, he entered a dry goods business here and became chief salesman. Later he started his own business, retiring in 1893.

Joining a survey party, he assisted in surveying the original route of the Trenton to Picton railway.

A very gifted orator, he made an early entry into municipal and political life, an interest in which he retained to the end. Following a term as member of the town council, he became Mayor in 1890 and was re-elected the following year. His term of office was marked by great progress in the town, including the inauguration of the waterworks and the hydro system. In succeeding years, he was a regular attendant at nomination meetings and as chief critic made these events lively. He acted as chairman at the nomination meeting when he was 90 and he was as capable as ever. Since he has not attended, the meetings have lost much interest.

Later, Mr. Norman became town clerk, serving a number of years until becoming active in political life. He was elected to the Ontario legislature in 1908 and again in 1911. Here, his gifted oratory was frequently heard. Originally a Liberal, he became a supporter of the Conservative party early in life.

The interest of this amazing man in civic affairs was demonstrated when his criticism of town affairs led him to offer his services as mayor 16 years ago at the age of 80. He was given an acclamation.

Was Police Magistrate

In 1928, Mr. Norman became police magistrate for Prince Edward County and held this office for six years. His father, the late R. A. Norman, was the first Police Magistrate in Prince Edward County, and held that office for half a century.

Mr. Norman is survived by a son, Gerald Norman of Picton and by a sister, Mrs. Phoebe Ruttan of Winnipeg who this month marked her 101st birthday.

A private funeral service was held Wednesday afternoon with Rev. A. E. McCutcheon officiating. Entombment was in Glenwood vault.

CHARLES HERBERT BROOK

Following an illness of three months, Charles Herbert Brook died in Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, on Wednesday, February 27th. He was in his 85th year.

Born in England, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Brook, he had been a resident of this locality for the past 45 years, prior to which he had lived in Mississippi, Ont. and in Tweed. Prior to his death he was living at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Alex Lacey, 155 Wellington Street, Belleville. His wife, the former Helen Frodsham, predeceased him.

A member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ernest (Doris) Phillips of Ottawa, Mrs. Alex (Marie) Lacey of Belleville, two sons, Robert G. of Peterborough, Charles H. of Pickering, and seven grandchildren.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

CLARENCE E. COVERT
(Hollywood-Shannonville)

Word was received of the recent death of Mr. Clarence E. Covert in North Hollywood, Calif.

Mr. Covert, who was in his 84th year, was born in Shannonville. He was well known in Deseronto and had spent last summer here visiting his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Covert and family. His wife predeceased him six years ago.

Surviving are three sons, Al of Ancortes, Wash., Lloyd and Harold of North Hollywood; three daughters, Mrs. Maud Knudson, Mrs. Mildred Cawthorne and Mrs. Eva Phillips all of North Hollywood, 12 grandchildren and 17 great grandchildren; one brother Frank Covert, Deseronto and two sisters, Mrs. Clara Sandford and Mrs. Eva Pfiester, Rochester, N.Y. Interment took place in Everett, Wash.

HARRY VINAL EMERSON
(Hamilton)

In ill health for the past six months, Harry Vinal Emerson, 11 Farleigh Avenue, Hamilton, died in Hamilton General Hospital on Wednesday. He was in his 59th year.

Born in Huntingdon township, the son of Thomas and Mary Emerson, he had lived in Hamilton for the past 12 years, prior to which he had been a resident of Belleville.

Mr. Emerson had been an employee of the Hydro Electric Power Commission in Belleville for 30 years. He was a member of Bethesda United Church and Eureka Lodge No. 283 A.F. & A.M. of this city.

He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Frank (Laura) Chambers of Bannockburn, and one brother, Charles, living at Crookston.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

German Immigrant Has Plan For Building Fireproof Homes Of New Lightweight Concrete

Homes for Canadians constructed of fireproof foam concrete with "built in" soundproofing and insulative qualities, is the dream of a German immigrant who has chosen the Belleville area as his future home.

Such houses, he claims, can be easily constructed from materials already plentiful in the Bay of Quinte district. They are virtually indestructible by fire and the air bubbles in the foam concrete provide soundproofing and insulation—both much desired qualities in home construction.

What is more, it is claimed such houses can be built at a cost comparable to that of wooden type dwellings and they may be of any desired plan and if desired finished to conform in appearance to houses of frame construction.

Presently employed with a local construction firm, this German informant has only one term for the wooden type houses seen everywhere in Canada. That term is simply "firetraps".

Raps Firetraps

"Why spend six to ten thousand dollars for a family dwelling that can burn down tomorrow?" he asks. "For the same money a fully fireproof house could be built."

Common in Germany

Houses of foam concrete construction are a common sight in urban centres in Germany, he says.

Frequent newspaper reports from all parts of Canada telling of small children burned to death are hard to understand for this new Canadian, who says that such a thing is a rarity in his former country. The reason is better type of home construction and more attention to that all-important feature of a family dwelling—the chimney.

Long stretches of dangerous stove pipes are almost unknown in Germany. Chimney extend right to the basement level through the centre of the house and the shortest possible stretch of stove pipe is used

And realizing the danger of chimney fires even where the best type chimney construction is used, in German urban centres professional chimney sweeps make regular calls in all parts of the city. They sweep the chimneys and are paid out of municipal taxes.

"In 30 years of living in the city of Hamburg, I know of only two chimney fires," was the comment.

This is in direct contrast to almost any Canadian urban centre, where chimney fires are every day occurrences and chimney sweeps are almost unknown.

But to get back to the fireproof private houses built of foam concrete.

Common in Europe

Although this commodity is practically unknown in this country it is taken for granted in many European countries. Just as the term implies, foam concrete is filled with air bubbles. It weighs only a fraction of the concrete which Canadians are familiar; it can be sawn and handled almost like lumber and will hold nails for attaching shingles or other exterior covering.

Best of all, it is fireproof and the "built in" air bubbles make for insulation and sound-proofing.

Foam concerete construction in homes lends itself best to pre-fabrication and it is in this field that its success has been gained in European countries. The material is made into slabs of varying thicknesses and lengths according to the plan and type of the house constructed. The slabs are then laid up much the same as brick.

In actual construction, the foundation comes first. Then a house frame must be built because foam concrete will not stand weight.

This framework may be of pre-fabricated stressed concrete beams, tailor-made to fit the job, or of some type metal construction.

The roof is placed in much the same manner, with pre-stressed concrete or metal type rafters. The rafters are then covered with foam concrete slabs to which are nailed asbestos or other type shingles of fireproof make.

Floors also have a concrete base, but are covered with hardwood or some other type of conventional flooring.

Inside walls and house partitions are of thinner foam concrete slabs to which plaster or other fireproof wall finish can be applied. Exteriors may be finished with asbestos, or they may be painted and covered at some later date when finances permit.

Built of Wood

Generally, inside staircases are built of wood while door and window cases, and doors are also of wood.

The result is a house which is almost 100 per cent fireproof and one on which fire insurance companies will set favorable rates.

In the opinion of this German immigrant, it would be a simple job for architects and engineers to plan the pre-fabrication of several types and sizes of homes adaptable to foam concrete construction and to the Canadian home owners' appeal.

As for materials there is no lack right in the Bay of Quinte district. The sandbanks of Prince Edward County contain an inexhaustible supply of raw material of the right quality to manufacture this new type lightweight and fireproof concrete.

IN MEMORIAM

RUTTAN. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Milton Ruttan, who was killed in action in Germany, February 27th, 1945.

No one knows how much we miss you,
Life for me has never been just the same,
In my heart your memory still remains,
There is not a day, dear, I do not think of you,
And wish you could be back with us again.

—Always remembered by wife and children.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP) Early afternoon stock market prices levelled off today after a moderate morning advance.

Trading opened briskly but dropped sharply after the first 15 minutes. Industrial dealings were confined to leading issues and few golds, oils or metals attracted speculative interest. Volume for the first three hours was 1,180,000 shares.

Utilities and retail stores led industrials upward while papers, foods, agricultures and constructions drew firm support. Textiles weakened while manufacturing companies and miscellaneous issues dipped.

Base metal gains ranged from pennies to the 50 cents climb of Consolidated Smelters. Eureka Labrador, Mindamar, Quebec Manitou and United Keno Hill traded higher.

Western oils strengthened irregularly. Anglo-Canadian, Canada Southern Oil, Gridoil, Sapphire and United Oil posted advances ranging to about 75 cents.

Senior golds remained weak as Bralorne, Giant Yellowknife and Malartic retained moderate losses. Secondary issues were mixed.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Cattle sales up to noon at the Ontario stockyards today totalled 300 head. Prices were about steady. Receipts: cattle 20; calves 100; hogs 300; sheep and lambs 20.

The leftover from Wednesday was 2,100 cattle.

Medium to choice weighty steers and common light steers sold at $25-$27. Medium to good heifers were at $24-$25.50. Medium to good cows sold at $17.50-$19 with a few heifery cows upward to $20. Canners and cutters sold mostly $8-$11. Medium to good fed yearlings were at $22.50-$26 with a few choice fed yearlings upward to $28.

A few medium to good calves sold at $30-$34.

Hog prices were at $26 for Grade A with sows $15 dressed.

A few lambs sold at $30.

$150,000 Fire Loss at Hamilton

Hamilton, Feb. 28—(CP)— A three-alarm fire in an east end plant caused an estimated $150,000 damage early today.

One fireman was overcome by smoke. The fire broke out in the Vitone Products, Limited, plant, Gage Avenue South, shortly before 5 a.m.

Although cause of the fire is undetermined, firemen said the blaze broke out in a basement workshop, spread through the basement and then "jumped" up to the second and third storeys through an elevator shaft.

Smoke billowed from the building for hours.

Fireman Jack Fisher was overcome by smoke while fighting the fire on the ground floor. He was treated at general hospital and was in satisfactory condition.

Deadline March 20

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Extension of the life of 1951 motor vehicle permits and drivers' licences to midnight, March 20, was announced today by Acting Highways Minister Dunbar.

Permits and licences were due to expire at midnight tomorrow.

Mr. Dunbar said there will be 'definitely no further extension" of the period in which drivers and vehicle owners must obtain their new licences.

OUT FOR SEASON

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP)—General Manager Roy Mason of Guelph Biltmores said Wednesday night Ron Murphy will be lost to the Ontario Hockey Association junior 'A' team for the balance of the season.

Mason, who attended Sunday's OHA junior 'A' doubleheader at Maple Leaf Gardens, said Murphy suffered a broken collarbone in the game against Toronto Marlboros.

Murphy, a candidate for all-star left wing honors, was one of the top four scorers in the league until his injury.

FIRST SON OF

"To the Canadian people," he said, "may I say very humbly that I approach my task with a determination to do all in my power to serve my sovereign and in so doing I know I shall be serving Canada."

Arrives by Train

Mr. Massey arrived in the capital at 10.30 a.m. aboard a special train which brought him from his home at Port Hope, Ont. He was greeted by Prime Minister St. Laurent, members of the federal cabinet, the diplomatic corps and a great throng of spectators which crowded in and about Ottawa's Union Railways station.

A guard of honor of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, stationed in the concourse of the depot, gave a general salute and an artillery battery stationed nearby fired 21 guns to mark his arrival.

In the senate, Maj.-Gen. Harry Letson, the governor-general's secretary, read the late King's commission appointing Mr. Massey and Mr. Massey took three oaths administered by Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin, senior puisne judge of the Supreme Court of Canada.

The oaths were on swearing allegiance to the Queen, a second to faithfully discharge the duties of the governor-general's office and a third to safeguard the Great Seal of Canada.

Then Mr. Massey signed the oath book and Charles Stein, undersecretary of state, handed him the Great Seal which Mr. Massey, in turn, handed to State Secretary Bradley, saying:

"I hand you the Great Seal of Canada for safe keeping."

Gen. Letson read Mr. Massey's personal proclamation announcing his taking of office and a military band stationed outside the chamber played "God Save the Queen" while an artillery battery stationed on Parliament Hill began firing the 21-gun salute. The governor-general's flag was raised to full staff.

ALL BY CAESARIAN

Cleveland, Feb. 27—(AP)—By means of caesarian operations, Mrs. Thomas Murray, 37, has given birth to eight sons and daughters. The latest child, born Feb. 6, weighed in at eight pounds, 14 ounces. Dr. Bruno Gebhard said there were no statistics on the subject but that Mrs. Murray's case "truly is unusual."

THRONE SPEECH

"Immediate steps have been taken to limit the affected area, eradicate the disease and meet the situation resulting from the embargo under United States law on exports of livestock and meat to that country," said the speech.

No new measures connected with the St. Lawrence seaway and power projects were mentioned. Reference was made to establishment of a board of engineers to prepare an application for submission to the international joint commission concerning the power development.

Legislation will be submitted to enable the Canadian National Railways to construct a ranch line between Terrace and Kitimat in British Columbia. A new aluminium plant is being constructed in the Kitimat area.

Amendments will be made to the War Veterans Allowance Act and to the Veterans Benefit Act. Some observers expect the allowances, paid to veterans prematurely aged as a result of war service, will be increased.

The Immigration Act will be revised and amendments may be made to the Canadian Citizenship Act.

Will Seek Authority

Authority will be sought for new taxation agreements with the provinces. Existing agreements with all provinces except Ontario and Quebec are due to expire March 31. Under the agreements, the provinces give the federal government almost exclusive use of the personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields in return for annual payments based on population and the value of national production.

Another measure will provide for redistribution of representation in the Commons on the basis of the 1951 census. Plans to go ahead with the mesaure at this session were taken by some observers as an indication there will be no general federal election this year. Life of the present parliament expires normally in August, 1954.

Members will be asked to approve a complete revision of the criminal code. A legal commission has been working on the revision for three years.

Preparatory steps will be taken for the establishment of a national library as recommended by the Royal Commission on arts and science. That commission, which submitted its report to parliament last year, was headed by Mr. Massey.

Reference Made

"You will be asked to make provision for all essential services, and for national defence and the meeting of our obligations under the United Nations Charter and the North Atlantic Treaty, for the next fiscal year," said the speech.

Reference was made to Mr. Massey's appointment.

"I am deeply sensible of the great honor of having been appointed by His Late Majesty as his personal representative in my native land," Mr. Massey read from the speech.

"As I take up my duties as the representative of the Queen, I assure you of the pleasure with which I look forward to our association in parliament and I deem it a privilege to be connected with you in your labors for the welfare and happiness of the Canadian people."

OLDEST LEAP YEAR BABY

Toronto, Feb. 28—(CP)— Toronto's oldest leay year baby will celebrate her 24th birthday tomorrow. Mrs. Harriet Burgess will be 96 years old. Her mother was a leap year baby too and lived to be 93. Hale and hearty, Mrs. Burgess was born in a little log cabin near Brampton.

Executive Job For NATO Post Goes Begging

Ottawa, Feb. 28—(CP)—An executive job for a man who can boss a 14-nation defence alliance is going begging today.

The job as secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was turned down yesterday by Britain's Sir Oliver Franks. Even External Affairs Minister Pearson of Canada does not seem to want it.

Mr. Pearson, chairman of the N.A.T.O. council, is said to have tried to talk Sir Oliver into accepting the post by transatlantic telephone. But Sir Oliver said in a message to Mr. Pearson that he "could not see his way to accept it."

That brought about a conference between Prime Minister St. Laurent and Mr. Pearson who had been reported a likely man for the job before Sir Oliver was offered it. But Mr. St. Laurent definitely wants Mr. Pearson to remain in the cabinet.

Whether Mr. Pearson will remain adamant in his announced intention not to take the N.A.T.O. job remains to be seen.

Meanwhile, he has asked the North Atlantic deputies in London "to meet as soon as possible to give further consideration to the question of appointment of a secretary-general."

Sir Oliver's refusal was reported to be a big disappointment to Mr. Pearson who looks on the secretary-generalship of N.A.T.O. as a vital job in western defence.

SEALS GAIN FREEDOM

A NATIONAL MISFORTUNE

How severe the outbreak of foot and mouth disease among the cattle of southern Saskatchewan is going to be will not be known for days, perhaps for weeks. In fact, the investigators have not yet ascertained how widespread the outbreak is nor the number of cattle infected.

But there is no doubt that the loss involved will be enormous. The national treasury will be forced to pay the owners of the infected herds for the diseased animals, which are being rounded up for slaughter. Also, some of the animals which will have to be sacrificed are liable to be high grade purebreds of a type which cannot be replaced very easily, at any price.

But out of the welter of reports, rumors and speculations that have followed the original announcement that the outbreak of the disease had been discovered one significant fact has already emerged, and emerged with startling clarity. That fact is the speed with which the United States government acted after Ottawa confirmed the existence of the disease in Canada.

One newspaper report said the United States government banned the import of cattle, hogs, sheep and their meat from Canada "immediately." Another report said the Washington ban followed the Ottawa announcement "within a matter of minutes."

No one will criticize the American authorities for acting promptly to prevent an admittedly serious animal disease from spreading across the international boundary. In fact, the American authorities would be guilty of dereliction of duty if they had not taken the action which they did take.

LET'S NOT BE HASTY

A Canadian Press dispatch from Ottawa informs us that the government-owned Canadian National Railway is likely soon to move into the highway transport business "in a big scale." The C.N.R., we have it on the authority of the Canadian Press, has had a committee of "experts" studying the problem offered by highway competition. These "experts," it is said, are going to recommend that the C.N.R. go "into the bus-truck trade fully itself."

Since the C.N.R. is government-owned, and under the control of the Board of Railway Commissioners, no such major change of policy can be made without the approval of the transport commissioners, who are an agency of the government. It is probable that any attempt on the part of the C.N.R. to invade the highway trucking field would have to be endorsed by the federal cabinet, since dominion - provincial relations would be involved.

Both the C.N.R. and the Canadian Pacific Railway are said to have done some experimenting in the trucking business in western Canada, but we have at hand no data on the scope of these operations, nor upon the degree of success which they have achieved.

Whatever may be recommended by those "experts," we hope that both the federal cabinet and the Board of Transport Commissioners, before authorizing this C.N.R. venture into the trucking business, insists upon some ironclad guarantee that there will be no deficits from it to be met by the taxpayers.

TROUBLE IN ARGENTINA

Things are going haywire in Argentina, too. The government of that country, headed by a near-dictator named Peron, admits that the cost of living has increased 80 per cent since 1949 and 455 per cent since 1943. Some say these figures are conservative.

During 1951, the country had a foreign trade deficit of around $200,000,000. This was due largely to big decreases in the quantities of grain and meat exported, caused by increasing home consumption and declining production.

A system of meat rationing has been introduced in Argentina, for the first time in the history of the country. Meatless days in public eating places are going to be raised from one to two per week.

Senor Peron, it is said, is thinking about applying to the United States for a ~~loan~~ to keep things going. He isn't likely to get it, because there is a presidential election coming up in the United States and the American taxpayers are getting tired of seeing their money being given away by the Truman administration.

DISTILLERS RAISE PRICES

From Scotland comes word that the Scottish distillers are going to increase the price at which they sell their product in Canada from $11 to $11.68 per case of 12 bottles. Thus, the new laid-down price will be 97 cents, instead of 91 cents per bottle.

But 97 cents a bottle is not the price the men of distinction pay for the whisky when they purchase it. The 97 cent price is what the distillers get when they sell it to the provincial governments. The consumer pays around $5 a bottle for Scotch whisky.

INCIDENT

He saw her wandering the hall,
Bewildered by the building's size,
Seeking a doorway number small
And much too faint for tired eyes.

"The light is very dim," said she.
"Some rooms are difficult to find."
"I'll help you. Come with me," said he.
She answered: "Sir, you're very kind."

His name or place she never knew,
But later sent a thankful note
Telling the firm of some one who
For courtesy it should promote.

He chuckled as the scrawl he read
Telling how much a kindness meant.
"I can't promote myself," he said,
"Already I am president."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Feb. 28th., 1932

Mr. George Stringer, game overseer at Madoc, and Mr. Charles Moffatt, game overseer at Bancroft, were in town today.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson, late of Cleveland, Ohio, have come to this city to reside.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Patterson are spending a few days in Toronto.

The members of the Holloway Street United Church choir met last evening for practice at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cordes, following which a most enjoyable social time was spent.

The street sweeper was out today doing work on the east hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sager, pioneers of Madoc township, celebrated yesterday the 54th anniversary of their marriage. Both were born two miles from where they now reside. Mrs. Sager who prior to her marriage was Miss Sarah Jane Moorcroft, is in her 81st year and Mr. Sager is two years younger.

30 YEARS AGO

Feb. 28th., 1922

Mr. George Appell, formerly chief chemist at the distillery in Corbyville, is residing now in New York City.

Miss Maud Campbell has returned home from New York city where she attended the spring millinery shows.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Anderson of Frankford, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Bonisteel in this city.

Mr. Stan Hagerman is spending a few days in Buffalo, N.Y.

Mr. B. W. Brown has returned home after spending a few days in Peterborough.

Mr. Allen Ashley has left for his home in North Dakota after visiting friends here and in the district.

40 YEARS AGO

Feb. 28th., 1912

Rt. Wor. Bro. F. Davey Diamond, D.D.G.M., for Prince Edward District, paid an official visit to the United Lodge A.F. & AM., at Brighton last evening. He was accompanied by Rt. Wor. Bro. F. E. O'Flynn, Wor. Bros. C. J. Symons, W. Adams and A. R. Walker.

Mr. E. B. Ashley spent yesterday in Brockville.

Mr. T. H. Thompson has returned home from Toronto where he attended the motor car show.

The price of coal has advanced 25 cents per ton in this city and is now selling at $7.50 per ton.

50 YEARS AGO

Feb. 28th., 1902

Mr. Walter Corham has left for his home in Michigan after visiting his mother at her home on George Street.

The Rev. R. C. Rolph has left for Bloomsburg, Ontario, where he will take charge of the Baptist Church. Mrs Rolph and family will join him in about two weeks.

Mr. John Conick, a member of the City of Chicago detective staff, an old Belleville boy, is spending a few days here with friends.

Mr. H. J. C. Skeffington, who has been teller in the Canadian Bank of Commerce here for some time, has been promoted to the Montreal office of the bank. He was popular with the customers of the bank and with many personal friends.

Miss Urquhart of the Ritchie Store is attending the spring millinery style shows in New York City.

OPPORTUNITY PLUS BRAINS

More than 40 years ago a man in Arizona allowed me to visit his gold mine and remain there for several weeks. His workmen showed me how to break open the crevices of the rocks, sweep out the dust, and then pan it to get gold. I shall never forget my thrill as I came to the bottom of the first pan and saw the yellow grains lying among the black carbon.

The Indians used to tell the early settlers that there was an oil which came up out of the ground and mixed with the water. Nobody paid much attention to this until oil was really struck in a Pennsylvania town, and one of the greatest modern industries was begun. Fifty years ago practically every part of a slaughtered animal except the lean meat was thrown away; today the packing houses pay a large part of their overhead, and frequently their dividends out what they salvage from this former waste.

Now people are talking about solar energy, and if we ever utilize it, we will simply be utilizing something we have always had. But every valuable thing in life has to be mixed with equal parts of intelligence, brains and moral character before it has any real utility.

CRAZY TO BUY

"Now," said the famous psychiatrist, "I want you to lie back and tell me anything that comes into your mind. Anything at all."

Henry Pludge lay back on the leather couch. He closed his eyes.

From the street outside came the barp! barp! of traffic sounds, far away as if they might be sounds under water. The leather couch felt cool on the back of his neck.

"The couch feels cool on my neck," Henry said.

The famous psychiatrist made a gesture of impatience. "Please come to the point, Mr. Pludge," he said. "Tell me about your repressions, your hidden fears, your grubby little complexes."

Henry closed his eyes again. He hardly knew where to begin.

"I hardly know where to begin, doctor," he said finally. "My repressions aren't like normal men's. I'm happily married. I never think of other women. Well, hardly ever. I don't drink except at office parties. I never gamble or stay out late."

"Then what is the cause of your mental break-down?" asked the famous psychiatrist.

"Serve - yourself groceries," Henry said. His voice quivered with emotion. A film of perspiration beaded his forehead. His eyes bugged alarmingly.

"I go just a little crazy in serve-yourself groceries," he explained.

* * *

The famous psychiatrist circled the room, knitting his brows professionally, and finally sat down beside his patient. "Tell me more," he said.

"Once or twice a week Clara sends me to the store," Henry began in a faltering voice. "She gives me a little list of things she wants, Rinso, Halo, Crisco, Drano, Jello, Harpo, Groucho, all those things. Well, as soon as I get in the store and start wheeling one of those little wire go-carts, it happens."

"What happens?" the psychiatrist murmured.

"I go berserk," Henry Pludge said simply.

* * *

He closed his eyes again, thinking of the inside of the serve-yourself grocery, the long shelves of canned goods with enticing pictures on their labels, the crisp packages with clear, shining cellophane windows, the pyramids of cereal boxes, the fat figs, the breakfast foods fired from guns, the olives gleaming in slim bottles. He had begun to breathe heavily.

"A terrible change comes over me," Henry said aloud. "I'm no longer the clean-cut, red-blooded all-Canadian boy, but a wolf. I begin to snatch at all the things I want. The wire basket begins to fill up. None of the things are what my wife wants."

He lay back again, thinking of the time he had filled the basket with giant bundles of tinted marshmallows," he told the doctor.

The famous psychiatrist pursed his lips. He was wondering if he should ask Henry to move over.

* * *

"Now, ordinarily," the psychiatrist said, "ordinarily, if a man obeys such an impulse he is cured of it. Yet you tell me this happens on each occasion."

Henry shook his head weakly.

"But that's the point, doctor," he said. "I never get away with it. You see, Clara only gives me just enough money to buy the things she wants. I always get turned back at the counter where the clerk takes your money."

He closed his eyes once more, remembering the latest episode.

He remembered the accusing look in the clerk's eye when he put down the packages of ginger snaps, the cluster of all-day suckers, the tins of lobster paste.

He remembered the clerk ordering him back to get the things on his list. He remembered the titters of the shopping housewives.

"The clerk called me the werewolf of bargain alley," Henry said, trembling at the memory.

* * *

The famous psychiatrist walked across the room and looked out the window. He liked to stand there gazing into the street below and count the potential customers.

Then he turned and confronted Henry once more.

"What you've just told me is most interesting," he said.

"It so happens that I, myself, have had the same temptation on many occasions. Indeed, I venture to say that every man who ever visited a serve-your-self grocery has felt the same. Myself, I almost always find myself reaching for the tinned shrimp."

"Really?" said Henry, brightening noticeably.

"Yes, Mr. Pludge," the psychiatrist said. He reached into his pocket and brought out an immense roll of bills. A slow smile came to his face.

"This case is almost over, Mr. Pludge," he said. "Get your coat and hat. You and I are going out on the gol-darndest shopping tour in history."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

EYES UPON US

Eyes are forever upon us, no matter where we go. Somebody is wondering who we are, what we do, what we read, and what we think. We are examples of speculation. And our eyes, as well, are upon others going through the same process.

But these eyes of ours see only the surface of things. They cannot penetrate the mind. They cannot photograph the heart. Yet we often say things to others, not always in praise or appreciaion, as though we did see right into the thought or lives of others. Even blood ties are often clouded. The brother of W. H. Hudson once stated that of all men he knew his brother the least.

Even the hardened criminal, after being sentenced and led from the court room, tries to hide his face from photographers and the curious. He is afraid of eyes. The honest and enthusiastic salesman looks his prospect in the eye, and that look from his eye is often more convincing than the words he speaks. Eyes sell!

The eyes tell more than any of us ever suspects, but they conceal as well. The first messages of love come from the eyes. As the saying goes—"love at first sight." The American poet, Walt Mason once wrote of the eyes of Lincoln in this fashion: "Sad eyes, that were patient and tender, sad eyes that were steadfast and true, and warm with the unchanging splendor of courage no ills could subdue."

The eyes in nature are also upon us. Birds, animals, even insects, are ever upon us when we are near. They have their own manner of measurement with those eyes of theirs. Have you ever tried to fathom the honest look of a dog from those wonderful eyes of his? They look right through you because they hide nothing. Fewer hunters would kill the beautiful deer if they could first look into those marvelous eyes that this animal owns.

How penetrating is the look from the eyes of a baby! How full of wonder and questioning. There are more eyes upon us than we ever suspect. We are watched by invisible eyes as well. Edwin Booth once wrote to a minister that there was no place in his theatre where God's eyes couldn't see.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The slush and mud season is now at hand, and the spectacle of motor vehicles squirting filth all over each other and the pedestrian public is once more to raise the blood pressure of motorists and pedestrians alike.

The vast majority of offenders are, of course, blithely unaware of their offence, though even stupidity is no excuse for us. But that there are a fair number of drivers who deliberately slosh others is something I would not readily have believed until yesterday, although it has been often asserted in my presence. A new fall of soft snow left dirty ridges and furrows on the pavement. Fairly clear tracks of course, had been worn by the traffic; and everyone kept to those tracks. Towards me came a car. I was well over in my own clear tracks. The oncoming car, with no other traffic and no other reason to motivate it, just quietly eased over a foot or so towards my side of the pavement, putting its front left wheel onto the slush ridge; and kicked up a great fan of filth which sloshed me from windshield to trunk. As the filth struck, my incredulous glance caught a glimpse of a sly smirk on the face of the passing driver.

In boys and youths there is often a vandalistic streak that defies rational explanation. But this was no boy; he was a man in his thirties and his car was that of a solid citizen. Maybe he had only a few moments before been sloshed by somebody else, and was motivated by that human instinct to get even.

For a great many years, we have intensively studied crime and the criminal instinct in humanity with the idea of solving a problem. But there is little distinction between the criminal instinct and such instincts as this man demonstrated, when it comes to figuring how far we are from any practical realization of the brotherhood of man.

There is a long, sloppy road ahead.

Personal Health Talks

CHRONIC ACETANILID POISONING

Acetanilid poisoning occurs more frequently than barbiturate (goof balls, sleeping tablets) poisoning but in most cases the nature of the poison is masked under some vague name such as "headache," "cold," "neuralgia" or "stomach" remedy, and in fatal cases the cause of death is perhaps certified, by some doctor who wants to save the family unpleasant publicity, as "heart failure" or the equivalent in medical lingo.

Man about 55 came home after his game of golf in his usual good health and spirits. Toward dinner time he had a touch of what he called "indigestion"—as though arrest or slowing of the digestive process could account for pain or distress—and, being a regular Yankee Wiseacre he resorted to a dose of a nostrum that contains a large quantity of acetanilid—it is in fact merely a disguised form of the drug for indiscriminate sale to the sucker population. One dose brought no relief, so the wiseacre repeated the dose, and kept on repeating it well into the evening. About midnight his wife heard odd sounds, found him livid and could not awaken him. By the time a doctor in the neighborhood arrived the man was dead. Acetanilid poisoning, of course, but an old medical friend of the family fixed up the death certificate so that a mysterious "heart" failure took care of everything.

The striking features of acetanilid poisoning are (1) cyanosis—blueness of lips, nails and the entire body surface, and (2) heart failure with collapse.

The d.f. who takes a dose or several doses of the poison under an innocent proprietary name, for "cold" (whatever that may prove to be), headache, sense of fatigue, neuralgia, or "indigestion" generally suffers from progressive decrease in red corpuscles for a year or two before complete breakdown.

Acetanilid benumbs or dulls normal sensibility to pain, ache, fatigue, anxiety or other distress, but it is not a remedy or cure for anything, despite what the nostrum mongers tell prospective customers.

Besides the immediate untoward effects of acetanilid there are many cases of acetanilid habit—victims who take it in one form or another several times a day and are unwilling to bear temporarily the headache, insomnia, restlessness or irritability involved in breaking the habit. Since acetanilid diminishes the oxygen carrying capacity of the blood habitual users show progressive degeneration of vital organs, notably the heart and the central nervous system.

There is no specific remedy for these untoward effects of acetanilid—no direct antidote. Of course treatment in any instance begins with immediate and absolute withdrawal of the drug.

By way of prevention I offer two suggestions:

1. Never take a dose of acetanilid or other pain-killer or sense-deadener unless you can lie down or sit at rest for an hour afterward.
2. By no means safe for anybody but far less dangerous than acetanilid is acetyl-salicylic acid (aspirin) if you can't endure ache or pain without dope.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mule Had No Faith in Vet

My husband was greatly benefited by the calcium and vitamin suggestion in your pamphlet—much to his own surprise. He was sure the cramps were just inevitable with advancing age, because his father had suffered with them before him. . . . (Mrs. L. R. L.)

Answer—The mule had no faith in the veterinarian but the vet cured him just the same. People who suffer from painful leg or foot cramps at night may send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet Adult Tetany and Growing Pains.

Not Dangerous

Is it dangerous to wash your hair when you are menstruating. (B. H.)

Answer— Good gracious, no. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping), for pamphlet Hygiene for Girls and Health for Women.

Carries No Spare

Had one kidney removed four years ago and have been as well as ever. But recently a friend told me I am supposed to follow a strict diet in order to live very long. . . (Mrs. W. T.)

Answer— Your friend should tell that to the Marines. Just take the same care of your health as you would if you carried a spare kidney.

Warts and Bags

I have a large wart on my finger which nothing seems to get . . . bags under my eyes. . . (E. W.)

Answer—Both are considered in booklet Cosmetic Blemishes, for which send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope.

HICCUP SUFFERER

Leeds, England. (CP) — Fred Ramsden, 65, who suffered severe hiccups for six months, died in hospital here. He believed the main cause of his ailment was his action in diving into a canal six years ago to save a girl from drowning.

Five Perish in Montreal Fire

Five members of a Scottish immigrant family died in a sudden fire in this Montreal home. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Morton, their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Morton, and two grandchildren were overcome with smoke and could not be roused by another granddaughter, Isobel, 17, who was forced by flames to jump into a snowbank from the second floor. House of Commons Likely To Reach Early Decision On Reducing Night Meetings

Ottawa—(CP)— The House of Commons, seeking to improve its own working conditions, is expected to come to a final decision on hours shortly after the new session opens Feb. 28.

The expectation is that the Commons will adopt a schedule giving members Wednesday and Friday nights off, leaving only three night sittings a week—Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. That was the schedule with which the house finished up last December, after experimenting with various combinations of hours for two months.

The old hours appear definitely to be on the way out. Under them, the chamber sat daily—Monday through Friday—from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m., with a dinner break from 6 to 8 p.m. But Wednesday evenings were free in the early stages of each session.

Much Criticism

These hours, adopted during the 19th century, drew a lot of complaints. Year after year members called for revision, suggesting that 11 p.m. was too late to finish work, especially when they must be back in the morning for committee meetings.

Nothing was done until early last fall when a special committee representing all parties met and suggested several combinations of hours be tried on an experimental basis.

First, the chamber sat a week from 1:30 to 7 p.m. daily without a break. The members didn't like that; it was too long a stretch. Besides, many didn't know what to do with so many evenings off.

Then they tried a week with only three nights off, but that schedule, too, had some unpopular quirks.

Finally, the chamber agreed to finish out the session with these hours:

Monday, Tuesday and Thursday—2:30 to 10 p.m., with a dinner adjournment between 6:15 and 8 p.m.

Wednesday—2:30 to 6:15 p.m., with no evening sitting.

Those hours weren't approved 100 per cent—one member protested from the floor they were "a bunch of tommyrot"—but they were the most popular of the three schedules. They probably will be made permanent with one small change—that the house rise at 6 p.m. for dinner instead of 6:15 p.m.

Resume Old Hours

Because the new hours were valid only for the fall session, the house will meet under its old hours—3 to 11 p.m.—when the new session starts. A decision on the new schedule is expected to be taken within the first week or so.

Along with the change in hours, the special committee also made several other suggestions aimed at speeding the business of parliament. One, which may prove unpopular, is that the limit on speeches by private members be shortened to 30 minutes from the present 40 minutes.

The committee's report was crowded out in a last-minute rush of business and thus died with the fall session, but the government may ask that it be revived and debated in the new session.

PICTON

County Fair Will be Held In August

Picton—Prince Edward County Fair at Picton will be held on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 20, 21, 22 and 23, it was decided at a meeting of the executive yesterday. It will also mark the one hundredth fair, which has been held in Picton, and many special events are planned to celebrate the occasion.

The directors decided to hold the fair on an August date rather than in September when it would conflict with other fairs in the district. It was also possible to secure a midway for the August dates, the great Bernard and Barry shows being engaged. This will be the largest midway ever to come to Picton, there being 27 train carloads of rides and concessions.

Directors also felt that the August date would avoid conflict with the busy canning season and assure warmer weather. It was decided to sell tickets on a car and to have the draw at the fair. One of Canada's most noted figures is being invited to open the fair and five different night shows are planned.

The Agricultural Society decided to sponsor a field crop competition, seven junior farmer clubs and a commercial feature exhibit.

Women's Activities

WOOLER W.A.

On Thursday, the February meeting of the Woman's Association was held in the United Church with the noon dinner being served by Mrs. E. McMaster's group.

At two o'clock the meeting opened with the assistant leader, Mrs. Mac Anderson, presiding. A short worship service was held with Mrs. E. McMaster reading the Scripture lesson and Mrs. Anderson giving a short address. Mrs. R. Radcliffe sang "In The Garden", a duet, "Have Thine Own Way, Lord," was given by Mrs. Henry McColl and Mrs. Mac Anderson. Mrs. P. Conley gave a piano solo and Mrs. J. J. Way a reading.

The president, Mrs. R. Putnam, took charge of the business. It was decided to have a 'bee' in the near future to wash the Sunday School room walls and ceiling, also to serve meals at a Williams' Sale in March. The personage committee gave a report on the work needing to be done at the parsonage this spring. A new stove has been purchased for the church kitchen.

2ND THURLOW NEIGHBORS' AID

About 35 members and visitors including ten children attended the recent February meeting of the 2nd Thurlow Neighbors' Aid at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Manley Mitchell, with the president, Mrs. Corah Howerd, presiding. Two minutes' silence was observed in memory of the late King George VI, after which all sang "God Save The Queen".

Several bills were handed in and paid by the treasurer, Mrs. Robert Atkins.

A euchre was arranged to be held on St. Patrick's night, March 17th at S.S. No. 3. Mrs. Don Leeming and Mrs. Harry Grills to make arrangements and look after same.

Mrs. Bruce Port conducted a contest, the winning group received a bag of candy.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by the Uproad members and the hostess.

Christian Democracy Will Bring Peace to World and Canada Will Play Big Part Says Laval Rector

Toronto, Feb. 23. (CP)—Christian democracy will bring peace to the world and Canada will play a big part in the Salvation of the human race, Msgr. Ferdinand Vandry, Laval University rector, said today.

In an address prepared for delivery before the Empire Club of Canada, the rector of the Quebec University, marking its centenary this year, said democracy was based on human rights and sound leadership.

Speaking in English, he said: "We, Canadians, have the privilege of belonging to a great democracy, called upon to play a very important role in the life of democratic nations, and since we claim the honor of contributing our share to the work of social restoration actually going on, it is essential for Canada to offer the highest form of democracy, inspired by the loftiest possible concept of right, of liberty, of justice and of social order.

"That means that Canada has to be a Christian democracy, a nation whose political life and social life must be fully comformable to the requirements and sound philosophy enlightened by faith and by the teaching of Christ.

". . . you love your country as dearly as I do. You wish Canada to become more and more looked up to, not simply on account of her economic wealth, her prosperity and her future of great promise, but above all for the wisdom of her constitution, the moral quality of her legislation, the social value of her institutions, the guarantees offered to the liberty and dignity of the human being.

". . . let us sincerely endeavor to make Canada a Christian democracy. It is on this condition that our country will be a great country and will be capable of saving the modern world from the dissolving materialism which is sapping the foundations of social order. . . .

"I love my country, I love without reservation all her inhabitants, regardless of their race, their language, or their creed. .

"Canada is a democratic country. . . and she will remain so. . . providing she is a Christian democracy. . . our Canadian democracy for which human reason is indebted to Christian faith."

GREAT RIVER

Nurse on Way Home

Ottawa, Feb. 28 (CP)—Lieut. Elizabeth Sansom, missing since Dec. 25 and located Tuesday in New York City, is on her way home, it was learned last night.

The 26-year-old nurse, described by the army as appearing to have been a victim of amnesia is expected to arrive at Fredericton, N.B., about noon today. Her parents live at Stanley, N.B.

Miss Sansom left the army hospital at Kingston, Dec. 24 last, presumably to visit relatives in Sherbrooke, Que. When she failed to arrive there, a search was started in Montreal.

HAPPY VETERANS

London. (CP)—Many Chelsea pensioners, some of whom were in the British army as far back as 1885, are again lustily singing the old song "We're Soldiers of the Queen, My Boys". They fought for Queen Victoria in the Boer War and proudly swore allegiance to Queen Elizabeth II.

Mrs. Gage Talks On Easter Pictures

The February meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Guild was held on Tuesday evening in the Sunday School Hall.

One minute's silence was observed in memory of the late King George VI.

Mrs. Carmichael read the scripture.

Several letters of thanks were read by the secretary for flowers sent members during a recent illness.

The president, expressed her gratitude for the splendid attendance and urged regular attendance at all Guild meetings. Members were reminded of the World Day of Prayer on February 29, in St. Thomas' Church.

W.M.S. Tea

An announcement was made of the W.M.S. tea to be held at the home of Mrs. W. J. Taylor, early in March.

During the business period, plans and discussion followed regarding a spring tea in May and the annual fall bazaar. Some group activities were announced as well.

Guest Speaker.

Mrs. Elvidge aptly introduced the guest speaker for the evening. Mrs. Gage, of the Salvation Army. In view of the approaching Easter season, the speaker gave her audience two beautiful Easter pictures in color made impressive by the aid of a scenic felt.

The first picture "The Garden of Gethsemane", was augmented by the speaker reading the poem entitled "Have You Been in the Garden with Jesus?".

The second picture, the story of "The Easter Dawning", was equally impressive and will long remain in the minds of those present.

Thanks of the Guild were extended to Mrs. Gage by Mrs. V. Weir.

Refreshments and a social half hour followed.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Gelsthorpe's group and refreshments by Mrs. Ketcheson's group.

'No Hope of a Preventive War Says Lt. General M. Tokarzewski

Tuesday evening, in Christ Church parish hall, the Women's Canadian Club listened intently as Lt.-General M. Tokarzewski, C.B., told of the difficulties in the Middle East as he dealt most fully with the topic, "Middle Europe Still Between the East and West."

General Tokarzewski, who has a most interesting background and personality, as well as a distinguished one, is a native son of Poland. He received his military education from the academies of Metz, Versailles and Warsaw, as well as attending Cracow University. At the age of 31 he became a major general, and acted as combat commander in the First World War.

Founder of Underground Army

He was also founder of the underground army of 1940; received the Polish Cross of Valor, five times; the French Legion of Honor and was invested with the British Order of the Bath. Briefly, Lt.-General Tokarzewski sketched his first hand observations of Russia culled during his second stay in that country while in the underground army, in the Second World War; telling of his three years in Russian prison camps and five months in forced labor camps, of the meagre diet of bread and cabbage accompanied by lukewarm water.

"The evil which Russo-Communism pours into the lifestream of humanity," said the speaker, "consists in its denial of man's individuality and free will; its cult for brute force in arbitrarily violating every human right; and its destruction of the age-old ethical basis of social life by propagating the gospel of hatred under a system of falsehood and coercion."

Contrary to Christianity

It is based on principles absolutely contrary to those of Christianity and other great religions of the world, and for the last 25 years has dominated Russia's two hundred million people, has overcome China with her four hundred millions, and as each new part is consolidated, it spreads like a cancerous growth to other parts of the world. To think that some internal collapse may occur in Russia to stop the spread of communism, is without foundation; and it is not only necessary to stop its spread but to eleminate every possibility of its continuation in the future.

It is necessary that the nations under the subjection of Russo-Communism be permitted the chance to decide whether they wish to remain under its doctrines. To do this, there must be not only an organization of material forces, but also of moral forces among those peoples who are ready to combat the evils of Bolshevism until real peace is assured.

The necessary moral power could be released by ideals which actually help to defend the fundamental values of civilization, and the scope of these ideals is contained in the Atlantic Charter, the United Nations declaration of the rights of man, and the United Nations convention against genicide, which is designed to oppose mass infringements of these human rights. Only on these three acts objectives can Russo-Communism be opposed, and there must be an immediate application of these in order that fears can be dispersed, making those countries on the other side of the Iron Curtain ready to make the sacrifice which will yield the victory against Russo-Communism.

Idealogical Offensive

"A declaration based in these ideals would transform the West's defensive attitude into an idealogical offensive of our civilization against the destruction brought about by Russo-Communism, and make it possible to avoid a new world war. It is only by rearmament and the amassing of further material strength for the preservation of this idealogy can their sensible use and vigor be utilized.

"These ideals must be backed up with concrete proofs that the west is not only determined but ready to maintain them, that can enable the Central-Eastern European countries to endure in the grasp of Bolshevism, and to mobilize all the forces of this region in support of the west in time of peace. A declaration of this kind would, in case of war, encourage one hundred and fifty-two million Central-Eastern Europeans to make every sacrifice to re-inforce the west.

Mistakes Renounced

"The mistakes of the western countries should be renounced, and a real organization of co-operation with real refugee representatives of those central nations be inaugurated, which would show not only elementary justice but good will and good faith.

"If these Central-Eastern European countries be federated, they would fear neither Germany nor Russia, and this federation would greatly increase the man-power potential of the western line-up and at the same time, tend to draw the satellite armies over to the camp of the western democracies, and make for security and order in the future Europe."

In Poland alone there are one and one-half million men in supplementary training. The Poles are a loyal people who have suffered greatly in their endeavor to regain freedom. She has 11,000 officers under 50 years; and 100,000 under 40 years of age.

One of the greatest fears is that of the secret police, who invent painful charges, holding over the heads of those arrested the threat to their loved ones. Over one and one-half million have been deported to Siberia. Four thousand Polish officers have been murdered; and from 1926 to 1929, six and one-half million Ukrainians have been killed or deported with four million war casualties.

No Preventive War

"There is no hope of a preventive war between Russia and the western democracies," stated the general; Poland is re-arming for war, increasing her individual powers and strengthening the moral ones. The west must declare its aim, and if each country would add a small brick of co-operation to the Temple of Understanding, the future would be most happy," concluded the speaker.

Lt.-General Tokarzewski was introduced to his audience by the president of the Club, Mrs. E. Hickey, and thanked for his address by Mrs. J. W. Kinnear.

The Rev. Canon J. B. Creeggan, rector of Christ Church, just prior to the address of the evening, paid a fitting tribute to the late King George VI, mentioning his sterling character, his great love for his people and his family, and of his untiring fidelity to duty.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A question-and-answer club asks signature-questions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I belong to a Question-and-Answer Club, and we cannot agree on the following questions. Will you please give us the correct answers?

1. Our first question has to do with the correct form of a widow's signature. For instance, how should a widow sign greeting cards, such as Christmas cards or Easter cards? How should she sign sympathy cards? How should a widow sign a greeting card to a doctor, to a lawyer, to a minister?

2. On a business letter is the following form of signature correct?:

Mary Brown
(Mrs. John Brown)

3. When a mother and daughter are sending greeting cards together, is it proper to sign "Mary Brown and Mother", or should the mother's name be written in full?

4. Is Mary Brown a correct form of signature on a cheque? I say this is correct, but some other members of the club insist that there should be a prefix of "Mrs."—— that is, (Mrs.) Mary Brown.—L.

Excellent questions you sent . . . I'm proud to help!

1. When her husband dies, a widow should not change the form of her name: that is, her formal name is still Mrs. John Brown, and her informal name (which is her signature) is still Mary Smith Brown or Mary Brown or Mary S. Brown. Naturally she signs letters and notes and cards to relatives and intimate friends with her first name only. Then letters or notes or greeting cards sent to those whom she does not know very well, people who, say don't call her by her first name . . . a lawyer, doctor, minister, perhaps her child's teacher, perhaps a member of an organization to which she belongs. . . she signs with her informal name, Mary Brown, or Mary Smith Brown, or Mary S. Brown (whichever form of name she prefers for her signature). The important point is that never should a woman sign her title as part of her signature on a letter, a note, or a card. . . never Mrs., never "Miss".

2. However, when a woman signs a business letter, or a letter to anyone who must be informed of her formal name (her husband's name), she signs her informal name as the direct signature, and then, in parentheses underneath and to the left, she signs her formal name:

Very truly yours,
Mary Smith Brown
(or Mary Brown)
(or Mary S. Brown)
(Mrs. John Brown)

3. The mother's name should be given, and should be written first. Like this:

Martha Brown and Mary Brown.

4. You are right . . . no (Mrs.) is included in the signature on cheques. Most married women and widows and divorcees include their maiden surname in their signature: Mary Smith Brown; but, if they prefer, also correct are Mary S. Brown and Mary Brown.

When bride's uncle takes her father's place

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My niece is to be married soon, a Catholic church wedding. As her father is unable to give her away, my husband has been asked to do the honors. My sister (the bride's mother) has asked me to sit with her. Would this be correct? If so, would my husband be my escort when leaving the church, and an usher her escort? How would the seating be arranged?—M. N.

Yes, since your sister wishes to have you sit with her, this would be not only correct, but also a comfort and reasurance to her. Between five and ten minutes before the hour for the ceremony, an usher would escort you to the first pew on the left of the aisle, and you would take your seat farthest from the aisle. Just before the processional is to start, your sister, the bride's mother, would be escorted by the head usher to her place next to you in the first pew. Then, when your husband has finished his part in the ceremony, he would take his seat at the end of the pew. After the recessional, the head usher returns to escort the bride's mother down the aisle. Your husband steps from the pew. . .waits while the bride's mother and usher start down the aisle. . . then for another usher to come to escort the groom's mother (followed by the groom's father) down the aisle . . .and then you and he walk together down the aisle, you on your husband's right.

Food for Thought

By Mary Moore

Are You Proud of Your Cooking

Toes will be trod upon I'm afraid—but take it easy girls—I'm rampaging for a purpose.

The object of my gripe is The Indifferent Cook. I will explain myself.

One "born" cook can handle a meal's worth of food and turn every item into a tempting dish.

The "indifferent" cook serves it up, a mess of pottage, to her family and unconsciously constantly alibis to herself by saying "It's good plain food—if they're hungry they'll eat it."

A little personal story inserted here might brighten up the point I am trying to make.

When Marianne and Pete were four and three years old they slept in twin beds in the nursery-room. One night when I gave them their last good-night kiss Pete said "It's the same as last night Marianne." She said "Kiss me again, Mummy."

I was completely baffled—but gladly played along with the imps—kissing each one alternately until they settled their argument It seems they were trying to decide which kind of soap or perfume I had used when I took my bath—and how I would smell when I kissed them.

Since then I have tried to give the family credit for noticing every bit of eye-wash and atmosphere in the house—no matter how young. We mothers and cooks are the creators of this elusive thing—that makes a house a home—or an every-day dinner a little banquet.

As an example, one indifferent cook served overdone meat cakes, with overdone fried onions, too-heavy gray mashed potatoes, runny canned tomatoes on the same dinner plates, stacks of white bread, yesterday's unfrosted cake and canned plums.

My thinking and caring and glamor-creating homemaker handled exactly the same food this way:

Fricasseed Meat Cakes in Onion Gravy on French Mashed Potatoes
Casserole of Tomatoes
Hot Cottage Pudding with Hot Plum Sauce

In Meal No. 1 the meat cakes were uninteresting because they were overdone. They were overdone because ground meat is so full of moisture that it dries out easily unless it has expert attention. In Meal No. 2 because they were fricasseed they were in a liquid medium and did not shrink from loss of moisture or too high heat.

Cooks never let your standards slide. Use the cleanest linen, the best china, crystal and silver service your facilities will allow—observe all of the little formal amenities—including "graces" of course.

You know how easy it would be to slip into preparing that unappetizing meal No. 1, but since you want to make your whole family proud to bring home their friends any time here are my few hints for giving that same food glamor and eye-appeal and you that proud-that-you-were-born feeling.

Sear the meat cakes in hot butter for three minutes, with some sliced onion. Sprinkle in flour, stir, then add about 1 cup hot water or vegetable liquid. Cover, reduce heat, simmer 15 minutes.

For French Mashed Potatoes boil potatoes in salted water to cover until very tender. Drain. Mash over low heat until completely without lumps. If you have an electric beater give them a whizz under it. Now for 6 medium-sized potatoes add 1 cup whole milk. Stir over low heat until potatoes thicken up a little. For this large amount of milk makes them very soft, but if you constantly stir over low heat they thicken more and some of the milk evaporates and the flavor and the texture are wonderful. Add butter and salt to taste. We like these served under hash or meat cakes in gravy

The Casserole of Tomatoes is made as I have told you before, with buttered and oven-toasted squares of bread added to canned tomatoes in buttered casserole and baked until fairly thick—having some of the toast bits protruding from top of dish.

The stale cake was heated in the steamer. The red plums were drained from the juice. The juice was heated and thickened with cornstarch; plums were stoned and returned to the sauce and all heated through in top of double boiler. It make a beautiful topping for the steamed cake, and who would have recognized yesterday's old cake?

Not so much magic as thought. This won't appeal to lazy people though—they won't have read this far.

INTERFERENCE APPROVED

I don't like to interfere, but when I found that my youngest daughter-in-law didn't know that blueing is the only safe way to keep clothes white, I felt I just had to say something. 'Reckitt's Blue prevents clothes turning yellow', I told her. 'Just a swish or two in the final rinse and your wash will be sparkling white.' Blue is necessary to obtain true white. At the same time she takes no chances with anything that may damage fabric.

AIKENS' W.M.S.

Aikens—The February meeting of Aikens' W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton with a good attendance.

Quiet music was played after which there was a moment of silence and prayer given by the president in memory of the late King.

A poem was read. The worship service was then given. Scripture reading John 4 7 to 21 and devotional reading on the scripture was read by Mrs. Perry Hamilton. Mrs. Neelands closed this part of the worship by reading Ephesians 3 22 to 32.

Invitation Accepted

The business part of the meeting was then conducted. Mrs. Neelands spoke briefly on the passing of the King and extended and invitation to Aikens' to join in a joint memorial service to be held in Wallbridge church the following Sunday. She also extended an invitation to Aikens' ladies to join with Wallbridge in the World Day of Prayer. This was accepted.

Plans were made for the regular Easter meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Moon, with Miss Luella Rourke returned missionary as guest speaker. It was also decided to send invitations to Stone, Wallbridge and Scott's to join in this meeting.

Master Garnet Hamilton, Baby Band member, gathered the offering. The 5th chapter of the Study Book, "Our Fellow Canadians From Europe" was then given by four ladies, Mrs. P. Hamilton, Mrs. C. Keary, Mrs. G. Wellman and Mrs. C. Smith..

Mrs. Hamilton and her assistants served refreshments.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her family thinks her friends are "wacky"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Because I am training for the stage, many of my friends are in the theatre, and for the most part are cultured, normal people.

The problem is that my family—who, by the way, do not approve of my going on the stage—seem to think all people interested in the arts are "wacky", as they put it. On the few occasions when I have introduced them to one of these friends, they have either stared at him as though he was a man from another planet, or been downright rude. One violinist with whom I stopped to chat happened to have long hair, and the family laughed and joked about it for weeks.

It hurts me very much to have my friends ridiculed, for they are neither strange nor fast, but just everyday people who happen to make their living in the theatre. Don't you think my family is very narrow-minded? I try to be friendly and kind to their friends. Why can't they be polite to mine, and how can I change their attitude?—B.A.

Dear B.A.:

I am afraid there isn't too much you can do to change your family's attitude. You can, however, I think, get over letting it bother you too much by paying no attention to their teasing. For example, no doubt the reason their joking about the long-haired violinist went on so long was because you gave them the satisfaction of letting them see it got under your skin.

Why don't you take an entirely different tack, and steal their thunder by agreeing with them? You know yourself that your friends are not the kind of people your family pretends to think they are, so just let any critical comments about them slide off without showing annoyance about them. Next time someone in the family says one of them is 'wacky', say cheerfully: "Sure he is! That's why he's so much more fun than stuffy people!" and let it go at that. Give the folks an answer they don't expect, and you'll probably leave them at a loss for a reply. Once they see you going your own way serenely, undisturbed by their remarks, you'll have much less trouble.

A girl who is going to be sorry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 16 and in love with a married man of 23. We have petted together but nothing more.

Once he told me he loved me, but when he was taking me home I asked him if he still loved me and he said he had no right to tell me that he loved me because he was married, and that's the way we left it. But another time I happened to meet him on the street, when he was on his way home, and he had been drinking, and the first thing he said was that he loved me very much.

I don't know what to do. I can't stop seeing him. I've tried so hard, but I can't, and I'm afraid we will be caught and then what? I love him very much and I think he loves me. Do you think he does? Can a married man love someone other than his wife?—P.R.

Dear P.R.:

I wish there were something I could say to make you realize what a foolish and dangerous thing you are doing, in associating with this married man. The fact that he is married should have warned you away from him in the first place, and if that wasn't enough, then his drinking should certainly have shown you that he is not the type of man with whom you should have anything to do. If you don't have sense enough to stop seeing him immediately, I am very much afraid you will find yourself some day in very serious trouble and you will be a very sorry girl.

As for your question about whether or not a married man can love someone else than his wife, of course that can happen, under special circumstances. But it is not happening in your case. All this man is after is a cheap flirtation, and you had better put an end to it before he makes his intentions clear in a way that may be a bad shock to you. So stop this nonsense about not being able to stop seeing him. If you want to enough, you can find a way to do it. So far, your trouble is that you don't want to enough.

MADOC

Mrs. G.S. White Describes Summer West Coast Trip

Madoc—Madoc W.I. met at the home of Mrs. P. H. Nayler on Friday afternoon with a fair attendance of members and visitors. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. D. Kernohan.

Mrs. J. McGowan read a short poem entitled "George VI" which was followed by one minute silence in memory of the late King.

The sum of $25 was voted to the Navy League of Canada. Members were reminded of the cooking school sponsored by the W.I. to be held in the town hall on the evenings of March 11 and 12. A concise review of the current events was given by Mrs. W. Stewart.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. S. R. Beatty introduced Mrs. G. S. White, the guest speaker for the afternoon. Mrs. White gave an interesting resume of the trip which she and Mr. White enjoyed last summer. She told in particular about their trip on the ship, "The Princess Kathleen" up the coast of British Columbia and to Alaska. Mrs. K. Nicol read "Tribute to the King," an address which had been given by Mr. G. S. White at the recent memorial service in Madoc armouries.

Mrs. S. R. Beatty moved a hearty vote of thanks to those who had taken part in the program and to the hostess.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

MADOC

C. Howse Addresses H-S. Association

Madoc—The regular monthly meeting of the Home and School Association was held in the public school and those present were privileged to hear an address by Mr. C. Howse, principal of Madoc High School.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. D. Drinkwalter. The subject of Mr. Howse's address was "Education" and in opening he invited his audience to glance at education with respect to the present, and look into the future.

Mr. Howse quoted from Dr. Sydney Smith's recent editorial re education and said that educational methods have not developed at the same speed as everything else.

New Schools

As to what could be done to improve the educational standards—Ontario is going ahead by building new schools, there was an improvement in grants, the report of the Hope Commission, curricula revision, formation of school areas and formation of junior, intermediate and high schools. The greatest need is to train the child in correct reading habits.

On behalf of the association, Mrs. J. H. Atkinson thanked Mr. Howse for a most thought-provoking address.

Afternoon Tea

The social science room of the public school was the scene last Wednesday of a tea held under the auspices of the Home and School Association.

Bowls of fresh daffodils added a touch of spring to the prettily dressed tables. Taking turns at pouring tea were Mrs. C. Howse, Mrs. W. Rothwell and Mrs. T. Rupert. The gleaming silver service and plates of dainty sandwiches and small cakes made a wholly delightful scene. Members of the association, aided by girls from the public school served.

The home cooking table, managed by Mrs. K. West and Mrs. K. Kincaid, was quickly relieved of its appetizing burdens.

JUTE PRODUCTION UP

New Delhi. (CP)—Food Minister K. M. Munshi reported that jute production in India rose from 3,300,000 bales to 4,700,000 bales in the past year. An additional 500,000 acres were put under production of jute, a vegetable fibre used for making sacks and many other products.

Yukon Leads In Growth Of Population

Ottawa, (CP)—The Yukon, strategically important and on its way back to a new mining heyday, is Canada's fastest-growing area and it's got figures to prove it.

On a percentage basis, the Yukon far outstripped any other area of Canada in the growth of its population between 1941 and 1951, an 85.10 per cent hoist to 9,096 from 4,914.

In sheer numbers that boost was puny compared with, say, Ontario's jump of more than 800,000 in the corresponding period but the fact still stands: the Yukon nearly doubled its population in the last decade.

Reasons Cited

Why the jump in this land of legends about a gold rush that made the Yukon's 1901 population 27,000 and then collapsed?

Officials cite a number of reasons.

The Alaska Highway has gone through in the last decade, putting the Yukon on a direct road link between Edmonton and Alaska. In the last couple of years another important gravel road has been built northward from Whitehorse into the booming mining district of Mayo, a distance of 250 miles.

Whitehorse has become an important military base in joint Canadian-American plans to defend the north. The air force has a base there. It is the heart of the army's engineering system for maintenance of the Alaska Highway.

Air Base Developed

The air base was developed during the war as part of the staging route for taking planes to Russia. Now it is a key base in plans to fight off any planes that might come from Russia.

Whitehorse's population has boomed from 754 in 1941 to 2,600. Dawson has dropped from 1,000 to 773.

But, aside from the military, the key to the Yukon's growth is mining. In 1946, for instance, the total value of minerals produced in the Yukon was $1,700,000, nearly all from gold on the Klondike.

In 1950 it was $8,000,000, with gold at $3,500,000 silver at $2,500,000 and lead at $1,900,000. Officials here think the total may hit $12,000,000 for 1951 and keep on going. The heart of this boom is the base-metal mining area around Mayo, between Whitehorse and Dawson.

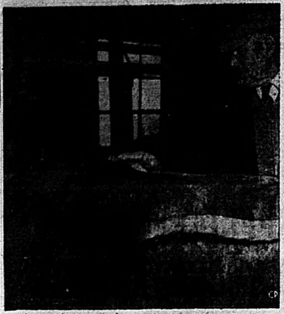
Will Lose Herd



Konstantine Haun, 69-year-old Regina farmer who survived the 1929-36 drouth that turned southern Saskatchewan into a virtual dust bowl, sadly accepts another hard blow. His 40-head dairy herd of valuable cattle, infected with the dreaded foot-and-mouth disease, is to be among the first destroyed by R.C.M.P. marksmen and buried in a mass grave. He said he will receive about one-third the value of each animal in federal compensation. Mr. Haun estimated his loss at $25,000. — (CP Photo.)

VOTED TO SHEAR POWERS

Manila, Feb. 28—(CP) — The Philippines House of Representatives voted last night to shear President Elpidio Quirino of his emergency powers. Philippine presidents have had extraordinary powers since the republic was set up in 1946. Quirino opposes the bill to reduce his power, contending he needs it to deal with communist-led Huk outbreaks.

Punkeydoodle Revives Interest In Odd Names

Washington. (AP)—The question Shakespeare posed some time ago about what's in a name is a leading question.

A researcher for the National Geographic Society, obviously entranced by a recent story from a place called Punkeydoodle's Corners, popped up with all kinds of information about the strange names some places have.

For instance, did you know there is a town in Wales called Llanfairpwllgwyngllgogerychwyrndrobwllllantysiliogogoch?

Well, there is. But you'd better not try pronouncing it. People have fractured jaws on less.

Punkeydoodle's Corners, incidentally, is a village with precisely six inhabitants. And two counties in Ontario are fighting for the honor of listing the Corners in their territory.

The most delightful place names in the United States showed up in the gold rush days. For instance, miners named one town in Nevada, Lousy Level.

It was flagrant plagiarism. There is such a place in Hertfordshire, England.

In Pennsylvania, there still exists the quiet Delaware River town of Foul Rift.

In California there are Whiskey Bar, Brandy Gulch, Delerium Tremens, Chucklehead Diggings, Hell-For-Noon City, Love Letter Camp and Mugfuzzle Flat.

Wyoming boasts a town called Crazy Woman Creek. And in Missouri you'll find one Damfino town.

People give places stodgier names now. For instance, can you imagine someone nowadays dubbing a place Bishops Itchington? Britons dreamed that one up years ago.

People giggle over weird-sounding street names in every part of the world, but one that is sure to make any one pause is "Of" alley in London.

The story goes that a section of London was named for George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham. There are streets called George, Villiers, Duke and Buckingham. And, faithfully enough, an alley named "Of".

And certain tribesmen in the British colony of Gambia in northwest Africa live in Sin.

British Dead Fill Palermo Morgue

Residents of Palermo, Italy, carry coffins containing the bodies of 31 persons who were killed in the recent crash of a British Viking airliner on Mount Rosa, near Palermo. The Italian mountain folk formed a long chain and silent procession as dead were taken down the mountain slope to local morgues. — Central Press Canadian.

BANCROFT

Transit, Custom Planing Mill Again Operating

Bancroft — Bancroft Lumber and Fuel's transit and custom planing mill, rebuilt after a $50,000. fire levelled it to the ground during the early morning hours of December 22nd, again went into production on Saturday.

Construction of the new mill took a total time of only fifty days, as building operations commenced on Jan. 2nd. The new building, with cement floor, plank-truss construction, aluminum roof and insul siding is the same size as the one demolished by the fire, 65 feet by 71 feet. It was erected and the machines installed by local labor, under the supervision of J. N. Brown, president and manager of Bancroft Lumber and Fuel Limited.

In order to show the quantities of materials handled under winter conditions Mr. Brown told the press that 440 cubic yards of rock; 160 tons of crushed rock, 80 tons of sand and 600 tons of cement were used.

The mill, located a mile south of town on highway 62, is one of Bancroft's largest industries. Serving a large number of customers it is the only transit planing mill in North Hastings. The payroll runs from 15 during the off-season to 30 during the rush period from late spring to early fall.

Powered by Electricity

Completely powered by electricity the mill has 11 motors, from 1 to 60 horsepower, with a total capacity of 150. The hi-speed 4-sided planer can handle a maximum load of 325 linear feet a minute or a carload of 19,500 ft. of 2 x 6 in one hour. The resaw is capable of sawing 225 linear ft. per minute.

To facilitate handling of carloads of lumber the CNR has provided the mill with a double switch so that there will not be a shutdown while cars are being shunted. Rough lumber will now come to the south door, go through the milling operations and leave by the north door, in one continuous process.

The rough lumber for the mill comes from a large number of mills, in North Hastings and the adjoining sections of Peterborough, Haliburton, Nipissing and Renfrew, and is shipped by freight car and truck to a variety of localities, including Buffalo, Cleveland, Tonawanda, Toronto, the booming industrial towns of southwestern Ontario, Peterborough, Belleville and vicinity.

NO CHARGES LAID

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP) Four-year-old David Breretin of Port Hope died in the Hospital for Sick Children yesterday. He had been in a coma since brought here a week ago with head injuries.

Port Hope police said the boy was struck by a car driven by George Buchan of Bowmanville. No charges have been laid.

DESERONTO

H-S. Association Holds Meeting

Deseronto—The Deseronto Home and School Association held its February meeting in the principal's room with an attendance of 18 members. Mrs. W. Crabbe presided.

Mrs. Burd's room won the attendance prize for most parent's present.

Mrs. Geo. Armstrong read an article on "Brotherhood" stressing the love of God to all people in all nations and the love all should have for one another regardless of race or religion.

A vocal solo by Sharon Burley, accompanied by her sister, Beverley, and a vocal and guitar duet by Shelva Cummings and Gayle Tanner were greatly appreciated

A quiz contest, directed by Mrs. Crabbe, in which the entire audience participated, was enjoyed by all especially the lucky prize winners.

Refreshments wree served by the social committee and a social half hour was spent in "visiting."

Pie Social Nets Evening Auxiliary $65

Deseronto—The members of the Evening Association of Deseronto United Church held their annual pie social in the church parlors on Friday evening.

The calibre of the entertainment and the quality of the refreshments which consisted mainly of pies reached the high standard of former years. Sandwiches, pickles and tea were also served. A large crowd was in attendance and they fully enjoyed the program and the pies.

Program

The program consisted of piano numbers by Bernice Kimmett, vocal solos by Nora Cochrane and Mrs. B. Herrington; piano duet by Mrs. T .F. Townsend and Mrs. W. Crothers; a vocal duet by Mrs. Herrington and Mr. L. E. Tunnicliffe and readings by Mrs. Townsend.

The highlight of the evening was a one-act play "The Deseronto Uplift Society." This was capably done by members of the association. It was greatly enjoyed but some folks have expressed doubt as to this "Society's" ability to uplift the town which point remains to be seen. The cast included Mesdames E. Gibson, Gordon Walker, T. Jackson, R. Rendall, H. Aylesworth, R. Dunn and B. Herrington.

The proceeds of the evening amounted to approximately $65.

ANCIENT ORPHANAGE

Beddington, England. (CP)—The historic orphanage in this Surrey town where Henry VIII dined and where the first oranges were grown in Britain, has been sold to municipal authorities. The ancient banqueting halls will be used as classrooms to ease crowding in a nearby school.

RUSH CALL

Morden, England, (CP) —Basil Hart, 42, a building foreman and expert on termites, received an urgent call from France and left for St. Helena to save the house in which Napoleon lived during exile. The house still owned by the French government, has been ravaged by termites.

Prince Philip Settling Down To Difficult Task

(By COLIN FROST)

London—(AP)—A blond young athlete with a ready smile is settling down to the toughest job Britain has to offer. And the British people, although unsure what the job entails, are certain he'll make the grade.

The man is Philip, 30-year-old Duke of Edinburgh. The job is Prince Consort to a reigning queen.

Philip as yet has no legal status beyond that of an ordinary husband. His role in state affairs must be largely unofficial. Even his title has promoted speculation.

Only his wife, Queen Elizabeth II, can decide Philip's share in her great burden.

British commentators trying to forecast Philip's role have brought out the history books to see how Queen Victoria shared her job with Prince Albert. But history hasn't helped much.

Both Philip and Albert were foreign-born. Albert was a German and Philip a Greek. The similarity ends there.

Albert came to Britain a stranger, misunderstood and misunderstanding. He hardly spoke the language. Much of the country mistrusted him.

Only after his death did Britons realize that Albert's wisdom in state councils had spurred the Victorian age to prosperity, only then did they call him Albert the Good.

Philip came to his new job well-known and well-liked by the British people. He has the right background— a British upbringing, a first-class record in the Royal Navy, a love of sport and a sense of humor that Albert lacked.

Newsreels and the press have made his smile familiar throughout the Commonwealth. His share in Elizabeth's Canadian tour last year brought new warmth—and strength—to royalty's part in holding together the scattered British peoples.

Philip shines in the less formal royal tasks and the good-natured chit-chat accompanying the endless hand-shaking when Elizabeth is on parade. Newspaper readers here who followed the Canadian tour were amused by his lighter encounters.

He is a good dancer. He can discard royal protocol when he thinks necessary.

Philip's public life now that his wife is Queen is likely to follow the pattern of the last few years. He will still be the good-humored shadow, ready to lend a quick hand when the queenly course gets tricky.

Behind the scenes Philip is likely to run the royal household and estates for his wife. If he does, palace sources say, he will probably shake up the costly routine of court life, little changed since Albert gave it a going over more than a century ago.

The aim will be to save money.

MELROSE

Melrose.—The Melrose W. I. had a successful euchre party and social evening in the township hall on Wednesday evening.

Local schools had film showings this week and report the pictures were especially good. The adult showing at Melrose School on Thursday evening did not attract a large attendance, more interest will be expected next month when a social evening will be planned for.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Badgley, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. George Badgley, attended the 60th wedding anniversary of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. James Sills, on Saturday evening.

The community extends to Mr. and Mrs. Sills best wishes for many more years of health and happiness together.

Mrs. Alex. McLaren had as her Sunday evening guests, Mr. and Mrs. William Blatherwick, Misses Ruth and Marcia Blatherwick, Mr. Robert Barlow and Mr. and Mrs. Willet Casey and Blaine.

Rev. L. Scott spent the Sunday dinner hour with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeffrey.

It was with regret that the news of Mrs. Morgan's illness was received. A speedy recovery is hoped for her.

Mrs. William McMechan is opening her home for the World Day of Prayer meeting on Friday of this week.

World Population Said to Jump 75,000 Daily

By ROBERT E. GEIGER

Washington — (AP) — The world's people are multiplying at the fastest rate in all history.

Latest United Nations world census figures indicate about 75,000 more people show up every morning at breakfast tables around the world. That means there are about 75,000 more births than deaths each day.

The U. N. population yearbook estimates about 2,400,000,000 people now live on the earth.

Worse Crowding Foreseen

There's a net increase of about 28,000,000 people a year.

If this expansion continues at its present rate the world will be three times as crowded with people in 100 years, experts estimate.

Some population authorities assume man has lived on earth about 100,000 years and estimate his numbers increased only to around 200,000,000 or 300,000,000 by the time of Christ. This period would represent about 98 per cent of man's existence, if the calculations are correct.

In the 1,650 years after Christ the population just about doubled, from less than 300,000,000 to possibly 550,000,000, the calculations indicate. This was at the dawn of "modern times," about the year 1,650.

But in the 300 years since then the population has skyrocketed to around 2,400,000,000. If the estimates are anywhere near correct this means that in 300 years, since 1,650, the world gained almost 10 times the number of people it had accumulated in its first 100,000 years.

Fewer Deaths

The U. N. report says the declining death rate is the main reason world population is increasing so rapidly.

Is anyone worrying about the increase?

Many are, and many have in the past. They ask where is all the food and all the elbow-room coming from?

Others are confident the growth rate will level off eventually.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1952

Police Seek Edwin A. Boyd For Several Bank Robberies, Also for Breaking Jail

Toronto. (CP)—Last Nov. 4, a quiet, family man slipped over the wall at Toronto's Don Jail and disappeared.

He was Edwin Alonzo Boyd, 37, of nearby Pickering. Neighbors said his hobby was landscape gardening. Police said his business was robbing banks.

When he fled the Don Jail—along with two other men—he was awaiting trial on at least six bank-robbery charges.

Sixteen days after Boyd's escape, three men robbed a west-end bank of $4,100.

Since then there have been four other bank robberies in the greater Toronto area.

The latest was Friday, Feb. 22 when three men captured employees of a suburban bank as they arrived for work, tied them up in the basement and coolly looted the vault of $50,000.

A similar method was used Jan. 3 when two men stole a sum estimated at between $40,000 and $50,000 from another suburban bank.

In between, on Jan. 25, three men dropped in on an east-end bank and withdrew $15,000 without making a withdrawal slip.

1951 Hold-Ups

In the last 14 months bandits have "taken" Toronto area banks for $166,546. Eight robberies occurred in the greater Toronto area in 1951.

Eyewitnesses have used terms varying from "false-faced" to "monkey-sized" to describe the bandits who have operated "with football-team precision" and in a "gentlemanly manner".

Police blame at least half of the robberies on Boyd. And a veteran Toronto police officer, Inspector James Warren, is certain that Boyd was the "brains" behind the most recent one.

Boyd, now dubbed Canada's No. 1 bank robber, was caught with another man shortly after a north-end bank robbery last Oct. 16 in which $12,800 was taken.

He was arrested in his own panel truck. In it, police found a complete makeup kit. Police said Boyd disguised himself with makeup, smeared lipstick on his eyelids, bloated his cheeks with cotton.

The first bank robbery in 1951 occurred Jan. 22 when four men took $9,500 from an uptown bank. Two men were arrested the next day.

On Feb. 27 two armed men walked into a bank in Pickering and escaped with $2,200.

A lone gunman got $4,917 from a North York bank—the same bank where one man took $2,265 Sept. 9, 1949.

Boyd Suspected

Police charged Boyd with both these holdups. Four other robberies were laid against him later.

During the summer months, bank bandits seemed to take a holiday.

The next in greater Toronto happened Sept. 1 with the robbery of a North York bank of $8,029 just before closing time.

Before the month was over, on Sept. 31, police foiled a yegg trying to crack a vault in a downtown bank.

The next robbery was the one Oct. 16 following which police captured Boyd.

On Dec. 30, three men, one armed with a Sten gun, robbed a suburban Leaside bank of $35,000.

Held in Jail For 18 Months Without Charge

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP) —A Negro has been held in jail at Brooksville for 18 months without a formal charge, the Tampa Tribune reported last night.

He is David Reese, 23, who was acquitted of a murder charge there July 20, 1950.

Records show Reese was held on a verbal order of Judge Fred R. Hocker, issued at the time Reese was acquitted.

Judge Hocker directed a verdict of innocent for Reese on murder charge but ordered him held as an accessory on the "announcement of the state attorney."

State Attorney J. W. Hunter of Tavares, who prosecuted Reese, said, "I haven't seen that man since the trial, but if he's still in jail, I'll call the sheriff and see that he's turned loose."

However, Sheriff Sim L. Lowman was out of the county yesterday and Hunter could not reach him.

Jailor Bishop Brass said last night he had not been given instructions by Hunter and was still holding Reese "on the judge's order."

GOT PROPER LOT

North Adams, Mass., Feb. 28—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Polmatier built a home of their own last summer—only to learn they didn't own the land on which it was built. They had purchased lots one and two on a tract of land. A few days ago they were notified there house was on lot three, owned by the city. Polmatier appealed to the city and last night the city council voted to sell them lot three at $150 plus $14.50 in back taxes.

REAGAN TO WED

Los Angeles, Feb. 28—(AP)—Ronald Reagan will marry actress Nancy Davis next Tuesday at "some small church in southern California." The marriage will be the first for Miss Davis and the second for the 40-year-old Reagan. He was married to actress Jane Wyman in 1940 and divorced in 1948. They had two children, Maureen, 11, and Michael, 7.

Greece Uncovers Red Spy Network

Leaving a courtroom in Athens, Greece, are Margarita Kaloumenou and her mother (left) during a recess in their trial on charges of spying for the cominform. A radio transmitter, used to contact the communist agents, was found in the Kaloumenou home, and the operator committed suicide rather than be taken by police. Such disclosures have prompted newsmen to call the trial the most important in Greece since crushing red guerrillas in 1949. — Central Press Canadian.

Bitterness Lingers as Deadline Comes for Sweeping Homes From Path of H-Bomb Area

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Augusta, Ga., Feb. 28 — (AP) — This weekend the town of Ellenton ceases to exist.

A place of beautiful homes, more than a century old, a historic early American monument, it has to go to make part of the room for the huge United States H-bomb plant.

A year and three months ago notice was given, and March 1 is the deadline when every person, business, interest and every home has to be gone. What is left probably has to be destroyed.

All Ellenton's 600 people are gone, together with 80 of their 150 houses. They are among 6,000 persons similarly moved from the 315-square-mile military area.

Ellenton's story is typical of them all. Even though this is probably the most kindly of all dictated evacuations, and though many Ellentonians and others have reaped rich financial restory is sad. There is bitterness in many hearts today.

One group is attempting to start new Ellenton, near the reservation, but many miles from their old home, in a not-so-beautiful site. Many have scattered, finishing life-long neighborliness.

Among some there is a sense of injustice a not getting what they believe is replacement value for what they had to give up.

These values were not lost for any lack of effort by authorities to be generous. It is just a case of the difficulties of justice by fiat.

They are getting schools provided by government, Removal of graves and cemeteries is free. Engineers appraised the land liberally, at better than current values. People who were land-poor—lots of area with little productivity — jumped to comparative wealth. Others, by the time they got their money on smaller parcels of land, couldn't replace because outside land had skyrocketed in this area at boomtown rates.

Hardest hit were among tenant farmers. They had no land to sell. They had no more jobs. Many were too old to compete for jobs in new areas. Still more were heartbroken to leave.

Three Canadian Nuns Arrive In Hong Kong, Were Expelled From Red China After Trial

Hong Kong, Feb. 28 (Reuters) — Three Canadian nuns, ordered expelled from China after a communist trial last December, reached Hong Kong by train today.

They are:

Sister Saint Foy (Elizabeth Lemire, La Baie Du Febvre, Yamaska County, Que.)

Sister Saint Victoire (Germaine Tanguay, a Canadian citizen born in Nashua, N.H.)

Sister Saint Germaine (Imelda Laperriere, Pont Rouge, Port Neuf County, Que.)

They were tried with two other Canadian nuns of the Sacred Heart orphanage at Canton on charges of murdering 2,116 orphans. The other two were sentenced to five years in prison, to be deported after their release.

They are Sister Superior Saint Alphonse Du Redempteur (Antoinette Couvrette of Ste. Dorothee, Laval County, Que.) head of the orphanage, and Sister Saint Marie Germaine (Germaine Gravel of St. Pasteur, Champlain County, Que.)

The nuns faced a public trial in Canton Dec. 2. During 2 1-2 hours they were accused of murder and maltreatment of infants.

The court alleged that between Oct. 19, 1949, and Feb. 19, 1951, the nuns took 2,251 children into their orphanage but that when the communists took the institution over 2,116 were dead or missing.

The charges neglected to mention that most of the infants when finally brought to the orphanage were so close to death that nothing could save them.

Used Similar Charges

The communists have used similar charges against many Catholic missionaries in recent months in order to justify their arrest.

The nuns wept and laughed with joy today as they stepped off a train which brought them from the border into British Kowloon.

They hugged and kissed other nuns who welcomed them after their 12 months in a communist prison.

The three told reporters at the station that before their trial they were paraded slowly through Canton streets on the back of a truck.

Crowds threw rocks, mud and potatoes at them; two were hit on the head and leg by rocks, and another was struck by a club, they said.

The three nuns said the two sisters still imprisoned were believed to be "in poor condition."

Their own prison treatment improved after their trial, but they were poorly fed, having only two bowls of rice each day.

The nuns said that at their three hour trial they were made to walk through the crowd bowing and apologizing for their "crimes."

Six thousand spectators sang communist songs over loudspeakers, while "hysterical witnesses" screamed accusations against them.

Two communist guards accompanied them in the train from Canton to the British border.

Wrist Radios Made Possible

A technician at a Princeton, N.J., electronics laboratory inspects a bean-sized electrical device, known as a transitor, which promises to make possible a wrist or vest-pocket radio receiver. Powered by the heat of the human body, the revolutionary electronic amplifier can do almost anything a tube can, according to scientists. Full scale production of the mighty mite is expected to be started soon. — Central Press Canadian.

Reds Try Luring All Norsefolk Into Neutrality

By THOMAS HARRIS

Stockholm — (Reuters)— Russia, using Finland as a bait, is trying to get Norway and Denmark out of the Atlantic Pact.

Soviet diplomats, over cosy lunches for Scandinavian politicians and officials, have been hinting for some time that Moscow now favors a neutral alliance between Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland to keep northern Europe out of any future war.

Hitherto, Russia has strongly opposed any agreement between Finland and the other three Scandinavian countries on the ground that such a neutral bloc would side with the west in a war.

Now she appears ready to trust the four countries to remain genuinely neutral.

It is believed that Sweden, who worked hard to bring about a neutral defensive alliance with Norway and Denmark in 1949 but failed, would welcome the formation of the four-power bloc advocated by the Russian diplomats.

It would strengthen Sweden's neutrality policy which is firmly supported by all Swedish political parties.

Denmark officially has said several times that she is well-satisfied with membership in the Atlantic Pact. But many Danes would feel even more satisfied in a neutral Scandinavian bloc if it could be created.

The Finns would be overjoyed to enter a neutral bloc with Russia's blessing and keep out of the way of any clash between the great powers.

Norway, on the other hand, has no faith in neutrality. She is firmly in the Atlantic Pact and it would take a lot to get her out of it.

Still Hopeful

Nevertheless, Russia still seems hopeful of getting Norway and Denmark out of the pact, and apparently has found an ally in Finland's Agrarian party Prime Minister, Urho Kekkonen.

Kekkonen has made an indirect public appeal to Norway and Denmark to withdraw from the pact through the Agrarian party publication Maakansa.

He began by explaining that Finland's military assistance and friendship pact with Russia would operate only if Finland were attacked, or if Russia were attacked through Finland.

This is a new and freer interpretation of the pact, which also binds the two countries to consult on mutual defence measures in a war or threat of war.

Some observers here, citing Kekkonen's good relations with the Kremlin, believe Russia may have agreed to "tone down" the pact in exchange for Kekkonen's help in her anti-Atlantic Pact drive in Scandinavia.

LATTA

Latta — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilder and David Stanley Wilder called on Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sills and their baby daughter on Thursday evening.

Mr. Jim Rutherford, teacher of Plainfield School, had a nice Valentine party for the pupils. They had a program, Valentines, refreshments and candy. All had a good time on February 14th.

Miss Annie Hamilton spent the dinner hour on Thursday with Hamilton and Wilders going to Belleville in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Erle Denyes, of Belleville, called on Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Denyes on Friday afternoon and Mrs. E. Denyes called at the Hamilton Wilder home also.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hall and family of Belleville were guests on Sunday of Mrs. W. Elliott and faimly. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Elliott of Campbellford, were tea hour guests at the same home on Sunday evening.

This community was shocked beyond words on Monday evening and Tuesday to hear of the sudden death of Mr. and Mrs. Will Harrison of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Gunter of Coe Hill, who were killed in a car accident in Pennsylvania. They were on a trip to Florida and left on Sunday and met their death Monday afternoon. William Harrison started to school here in Plainfield to Miss Janie Latta, and was a good and clever pupil, and in his leisure hours his conversation was taken up with machinery in his early school days. He and his wife were so well known here than they will be greatly missed. She was a great church worker. The deepest sympathy is extended to their families and to their brothers and sisters on both sides.

The W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. W. Elliott on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. W. Elliott called on Mrs. Mabel Hubel and Mrs. Eldred Phair, Belleville, on Thursday afternoon.

NO STATEMENT

Taipeh, Formosa, Feb. 27 — (AP)—Nationalist China's foreign minister and Japan's finance minister met for 90 minutes yesterday in an effort to work out differences of approach to a peace treaty between the two governments. There was no official statement after the conference.

TWEED

Tweed—Mr. and Mrs. John Foster, whose son, Jack is manager of Dominion Stores here, have taken up residence in the village. They have moved into the house of Sophia Courneyea recently deceased.

Mrs. J. H. Gehan who attended the funeral of her brother the late Bruce Miller at Niagara Falls U.S. last Friday, has proceeded on to Belair, Maryland, U.S., for an extended visit with her mother, Mrs. Dan Miller and her sister, Mrs. George Burkins.

Several members of the Tweed chapter Eastern Star attended the recent visit of the worthy Grand Matrons at Madoc.

A former resident of Tweed, Mrs. Walter G. Smith, died in the Civic Hospital, Peterborough, on Sunday, February 17th.

Mrs. Keith Cotton visited her parents in Brockville over a recent weekend.

Icy Roads Cause Accident

Four vehicles were involved in an accident on St. Carthagh's hill, recently, following mass. The hill was slippery and had not been sanded, permitting drivers little control of their cars.

Charles Cassidy's truck was struck from behind by a car operated by Joe McNulty of Toronto, who was visiting his sister Mrs. Anthony Quinn.

Joe Demarsh's truck piled into a truck owned by Cartha Cassidy. The Tweed radio truck struck the back of the McNulty car. All four vehicles were tangled up. Total damages were over $400. All drivers blamed the icy roads for the mixup.

Miss Reta Ryan, of Toronto, was a recent weekend guest of Dorothy and Noreen Quinn and Miss Colleen Lafountaine.

Car Accident

South Victoria Street near Memorial Park was the scene of an accident when a car driven by Timothy Rush of Ottawa, collided with a parked car owned by Carl Fisher of Tweed. The Rush car struck the left rear fender of the Fisher car. The front fenders and grill of the Rush car were badly damaged. The accident was investigated by Chief George Spratt.

Miss Jean Bosley, of Barnett's store staff, underwent an operation in Belleville General Hospital recently.

Following an operation in Belleville General Hospital Stephen Hunter is recuperating at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kent Hunter.

Presentations Made

The regular meeting of the Kinsmen Club was held recently at Bramley's resort. Nineteen members and six guests were in attendance. Regret was expressed at the departure of former president Bob Collins, who will be making his home in Belleville.

On behalf of the members Jerry Quinn expressed thanks to Bob for the deep interest he had taken in the club.

Bill Hurst, of Belleville, county registrar was also present. Tributes were paid to him for his work in the club while a member in Tweed. Both were presented with smoker stands and two sets of playing cards.

Mr. Leon Meraw, of Detroit, is convalescing at the home of his mother, in town.

Friends of E. W. Jones will be pleased to know he is progressing well and will be able to return home soon from the Belleville General Hospital where he has been a patient following an auto crash last December in which he was involved.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Connor attended the funeral of the former's sister the late Mrs. Florence Reid, of Millbrook which took place in Madoc Wednesday, February 20th.

In a collision last Monday night at the corner of Metcalf and Jamieson streets, two cars owned by Russel Eaton and Albert Snare suffered badly damaged fenders. Chief George Spratt investigated.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Connor, of Waterford, were recent guests of the former's brother, Mr. S. H. Connor and Mrs. Connor.

Some damage resulted to two vehicles recently, shortly after midnight in a collision when a car owned and driven by William Comerford travelling eastward on Bridge Street across the intersection was struck by another vehicle owned and driven by Anton Vanderbrock who was going north on Victoria Street.

Mr. Robt. S. Jones who is on the Toronto staff of the Dominion Bank was a recent weekend guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Jones.

Collision

A collision occurred last Tuesday on highway 37, two miles from Tweed, between a Toronto Peterborough transport and a department of highways grader. Considerable damage resulted to both vehicles.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bateman of Marmora, were guests at the home of Mr. J. H. Gehan on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Neill, of Belleville, were guests of Mrs. O'Neill's father, Mr. J. H. Gehan on Sunday.

Recently in Tweed police court the court was in charge of Magistrate Thoburn Q.C., of Toronto, who has charge of the local police court district in the absence of Magistrate Thomas Wills who is in Florida. There were 11 cases up for disposal most of them involving liquor and traffic violations.

Mr. and Mrs. Koken and family, who came to Canada from Holland have moved from the Tamworth district to Tweed.

Store Modernized

The interior and appearance of Quinn and Quinn's store will be greatly improved after extensive alterations and changes are completed. With the new counters and shelving of plywood the store will present a smart, modern appearance.

Recently at Bramley's resort a delicious chicken dinner was served to Kinette members. The meeting, in charge of Miss Muriel Wood, had a smaller attendance than usual. After the financial reports and receipts from the tea were read by the treasurer, Mrs. Norman Jordan a pleasant social evening was spent.

Mr. W. C. Juby, of Demorestville, is visiting his son, Jack, and Mrs. Juby in town.

Mr. Don Rashotte and brothers Jim and Don Lesage, visited Mrs. Rashotte's husband in Toronto at Private Patients Pavilion last Thursday. Mr. Rashotte recently underwent an operation there.

Mrs. Pat Hayland and David are visiting her father in Trenton where he recently underwent an operation.

Miss Belle Feely of Peterborough spent a recent weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Meraw.

Mrs. Ross Kelly is visiting friends and relatives in Smiths Falls.

Mrs. Leoman Andron is much improved in health, her friends will be glad to learn but will be remaining in Toronto for some time yet. Mr. Andron, her husband spent the recent weekend with her.

George Griffin who is a member of Clark's bakery staff, moved his family last week to part of F. C. Arber's house near Dr. Dales residence. Mr. and Mrs. Dick Graham occupy the south half of the same house.

Appointed Magistrate

Mr. R. C. Jackson, lawyer of Napanee, has been appointed magistrate of the northern part of Lennox and Addington, Hastings and Frontenac counties. He succeeds the late J. L. Lloyd of Northbrook. Mr. Jackson expects to make his home in Tweed.

He was born in Enterprise, the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Jackson. He attended the Napanee collegiate institute, graduated in law from Osgoode Hall in Toronto 1938; with the exception of three years spent in the R.C.A.F. he has been practising law in Napanee.

John "Bud" Gehan of H.M.C.S. "Naden," is home on a 30' day sick leave. He has been confined to hospital in Esquimalt, B.C. with an injured foot.

CAMPBELLFORD

Mr., Mrs. D. Petherick Celebrate Their 55th Anniversary

Campbellford — Mr. and Mrs. Daniel T. Petherick of Seymour celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary on Sunday. They have lived for the past 52 years.

Mrs. Petherick, who was formerly Nettie Barnum, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Barnum of Seymour. She was born in August 1878. Fifty-five years ago she became the bride of Daniel T. Petherick, in a simple ceremony at the home of her parents. Rev. R. L. Edwards performed the ceremony before nearly 100 guests.

Mr. Petherick was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Petherick of Seymour and was born in February, 1872. Last Thursday was more than Valentine Day to Mr. Petherick it was also his 80th birthday. The couple both enjoy good health and are quite active in church work at Stanwood.

There are four sons, Harold and Melville of Campbellford; Murray at home, and Fred, of Rawdon; two daughters, Mrs. Will Begg, of Seymour and Mrs. Carl Stephens of Campbellford. There are nine grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

A rather unique and fortunate fact concerning the Petherick family is that there has been no break in the family during the entire 55 years.

Sunday's celebration was a quiet one, with relatives calling on the couple during the afternoon to wish them well.

PRINT NEW STAMPS

Washington, Feb. 28—(AP)—The U. S. Post Office Department plans to print at least 110,000,000 postage stamps in its Grand Coulee dam commemoration issue. The three-cent stamp will be issued in May in connection with the 50th anniversary of the government reclamation program. The stamp will bear a picture of the dam, a sketch of a farmer, and a drawing of a group of power transmission towers.

RAWDON

Around 300 Guests Attend Springbrook Oyster Supper

Rawdon—Around 300 persons attended the oyster supper and dance at Springbrook Orange hall last Thursday evening.

The members of L.O.L. 442 Springbrook, invited friends from many points for this special evening and all enjoyed the event. At 6.30 p.m. the first group were seated and Rev. H. E. Beare, worshipful master, returned thanks. The tables were laden with appetizing food and the oysters were cooked to a turn by Brother Ed Bateman.

During three sittings over 17 gallons of oysters were consumed and everyone was loud in praise for the appetizing dinner. The ladies were tendered a vote of thanks for their culinary ability and the men were pleased to have assisted in serving.

While the last table of guests were enjoying their meal in the basement, Mrs. Percy MacMullen entertained with a humorous reading entitled, "My First Airyplane Ride." Rev. H. E. Beare spoke briefly and welcomed the guests.

Brother Fred Bateman Wor. Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodges of Ontario East, spoke briefly and then presided over a short program which consisted of musical numbers by the orchestra; readings by Mrs. Percy MacMullen; songs by Brother Ed. Payne, Peterborough, a past county master, with Mr. Harry Anderson of Havelock as accompanist.

Vocal solos by Mr. Jim Mackie, of Campbellford, and Mr. Bob Spencer of Rylestone each playing his own accompaniment.

Later the large group enjoyed dancing to music supplied by the orchestra composed of Messrs. Delbert Sine, Lorne Hagerman, Bob Spencer, Jim Mackie, Bob Jeffry, Miss Margaret Spencer and Mrs. Lindsay Tanner while Mr. L. Tanner called the squares.

The evening was a decided success with fun for all, on a high level, and the guests were well pleased. This event had been previouly planned for Valentine week but owing to the passing of the late King George VI it was postponed till after his funeral.

RAWDON

Mr., Mrs. J. L. Donohoe Sponsor Euchre Party

Rawdon—Last Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Donohoe sponsored a euchre party at River alley school house on behalf of the Women's Institute with guests in attendance from Salem and Stirling.

There were ten tables in play and prizes provided by Mr. and Mrs. Donohoe were awarded as follows: ladies' high, Mrs. Will Anderson 74 points; ladies' low, Mrs. Ross Hermiston 49. Men's high, John Sager 72; men's low, Bert Bedford 46.

Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

On Friday evening, February 29th a crokinole party will be held at the school under auspices of W.I. with Mrs. Percy Utman, Mrs. Alex Bush and Miss Adeline Bush as sponsors.

DESERONTO

St. Mark's Men's Club Holds Bridge And Euchre Party

Deseronto—The social evening under the auspices of St. Mark's Men's Club, enjoyed an almost record attendance. Bridge and euchre were played.

Prize winners in euchre were ladies', Miss Dorothy Gonyou; Men's, Mr. Norman Davis; consolation, Mr. Roger Johnson; travelling, Mr. Grant Venton.

Bridge winners were ladies', Mrs. Edmund Dowling; men's Mr. Ross Rendall; consolation, Mrs. F. Chalmers.

Refreshments were served by the members of the Men's Club and closed an evening enjoyed by all.

MADOC

Worthy Grand Matron O. E. S. Visits Chapter

Madoc—A pleasant event took place on Saturday evening in Madoc chapter No. 143 O.E.S. when the Worthy Grand Matron O.E.S. Mrs. Mabel Mackereth, Grand Martha, Mrs. Christine Clark, and D.D.G.M. District No. 12 Mrs. Elna Morrow paid a fraternal visit to the chapter. Worthy Matron Mrs. Mary Barton and W. P. E. T. Nayler most warmly welcomed the distinguished visitors.

During chapter, Mrs. Ida Ashley was presented with a life membership and the W. Grand Matron with an honorary membership. Mrs. Mackereth gave an address to the chapter her topic "Golden Opportunity" bringing out thought that one must take the opportunity to be kind, sympathetic, helpful to those who need it, not let the golden opportunity pass and then say this or that should have been done but grasp it now.

Short addresses were given by Grand Martha and Mrs. Morrow D.D.G.M. also Mr. Kerr of Belleville chapter.

A gift was presented to the W. G. Matron by Mrs. Margaret Derry after which Mrs. Franks sang a solo, "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

After closing chapter a pleasant social hour was spent. The tea table was attractive with its red and white theme for Valentine Day. Several P.D.D.G.M.'s presiding matrons and patrons and members from the chapters of the district were in attendance.

W. A. Officers Elected

At the regular business and quilting meeting of Trinity W.A. held at Mrs. Tanner's, the election of officers was held and installed to their various offices by Rev. F. Lane. President, Mrs. B. Tanner; vice president, Mrs. L. Bennett; treasurer, Mrs. E. Demorest; secretary, Mrs. F. Lane; parsonage committee, Mrs. W. Parks, Mrs. A. Parks, Mrs. J. Reed; quilt committee, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Joe Adams and Mrs. Embury; visiting and sick committee, Mrs. C. Whytock, Mrs. Ogle Devolin, Mrs. W. McCoy, Mrs. J. Adams, Mrs. W. Parks.

Plans were made for the year and the meeting concluded with a pot luck supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex McGregor, of Napanee, spent the weekend with Mrs. McCaffrey and other relatives in Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Bird, of Toronto, spent a few days with relatives in Madoc and vicinity.

Little Miss Linda Lucas of Belleville, spent a few days with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Tanner.

New Technique Helps Reduce Heart Fatalities

(By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE)

New York—(AP)—There were nine with the bad hearts—five women and four men. All were victims of rheumatic fever.

For all, the outlook was partial or complete invalidism, or death.

Then on two days, Oct. 26 and Oct. 27, a surgeon opened all nine hearts. He thrust his finger inside, felt the bad heart valve. With a knife blade that slipped forward along his gloved finger, he cut, opening the damaged valve wider.

Today, five of those men and women have returned to work. Two more will return to work soon.

One Fatality

The eighth is sick in hospital. ill with a different disease. The ninth died about two months ago from a new attack of rheumatic fever, not related to the operation.

All had the same trouble. Rheumatic fever scarred and damaged the valve between the two left chambers of the heart. This valve was narrowed, nearly closed.

Fresh blood, coming from the lungs, collects in the upper left chamber or auricle of the heart. Then it flows down through the valve, into the lower chamber or ventricle, there to be pumped out to all the body.

Weakness Caused

The narrowed valve dammed the blood back, congesting the lungs, causing shortness of breath, weakness. Blood murmured through the valve. The upper chamber swelled, was weakened.

Drs. Charles P. Bailey, T. J. O'Neill and R. P. Glover of Philadelphia perfected the bold valve operation several years ago. A hole is made in the wall of the heart, the exploring finger thrust in, the damage felt, and the valve cut to make a normal opening and valve. Theirs was the first successful operation of its kind inside the living heart.

Last October Dr. Bailey and Dr. Kenneth Keown went to Kansas City, to demonstrate the operation to chest surgeons and heart specialists there.

Nine times Dr. Bailey operated, on men and women whose color was grey, whose bodies were thin and weak.

HISTORIC FIGURE

Charles James Fox, the English statesman who died in 1806, entered parliament just before his 21st birthday.

Premier Occupies Shaky Throne Says Writer

Rome, Feb. 28 (AP)—Klement Gottwald, president of communist ruled Czechoslovakia, occupies a shaky throne. He may be out of it within two to six months.

This is the opinion of a reliable source from inside that Iron-Curtained country. The informant adds that Gottwald may attempt to flee the country to escape the fate of those he himself has purged.

The informant, who cannot be quoted by name, outlines the Czechoslovak situation this way:

Lagging production angered the Soviet Union, which was draining off Czechoslovakia's wealth. Russia ordered a shake-up. Gottwald, to save himself, was forced to purge persons who might have been—and in fact had been—his own allies. Rudolf Slansky, now in jail and charged with attempting to murder Gottwald, was one of these.

Now Gottwald himself is on probation. If the monthly reports of Czechoslovak production do not show a decisive upsurge, Gottwald is in serious trouble. If the six-month production figures should still be below Soviet demands, Gottwald is finished.

All sources agree that the Czechs are getting poorer every day, except for the ruling classes and a select group of workers.

Informants in Yugoslavia insist that Czechoslovakia is the weakest link in the cominform chain. But there is little hope of an uprising.

Find New Wood

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 28—(AP)— The Yale forestry school says it has found a wood which not only is five times stronger than white oak, most commonly used North American hardwood, but weighs only a third as much as aluminum.

The wood, from a medium-sized tree that is related to both the laurel and the sassafras, is called kaneelhart and comes from French Guiana in South America.

Frederick F. Wangaard, associate professor of forestry products, said the unusual properties of the wood, also nearly half as strong as aluminum, were discovered during tests made for the United States office of naval research.

Field Marshal, Lord Alexander, Arrives Home

Liverpool, England, Feb. 28—(CP)—Field Marshal Alexander came home Tuesday to Britain, to an earldom and to a peacetime post as exacting as the military tasks he performed in wartime.

The retiring governor-general of Canada, summoned from abroad to take over the defence ministry in Prime Minister Winston Churchill's government, arrived in Liverpool aboard the Cunard Liner Franconia.

He is one of three field marshals to hold ministerial rank in British history. The other two were the Duke of Wellington and the Earl of Kitchener.

In London, the Daily Mail predicted the new defence minister may have rough ride when he takes over the portfolio from Churchill.

"Parliament has an instinctive distrust of famous soldiers as ministers—dating back to (Oliver) Cromwell," the Daily Mail said.

As an Earl, Alexander will not sit in the House of Commons. Appointment of still another peer to government has already aroused criticism from the opposition Labor Party.

In an interview on arrival, Lord Alexander spoke to reporters of his six "happy and interesting" years as governor-general of Canada.

He said he has some new ideas to bring to his job but would have to wait to see what his organization was like. He would start in "right away".

Disembarking with him at Liverpool were Countess Alexander, their son, Brian and an adopted daughter, Susan. Another son, Shane, is at school in Harrow and a daughter, Rose, is completing a course at McGill University.

Alexander, an Ulsterman, will take over the London home of General Sir Gerald Templer, another Ulsterman, who recently assumed command of the war against the terrorists in Malaya.

The Alexanders have a country home in the rolling Buckinghamshire Hills, between Amersham and Chalfont St. Giles, which will be rented or sold.

Lord Alexander will dine with Churchill, Wednesday night.

RAWDON

Young People Hold Rally

Rawdon—On Friday evening last, a Young People's Rally of the Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora Council of Religious Education was held in Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Church hall with over 50 in attendance.

The president, Mr. Fred Houchin, presided and all sang "Wonderful Love" with Mrs. Lorne Watson as accompanist.

Mr. Harry Brown read the Bible lesson and Rev. H. C. Secker offered prayer.

Rev. Morley Clarke was guest speaker and based his message on the poem "Lifters and Leaners," after which all joined in a consecration hymn.

Program

Mrs. Fredrick Beckett and Mrs. Lorne Watson contributed a duet. Mrs. Don Heath gave a monologue "Entertaining the Minister." Miss Ina Scott and her brother George, gave two musical selections, piano and violin. Mrs. Ross Hart, Mrs. Harry Brown and Miss Verna Brown conducted a quiz with members from each group taking part. The service closed with "Blest Be the Tie" and "The Queen."

Refreshments were served and Mr. Frederick Beckett voiced thanks to Mount Pleasant Y.P.U. and Mr. Ray Sharpe responded.

This rally closes the special study which has been held each Wednesday evening in various churches.

FIGHT COUGHS & COLDS

VICKS VAPORUB IN STEAM
Relieves Croupy Night Coughs
Medicated steam brings soothing, deep-action relief.
No matter how choked up or miserable a cold makes you feel, here's a treatment that relieves discomfort fast. Just put two spoonfuls of Vicks VapoRub in a Vaporizer as directed. All you do is breathe in the steam. Every breath carries the medicated steam deep into cold-congested bronchial tubes — actually medicates the membranes; moistens and lubricates linings of the throat and bronchial tubes, helps loosen phlegm. In no time this brings relief right where you need it most.
Buy a jar of Vicks VapoRub and a Vaporizer at once—and relieve miseries of the whole family's colds.

Workers Want Guaranteed Wage, Parity With U.S.

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP)—Wage negotiations aimed at establishing a guaranteed annual wage and parity with United States steel industry wages have been opened between the United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O. - C. C. L.) and two of the "big three" in Canadian steel.

The union now is negotiating with the Steel Company of Canada at Hamilton and Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation of Sydney, N. S., where existing agreements expire April 1. The contract with Algoma Steel Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie expires May 1.

Exactly how large a raise will be asked by the union is not known. Steel wages in the United States now are in dispute between unions and companies and a special wage stabilization board is expected to rule on the question.

Existing labor rates in Canada are $1.26 an hour at Algoma and Stelco and $1.22 at Dosco.

A national committee has been set up to work on the wages clause sought in a new contract. It will consist of C. H. Millard, Canadian head of the steelworkers; J. C. Nicholson, director for Quebec and the Maritimes; John Mitchell, director for Ontario and the west; and two nominees from each of the local unions.

The union has often sought industry - wide negotiations, which is opposed by the three companies.

16,000 Affected

Some 16,000 steelworkers in Canada will be affected by the results of the negotiations here.

In the U. S. the union is asking for a 15-cent hourly increase plus higher rates for skilled classes.

One of the significant aspects of the Canadian negotiations is the demand for a job evaluation plan geared to that in the industry in the U. S. The union claims that the differentials here between unskilled and skilled workers are much narrower than in the U. S. Parity would require wage increases of as much as 40 cents an hour for skilled groups.

Minimum wage increase demands for laborers probably would be between 10 and 15 cents an hour.

The dispute in the U. S. now is before a special wage stabilization board panel. Strike deadline is March 31.

Junior Hawks Edge Peterborough Links 7-6 To Win Semi-Finals 3-1

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THEY DOOD IT!

It could have been that ole third-period git-and-go that has characterized their play in the last few games, or it could have been been the lusty voices of hometown supporters that fired the junior Hawklets in Peterborough last night, but the fact remains that the youngsters, with defeat and another game staring them in the face came up with a remarkable surge of reserve strength and whupped the pesky Petes 7-6 merely by slamming home three markers in the third session after trailing for the first two heats.

It didn't look too healthy in the first semester when the Linkers fired home four goals while our side was getting its sights set with one return the best they could do. Hope kindled in the breasts from the banks of the Moira when the Hawklets showed some of their form in the second period and equalled the Symonds men 2-2 to start third period exchanges two goals in arrears. Then it happened. The Hawks paced by Ted DeGray (Mr. Gamewinner), Doran and Ross Mason lashed out with an offensive that the Links could not halt and scarcely seven minutes had gone when the pastime egg was laid safely in the Hawks nest. That's the way matters turned out.

So now with the gallant Links relegated to junior "B" oblivion and the Kingston Vics and Lindsay Kinsmen in the final throes of their series, the Hawklets will sit back and sharpen their talons for whoever emerges the victor. Vics meet Kinsmen in Lindsay tomorrow night in the fifth game of their series with the Vics one game up. Should Lindsay win it will likely force a sudden-death playoff on neutral ice, and that could be here in Belleville.

SACS HERE TOMORROW

Tomorrow night the senior Hawks complete the schedule with the surging Kingston Sacs as their guests at Memorial Arena. The Sacs have been busier than the proverbial one-armed carpenter with the hives with their ice fortunes going up and down like a hotel elevator during a convention. They defeated the high-flying Peterborough Petes 11-9 in Peterborough the other night (thereby shaving 500 "feathers in an "Eagles" nest) and last night in Kingston they emerged on the short end of a 10-2 score against the same pesky Petes. At the moment the Sacs and Eagles are tied for second slot with 27 points and the schedule ends also in Peterborough when the Eagles and Petes clash. (Note to Eddy in the back room: Put our salary cheque on the Eagles and if you can get another bet we'll raise another ten bucks).

The victory - hungry Hawks are out for hockey blood tomorrow and they may as well get it at the expense of the Sacs. It should be a keen battle since the Hawks are well rested and should be in good condition.

GLENS COME THROUGH!

Don McNevin's Glen Roys came through with a fine display of hockey here last night to oust the Trenton Jewellers from further participation in Trent Valley Hockey League antics. It was a hard-fought game all through, but two costly penalties in the second period, was the turning point for the Trenton crew. The Glens trailing in the first period lashed out with two goals while the Jewellers were short two men. Again in the third the Glens roared back with two goals in fifteen seconds to put the game in the bag. They meet the Trenton RCAF Flyers in the southern section finals with the first game scheduled for Brighton on Monday night, not Friday as formerly announced. The Glens play Tamworth tomorrow night as part of the gala opening ceremonies of that enterprising village's brand new arena.

JUVENILES AT PETERBOROUGH TONIGHT!

The Belleville Hockey Association juveniles, victors over Kingston in the first round of the OMHA juvenile "A" playdowns are in Peterborough tonight where they will battle the Liftlock youngsters, conquerors of Oshawa in the second round and for the Eastern Ontario championship. The second game is slated for Memorial Arena here on Monday night. The series is a home-and-home, goals-to-count affair.

Prior to the juvenile game an exhibition tilt will be played between an all-star Belleville peewee team and a squad from Peterborough. It is understood this is the first of a two-game series.

MINOR PLAYOFFS SATURDAY

Bruins, Hawks and Rangers will be gunning for their second victory and advancement to the semi-finals of the Peewee Division of the Minor Hockey Association here on Saturday morning. Bruins edged Canadiens 2-1; Hawks defeated the Leafs, 5-2 and Rangers shut out the Wings in the first games of the series last Saturday morning.

* * *

In the bantam division, Black Hawks meet Canadiens at 9 a. m.; Bruins tangle with the Red Wings at 9.40 and the Leafs clash with Rangers at 10.20 in the second games of their playoff series. Last week in the first game Leafs defeated Rangers 4-3; Bruins edged Wings 2-1 and the Hawks blanked Canadiens 4-0. Three teams face elimination on Saturday so there should be some rip-rearing tilts before the playoff dust settles.

IT COULD BE!

Down St. Thomas way yesterday two local gentlemen considered by many persons of that city to be "blind as bats" during each of the last six summers took a walk along the main stem.

The walk was profitable although Ben Murray and Jim Clarke had to put up with many good-natured jibes such as suggestions that they were seeking to provide for their old age.

Intercounty Baseball League umpires, they were collecting funds for the blind.

Third-Period 3--Goal Rally Snatches Victory from Defeat In Hard-Fought Uphill Battle

By MAURICE H. REID

Slamming home three goals in the early stages of the third period, Belleville junior Hawks overcame a first period deficit of a like number and won a thrilling 7-6 win over the Peterborough Oddfellows last night.

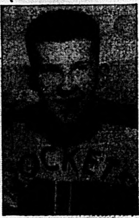
The win gave the Hawks the semi-final Junior B series with their opponents by three games to one. They now wait to meet the winner of the Lindsay-Kingston series in a final series for the group championship.

In a game highlighted with thrills, chills and spills, the winners looked like anything but champions for the first two periods. They spotted the homesters a three-goal lead in the first chucker, regaining only one of these in the second, and that just before the period's end. Period scores were 1-4, 3-6, and the ultimate 7-6.

Once again it was the sparkling play of Ted DeGray that featured the contest. But for the outstanding stickwork of the Hawk forward, along with that of Doran and Mason in the first two periods, the score could quite easily have been out of reach by the start of the final period. The latter pair worked diligently for the first forty minutes and shared with the entire team in the final period drive.

Peter Comes Back

Peter Green, who could have been the goat for the first two periods redeemed himself with a vengeance in the final period, tightening the defence considerably with the fine two-way play and setting up the winning goal. His lapses in the earlier stages of the game were directly responsible for two Peterborough goals but his fine return to form earned him a star.



ROSS MASON
. . . Ole Reliable

The two-referee system being used in the playoffs, a feature which helped the Hawks win their previous encounter in the Liftlock City, backfired on them early in the first period. Munroe was called for kneeing at the five minute mark and at the same time, DeGray was clipped across the nose by a Peterborough player, an act missed by both officials. DeGray, in irritation, banged the puck down the ice and was awarded ten minutes in the penalty box as a reward for his effort. Referee Lecompte even refused to allow him to go to the dressing room for repairs to his bleeding nose.

TED DeGRAY
. . . Win Producer

While this pair were cooling their heels in the penalty box the Oddfellows rapped in two goals. Bigford was banished a minute after Munroe's return to play and while he was off, Lalande completed a three way pass from his linemates to put Belleville back on the score sheet.

Play assumed a furious pace with the Heffernan line and the Houle line alternating on end to end rushes. Nothing happened however until Heffernan and Wilson were thumbed for ruffing. Just as they were returning to the ice, Clapper slapped home a shot through three Hawk players who were obscuring Barclay's view, the latter having no chance whatever.

Poor clearing accounted for Robinson's goal, late in the period, when he netted the puck after Barclay had kicked shots aside from Buckton and Floyd.

With the Hawks playing a man short at the beginning of the second and Peterborough driving hard in an effort to increase their lead "Duke" Doran had a breakaway with only Clapper back. Clapper stopped him but not before he fed the puck to DeGray behind him. The latter made no mistake, firing from about 10 feet out.

George Jacklin's second counter at the .36 second mark of the third period seemed to be just the spark that the visiting Hawks needed. Doran, DeGray and Gilmour followed the first line onto the ice and were driving consistently into their opponent's end

The pressure continued with the next line and finally paid off with the tying goal. Therrien was hemmed in the corner and seeking an outlet, fired the puck out to Bob Wilson at the blue line. Wilson let fly a terrific shot from the side which just caught the opposite corner of the net. It was his first goal of the year and could not have come at a more timely place.

He and Stewart were thumbed for high-sticking a couple of minutes later but this did not slow down the Hawk drive at all. Pete Green, on a breakaway from centre ice, went in alone and drew Wasson out before firing his shot. The shot hit the goal post but DeGray snagged the rubber and wheeled around a defenceman and Wasson, who was about five feet out of his net, and gently settled the puck in the net.

DeGray shared top scoring honors with Jacklin, each scoring twice and assisting on another, and Hec Lalande who scored one and aided on a pair. Mason and Wilson tabbed the other goals with assists going to Doran, Therrien and Green.

Jensen was the only Peterborough player to account for more than one point, getting a goal and an assist Armstrong, Coyle, Clapper, Robinson and Heffernan scored singletons with assists going to McCracken, Buckton, Floyd and Stewart. Over 200 Belleville fans were in attendance.

The Teams:

Peterborough Oddfellows: Goal, Wasson; defence, Clapper, Armstrong; centre, Robinson; wings, Buckton, Floyd; subs, Twist, Coyle, Heffernan, Jensen, Stewart, McCracken, Bigford, Sullivan.

Junior Hawks: Goal, Barclay; defence, Wilson, Green; centre, Lalande; wings, Jacklin, Strahan; subs, Mason, Houle, Therrien, DeGray, Munroe, Doran, Gilmour.

Smythe Watches, So Leafs Win First in Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Whatever invisible power manager Conn Smythe wields over his Toronto Maple Leafs was never more evident than last night in New York City.

For the first time in seven games, he watched his National Hockey League charges perform and for the first time in seven games, they won.

The Leafs were enough inspired by the presence of The Little Major to come through with a 3-1 decision over the fourth-place Rangers and move back into a second-place deadlock with Montreal Canadiens. Both clubs trail the league-leading Detroit Red Wings by 19 points.

Listless Affair

Toronto took a 1-0 lead on Sid Smith's first-period goal and played through a scoreless middle session before Don Raleigh evened the count early in the final stanza. Cal Gardner tallied the Leafs' winner and Harry Watson added the insurance marker shortly after.

The game was a listless affair with checking extremely close for the first two periods. The pace picked up in the third period, but the Maple Leafs played strictly a defensive game that kept the Rangers away from goalie Al Rollins.

However, Rollins had the majority of work throughout the three periods—handling 32 shots as compared to 14 for Emile (The Cat) Francis in the Blueshirts nets. It was Francis' first loss since he replaced the injured Chuck Rayner in the New York goal 12 days ago. In four previous games his team has won two and tied two.

Gus Mortson—the Leaf defenceman cleared today by N. H. L. president Clarence Campbell of an alleged deliberate attempt to injure Ranger Hy Buller in a previous game—played last night. He stuck strictly to business and avoided any penalties.

Two games are scheduled in tonight's N. H. L. play. Detroit plays in Montreal while the Rangers move into Chicago.

Sheet Metals Win Over Shoppers 4-2

Sheet Metals emerged victors over Machine Shop by a 4-2 score in a Northern Electric Hockey league game at Memorial Arena last night.

Wardhaugh scored the only goal for the Shoppers in the first period. MacDonald made it 2-0 early in the second but Bell reduced the count half way through the period.

Metals rallied strongly in the third heat scoring three goals without a return from the Shoppers to grab the victory.

Bell was top sniper for the Metals with a pair of goals with Whalen getting one and one. York scored the other.

MacDonald and Wardhaugh potted the pill for the losers with Pucansik drawing an assist.

The game was clean with only two penalties handed out by referees Jones and Little.

The league playoffs start in Memorial Arena on Monday night.

Glen Roys Hand Trenton 7-4 Defeat; Meet Flyers in Sectional Finals

Belleville Glen Roys trailing one goal in the first period struck swiftly in the second and third to come from behind and defeat the Trenton Jewellers 7-4 in a hard-fought Trent Valley Hockey League semi-finals third game here last night.

The victory gave the Glens the series by two games to one and they now meet the RCAF Flyers in the sectional finals with the first game scheduled for Brighton next Monday night, and the second here next Wednesday.

The game was a rugged hard-checking affair throughout with the Jewellers edging the Glens by a 2-1 score in the first. Two costly Trenton penalties in the second saw the Glens surge back to score two goals in 18 minutes while the Jewellers were two men short, and add another before Trenton came back with a single to end the period 4-3.

Win in Third

Play was even in the third period until 13 minutes had passed when the Glens struck again. Goyer fired home Lovelace's pass at 13.13 for the clincher and Williams slammed home the rubber 32 seconds later for the insurance marker. Beale sped off on a breakaway to score and cut the margin to 6-4 but Mulvihill got that one back a minute later on a solo effort.

Hill, in the Trenton nets was one of the outstanding stars of the game and he turned in an outstanding game thwarting Belleville attackers time after time. By the same token Plumley at the other end also stood out and he turned back not a few potential Trenton goals.

Leo Goyer paced the Glens offensive with three goals and an assist with Brian Mulvihill, the leagues leading sniper coming through with a goal and three assists. Earl Cousins helped himself to a pair of markers with Timmy Williams getting one and one and Lovelace an assist.

Schmidt, Johnson, Jones and Beale were the Trenton triggermen with the former drawing an assist in an outstanding effort.

While rivalry between the teams was keen throughout the season, it ended with the game. The Trenton crew rushed over to the Glens and congratulated them on their series victory, while the Glens paid back-slapping tribute to Plumley after the cease-fire had sounded.

Glen Roys: Goal, Plumley; defence, Hurst, York; centre, Cousins; wings, Williams, Mulvihill; subs, Adams, Bone, Goyer, Whalen, Meagher, F. Mulvihill, De Rushie, Hatfield, Lovelace.

Trenton: Goal, Hill; defence, Schmidt, Campney; centre, Johnson; wings, Watson, Barr; subs, Beale, Leavey, Jones, Carswell, Fillon, McDonald, Scott.

Referees: Red Carson, Don Barrett, Belleville.

Bonn's Garage Wins Over Trudeau's

Bonn's Garage defeated Trudeau's 6-4 to take the first game of their Owl League semi-finals in Memorial Arena the other night. The teams play the second game of the two game series next Tuesday. In the other semi-finals bracket, Westons meet Boyce's Garage tonight at the Arena in the first of their goals-to-count series.

Allan paced the Bonn's victory with three goals with Cummings getting two and Coulter the other.

Duesbury and Jordan scored two goals each for the Trudeau crew in a well-played tussle.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

A whistle-tooting fan started an inter-school hockey argument yesterday in Toronto that probably won't be settled for a long time.

With Leaside Collegiate tied 2-2 in a game against East York collegiate, the amateur whistle-blower let loose. All the players stopped, but the referees looked at each other and shook their heads.

Then Leaside's Don Bonnell grabbed the puck and scored the winning goal to give his school the league championship.

East York coach Bill Dobson said however that he had lodged a protest with the school league executive. He thought that "it should be replayed. That's the only fair thing to do."

The undefeated University of Western Ontario's Mustangs last night pushed the University of Toronto Varsity Blues out of contention for a play-off spot in the senior intercollegiate basketball loop with a 5343 victory before a crowd of 1,000 in Toronto. The Varsity Jay Vees tamed the Western Colts 47-35 in the intermediate opener.

Plans for a $500,000 three-quarter mile race track for Victoria, B.C., were announced yesterday by Ken Darbyshire, president of the Canadian Horsemen's Benevelent Association. The proposed track would be modern in every detail, Darbyshire said in Victoria. It would include 400 concrete stalls and a grandstand seating 5,000.

Middleweight champion Ray Robinson will sign a contract for a Heart Fund charity bout in a ceremony in New York Friday. Sugar Ray will agree to meet the winner of the Ernie Durando-Paddy Young middleweight bout in a non-title bout at Madison Square Garden May 16. Young and Durando clash in the Garden, March 7.

Purses on harness racing's grand circuit will exceed $3,000,000 for this year for the first time in the group's 79-year-old history, officials announced yesterday in Goshen, N.Y. The 27-week grand circuit season takes in 15 associations racing at 14 tracks, and the estimated purse value of $3,219,000 is 20 per cent greater than in 1951.

Ted Williams said yesterday in Miami, Fla., that he will join Boston Red Sox Saturday for spring training at Sarasota, Fla., although he is scheduled to report to the Marines for active duty two months later. "I want to get into good physical condition," said Williams, who has been spending the winter fishing in the Florida Keys, "so I'm planning to go through spring training with the team."

RMC Cadets Meet West Point In Colorful Annual Saturday

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 28 — (CP) — Royal Military College plays host Saturday to the United States Military Academy in the annual hockey game between the two military colleges.

The game will mark the 20th meeting of the teams, with the Canadians out in front with an impressive total of 15 victories and one tie since the series was inaugurated in 1923. R. M. C. is the challenger this year, West Point having gained a 4-2 victory in 1951.

The series was born through the joint efforts of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, then superintendent of West Point, and the late Lt.-Gen. Sir Archibald Macdonnell, at that time commandant here.

They felt it would be profitable for both countries to have young men from the national military institutions meet each other, and compete annually in some sport.

Cups Presented

The opening year a cup was presented to the U. S. team by R. M. C. and was deeded to the academy as a memento of the first athletic meeting between the two institutions. In 1939, on the occasion of the academy's first victory, West Point presented a companion cup to R.M.C. to remain at the Canadian college as a pledge of friendship.

Fair play and good sportsmanship is characteristic of the games. No player has ever been penalized despite keen rivalry and hard play.

As each West Point cadet arrives in Kingston he will be "adopted" by his R. M. C. counterpart. The Canadian will oust his roommate and share his quarters with his opposite number from the U. S.

The West Pointers also will have a rooting section at the game — made up of R.M.C. cadets. In the arena, one side cheers for R. M. C. while the other roots as vigorously for the boys from West Point.

Coach Harry (Yip) Radley, one-time professional hockey and football star, is reported to have his Kingston team in first - rate shape. Radley played with the old Montreal Maroons and New York Americans in the National Hockey League and Tulsa Oilers in the United States Hockey League.

Because of the current service mourning for the late King, the large formal dance that usually follows the game has been cancelled. The only ceremony to be held will be a church parade Sunday.

Members of the Canadian team: Goal, R. Hull, Toronto, and G. Phelan, Montreal; defence, B. Dowsley, Athens, Ont., J. Farrell, Jackson's Point, Ont., L. Grace, Fort William, J. Sargent, Bronte, Ont., J. Waterston, Westmount, Que.; forwards, J. Donahue, Kiosk, Ont., D. Hargraft, Toronto, W. Hough, Sudbury, R. Hamlin, Chapleau, Ont., G. Osler, Toronto, D. Many Famous Sports Celebrities From US, Canada to Attend Dinner

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP)—The names of coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame, Canadian football star Bruce Cummings of Ottawa and boxer Rocky Marciano were added today to the list of leading sports figures who will attend the sports celebrity dinner the Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association is holding March 13 for crippled children.

The Association said Leahy and Cummings will represent football along with Frederick Miller, Milwaukee business man who serves as a voluntary assistant coach to Leahy. He goes by plane to South Bend, Ind., daily, in the football season to attend practices.

Marciano, a leading contender for the heavyweight title, will be one of two boxing representatives. The other is Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion. Gene Tunney, another former champion who was expected, is unable to come.

The Ottawa Rough Riders football club is sending Cummings as winner of the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy in the Big Four Football Union last season. He also represents Canadian football and the 1952 Canadian champions.

For Crippled Kiddies

Proceeds of the $25-a-plate-dinner — probably $8,000 — go to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. The event also marks the opening of the society's annual Easter Seals campaign to finance its work for crippled children.

Other celebrities who will attend include: Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., Canadian women's golf champion selected by the association's members as Ontario's athlete of the year in 1951; golfers Sandy Somerville and Francis Ouimet; Newsy Lalonde, old-time lacrosse great; Aurel Joliat, Bill Cook, Eddie Shore and King Clancy, members of the first Canadian Press National Hockey League All-Star team of 1931; Clint Hodgins, a leading Canadian harness horse driver; Jim Thorpe, Lionel Conacher and Bobby Rosenfeld, the outstanding athletes of the U. S. and Canada in the first half of this century.

Leahy, a centre and tackle in his playing days at Notre Dame, ranks as one of the leading football coaches in the U. S. His Notre Dame teams have been rated national champions in four seasons. He won fame also as coach at Fordham University where he developed the "seven - blocks - of - granite" line that carried the Rams through three seasons with only two defeats. His Boston College team of 1941 won the Sugar Bowl game. He has held coaching assignments at Georgetown University and Michigan State.

Miller, a tackle at Notre Dame where he played under the late Knute Rockne with Leahy, heads brewing, lumber and investment companies. He owns the Milwaukee Hawks of the National Basketball Association and last season made an offer to purchase the St. Louis Browns of the National Baseball League with the idea of moving the club to Milwaukee. He plans to come to Toronto for the dinner by plane, bringing Leahy with him.

The association says it hopes to complete arrangements in the next few days for a top-flight baseball figure to round out its roster of celebrities.

Mick Roth Wins Scoring Crown

Toronto, Feb. 28—CP—Mickey Roth, smooth-skating centre of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A champion Stratford Indians, yesterday was announced winner of the league's scoring crown despite a broken hand that kept him sidelined the final week of the season.

Roth collected 50 goals and assisted in 61 others for 11 points. Tom Burlington of Owen Sound Mercurys finished second with 97 points. Roth's linemate, Dinny Flanagan, was third with 90 points.

Boat Jurley, the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen goaltender, was tops in the net-minding department. He allowed only 137 goals in 42 games for a 3.26 average. Stratford's Bruce Dale was second with a 3.49 average and Art Child of Hamilton Tigers third with 4.15.

Underdogs Win First Semi-Final Senior Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Owen Sound Mercurys and Brantford Redmen may have just scraped into the Ontario Hockey Association senior A playoffs by the skin of their teeth, but last night both clubs showed they weren't fooling in their fight to reach the finals.

Owen Sound downed Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 4-1 and Brantford edged Stratford Indians 5-4 as both teams took a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven semi-final series. Stratford plays back in Brantford Friday night while Kitchener-Waterloo moves into Owen Sound Saturday.

In O.H.A. junior A play, where the clubs are still in their regular schedule, Barrie Flyers provided the upset of the night when they exploded for four goals in overtime and came up with a 9-5 victory over Toronto St. Michael's.

The win does little for the seventh-place Flyers, but the loss left St. Mike's in fourth place where they were overtaken by St. Catharines Teepees who nosed out Oshawa Generals 5-4. The idle Kitchener Greenshirts are but a point behind both clubs.

In other junior A clashes, Toronto Marlboros held off a late-game Windsor Spitfire surge and collected a 3-2 win from the ninth-place club. At Waterloo, third-place Galt Black Hawks pulled off a 9-4 win from the eighth-place Hurricanes.

Training Camp Briefs

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP) — Hampered by a soggy diamond all this week, manager Lou Boudreau today hoped to put his 24 Boston Red Sox pitchers to work. He fears several of them have become slightly rusty.

Boudreau planned to have all of them throwing in batting practice during the remainder of the week.

Lakeland, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—That emergency appendicitis operation a couple of weeks ago may have made a new man of Detroit Tiger manager Red Rolfe.

For years Red has been plagued by frequent attacks of colitis, or intestinal inflammation. But, arriving at Detroit spring training camp yesterday, the Bengal boss said his doctor told him the appendix may have been his trouble all along

"If that's true," he said, "I'm going to be a new man. I'm eating like I never used to."

And maybe it's just a sign of better health, but Red seems much more optimistic about Tiger chances this season than he was a year ago.

Meza, Ariz., Feb. 28 (AP) — If catcher Bruce Edwards' arm does not hold up, Chicago Cub manager Phil Cavarretta may shift the former Brooklyn backstop to first base.

The Cubs got the onetime Brooklyn star in a trade last season. Edwards once had a rifle-like throwing arm but has been having trouble with it for some time.

San Bernardino, Calif., Feb. 28—(AP)—General manager Branch Rickey received word from Pittsburgh today that Pirate pitcher Ted Wilks has signed a 1952 contract.

Wilks appeared in 65 games last year, tops in the National League. Despite his unimpressive 3-5 record, his 2.85 earned run average was the best on the Pirate staff.

With the Pirates due Monday, 10 Bucs, including hurler Murray Dickson, remain unsigned.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

If a better mousetrap is ever found it may be by a bridge nut. Somebody is always beating a path to his door with new ideas. Some cheesy bridge signals and a few good ones are thus caught.

There is a standard set of responses to an opening bid of two in a suit. With a hand containing no sure trick, the most generally accepted first reply from partner is two no-trump.

In other words, two no-trump in reply to an opening bid of two in a suit is a denial of a sure trick. Nothing else does it deny. Only that the responder lacks a sure trick in his hand.

Some circles are still experimenting with the suit-over denial. For instance, partner opens with two clubs and your reply of the suit over it (next higher rank) is two diamonds to deny a sure trick.

If partner opens with two diamonds your reply of two hearts is denial of a sure trick. If partner opens two hearts, your reply of two spades is denial of a sure trick.

What if partner opens with two spades? Which suit is over it? Clubs. So, your reply of three clubs is denial of a sure trick in your hand. What else you may like to show awaits a later round.

In other groups there is a temporary tendency to bid "straight." That is, in reply to an opening bid of two in suit, partner bids his suit at once whether or not he has a sure trick.

For goodness sake, don't go around saying I advocate either or both these replies. All you hear me doing here is reporting what is being done by some players. Not by me.

In a match involving experts, there was this pair:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠ A K J 8	♠ 7
♥ K 3	♥ Q 8 6 4 2
♦ A K J 10 7 4 3	♦ Q 8 6
♣ None	♣ 10 4 3 2

South opened with a bid of two diamonds. That's what I would have done. North responded at once with a bid of two hearts. Not what I would have done. Polilutely not.

Many beginners hold the mistaken idea that a forcing bid forces partner to bid. It does no such thing. It demands only that partner keeps the bidding alive in some manner.

To bid or not to bid. That is sometimes the question.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 28—(AP)—Joan Crawford today came to the defence of mature men, described by an Italian actress as "too old to kiss."

The young lover is an amateur; the older man is the professional," she said, disagreeing with actress Sylvana Pampanini who sounded off in Rome about kissing this week and claimed that some top Hollywood actors are too old to make love convincingly.

Sylvana named Clark Gable, Charles Boyer, Gary Cooper, Humphrey Bogart, Spencer Tracy, Paul Muni and Ronald Colman, all past 50.

"It's ridiculous to see a man old enough to be your grandfather playing an ardent lover," she said.

Her comments drew a violent reaction from Miss Crawford, who rose in gallant defence of the seven actors and mature lovers in general.

"Apparently not everyone shares her opinion," said Miss Crawford, "because these men have been playing lovers successfully for a good many years. You can't argue with the box office; that's people.

"Messrs. Boyer, Cooper and Bogart have been married to young and attractive women, which indicates that they are not only adept as screen lovers but have thoroughly satisfactory personal lives. Messrs. Tracy, Muni and Colman have slightly older wives, women of the greatest charm and poise. These men also has satisfactory personal lives.

"As for Mr. Gable, I speak for myself as well as millions of other women when I say that he is still king. I'm sure if he called Miss Pampanini for a date, she would drop everything and run in his direction."

She added that she has played love scenes opposite all the actors named, either on the screen or radio. "Spaking professionally, I can say that all of them have great strength and appeal as lovers," she said. "When one of them kisses you, you know you've been kissed."

The Italian actress has praised her young leading man, who had left marks on her arm after a movie clinch. Miss Crawford's comment: "Is she interested in love-making or a wrestling match?"

Miss Crawford's final comment: "The young lover is an amateur; the older man is the professional. I don't think any woman knows whether she has been loved well until she is 30 and her husband is 35. Until then, it's strictly high-school stuff."

Warriors Clip Hornets 2-1

(By The Canadian Press)

Syracuse Warriors, cellar dwellers of the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League, shaded the powerful Pittsburgh Hornets 2-1 last night. The Hornets lead both sections of the loop.

Syracuse has only picked up 45 points in the season's play, while the Hornets have a total of 85 points.

At Cleveland, the Barons extended their unbeaten string to 16 by defeating Hershey Bears 4-1. The Barons now trail Pittsburgh, the Western Division leaders, by six points.

Eddie Reigle, Vic Lynn, Jerry Couture and Jack Gordon scored.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, February 29

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—The 29th! And an excellent day with favorable Jupiter, Mercury and other planets well aspected. Make the most of good offerings; finish incompleted matters, make some especial record now.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Though your Venus position stresses need for extra care in personal conduct, day has splendid indications of achievement in all worth while undertakings, business, work, home interests.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Should be a peak day with your full and willing help. Sensible co-operation will bring like in return. Writers, teachers, students, religious ,authors among top sponsored.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Be mindful of the disposition that you may work successfully for the benefits possible now. Mechanics, builders, the trades generally are highly favored; professional pursuits enhanced.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Grand aspects. Seek to advance yourself; follow important leads; make new, worthy connections. All honorable work can gain. Pray for, help, our armed forces, our government's efforts.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—You should be inspired, ambitious and cheerful this stimulating benefic day. Without straining health, get done as much as possible that you can better enjoy later work and free time.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Generous aspects but your Venus warns against moods, indulging any irritability. Prospects are too promising to under them. Be your natural gracious self and you will achieve.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—All practical and useful endeavors can advance with your skillful help. Dealing in metals, lumber, tools, machinery; roadbuilding, transportation freshly favored. Brain work tops.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)— Your Jupiter and several other major planets in excellent configurations. Day favors mental work, intricate and delicate tasks also urgent physical labor, trades. Protect finances.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn) — Ambition, adaptability, loyalty to country and performance of good deeds heightened this fine planetary day. Seek to advance your status, gain greater security. Aid those in distress.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Don't fear to tackle new propositions if they have value but do start your schedule on time and avoid wasting time on unessentials. Rays favorable on whole; encouraging, helpful.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)— And you have a full chart of friendly vibrations to aid you in accomplishing as you should now. Hard work, solving of difficult problems and the more delicate matters sponsored.

YOU BORN TODAY: Highly talented and artistic but may lack sufficient confidence and thus fail to develop your God-given gifts to best advantage. Be ambitious, more self-assured. You will find others ready to listen to your ideas, willing to help you succeed if you show determination, initiative. Decorating and other artistic endeavors often find Piscean-born at top positions. Scientific fields may also appeal to you. Don't be too serious, you really have an appreciation of humor. 1952 has many advantages. Step out to meet competitors. Birthdate: Gioacchino Antonio Rossini, famed Italian composer.

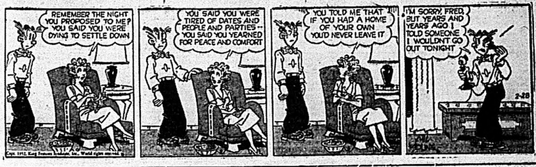
BLONDIE — By Chic Young



REMEMBER THE NIGHT YOU PROPOSED TO ME? YOU SAID YOU WERE DYING TO SETTLE DOWN
YOU SAID YOU WERE TIRED OF DATES AND PEOPLE AND PARTIES — YOU SAID YOU YEARNED FOR PEACE AND COMFORT
YOU TOLD ME THAT IF YOU HAD A HOME OF YOUR OWN YOU'D NEVER LEAVE IT
I'M SORRY, FRED, BUT YEARS AND YEARS AGO I TOLD SOMEONE I WOULDN'T GO OUT TONIGHT

Why We Say--

GRAHAM CRACKER

Sylvester Graham, a staunch vegetarian (1794-1851), gave his name to this type of cracker. But he did not invent the flour nor cracker. He merely strongly advocated the use of the wheat kernel (except the husk) as one substitute for meat in the diet. Gradually his name was applied to the cracker.

To Slaughter Cattle

A bulldozer clears a pit where diseased cattle will be buried after they are shot by R.C.M.P. marksmen. Infected cattle in the Regina district will be taken to this mass grave, one mile west of Regina's city limits, and destroyed. An outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease has caused the close inspection of all cattle herds. The mass grave will be 200 feet long, 60 feet wide and 10 feet deep. —(CP Photo.)

Engineer Loses Life in Quebec Freight Crash

Engineer R. J. Perusse died when his freight train, travelling at only four miles an hour, hit the rear of a standing string of freight cars at Estcourt, 125 miles east of Quebec City. He was pinned under the wreckage and doctors, in a vain effort to save his life, amputated his leg. The fireman jumped free just before the crash. — Central Press Canadian.

U.S. Government May Lift Livestock Embargo

Prize herds of cattle, among them the pets of many a farm boy, are being slaughtered in the Regina area as the federal government moved to wipe out all traces of the dreaded hoof-and-mouth disease. Most of the cattle slaughtered showed no visible trace of the disease leaving cattlemen bewildered on the necessity of killing them. The U.S. government may ease its hastily declared embargo on Canadian livestock if the spread of the disease appears to be completely arrested. — Central Press Canadian.

Wedding Date After 40 Years

A romance begun 40 years ago will culminate this spring in the marriage of Ethel H. Lane, night matron of the Westminster Veterans' Hospital in London, Ont., and an Indian doctor in Ceylon. The couple met first in 1912 when Dr. Wijewardene and Miss Lane were students in a British hospital. They met several times in the intervening years, then, last December, set the date for the wedding. — Central Press Canadian.

Bad Stomach, Couldn't Eat, "Always Taking Soda"

This Man Tells How The Syntona Medicine Finally Aided Stomach, Relieved Gas, Pains, Sour Acidity. Also Free of Headaches, Dizzy Spells and Tired, Rundown Feeling.

"I have seen and heard of many different medicines, but Syntona has given me more relief than anything I ever took before," declared Mr. Leonard Arsenault, 84 Strachan Street West, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report.

"For a long time I suffered with burning pains in my stomach, awful gas and sour acid risings. Every time I ate a meal I would get this awful heavy, burning, bloated sensation. I was always taking soda and the relief I got would only last a little while. I was subject to throbbing headaches, and dizzy spells and recently I got so that I couldn't get sound sleep at night and I felt tired out from the time I got up in the mornings.

"One day a friend advised me to try Syntona, so I got some and it was certainly a lucky day for me. After taking this medicine only a little while I began to eat things I couldn't before and now I eat just about everything that is put before me. The gas, sourness, burning and bloated feeling is cleared up and I don't get those awful headaches and dizzy spells. I sleep better, too, and have more energy than I had for a long time."

More and more scientists are turning BACK TO NATURE for medicines to relieve the suffering of mankind. 12 of the active ingredients in Syntona are SUPPLIED BY THE EARTH. They are compounded in a modern laboratory and blended into this pleasant-tasting, easy-to-take, liquid medicine.

Why not give Syntona a chance to help you, too? It is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

CAMPBELLFORD

Joint Concert Presented On Sunday Evening

Campbellford—A Sunday evening concert, the third such attraction presented jointly by the Bemersyd Chapter I.O.D.E. and the Campbellford Citizens' band was held in a local theatre on Sunday evening with a large audience in attendance.

The program was announced by Mrs. George Vice, who on behalf of the Bemersyde Chapter, welcomed the citizens of Campbellford and district to the concert.

Program

The Campbellford Citizens' band opened the program with two numbers, after which Bruce Barnum played a medley of tunes on his solo vox. Two piano duets by Messrs. Ronald and Gerald Young were also heard.

The choir of St. John's United Church, under the direction of Mr. George Nicholls, and accompanied by Mrs. Nicholls contributed two anthems.

A short address was given by the Rev. Gordon Whitehorne on the subject "You Are Important." Mr. Whitehorne stressed three points. The individual is important because his is unique; no two persons are exactly alike, he is important because he passes through the world but once, finally he has a job to do in the world which he and he alone can accomplish.

Miss Anne Nicholls' piano solo was encored and she responded with a second selection. Mrs. Allan Watson sang a beautiful number after which Mr. Barnum rendered a selection on his solo vox.

The final group, by the Campbellford Citizens' band included a number of waltzes.

Mrs. George Vice thanked the artists who gave of their time and talent and announced that the last concert of the season would be held in March.

Cattle Inspector

Federal officials, dressed in rubber overcoat, rubber gloves, rubber boots, and armed with a towel, bottle of vinegar, two cans of lye, a sponge, two cakes of soap and a washtub are working on infected premises where cattle foot-and-mouth disease has broken out in the Regina area. Dr. Harold J. Hunter, Regina veterinarian, shown wearing the uniform," will assist government inspectors. An estimated 1,015 head of cattle, 190 hogs and 140 sheep will have to be slaughtered. — (CP Photo.)

MARSH HILL

Marsh Hill — Several from here attended the oyster supper at Springbrook Thursday night.

Mrs. Frank Finkle is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Clare Finkle and girls of Belleville.

Sorry to report Mr. William Rodgers isn't very well.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Finkle and girls called Sunday afternoon on Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Parker, of Campbellford.

Mr. Milton Ketcheson, of Saskatoon is spending a few days visiting Col. and Mrs. Roscoe Vanderwater.

All extend sympathy to Mr. Fred Heasman in the death of his father, William Heasman, of River Valley.

A number of Marsh Hill residences have had Bell telephones installed and were transferred from Thurlow central to Belleville central on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Boulter Johnston and granddaughter, Janet, of Harold, spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Finkle.

More Precious Than Rubies

By Nina Wilcox Putnam

Instinctively Alma let out a smothered scream which was lost in the thunderous music which was still pouring from the radio. Then she called out wildly.

"Help! Help!"

There was, apparently, no one near enough to hear her, and with a super-effort she fought down her rising panic. She must not yell like that, she must keep her head—do something!

Where were all the people who belonged to the outer office? Would they never come back? Struggling against the shock and the nightmarish feeling of unreality she tried to think clearly. What ought she to do? Find some other office on the floor and tell what had happened? Ring for the elevator man, call the police? That was it, of course!

The right thing to do was to call the police! But if she did she ought to stay there—right where she was with that—that thing lying on the floor!

Besides if she called the police, she would be questioned. The box of old trinkets she carried would be examined, her need for selling them pried into. Her name would come out in the newspapers—Tommy's name too. And Trumbull's.

That was almost the worst aspect of the whole wretched situation. The House might be involved, for this dead man, who looked as if he must be important, possibly the very person who had dealt with The House in years past, would be connected with that fact, and the whole revolting publicity would come about because she, Alma Conroy, had come to sell jewelry because her husband who also worked at Trumbull's was in trouble!

It was a grim picture, but what was she to do except her obvious duty? Could she telephone the police anonymously?

For a long moment she stood looking at the telephone her heart beating wildly with fear and doubt. Then, just as she was about to take the phone out of its cradle, a bright object in a far corner of the room caught her eyes. Something small and gleaming.

Even at that distance its shape was instantly familiar. She went cold all over and her hand froze in mid-air over the telephone. The few steps which it took to cross the office felt leaden and endless. She picked the thing up, seeing it through a sickening fog of terror. But she had not been mistaken. It was one of the gold and moonstone cuff-links she had made for Tommy and which had been missing from the shoe-box that morning.

How had it got here? Even while she asked herself the question she remembered a sickening fact. That morning Tommy had put on a shirt which required links!

Suddenly everything in the picture was changed. With her old unbreakable instinct to protect Tommy, Alma slipped the cuff-link into her purse and, galvanized into action, made for the door. Now it was impossible to telephone the police, anonymously or otherwise. She must get away and get away fast. Nobody must know that she'd been in the place, and she must leave without being seen if possible.

The corridor outside was still empty and she walked through it swiftly, but with as much composure as she could muster, the radio blaring after her.

At the far end of the hall she found a stairway and ran down three flights. Then, after leaning against the wall of the stair-well while she caught her breath she forced herself to walk quietly to a different elevator from the one she had come up in, and pressed the down signal. A few moments later she was mingling with the crowds on the sunny street.

Alma walked rapidly for several blocks without the faintest idea of where she was going or what she was going to do. The shoe-box was still clutched tightly under one arm while inside her purse the tell-tale cuff-link seemed to burn: she felt as though it must, in some mysterious manner, show through the folds of the leather. For the moment the urgent necessity for raising money for Tommy was completely wiped out of her mind by the storm of doubt and suspicion which her adventure had aroused.

What had Tommy been doing in the Mammoth Company's offices? Surely, surely he could not have been alone! He couldn't have done this thing—he couldn't! But he was involved. People who were mixed up in murders were—accessories, yes, that was the word.

Even at its worst the situation seemed utterly inexplicable. Why on earth should Tommy wish to kill Mr. Wheeler? He didn't even know the man so far as she was aware. Why should Tommy have gone there at all? The price he might have got for those cuff-links would have been a mere fraction of the sum he needed.

No, he would hardly have gone there to sell them, especially in view of her promise to get the money. It wasn't like Tommy to exert herself when he could get someone else to do a job for him.

All at once, the false strength which had carried Alma Conroy this far, began to fail her. She couldn't think clearly and she had to have help and advice. Turning to Papa Victor Blanchard was out of the question. The shock would kill him.

Although Joe Denton loved her, Alma Conroy knew that he was also the one person who would help her husband Tommy for old time's sake, no matter what he had done. The warmth and strength of Joe's love drew Alma like a magnet. She would go to Joe. She had to.

Then a new terror seized her. Had Joe already left for Mexico? This was the day when he and Mrs. Denton were scheduled to leave. But at what hour. Joe hadn't said Alma found a phone booth and called his number, impatiently arguing with the operator when told that there was no answer.

There was just a chance that Joe had gone out on some errand. Or that someone at his address would know what train he was taking and she might be able to catch him at the station. It was worth trying. She hailed a taxi and counted the minutes until it drew up in front of the old-fashioned apartment house where he lived.

A man was coming out of the street door just as she arrived and Alma did not have to ring the bell. She ran into the dim hallway and up the stairs, silently calling out Joe's name.

The Denton's had two small apartments across the hall from each other. Joe lived in one and Mrs. Denton directly opposite. This arrangement gave Joe a little privacy after the many hours when he picked up handkerchiefs, opened windows, closed windows, fetched and carried interminably and devotedly for the old woman even wheeling her about in her chair, although at the shop she propelled it herself with her long bony hands.

Joe's own apartment was as quiet as his stepmother's was tumultuous, and Alma knew the place well, having often been there with Tommy. Now, when there was no answer to her ring, she tried the knob and the door swung open easily.

The living room was dim and seemed shut away from the world with shades drawn and a disused look about it. Two suitcases locked and strapped stood waiting near the door. Thank goodness, she was in time!

"Joe!" she called softly. "Joe where are you? It's me, Alma!"

There was no reply after an instant's hesitation she crossed to the bedroom. Here too was the empty, orderly look of a dwelling-place put in shape to await the inhabitant's return. The bathroom door was open, the kitchenette empty. Joe was plainly not there. Perhaps, she thought, he's across the hall in the other apartment?"

Always reluctant to encounter Mrs. Denton, Alma first made sure about this by looking in front of the mantlepiece clock where Joe always laid the key to the old lady's rooms. Mrs. Denton, being helpless, liked to keep her door locked all the time.

Joe's key was there, in its usual place, so it was apparent that he had just stepped out on some last-minute business and would probably be back almost immediately. Alma devoutedly hoped that he would be alone. She settled down to wait, trying to calm her shattered nerves by reading. But after a scant effort she had thrown the magazine aside and was pacing the room with quick painful steps, keeping time unconsciously to the ticking of the clock.

Five minutes dragged by. Then ten, twelve, fifteen! Would Joe never come back? What on earth could he be doing that took him so long? Finally, her patience at an end, her nerves tingling intolerably she decided to go across the hall and ask Mrs. Denton if she knew where Joe was and when he would be likely to be back. Picking up the key from the mantlepiece she crossed the thickly carpeted public hallway to the opposite door.

Why she did not knock or ring before using the key Alma never could remember afterwards. But she did neither. The key worked noiselessly and in another instant the door swung open and the words of greeting she had been about to

For across the shallow, dark little foyer she could see the living room where Mrs. Denton standing erect and unsupported was busily packing a suitcase like any normal person. Then, hearing some faint sound Alma must have made, the woman took three or four quick steps back to her wheelchair and when she was seated in it, called out sharply.

New Plague Hits Livestock Herds In Saskatchewan

Latest Outbreak Believed To be Stomatatis

Ottawa, Feb. 29. (CP)—Just as Canada appeared to be over the hump of the first confusion caused by discovery of foot-and-mouth disease, two further outbreaks of a livestock disease were reported in Saskatchewan last night.

The reports were unconfirmed by provincial agriculture authorities but they said the outbreaks resembled stomatatis, the disease the foot-and-mouth outbreak was taken for at first.

The two reports came from Gravelbourg, 132 miles southwest of Regina, and Gull Lake, 207 miles west of Regina. An inspector will be flown in to the two areas today to investigate the reports.

Whether the new outbreaks are foot-and-mouth disease remains to be seen. If it is, a tiny virus so small it cannot be seen by the most powerful telescope is responsible.

When the federal agriculture department made the announcement last Monday that Canada, for the first time in its history, has been invaded by the dreaded scourge of the livestock industry, the country became jittery. For foot-and-mouth disease can spread like bush-fire.

R.C.M.P. prepared to start shooting infected animals in the Regina area today. Altogether 850 cattle, 190 swine and 140 sheep have been condemned for slaughter.

Easier to Control

A flurry of excitement was caused among Ontario cattle breeders yesterday when the tropical disease trypanosomiasis was discovered among a herd of cattle near Thamesford, Ont.

This disease also never had been found in Canadian herds. However, it is easier to control than foot-and-mouth because it is not highly contagious and is spread mainly by insects which are dormant in winter.

After slaughter of the 45 animals in the herd, the Ontario Agriculture Department said the disease "can scarcely be considered a threat to Ontario's cattle population."

Federal agricultural officials appear to have suspected for several weeks that Canada had been invaded by the foot-and-mouth disease. But they weren't sure. The final diagnosis was not made until last Sunday and the announcement, which shook the cattle industry, was made the following day.

The Federal Agriculture Department announced Feb. 25 the infection was hoof-and-mouth disease.

Ban Placed

A ban was placed on the outward movement of livestock from stockyards in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Cattle from Alberta could still move east if there were no unloadings. But normally there is a feeding point in Saskatchewan and for all practical purposes prairie livestock was sealed off from eastern Canada markets.

But prairie meat could still be shipped eastward, providing again there was no unloading in the quarantined area. But this, too, was soon to be changed for one province.

The United States, Canada's biggest livestock and meat customer, moved quickly, too. Fearing a possible spread of the disease to American cattle, it banned imports of Canadian livestock, animal products as well as hay and straw.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 29 (CP)—Synopsis: The intense winter storm which belted the Maritimes yesterday continues to move north, and early this morning was centred near Anticosti Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Although this storm is many miles distant from Ontario it is certainly having some effect on our weather, since it is steadily pumping colder air from northern Quebec and Labrador into Ontario. As a result temperatures will be about five degrees lower than those prevailing earlier this week.

Senators Hope To Get Early Action on Vote

Washington, Feb. 29 — (AP)—The weeklong hearing on the St. Lawrence seaway winds up today, and senators favoring the big development hope to get early action by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Proponents and opponents each have used up two days of arguments on legislation to authorize the $818,000,000 project. Today's session was given over to hearing rebuttal testimony from both sides.

Arguments during the week have followed closely those presented at other Congressional hearings on the subject in past years.

One new development since the House public works committee shelved the legislation last fall is the announced intention of Canada to go it alone if the United States does not join in.

This, however, has had little apparent effect on the opposition forces. Most of them state they are still opposed to having this country pay anything towards the cost.

$350,000 Damage Suit Against Union Filed

Wise, Va., Feb. 29 (AP) — A $350,000 damage suit against the United Mine Workers Union (Ind.) was filed in court yesterday by a discharged U.M.W. field representative who claimed he was fired after refusing to murder two coal operators.

The suit was entered by Charles Minton, who was discharged Nov. 8, 1951, after several years employment as a field worker in U.M.W. district 28.

Minton alleges in the suit he was ordered by Tony Boyle, "agent extraordinary for the U.M.W. and a personal agent of John L. Lewis," to murder C. P. Fugate and Harry L. Turner, both of Wise, owners of the non-union Gladeville Coal Comapny.

Minton, in his suit, said the top-level orders were part of an unsuccessful U.M.W. plan to organize a number of small truck mines in the Wise county area.

LICENCE SUSPENDED

Hamilton, Feb. 29 (CP)—Officials of the Ontario Liquor outlets at the Windsor Hotel have been suspended for a period of three weeks for what the board describes as "questionable entertainment."

This is the second licence to be suspended in Hamilton this month.

Research Workers Studying Fossils To Throw Light on 'Dawn of History'

Montreal (CP)—McGill University research workers at the Redpath Museum are studying fossils 250,000,000 years old in effort to throw more light on the "dawn of history."

The stones are more valuable than diamonds to research paleontologists, for ~~they~~ tell the story of the earliest forms of life in the ocean and on the land.

Of particular interest to Mrs. L. S. Stevenson, a graduate of Harvard and Washington Universities, who has been appointed museum associate in geology, is one of the fossil collections of Sir William Dawson, whom university historians describe as "the man who made McGill."

The collection deals with the existence of the first air-breathers" and was made by Sir William four years before he took over as principal of McGill 100 years ago.

He was conducting field research in the Joggins, N.S. coal mine when he noted fossils of lizard-like animals. These animals had been entombed in the hollowed out portions of rotten tree stumps. The stumps gradually became part of the coal mine and the animals were fossilized.

Sir William made a collection of these fossils and sent specimens to the Royal Socicyt and Geological Societies in Britain.

One of the early lizard-like animals was given the name "hylerpeton Dawsoni" in recognition of his pioneer research work.

So exhaustive was the range of Sir William's collections, now housed in the Redpath Museum, that they remain of paramount international significance. His fossil collection of the carboniferous period, in the paleozoic era, was recently loaned to the University of London, where it was studied by the famous paleontologist, Dr. D. S. M. Watson.

The collection is now back at the Redpath Museum.

FROST REJECTS COMPULSORY ARBITRATION

Premier Says Principle Is Unworkable.

Toronto, Feb. 29 (CP) —The Ontario government's labor policy is opposed to legislation providing for compulsory arbitration to settle labor-management disputes.

This policy was voiced in the legislature yesterday by Premier Frost, speaking during the Throne Speech debate.

Mr. Frost rejected the principle of compulsory arbitration as unworkable.

"There is no substitute for agreements freely arrived at around the bargaining table," he said.

The legislature today will debate the principle of several government bills introduced in the session's opening days.

Opposition leader Farquhar Oliver also took part in yesterday's Throne Speech debate and at the conclusion of his speech moved a four-point motion of non-confidence in the government.

His motion, based on government policy outlined in the Throne Speech, criticized the government for making no provision for interim financial aid to municipalities pending the report of a committee now studying provincial-municipal relations.

The government should have helped municipalities meet rising education costs, planned to remedy "obvious defects" in the labor relations act, and taken action conservation as recommended two years ago by the select legislature committee on conservation.

The government introduced two bills dealing with hydro development of the St. Lawrence River's international rapids section.

Will Ratify Agreement

One will ratify the Dec. 3 agreement with the federal government for Ontario to undertake half of the power development work, along with a designated United States authority. The second will appoint the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission as the province's agent in the hydro construction, to be undertaken along with the building of the St. Lawrence seaway canal.

In his speech, Mr. Frost met one of the opposition leader's criticism. He said that 48 of the 84 recommendations of the conservation committee have already been put into effect.

The premier's speech dwelt mainly on labor policies, however. It was an answer to labor unions which have voiced fears that the situation surrounding the recent Toronto transit strike might bring demands for compulsory arbitration of disputes involving public utilities.

Mr. Frost said that the transit strike and the two recent Ford strikes at Windsor confirmed the government's faith in bargaining between labor and management, aided by government conciliation services. He said he hoped legislation for compulsory arbitration would never be necessary. It would work only if there were "infallible and all-seeing arbitrators."

'Mid-West Steel Industry Faces Migration to Seaboard' If Seaway is Not Constructed

--Gen. Pick

Washington, Feb. 29—(CP)—Lt.-Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of army engineers, said today that if the St. Lawrence seaway is not built "the mid-west steel industry faces migration to the seaboard."

"The economic consequences to the mid-west could be tragic," he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, considering a bill to authorize the big $818,000,000 project.

Pick and chairman Tom Connally (Dem. Tex.) got into a squabble after the general said "if the United States is to avoid becoming a secondary nation. . ."

Connally interrupted, shouting: "I am astounded that any patriotic American would express such sentiments that this country is on the skids, that it will become a secondary nation."

"I did not say it would become a secondary nation if it does not adopt the seaway," Pick retorted.

"This country," Connally said, "is the strongest, richest nation on earth. You, a lieutenant-general, let it go out to the nation that the United States is to become a secondary nation. I am astounded that you say that."

Senator Theodore Green (Dem. R.I.) suggested Pick be allowed to finish the sentence he had started to read from his prepared statement.

Pick then read:

"If the United States is to avoid becoming a secondary nation, an increasing amount of our iron ore requirements must be supplied from other sources to meet the ever expanding peacetime needs of our rapidly-growing population and industrial machine, and this need is now being accentuated by the extraordinary demands of the mobilization draft."

One of the chief arguments of seaway proponents is that it is needed to bring to the U.S. ore from deposits now being opened in Labrador to supplement that which for years has come from the Mesadi deposit in Minnesota.

Pick said two new elements have been added since the Senate defeated the seaway proposal in 1948:

1. Canada's announced intention to build the seaway alone if necessary.

2. The finding of high-grade iron ore in Labrador.

Pick said the U.S. should not let Canada have sole control over the seaway.

Report Says Pearson Will Not Accept Post in NATO

London, Feb. 29. (Reuters)—L. B. Pearson, Canadian External Affairs Minister, has decided not to accept appointment as secretary-general of the new streamlined North Atlantic Treaty Organization, a usually well-informed source said here today.

Sir Oliver Franks, British Ambassador in Washington, has already declined the appointment.

Pearson had originally been mentioned as a leading candidate for the job but speculation on the possibility slackened when it was announced that it had been offered to Franks.

State Secretary Dean Acheson of the U.S. and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain are reported to have sounded Pearson out on the job since Franks turned it down.

His rejection throws the election of a secretary-general into the melting pot.

It was reported from Ottawa yesterday that Prime Minister St. Laurent wants Pearson—who is chairman of the Atlantic Pact Council to remain in his cabinet.

British officials and ministers now are reported to be considering various British candidates. It was felt in Lisbon that a Briton would be a good choice following the decision to make Paris rather than London NATO's permanent home.

Two possible British candidates for the job are Sir Gladwyn Jebb, chief British delegate to the United Nations, and Sir Edmund Hallpatoh, British representative on the organization for European economic co-operation.

Other candidates are the Dutch Foreign Minister, Dirk Stikker, and the Norwegian Foreign Minister, Halvard Lange.

No Reasonable Doubt Lanoie Had Been Drinking Says Judge In Summing Up Murder Case

Pembroke, Ont., Feb. 29 (CP)—The case of Spr. Joe (Frenchy) Lanoie of Welland, Ont., charged with the New Year's eve shooting of two fellow soldiers at nearby Petawawa military camp, was given to the jury at 11:10 a.m. today.

In a one hour and five minute charge to the jury, Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Ontario Supreme Court said evidence showed that there was no reasonable doubt that Lanoie had been drinking. "What you have to determine is the extent of the effect of the alcohol on the accused," he told the jury.

Lanoie, 36, went to trial Tuesday in connection with the death of Spr. James Wesley Caufield, 20, of Pine Falls, Man. Caufield and Craftsman Clifford E. Johannson, 19, of Saskatoon, died in the shooting after a drinking party in the Petawawa officers' mess at which they were stewards and Lanoie a batman.

Mr. Justice Spence told the jury "I can come to no other possible conclusion but that Lanoie did slay Caufield."

Drunkenness, he said, in itself is no defence to a charge of murder.

He instructed the jury that it must ask itself "has the Crown proved intent?"

"If you find that there was intent beyond a reasonable doubt, you must convict Lanoie of murder," he said.

He said there were only three possible verdicts: guilty of murder as charged; not guilty of murder, but guilty of manslaughter, or not guilty.

Said Too Drunk

Defence Counsel Joseph Greene of Arnprior, Ont., contended last night in his address to the jury that Spr. Lanoie was too drunk the morning of the shooting to know what he was doing. He said the only reason for the shooting was "alcohol — and lots of it."

He said the accused man's mother died soon after his birth and, when he was two weeks' old his father deserted him. He had been wounded while on front-line duty overseas during the Second World War.

"There wasn't much here for Joe after the war. He drifted from job to job - - - finally he drifted back to the only thing he ever got good at: soldiering. Because of wars, there will always be men like Joe Lanoie. Joe is a product of our times."

"If you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that Lanoie fired the shot that killed Caufield, there are further questions to be answered. If there is no intent to kill, the killing is not murder. If you find no intent, it is not murder but manslaughter."

Special Prosecutor T. F. Forestell said in his address to the jury:

"I suggest to you that this was an intentional killing. If Lanoie was as, drunk as the defence would have you believe, do you think he could have fired three shots and hit Caufield with two of them??"

TRAIN STALLED IN GASPE PENINSULA FOR SECOND TIME

69 Passengers Not In Immediate Danger

Cape Cove, Que., Feb. 29 — (CP)—For the second time in 10 days, a Canadian National Railways train—this time carrying 69 passengers was snowbound today on its 200-mile run from Gaspe, Que., to Campbellton, N. B.

One of the passengers is a pregnant woman who is said to be only one week from delivery.

(C. N. R. officials at Campbellton said another train was stalled at Caraquet, N. B., on the south shore near the mouth of Bay of Chaleur. Little was known about this second train and the passengers aboard.)

A snowstorm, the worst experienced in the district, started early yesterday and showed no signs of letting up. All towns and municipalities in the Gaspe Peninsula were isolated. The storm came before tons of snow, from a week-long blizzard earlier this month, had been cleared.

The train, said to be the same that bogged down at Ste. Therese, Que., last week with 38 passengers aboard, was running in the opposite direction on the one-track line hugging the Bay of Chaleur. Cleared after four days by 150 men and three rotary snowplows, the Ste. Therese train had been en route from Campbellton to Gaspe.

The C. N. R. sent a snowplow from Grande Riviere to aid the snowbound train. A railway official said all passengers were well taken care of at a Cape Cove hotel and four or five homes. The pregnant woman was put up at the whistle-stop station with a Chandler couple to care for her.

The train was preceded by a snowplow when it bogged down at 8 a. m. yesterday. The plow rammed into snowdrifts as high as 20 feet and couldn't fight its way through even with the help of the diesel-powered train.

Cape Cove is near Cape d'Espoir (Cape Hope) on the St. Lawrence Gulf.

CARRIED OFF PLANE

Nice, France, Feb. 29 (AP)—The Aga Khan arrived here today from India, and was carried off his plane on a stretcher.

His son, Aly Khan, was at the airport to greet the wealthy 74-year-old world leader of the Ismaili Moslem sect. He was told by the Aga Khan's doctor, Jean Stehlin, "don't worry, your father is much better." The Aga Khan was stricken with a heart attack while visiting India.

Century Leap Year Due Once in 400 Years, Next One is Feb. 29th. 2000

By JOHN B. KNOX

Boston, Feb. 29 (AP) —If you're 23 years old—or less—you'll probably be alive, 48 years from now to see Feb. 29, 2000.

That'll be something. For there hasn't been a Feb. 29 in a "century year" since 1600.

Century leap years come only once in 400 years. Of course, many folks now older than 23 will see the next one. But according to the life expectancy tables you've got a better chance if you're 23, or younger.

All this came out when John Patterson, planetarium lecturer at the Museum of Science in Boston, explained leap year—as of this Feb. 29, 1952.

It's like this: when you hang up a 12-month calendar on New Year's Day, it's really only part of a calendar. For "The Calendar" is a sort of clock to keep track, not only of weeks, months and years, but centuries. Leap years are a part of this long-range plan.

We've been having leap years for 1997 years—but they used to come every four years. The leap year idea originated with the Romans when they began having calendar trouble because, the year wasn't exactly 365 days long.

Romans Started It

The "Tropical Year" as the scientest call it, adds up to about 265.24219 days.

The Romans figured out a year of 365 1-4 days in 45 B.C. That was when they set up their Julian calendar, named for Julius Caesar. It had an extra leap year every fourth year to take care of that quarter of a day. The trouble is that 365 1-4 days add up to a little more than a year—about 11 minutes, 14 seconds too long. In a few hundred years those minutes ran into a lot of overtime.

"By the end of the 16th century," Patterson says "this difference had amounted to several days. And the first day of spring came on March 11 instead of March 21."

That was tough for farmers who lost part of the growing season if they followed traditional planting dates.

In 1582, Pope Gregory XIII did something about it. He set up a new official calendar for the Roman Catholic Church. It became known as the Gregorian calendar.

First, Pope Gregory subtracted 10 days from the year 1582. On Oct. 4 it was Oct. 4, as usual. But the next day suddenly was Oct. 15. This brought the first day of spring back to March 21.

But he still had that 11 minutes, 14 seconds of drift each year — which led the Julian calendar astray. To fix this, he changed the leap year rule. No longer would there be a leap year every fourth year. The century years would become "common years" unless evenly divisible by 400. Thus, the century year 1600 was a leap year, but the succeeding century years—1700 and 1800 and 1900 were common years of 365 days each.

Navy Duffle Bag Loaded With $345 In Silver, Found

One Man Involved Charged, Two Other Suspects Sought

Toronto, Feb. 29 —(CP) —Two boys who found a navy duffle bag floating in Lake Ontario off Toronto's East End helped solve the $50,000 robbery of a bank here a week ago, police disclosed today.

The boys' discovery enabled police to locate Robert Nicholson, 22, who has been charged with armed robbery. Two others involved in the holdup are still sought.

Police have recovered $17,000 and two guns stolen from the Bank of Montreal branch, where staff members were tied up as they reported for work.

The bag was found last Saturday, loaded with $345 in silver. That was the big "break" in the case, police said.

They traced the bag from owner to owner and then raided numerous roominghouses here in their search for a suspect.

Police believe the robbers wanted to hide the silver and sought to sink it in the bag. However, it floated near the shore when the boys —unidentified by police—opened it.

Police were called and the bag, which had a name on it, was traced through several owners.

Guns, Money Found

Last owner of the bag, officers found, was a 15-year-old boy, Nicholson's half-brother.

Seeking to question Nicholson, police were told he was somewhere in the downtown rooming area. After three days officers found him in a Gerrard Street room, where the cash and three revolvers—two of them identified as belonging to the bank—were found.

Nicholson was arrested Wednesday night. Since then Ontario and Quebec provincial police officers have combed the highways for the two missing men.

No elaborate plans were made to rob the bank, police learned. The three men are said to have looked over the building the night bfore and then returned at dawn. Two men forced a side window and waited for the bank staff to appear. The third man watched outside.

TWO LEAP-YEAR BABIES

St. Catharines, Feb. 29 — (CP) —Two leap year babies had been born in St. Catharines by noon today. A boy weighing eight pounds, 11 ounces was born to Mrs. William Shields and an hour later a baby girl, weighing seven pounds, 11½ ounces, was born to Mrs. Reg. Harwood.

Member Wants Divorce Cases Handled by Court

Ottawa, Feb. 29. (CP)—Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) will make a new attempt during the current session to have divorce cases from Quebec and Newfoundland handled by the Exchequer Court of Canada rather than by parliament.

Mr. Knowles, 43-year-old minister of the Unitarian Church of Canada, placed on the Commons order paper a bill that would give the Exchequer Court jurisdiction over matters of divorce.

He introduced a similar measure last year after the C.C.F. carried on a filibuster for weeks against the passage of divorce bills. He said then the party was not against the principle of divorce but it was opposed to the way that parliament granted them without sufficient study and without making any provision for children affected.

His measure died on the order paper at the end of the session.

Quebec and Newfoundland are the only provinces without divorce courts. Residents of the two provinces seeking divorces have to apply to parliament.

Parliament granted 294 divorces in 1951 and the number of petitions for divorces is expected to exceed 300 this year.

Timber Wolves Slaughter Deer

Toronto, Feb. 29 — (CP) — Grey timber wolves have slaughtered every deer in an area of more than 400 square miles in the Biscotasing - Metagama district during the last two years, Mike Bates, a resort operator reports.

Bates, whose camp at Metagama is 73 miles north of Sudbury, said that trappers, guides and railway section men reported seeing only two deer since last March. Both were being pursued by wolves.

R. C. Jackson, Napanee, Named New Magistrate

Recently appointed as magistrate in the North Hastings and Lennox and Addington district, R. C. Jackson of Napanee took over his new duties this week and conducted courts at Madoc and at Tweed. Magistrate Jackson will conduct courts in the district left vacant by the death of Magistrate J. L. Lloyd of Northbrook.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Jackson of Enterprise, Magistrate Jackson attended Napanee Collegiate and graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1938. He commenced his law practice in Napanee and for three years during the last war served in the radar section of the RCAF. He resumed his law practice in Napanee in 1945.

He will conduct magistrate's courts at Tweed, Madoc, Marmora and Bancroft as well as in the northern part of Lennox and Addington county.

Magistrate Jackson will also conduct courts in the Belleville area relieving Magistrate T. Y. Wills who is spending a vacation in Florida. He held his first court in Belleville Thursday morning.

Ex-Reeve Harold Wells Will Direct 1952 Stirling Red Cross Campaign

Ask any resident of Stirling what his home village has done along community, county, sports, welfare or other general lines, and he'll toss out his chest and tell you "We've done as much as the rest, and perhaps more."

There is lots of civic pride in the village 15 miles north of this city, and it is justifiable.

They have a smart community hall. A jail that hasn't been used within the memory of the oldest oldtimer a fine arena and sports park and a population that takes "a back seat" from none in the district as far as community effort is concerned.

Has Proud Record

Stirling has a proud war record. In the days of the now famous War Loan drives, the village proudly held its head when returns were published. Proof of the villagers recognisance that they are but part of one great Canadian family is seen in the fine record achieved in response to appeals for humanitarian causes.

Stirling has yet to see the day when its residents turned 'thumbs down' on a cause that is worthy, humanitarian, and for the welfare of its fellow members of the human family.

And so it is that campaign chairman Alan Sprague and his executive have no qualms that the good folk of Stirling will "hold up their end" when the annual "blitz campaign" drive for funds takes place on March 11th.

Stirling's contribution to the Red Cross appeal will be incorporated in the $9,000 quota allotted to centres outside Belleville within the Hastings and Prince Edward district. The city will raise the remaining $13,000 of the $20,000 allotted to the district.

Spearheading the Stirling drive will be the village's former reeve Mr. Harold Wells. Chairman Wells' co-chairman is Mrs. Herbert Wood and these executives are banding together a strong directorate and panel of assistants that in itself should be a guarantee of the local drive's success.

Ex-Reeve Wells and his committee are already swinging into action and expect to have all arrangements completed well ahead of the March 11th deadline.

They will welcome any assistance that can be given them by the good folk of Stirling and are confident that once again the villagers will rally to the financial aid of "The Greatest Mother of them all."

Visiting With The Victorian Order Nurse-on-Duty

On Monday, the nation-wide organization of the Victorian Order of Nurses marked an onward march of 55 years of service to the people of Canada, begun in 1896 by Lady Aberdeen and a group of enthusiasts. Many were the obstacles surmounted, especially that of the medical society which declared the new order's objective as commendable, but felt that the scheme would prove an "entire failure"; even the press was not above adding its discouraging quota of disapproval.

During a visit to Vancouver, Lady Aberdeen whose husband was Governor General of Canada, the idea of home nursing was suggested to her, and being of an active and aggressive temperament, she began her crusade with a Miss Charlotte Macleod, of the Nursing School at Walthan, Mass., as assistant.

Order Formed

Miss Macleod, with five other nurses, Canadians, who had trained at the school, came to Ottawa, and from this handful of women, who looked into the future and saw suffering of those barred from hospital care because of insufficient funds, began the Victorian Order of Nurses, which has now 100 branches across Canada.

Yesterday it was the special pleasure of the writer of this column to view, first hand, the work of the Victorian Order of Nurses. First, the inspection of the local office, or clinic, in the Kiwanis Centre. Here, in orderly array, were tables for the babies where the nurses could inspect for ills; a utility room where supplies, towels, dressings and cleaning materials were kept, all in perfect order, and a spacious office department with filing cabinets, for the keeping of records.

City-Zoned

The city is divided into zones, with three qualified nurses, and an assistant nurse to help when work becomes too heavy to carry. The hours are from 8.30 a.m. till 5.00 p.m. with one half day per week for recreation and one Sunday in three. All work is planned, with the most serious cases and babies being attended first

The Order attends cases anywhere within a three-mile radius of the city, regardless of color, race creed or financial status.

The fees are estimated from the actual cost of the visit, the average being $1.50, but varies with the financial circumstances of the family, all of which is kept in strict confidence. No one is refused; some pay in donations. Night calls are limited to emergency and confinement.

During the visits made yesterday, one was to the home where a young mother was shown the method of bathing and dressing the wee baby of three weeks, which was done graciously and expeditiously with no confusion, using whatever utensil the home provided (sterilized of course), was necessary, with soiled clothing neatly bundled and ready for the wash. All was left in tidiness and with a smiling goodbye to the young mother.

The next call was out of the city where dressings for ulcer of the ankle, and gall bladder were attended to; the patient bathed, the bed freshened with clean linen, with an air of confidence and cheer prevailing over all.

Uses of the Newspaper

Mention must be made of the various uses of the common newspaper which with a few deft turns and foldings by the little nurse in blue, becomes a most handy container for waste dressings, and other waste materials, thus keeping the room tidy and making for handy disposal.

The Victorian Order nurse not only aids in the relieving of illness by nursing attention, but brings new methods of homemaking; handier ways of doing things, and in showing the preparation of nourishing meals resulting from proper shopping, and above all, the giving of cheer and a bright look forward to the future to those who are shut-ins.

CARRYING MEXICAN GOLD

Mexico City, Feb. 29 — (AP)— Customs officials said they have arrested a man bound for Central America with $76,000 worth of Mexican gold coins in a special vest. The coins weighed 130 lbs. Mexico does not forbid the export of gold but requires a special licence for it.

Obituary

MRS. HESSA E. ALLISON
(Kingston - Belleville)

Mrs. Hessa Elizabeth Allison, widow of Andrew Allison, died in the General Hospital, Kingston, Thursday morning after a brief illness. At one time she resided in Belleville and for the past few years she lived at 196 University Avenue, Kingston. She was born at Albury in Prince Edward County and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mr. John Crouter. In religion she was a member of the United Church.

Surviving her are two sisters, Mrs. John (Bertha) Garbutt, Carrying Place, and Mrs. L. W. (Etta) McCutcheon, Rednersville.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

WILLIAM FREDERICK BRYANT
(Trenton)

Funeral services for William Frederick Bryant were held on Wednesday from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, with Rev. A. C. McCallum of Wesley United Church officiating.

A lifelong resident of Sidney township where he was born, Mr Bryant was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bryant who predeceased him.

He was stricken suddenly on Monday at his residence, R. R. 3, Belleville, on the Trent Road, and died in Trenton Memorial Hospital. He was in his 51st year.

A farmer and a member of Wesley United Church, Mr Bryant is survived by one brother, Roy S. Bryant. The deceased was a bachelor.

Bearers were Erwin Bedour, Donald Rush, Ronald Graham, Harry Rutter, Ed. Bulmour and Fred Wilson.

Interment was in White's Cemetery.

MRS. ALBERT MARKS

The funeral of Mrs. Albert Marks was held yesterday afternoon from the late residence, Shannonville, to Holy Trinity Anglican Church with Rev. L. A Paige conducting the service.

Mrs. Marks was born in Shannonville, the daughter of James Sexsmith and the former Mary Ann Driver, and lived all of her life in this locality. She died on Tuesday in Belleville General Hospital, in her 82nd year, following a short illness.

A homemaker, she was a member of the Holy Trinity Anglican Church and was an honorary member of the Women's Guild.

Surviving are two brothers, Edward Sexsmith of Shannonville, James Sexsmith of Saskatchewan; three nieces, Mrs. A. McKenzie, Mrs. Robert Harvey, Mrs. Sandy Harvey, and three nephews, Wilbert and Jack MacFarlane and Henry Topping.

Bearers were Floyd Goodfellow, James Lazier, Cecil McCarthy, William Houston, Garnet Littles and Clare Smith.

Entombment was in Deseronto Cemetery vault.

William Slade New President Of Men's Club

The Men's Club of Bridge Street United Church held its election of officers at the regular monthly supper meeting held in the church auditorium Tuesday evening. The new president is William Slade who suceeds J. M Wood, last year's club head.

Other officers include William Oliver as vice president and Clare Faulkner as secretary treasurer. The nominating committee report was submitted by its chairman, Arthur Clare.

Speaker for the evening was Rev, Keith Daniel, pastor at Victoria Ave. Baptist Church who spoke on the subject "Men in the Church". His challenging and inspiring address was well received. The speaker was introduced by R. W. Cass with club appreciation being expressed by Taylor Franklin.

A vote of thanks was tendered outgoing officers for their efforts during the past year.

Joseph and Francis Quinlan, Tweed District, Committed For Trial on Cattle Theft Charges

Tweed, (Special)— Two Tweed district brothers, Joseph Quinlan, 21, and Francis Quinlan, 18, were committed for trial on cattle theft charges when they appeared before Magistrate R. C. Jackson in Tweed magistrate's court, Thursday afternoon.

Two other youths, Stafford Quinlan, 17, and Lawrence DeRusha, 22, also face cattle theft charges arising out of the same incident and were remanded to appear March 6th., at Tweed.

Charges against the four youths were laid by Provincial Police after six yearlings were reported stolen from the barn of Leo Fleming, Hungerford township farmer and cattle drover. Fleming claimed he had chanced to visit the Belleville Livestock Sales and saw his cattle in the sales ring.

Released on Bail

Francis and Stafford Quinlan and DeRusha were released on bail while Joseph Quinlan is still in custody. Bail was set at $500 cash or $1,000 property.

The preliminary hearing of two youths whose cases were heard yesterday drew considerable interest from district farmers who crowded the Tweed court room throughout the afternoon. They closely followed the entire proceedings.

Leo Fleming, 59, testifying against Joseph Quinlan, told the court how he had visited the local livestock sales building on the night of February 12th and saw four yearlings in the sales ring which "looked like my cattle". Two other yearlings on the scales also appeared to be his cattle he said.

He described distinguishing marks on the animals. The cattle were Durhams.

No Brand Marks

He admitted there had been no tags or brand marks on the animals but said he had raised the animals and was familiar with their markings.

He described one as a white-faced bull without horns; another as a heifer with white legs and still another as a red heifer with white shoulder markings. "Two other animals had slight cases of ring worm," he said.

Two of the animals were described as "mooleys" or without horns.

Mr. Fleming said he had enquired as to who brought the animals in to the sale barns and then had gone to the police. On his arrival home he found that six animals were missing from his barns. The gate was open and there were truck marks up to the barn.

Under cross examination by R. W. Cass, defence counsel, Mr. Fleming again described the animals. He said he was sure the animals in question were his because he had raised them.

Booked Incoming Stock

Clem Milne, R.R. 5 Campbellford, bookkeeper at the livestock sales, was called. He said he booked in the "incoming" stock.

Sales slips were produced by acting Crown Attorney Louis Maraskas as showing that four yearling cattle had been sold by Joseph Quinlan on the night in question Milne identified the sales slips but was unable to identify Quinlan.

Corporal Jack Hatch of the OPP detachment office at Madoc, told of stopping Francis and Stafford Quinlan on the Stoco Road in the early morning of Feb. 13th. The youth were riding in a truck and had accompanied police to Tweed for questioning. Later police had gone to the home of Lawrence DeRusha where DeRusha and Joseph Quinlan had been gotten out of bed and brought back to Tweed.

Admitted Theft

There the youths had been questioned regarding their activities earlier in the night but they had denied any theft of cattle. The accused had then been told that cattle owned by Leo Fleming had been offered at the livestock auction.

The officer quoted Joseph Quinlan as saying, "I might as well tell the truth," and said he had given a statement admitting the theft.

Both Cpl. Hatch and O.P.P Constable Hector Gould were cross-examined regarding admissibility of the statement, the latter quoting Quinlan as saying that he had thought of the idea of taking the cattle two weeks ago and that it was his own idea.

The statement was ruled admissible by Magistrate Jackson and the accused was committed for trial.

In the charge against Francis Quinlan the evidence of Fleming regarding the identity of the cattle was accepted. Clem Milne, however, was called, and said that two yearlings had been sold in the name of Frank Quinlan. The sales slip was produced.

Statement Refused

Cpl. Hatch said Francis Quinlan had admitted during questioning that he and his two brothers with DeRusha had picked up six cattle with his truck and had taken them to the livestock sale.

Later when recalled to the stand Cpl. Hatch said the tire marks at Fleming's barn matched the tires on Francis Quinlan's truck.

The magistrate refused to admit the statement as evidence.

Joseph Quinlan was called by the Crown to testify against his brother and was given the protection of the court under the Ontario Evidence Act.

Phoned Brother

He said that he had phoned his brother asking him to bring his truck to pick up some cattle. He with his brothers, Francis and Stafford and DeRusha had gone to the Fleming barn and picked up six cattle and took them to Belleville.

"I took four cattle and Frank two," he said.

Under cross examination Joseph said he had told Frank that the cattle were his. He had not told Frank whose barn it had been where the cattle were picked up. "Never, at any time had he told his brother the cattle were not his," he said.

Following adjournment of the court Stafford Quinlan and Lawrence DeRusha were remanded to appear in Tweed next Thursday on cattle theft charges. R. Cass of Belleville acted for the three Quinlan brothers, while Ralph Graham is counsel for DeRusha.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 29 (CP) —Stock market prices edged slowly higher today in early afternoon dealings.

Industrial trading showed a slight spread from leading issues but few penny golds or lower-priced metals or oils showed large speculative turnovers. Volume for the first three hours was 1,349,000 shares.

Retail stores and miscellaneous issues posted a majority of fractional advances to form industrials' strongest sections. Constructions also drew firm support but utilities and banks weakened.

Western oil gains ranged from pennies to more than $1. Calgary and Edmonton, Central Explorers, Federated Petroleum, National Petroleum, Royalite and Canadian Williston climbed strongly.

Base metals were mixed as Barvue, East Sullivan, Labrador, Macdonald, Noranada, Quebec Manitou and Yukeno strengthened while Consolidated Smelters, Mindamar and Silver Miller weakened.

Senior golds were firm. Dome, McIntyre and Wright-Hargreaves pushed upward. Secondary issues showed little trend.

Textbooks Barred

New York, Feb. 29 — (AP) — Eight textbooks and Paul Gallico's "Farewell to Sports" have been barred from New York City school libraries on grounds that the books slur minority racial and religious groups.

The Board of Education announced the action yesterday with one board member describing Gallico's book as "viciously anti-Semitic."

He said one section contended that Jewish athletes excel in basketball because that sport calls for "shifty" tactics rather than brute force. Gallico's book was published in 1938.

The banned textbooks included "Strange Insects and their Stories" by Hyatt Verril, which contained "invidious references to the superiority of white ants over black ants."

Dr. A. E. Cliffe Concludes Successful Mission of Healing At St. Thomas Anglican Church

For the past three days Dr. A. E. Cliffe, of Montreal, has been holding a Mission of Healing in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, which has been filled to overflowing with those from the city and from the surrounding district who have shown a deep and continuous interest in Dr. Cliffe's dynamic presentation of Christianity and its message of healing.

Prior to the Mission here, Dr. Cliffe held a similar one in St. Mary Magdalene Church, Napanee, an account of which, written by the rector, the Reverend W. J. Robinson, follows:

Dr. A. E. Cliffe

"For those of you who have not heard of Dr. Cliffe and know nothing of his Philosophy of Religion, it may interest you to know something. Dr. Cliffe comes from Montreal—originally from England. He is an Anglican layman, a biochemist of considerable brilliance, but a man who, now, gives his full time to the Church's Ministry of Healing and here I use "Church" in its broadest sense. His Sunday afternoon Bible Class at St. Columba's, Montreal, contains members of forty-two Christian denominations, as well as persons of other religions. About eleven years ago, after being in hospital about twenty-four times in thirty-five year, with stomach ulcers, he was sent home to die. However, instead of living one month (as he was told he would) he recovered in a few weeks, perfectly healed through faith. After studying the various religious implications of this, he began a Bible class in 1948, with twenty-four people. Today, his Sunday attendance has grown to approximately one thousand. All of this may sound fantastic and impossible, but it is so.

His Teaching

Dr. Cliffe's teaching might be summed up in the following verse, which he uses from time to time in his lectures:

"God is my help in every need.
God does my every hunger feed;
"God walks beside me, guides my way, through every moment of the day;
"God is my health I can't be sick.
God is my strength unfailing
quick:
"God is my All, I know no fear.
since God and Christ and truth are here."

Do you call this naive? But wouldn't you like to be able to believe it? At the base of his teaching is the Law of Cause and Effect. He says that suffering and sickness are not the will of God—but that they result, either because of what we have done or said or thought, etc., or because of what others have done. He attributes illness, therefore, to "sin" and in "sin" includes worry, revenge, anger, resentment, guilt, tension and fear. He says Christians should be happy. He teaches that we should pray positively, believing that God has already begun to answer our requests (see Matthew 21:22). He suggests that we pray often—as often as every hour (see I Thess. 5:17). He teaches that by faith we can claim happiness, health and success in life. It would take up too much space to say more. One can read that for himself, from his books.

It is well to remind ourselves of what Dr. Cliffe does NOT profess to be:—

(1) He is not a Faith Healer. He is, I think one can say, a spiritual healer, but he is attempting to teach people how to live by their own faith — not his. He is not a miracle man. Indeed his faith, or anyone else's may bring about a healing of someone's sickness, but, if that someone is to be permanently healed, he must adjust his life to God and live without those things which originally caused the illness.

(2) He is not a Christian Scientist. He teaches that God heals through many channels, one being the medical profession. Christian Science, as I understand it, teaches otherwise. Rather he is re-emphasizing the ministry of healing which the church had in its early centuries. (Christian churches were called Temples of Healing), the ministry, indeed, which Jesus gave to His Apostles. Some churches have always retained this ministry in part; others have dropped it entirely.

(3) He does not profess to be God. This may sound like a strange statement, yet it should be stated, because some who heard him have drawn attention to what they suppose to be weaknesses in the man. After all — there is but one Perfect One — namely God.

Difficulties:

Dr. Cliffe's teaching comes as a shock to many who read it or hear it for the first time. Conscientious listeners usually ask two questions; the first one is, why do good people suffer with so many diseases, and they mention, for example, St. Paul and Job. The answer is, "no one is good." Jesus said that "there is none good but God." If we knew all the inner thoughts and sins of the so-called "good" sick people, I believe, in every case, a reason could be found in the conscious or sub-conscious mind, to explain the illness. Fear of what they had done, or someone else had done—anger, revenge, or sin of some kind would be the reason. Or, indeed, it might be (on the other hand) caused by ancestors of a few generations back, who had broken some of God's laws. Once again, the law of cause and effect has been at work. As for St. Paul, look at Galatians 4: 14. One English writer points to this late Epistle to prove St. Paul recovered from his illness. If you find this interpretation too liberal, read the explanation by Agnes Sanford in "The Healing Light," chapter IV. As for Job, he said: "Behold all things that I feared have come upon me."

The other difficult is in making the sufferings and crucifixion of Jesus, fit in with Dr. Cliffe's philosophy. Remember, however, that the suffering of Jesus was not sickness. Nowhere do we read that He was sick. But the law of cause and effect still applies, here, too, because Jesus suffered because of what others did. Add to this the fact that God brings good out of evil, and what have you got? Nothing less than a glorious resurrection and a "Living Christ" — indeed the Christ which dwells within each of us to make us happy, healthy and successful. Furthermore, if our illnesses and troubles are caused by others, if environment and heredity have caused us tribulation and pain — the same "Living Christ" can pull us out — if we believe — if we pray positively.

For those who have dificulty in accepting Dr. Cliffe's teaching about prayer — that is, prayer for what seems to be "non-essentials" or "petty things" remember this: God, our Father, is interested in all we need and if one is in tune with Him, why not consider the desire for something (however small it may be) as a God-given inspiration and therefore worthy of prayer? After all, look at nature! God not only provides essential vegetables, but decorates it with "non-essential" flowers.

Great things have already come to people in this district, through Dr. Cliffe's mission. To those people I say "keep going" — study this thing further; take up some new work and effort for God, pray often and pray positively, and make sure your conscience is free from all sin and wrong. This may take some further housecleaning — it may mean that you will have to drop old spites, jealousies, sins and fears.

Jesus said: "By their fruits ye shall know them." Though there be some — maybe many — who cannot go the whole way in this matter (as yet, maybe!) or grasp all the teachings, surely they must confess to this — that things are being done through this man — so he must be uttering truth.

Board Expected To Prepare Proper Lighting Plan

The parks board will be expected to prepare proper plan of lighting for Zwick's Island before its presentation to council for approval, it was recommended at this week's meeting of the traffic and light committee.

Parks Board Commissioner Art Keegan spoke to the committee regarding the proposed lighting for the Island park and suggested that a meeting should be held with the Optimist club and a proper plan drafted. Such a plan would include sufficient power for midways as well as lighting the Island.

He will report back to the parks board and when a proper plan is prepared it will be presented to the light committee.

The committee recommended that no parking be permitted on both sides of Pinnacle Street between Dundas Street and the CPR tracks. The CNR will be asked to plank the track space on this section of the street, at their own expense. The traffic committee will meet with CNR engineers and the city engineer.

No action was taken with respect to bus stops in the city, while discussion on better bus service was left to another meeting.

At a meeting of the property, printing and stationery committee, the matter of closing "The Mews" laneway off Purdy Street, was referred to the planning committee.

A city owned lot at 114 Bay Drive was recommended sold to Eugene J. McCurdy.

Committee Will Examine Defence Expenditures

Ottawa, Feb. 29—(CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent gave notice today that the government will quickly establish a commons committee to examine defence expenditures and recommend economies if possible.

The 26-member committee will carry on where it left off at the last session.

Lt.-Col. David Croll (L — Toronto Spadina) is expected to be the chairman again.

The prime minister's notice was one of a large number which appeared in the first issue of the Common's document called votes and proceedings.

Proposals ranged from a resolution that the government should consider calling this country the kingdom of Canada to two others which urged steps to introduce a bill of rights.

The human rights resolutions were entered by John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) and Mr. Croll.

U.S. Did Not Agree

Canadian officials suggested the embargo should be applied to western provinces only, but the U.S. did not agree. The all-Canada embargo may continue for many months, until the U.S. agriculture department is satisfied that the disease in Canada has been eradicated.

While steps were taken to destroy all infected herds, some provinces, fearing the possible spread of the disease to their own herds, requested the federal government to clamp on provincial embargoes on prairie livestock and meats.

British Columbia requested that Alberta livestock and meats be embargoed from the west-coast province. This, the federal government declined to do. British Columbia took action on its own.

Alberta was sealed off from B.C. livestock and meat markets, effective last Tuesday. In Toronto Premier Frost of Ontario announced that the federal government had taken action on its request that western livestock be embargoed, but that the federal government declined to embargo western meats.

Quebec announced that it had placed an embargo on western livestock, but there was no mention of meats. In fact, the Quebec and Ontario announcements were just a repetition of what the federal government had already done.

Meats still can move east from prairie packing plants outside the quarantined area.

Nehru's Congress Polls 43 P.C. Popular Vote

New Delhi, Feb. 29 — (AP)— Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru congress party polled 43 per cent of the total popular vote in the months-long national elections, virtually-complete figures showed today.

The party won substantial margins of the seats in the central parliament and most assemblies, however.

Socialists got 11 per cent of the popular vote, communists six, workers and peasants peoples party five and independents 18. The remainder went to small local parties.

The congress party polled 43,169,636 votes in the elections of central parliament members and 38,405,964 in state elections.

FAMOUS BUILDING

The Royal Hospital at Chelsea, England, was designed by Sir Christopher Wren in 1681 for British military pensioners.

Hard to Believe

So you think people born on February 29th are rarities?

They are to some extent, but like the proverbial day in June there is none so rare as the fellow who died on February 31st.

Don't believe it, eh?

Well, we don't either, but if gravestone statistics are correct, Picton can claim the only person who died on that date.

For in the graveyard alongside the old church of St. Mary Magdalene in the Prince Edward County town is a stone bearing information that the gentleman lying there died on Feb. 31st.

The inscription which can be read plainly is "Wm. Pierce, Died Feb. 31st, 1860, aged 73 years."

MRS. NANCY ELIZABETH REID

Funeral services for Mrs. Nancy Elizabeth Reid were held from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home on Thursday with Canon J. B. Creeggan conducting.

Bearers were John Cunningham, Leslie Elloway, Robert Howard, Clarence Milligan, Gordon Groves and Wilfred Girardin.

Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

What Made "The Little Woman" a Tough Critic?

and why that means

Better Living— for Everybody!

Today's home-maker is a shrewd buyer, an informed critic of everything she buys. She knows values better than her mother or grandmother ever did. When it comes to food, she buys wisely to obtain the greatest nutrition yield and menu variety for every dollar. Textiles and clothing she judges as carefully, ganging workmanship, wearing qualities. She is an expert buyer.

Advertising helped make the "Little Woman" what she is today. Through the advertising pages of her newspaper she is informed of the qualities of goods offered for sale. The advertising messages strive to give her the facts that guide her buying. Advertising helped make her an expert buyer. Now, advertising must work all the harder to continue answering her demands for facts before buying.

Information makes the big difference in the buying performance of today's home-maker. We live better because we set high standards on everything we buy. Manufacturers of goods, merchants who sell those goods—all of them must meet our high standards because we know how good the things we want can be. Today, nobody need buy a pig in a poke.

Information is the force of advertising. Scan the advertising columns of this paper, and you'll find them packed with information that makes intelligent buyers of all of us. It adds up to better living that surpasses the dreams of a generation ago.

Because of advertising appearing regularly in its pages, this newspaper is aware that the service it performs for its readers is far greater and much more valuable than it could otherwise be.

ENOUGH WHITE ELEPHANTS NOW

Not long ago, rising costs made it necessary for the Bell Telephone Company to raise its rates. But the Bell Telephone Company cannot raise rates arbitrarily; it is under the control of the Board of Transport Commissioners, an agency appointed by the federal government to regulate public utilities, such as the railroads and communication systems.

The Board of Transport Commissioners gave the Bell Telephone Company permission to increase its rates. The increases vary for different types of service and in different parts of Ontario and Quebec. For example, an individual household telephone in Belleville will, after March 1, cost $3.90 a month, instead of $3.70. Service on a two-party line will cost $3.10 a month, instead of $3.00. The cost of an extension telephone will be reduced from $1.05 to $1.00 a month. An increase of 20 cents a month for an ordinary telephone, or two thirds of a cent a day, is not a big additional expense in view of some of the other increases in the cost of living that have taken place. Business telephone rate increases will be a little steeper. An individual line, for example, will increase in price from $6.60 to $7.40. A two-party business telephone will increase in price from $5.55 to $6.05 and a rural business telephone from $3.95 to $4.35. Even these increases are not excessive, in view of present-day conditions.

These rate increases will yield the Bell Telephone Company new revenues of $14,339,000. Of this $14,339,000, the federal government and the governments of Ontario and Quebec will receive about $7,827,000 in taxes, under existing corporation taxation schedules. In other words, out of every dollar of new revenue which the rate increase will give the Bell Telephone Company, more than 50 cents will go in taxation. Altogether, the Bell Telephone Company will pay in corporation taxes more than $24,000,000 during the current year.

In addition to these corporation taxes, the people who own shares in the Bell Telephone Company are required to pay income tax on whatever income they derive from those shares. Also, the Bell Telephone Company pays to each municipality in which it operates the regular property taxes, a business tax and a percentage of its long distance tolls. Further, the Bell Telephone Company pays sales taxes and other imposts upon the equipment which it uses to operate and maintain its lines.

In the case of Belleville alone, the Bell Telephone Company pays municipal taxes on an assessment of $481,283 for land and buildings, plus local improvement taxes, plus the usual percentage of long distance toll revenues.

From the foregoing facts, it can be seen that the Bell Telephone Company pays an extremely large share of its gross income in taxation. Indirectly, it pays a great deal more than these figures would indicate, since its numerous and relatively well paid employees also pay their share of taxation.

But the Toronto and District Executive Council of the Co-operative and Commonwealth Federation is not satisfied with allowing the Bell Telephone Company to continue as a goose which lays golden eggs for the federal, provincial and municipal treasuries. What does the C.C.F. want? You can guess. It wants the Bell Telephone Company "placed under public ownership.".

What would happen if the Bell Telephone Company were placed under public ownership? The familiar pattern would likely be repeated. The big tax revenues to the three levels of government would cease. Thousands of hangers-on would be added to the company's payroll. Service would deteriorate from its present high level. Soon there would be deficits, which would in turn be followed by higher rates. Then more deficits, and still higher rates.

But why continue? Every thoughtful person who has seen these "nationally owned" or "publicly owned" utilities in operation knows the story. With all due respect to the sincere and well meaning individuals who constitute the bulk of the membership of the C.C.F., we hope that no one in authority pays any attention to their wish to see the Bell Telephone Company placed under public ownership.

The people of Canada are overly well supplied at the present time with white elephants, free riders and other manifestations of socialism without adding the efficient and self-supporting Bell Telephone Company to the list.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

EASILY DEFLECTED

For a hundred and two days a disabled ship drifted in the South Pacific. The crew had lost control of the ship near the island of Bikini for the recent atomic explosions there had left a condition which knocked out the ship's compass. Some of the crew were dead when rescue finally occurred, and the remainder were in a critical state of mind and health.

Navigators everywhere know that they must take the greatest care to see that nothing interfers with the accuracy of the ship's compass. The presence of magnetic material anywhere near the compass can throw the pilot off his course. All of which, translated over into the realm of daily living, teaches us some helpful lessons about keeping our compass accurate.

By the compass I mean the conscience. It can be thrown out of kilter by being brought into contact with persons and circumstances which deflect it from normal judgment and cause him in a short time to praise what he had formerly abhorred. There are social environments which are as destructive to the sensitive compass of one's conscience as the radio-active atmosphere of Bikini was to the vessel's compass.

Watch out for the conscience. It can easily be deflected.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

For the sake of drama, the directors of those motion pictures about war have to show a great deal of facial expression on their soldiers. For two solid hours, you have to sit looking at men going through the most agonizing facial contortions of fear, dogged determination, high courage. It is, of course, all bunk. The normal expression of soldiers at war is expressionless. If anything, it might be described as an expression of boredom. But if you want to know how soldiers look in the midst of a battle, all you have to do is go and watch the faces of a construction gang at work. In fact, you will see much the same expression on the faces of clerks in a bank, printers in a composing room or salesmen at a manager's conference as you will find on soldiers at war.

Now and again, you will see illustrated magazine stories of war in which the soldiers wear movie-style expressions. But a news cameraman is inspired by the same instincts as a movie director. He seeks out the dramatic shots. He passes up thousands of normal expressions to catch the odd exception. "Hey, boys!" he pleads, "Cut out the comedy, and give us a little of the horrors of war stuff." And sheepishly, the soldiers try to look grim, like a line-up of crouching rugby stars for the sport page.

For moments as brief and fantastic as sunsets, war can flare up into something profoundly moving and penetrating into the souls of men. But the long daily haul of war is just plain work, construction work, labor, toil; a job in which there are no safety devices and no security; if you slip, you are a goner.

For the most part, it is dirty and drab and futile, with little anger in it, not much hope, mighty little drama. And even when a man decides to do something heroic, he does not make faces over it. Soldiers, one way or the other, are nearly all poker faced.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

THE FOUR WALLS

Being some notes by a man momentarily marooned in a hotel room in the city of Victoria.

* * *

Nothing is as destroying to the ego as a hotel clerk's appraisal, as expressed in the kind of room he gives you.

It seems that a clerk just looks at me, standing there with my cardboard baggage, and reaches automatically for the key to a hermetically-sealed closet or —in this case — a room in the hall where they're painting and redecorating.

At this moment a man is slowly pounding a hammer on the other side of that wall and the cloying perfume of varnish is seeping in over the transom.

The view is typical of the hotel views I've known for all my travelling life. I am fated, it seems to confront a stone wall. There must be at least 60 rooms available in this off-season that have a pleasant vista, yet this is the one I draw. This is the one that's built for people like me.

If I were more of a man I'd pick up the phone, ask for the clerk and cooly demand another room. Indeed I have gone over a little speech I might give. "It isn't so much the stone wall you've given me to look at," I might say, "It's just that I'm rapidly being asphixiated by Bapco No. 6". But, of course, people like me never like to make a scene. We want the hotel to like us.

I suppose I am more bitter about this than I ought to be because I made the mistake an hour ago of trying to cash a cheque at the cashier's cage.

It seemed to me a simple request. The cheque is a good one. But the way the girl looked at me I expected the burglar alarm to begin clanging all through the lobby.

My honest face assumed the look of low animal cunning of Canada's Ten Most Wanted Men. Every man who passed was obviously a Pinkerton agent. The girl said I would have to see the "credit manager", letting it be known that this would be like seeing the Aga Khan. The credit manager was out. Yes, he would call me at my room.

But I know that as soon as he discovers what room I'm in my chances of getting his magic initials on my cheque will be no better than my chance of getting through the night alive.

* * *

Being alone in a hotel room— even a good room—is always a bleak experience for me. I've never got used to it. I'm forever phoning room service just to hear the sound of a human voice.

A man alone in a hotel room has a perverse interest in the sounds that come from adjoining rooms. A muffled conversation has been going on in the chambers next to me for the past three hours. I have been walking restlessly around, head cocked alertly to one side.

What possible subject could occupy such continuous attention. Why should I care? Questions, questions.

I suppost this unrest originates with the deadly tidiness and efficiency of the hotel room. The drawers of the bureau empty. The ash trays spotless. The two glasses tipped on end on the tray. The white towels hanging immaculate on their racks in the marble bathroom.

Even with the most comfortable, thoughtfully furnished room it seems impossible to get a homelike quality. It is either unbelievably messy or as tidy as an operating room.

Forced to remain in this atmosphere for any considerable time, as I've been this afternoon, waiting for a phone message, a man's restlessness becomes acute. I always seem to end up thumbing dismally through the telephone directory (looking for "Scotts") or reading the Innkeepers' Act, neatly placed under the glass of the bureau top.

There's an Act for you. It's illegal to do anything in this room except breath—and the painters are even making that difficult.

* * *

I've been thinking of Lucien Roy. Lucien was a French-Canadian newsreel photographer who was killed some years back in an airplane crash. He and I used to find ourselves on assignments at regular intervals. Life was always great fun to Lucien. Laughter was his medicine.

We stayed in this hotel once after a cruise on the Restigouche. When I'd finished writing my story I phoned to Lucien's room and asked him up for a nightcap.

While Lucien was sipping his grog he heard something in the hall outside. Lucien walked over to the door and proceeded to give an incredible performance. He imitated a two-way conversation between a man and woman, an impassionable dialogue that had almost immediate results.

I still remember that house detective and the baffled search he made of my room. Outside of the movies it was the only time I'd ever actually seen anybody look under a bed.

I wish Lucien were around to brighten this long afternoon,

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WINDOWS

The importance of windows should never be overlooked. It is interesting to note how many of the newer homes are almost built around windows. Big windows, inviting nature to stay close and intimate. People don't put blinds on their homes any more.

They have learned the value and inspiration of looking out.

I chose my private office in the city with windows on two sides. From one I view a great nest of skyscrapers, and glimpses of a river that teems with life. From another I look up a great Avenue with streams of cars all day long. From another I look upon beautiful St. Patrick's Cathedral — another inspiring sight. I look over an area that houses millions of people, and at night the sight is like a vast plain, dotted with jewels!

Each week, as I write these Talks, I look out upon a group of trees that always inspire me. It would be less enjoyable to read or write away from windows. I note that the great new buildings in the cities are going all out for window light, letting in the cheer and sun. People work better and more happily with plenty of natural light. It is amazing how big windows will change the whole complexion of a room. In many of the newer homes designs I note that often the entire side of a room will be one great window.

I am no admirer of the old castles with their small windows. I would not like to live in one. All I would like to do would be to take photographs of them! They look so much like jails, as perhaps many of them were, and are, today.

This business of looking out to see things is getting more attractive and popular than ever. Our trains have wider windows so that the traveler has more to take his attention as his journey proceeds. And automobiles are now almost all windows so that their enjoyment may be as great as possible. They are made safer, too. Each one of us has windows —these eyes of ours. We can learn more by using them than a library of books could tell us!

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

DON'T PUNISH THE CHILD FOR NUTRITIONAL DEFICIENCY

Since moving from Connecticut to Michigan three years ago, Mrs. C. W. M. has gained forty pounds for no apparent reason, her husband has not gained weight but has grown logy and irritable and their six-year-old son, who had gotten over bed-wetting is now worse than ever although roused several times at night. Mrs. M. wonders if it is far fetched to attribute all this to iodin deficiency.

Not at all. I have sent Mrs. M. Instructions for Taking The Iodin Ration—the pamphlet is available on request if you send stamped self-addressed envelope. I hope each member of the family will get his or her daily ration from now on. In view of the lack of iodin or iodide in the food and water in Michigan I believe each member of the M. family should take the regular daily ration suggested in the pamphlet, every day for the first three months, in order to build up something like a normal reserve or store of iodin in the thyroid gland—which has been depleted since they moved from Connecticut. Thereafter once or twice a week the year around.

As for the bed-wetting, there is a good deal of clinical evidence that iodin deficiency is a common predisposing cause of bed-wetting. Bed-wetting children most likely to be helped by iodin are underweight, low in vitality, have subnormal body temperature and frequently complain of feeling cold when or where normal persons are comfortable enough. Their hands and feet often look blanched and feel cold to the touch.

That's all for today's clinic.

But there's one other thing I'd like to talk about. Mrs. M. wishes me a long, long life, for the world sorely needs a down to-earth person like me, one who is practical, reasonable and honest (no kidding, these are her own words). "Would that we had fewer 'trick specialists' and more practitioners a la Dr. Brady!"

I must say it does this flinty heart good to receive a hunk of flattery once in a while, but let Mrs. M. remember it is easier to hand out a line in print than it is in practice. I tried it for eighteen years in practice and I know.

Newspapers carried a story recently of a woman who beat a child to death because, as she explained, the child would not stop wetting the bed. No doubt the creature was demented, but what can we say that is fit to print, about parents or guardians who punish, ridicule and shame a child for such a manifestation of nutritional deficiency?

The right mental attitude of the parents or the child's elders helps the child to acquire control and the wrong attitude — scolding, shaming or penalizing the child in any way is worse than no care at all.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Climate

Would a person suffering from arthritis benefit by living in a dry climate? We have in mind the state of Texas. (J. C. K.)

Answer—To the best of my knowledge persons with chronic joint disability get along as well in one place as in any other part of the country.

Itching Skin

Any suggestion for stopping or relieving itching of the skin in a 90-year-old man. Doctors say it is due to drying up of natural body oils but there is nothing they can do for it...(Mrs. S. L. A.)

Answer—Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet on Pruritus—itching without apparent cause. For general itching use one of the recipes given in the booklet Save Your Skin, for which inclose 25c with stamped self-addressed envelope.

Short Sleep Ration

Son, 16, seems tired and sleepy in school, thinks it is because of insufficient fresh air. He gets 7 hours sleep and is up at 6 a.m. (B. M., R. N.)

Answer — Boy of that age should have at least 8 hours sleep.

PRAISES COLUMNIST

Dear Sir,—

Your famous columnist (Today's Talk — By George Matthew Adams) is 'must' reading for me, as I find in his work and thought a depth and timelessness which is very attractive in these somewhat superficial and, therefore, restless and dangerous days.

With a special concern for soil conservation at my grassroots level, naturally I found the following opening lines on "The Soil of The Soul" significant and rich:—"It's the soil, the chemical substance of the good earth, that contributes to the very life of all that there is of life, whether it be insect, bird, animal, flower, tree or man. To earth, our mother, do we all bow in gratitude. To her do we owe what snatches of happiness we enjoy. But to the Creator we owe this earth and this soil of ours . . . To make this soil productive continually, however, it must itself be nourished . . . Only the rich, nourished soil gives a full return . . . It's that way with us human beings. Something within us must be constantly enriched . . . Let us call this inner something the soil of the soul!"

Only last week one of your contemporaries (London Free Press) in dealing constructively with the role of "Agriculture" in the nation's social and economic life, reminded its busy city readers that this is the basic industry "upon which all others depend". That, it seems to me, is a sage and timely warning to the speedy folks who live on the pavements and are tempted to dream that they are not as dependent, as before, on the top six inches of the soil.

O have long felt, at any rate, that soil erosion and soul erosion are not unrelated, and that we should include both menaces in our conservation plans.

"SIMPLE SIMON".

TOWER NEEDS REPAIR

London, Feb. 28—(Reuters) — The bells in the 500-year-old belfry of the curfew tower at Windsor Castle were not rung at the death of the King earlier this month because the massive heart-of-oak timbers supporting them are rotting and dangerous, the London Daily Telegraph says today. The vibration of the pealing bells which weigh nine tons, might cause the beams to fall, and they will not be rung until repair work has been completed.

French Premier Loses Vote, Promptly Resigns

Paris, Feb. 29—(AP)— French Premier Edgar Faure lost a predawn vote today on his bill to raise taxes 15 per cent to pay rearmament costs and prompty resigned.

President Vincent Auriol plunged into the tangled maze of French politics in search of a new premier who can dig up the money to pay France's share of rising Atlantic defence costs.

The national assembly turned down, 309 to 283, Faure's tax plan after the premier rejected an alternative plan for a one-per-cent sales tax.

He had formed his cabinet on Jan. 20—only 40 days ago. He lost out on the second of 20 votes of confidence he had put before the assembly.

Right wingers, led by the followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and including the premier and got the first chance to set up a new government.

A rightist coalition might agree on a new sales tax but would find the harness troublesome on other issues. The Gaullists, for example, strongly oppose the European army plan unless the nations in it federate politically first.

Just Returned From Lisbon

Faure had just returned from the Lisbon meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which endorsed the European army plan and where the United States promised France additional aid of $300,000,000.

But Faure announced France would have to raise 55,000,000,000 francs (about $157,000,000) to pay her part of increased defence costs.

Proposed income-tax increases were the core of objections to the tax bill. The right-wingers also fought his plan for employers to give another one per cent of their wage bill for social security funds, and his demand for a special $1.50-a-gallon tax on aperitifs and after-dinner liqueurs.

In hunting a new premier, custom required Auriol to consult first with Edouard Herriot, speaker of the assembly, and Gaston Monnerville, president of the Upper House council of the republic. Both belong to Faure's radical socialist party.

A spokesman for Auriol, aware of the urgency of finding a new government, said the president would spend all day seeing political leaders and expected to wind up his conferences by evening.

News of Trenton

Make Elizabeth's Reign Glorious, Lord Macpherson Asks Canadians

Trenton—(Special)—Lord Macpherson of Scotland, speaking to a distinguished gathering in the recreation hall last night, appealed to the Canadian people to cooperate to make Elizabeth II's reign not only happy but glorious. "As an ordinary Britisher", he said, "I am proud to be associated with Canadians under Her Gracious Majesty, who is trying to make a better world for all to live in."

The British Labor member made a second appeal asking his listeners to take a keen interest in their country's politics. He said progress and prosperity were important, but the people on this side of the Atlantic should never forget that the British Isles were still the bastion of democracy."

The speaker was introduced by W. W. Perry, Q.C., of Toronto, treasurer of the Bata Shoe Company. Art Duncan of Batawa moved the vote of thanks.

Attending the banquet for Lord Macpherson, who is visiting Bata shoe plants in Canada, were officials of the Bata Company, RCAF officers from Trenton Air Station and civic representatives of Trenton, Frankford and Glen Miller.

Trenton Seeks Gasoline Leak; Blast Feared

Trenton —(Special) — Town officials fear that gasoline seeping into sewers on the east side of Trenton and collecting may cause a disastrous explosion. One official warned that there is a danger of any building in the block blowing [illegible] from the [illegible] of an explosion.

Yesterday oil company troubleshooters searched without success for a leak in one of the underground storage tanks supplying the gas stations across the street from the affected area. From the Royal Hotel to the town offices there is a very strong odor of gasoline present in stores and offices.

A puzzled town engineer blames the persistant smell on sewer gas to some extent but has taken extra precautions and ordered sewers flushed with heavy fire hoses.

Government Told Taxes Too High By Chamber

Ottawa, Feb. 29 (CP) —Canada's National Business Organization today told the government that taxes are too high and suggested they be cut to a point where "personal a ndcorporate efficiency can again be stimulated."

The executive council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce made its observations in a brief prepared for annual submission to Finance Minister Abbott and Revenue Minister McCann.

It suggested that personal income taxes are at a level that tends to blunt personal incentive and that corporate taxation is too burdensome for a developing country.

Canadian participation in the tremendous development of natural resources now under way is being thwarted by high taxes. This situation did not encourage an increase in savings for investment purposes or risk taking in constructive enterprise.

The chamber's brief also took issue with certain excise and other taxes, claiming that some of them were close to the point of yielding diminishing returns. They raised the price of commodities and increased living costs.

The brief was presented by a delegation headed by Herbert H. Lank of Montreal, chairman of the executive council.

The chamber also urged the government to keep all non-defence spending to a minimum and suggested that "a searching examination of government expenditures in all departments should be made."

It said buying behavior of the consumer might be the most decisive factor in the 1952 outlook. There was no assurance that the present slow-down in the rate of consumer spending would continue.

GREAT - GRANDMOTHER at 53

Ottawa, Ill., Feb. 29 — (AP)—Mrs. Daisy Johnson, 53, claims she is one of the youngest great-grandmothers in the United States. Mrs. Johnson became a great - grandmother Wednesday when her granddaughter, Mrs. Robert Bond, gave birth to a 3-pound son. Mrs. Johnson was married when she was 15 and was a grandmother when she was 32. Her daughter and granddaughter were 17 when married.

Remodelling Of Bayfax Is Postponed

Trenton — (Special)— At the annual meeting of the Bayfax Corporation at Brockville recently a decision to lengthen the boom on the coal-carrier Bayfax was postponed. It had been intended to put 20 extra feet in the boom and build a new captain's cabin in the chart room. Construction of the cabin is also held up pending a decision whether the old "A" frame is satisfactory in case the boom is lengthened.

New tank tops have been installed and workers are remodelling the crew's mess room and galley in plywood.

Sailing date for the familiar coal-carrier, officials hope, will be between April 1 and April 15 when navigation here usually opens. 'Shipping can't start too soon," said O. G. Alyea, one of the company principals, because there is already a shortage of certain sizes of fuel we supply to the trade."

The harbormaster's hat, traditional to the opening of navigation, in this case when the first ship of the season enters the Trenton harbor, will in all likelihood again go to Captain Charles Randle of the Bayfax, who was presented with a silk top hat last year.

DIRE TO TAXATION

London, Feb. 29 — (Reuters)— High taxation is preventing British ship owners from replacing worn-out vessels, Lord Runciman, president of the Chomber of Shipping, said last night. In a speech to the chamber he declared that apart from tankers, one out of seven British - owned ships is more than 25 years old and that one in three will reach the end of of its useful life in 10 years. its useful life in 10 years.

ESKIMOS ORGANIZE CLUB

Shishmaree, Alaska, Feb. 29 — (AP) — Eskimos in this tiny Arctic village 125 miles from Russian Siberia have organized an "Ike-for-President" club. Leaders, who listen to the radio regularly, are urging all Eskimos to get behind General Eisenhower's candidacy even though as Alaskans they cannot vote.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Orchids to Those Who Sail West

By Roy L. Smith

It is reported that each night, while Christopher Columbus was on his historic voyage which opened up the new world, he wrote in the log of the vessel: "This day we sailed west."

With a mutinous crew locked below decks, and with the inexorable trade winds at his back, he sailed into the unknown across a trackless sea no man had ever before travelled. No one had ever sailed west before. That simple entry was the most momentous he could have recorded. No other comment could have compared with it.

Debt to Westward Sailors

In this week's lesson we have another instance of a man who "sailed west". Abraham, well prospered and situated, pulled up stakes in Haran and set out for the west in the fixed belief that he was following the call of God, and by doing so became the first of a long succession of Hebrew and Christian pioneers who went out into the west not knowing the fate that might await them.

Our debt to these moral and spiritual adventurers is one we will never be able to repay. Who, for example, will ever be able to compensate Isaiah, Amos, Hosea and Micah—the four eighth century Hebrew prophets who linked morality and religion?

In all that ancient world there was no god worshipped by any people who in any way cared about the morals of his worshippers. So long as the sacrifices were piled high, and rituals were performed correctly, he was satisfied. Thieves, murderers, the incestuous, and the immoral were all welcomed at pagan altars alongside the decent and the upright, providing their sacrificial animals were fat.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 7: "Abraham, God's Pioneer," Genesis 11: 27 — 13: 18.

Not so, among the Hebrews, who were taught by Moses, Amos, Isaiah Micah, and a long list of other great souls, that good religion and good morals could not be divorced. This long step forward in the history of the race was taken by inspired men who "sailed west" under what they believed to be orders from their God, Jehovah.

Science Sails West

Nor are all the westward sailors to be found among the hosts of religion. Science too has produced its pioneers. Benjamin Franklin, flying his kite and attracting the lightning; Louis Pasteur investigating the infinestimal; Walter Reed experimenting in the field of communicable disease; the Wright Brothers at Kitty Hawk; and an almost interminable column of scientific searchers have sailed out into seas where men have never gone before, and brought back word of new worlds of promise and beauty.

Yet one of the humiliating facts in the record is that most of those who have sailed west have had to do so in spite of their friends, and in the face of ridicule, persecution, and pressure.

There were those who thought the Wright Brothers were crazy, and one of the reasons why Kitty Hawk was the field chosen for the experiments was the fact that it was secluded. Walter Reed had to overcome almost incredible difficulties in his effort to try out his theories concerning yellow fever.

Those who sail west may be very sure, when they set out, that they will set out alone. The westward sailors are a lonely crew.

An Inner Voice

The secret of the success of the westward sailors is the inner voice to which they respond. No one in Haran could understand Abraham. Even his best friends probably thought him a little demented when he set out for the west. Wasn't he doing all right in Haran? Probabilities are that if he had been a committee instead of an individual he would never have gotten outside of the country. But there was a voice down deep within him which kept insisting that he make the journey. By whatever name we call it, that voice continues to speak to men today, in matters great and small.

Orchids to those who sail west.

JUST IMAGINATIVE

Windsor, Feb. 29— (CP) — A four-year-old boy threw police into a flurry yesterday with the announcement that two of his friends had drowned. The boy was rushed to headquarters. Who was he? Where did he live? "I'm George and I live in Windsor," said the boy. Then a worried mother phoned police. Her son was lost and would police find him? George, said the mother afterwards, "is imaginative."

Hastings Hog Producers Favor Centreal Marketing Plan Proposed by Ontario Assoc.

Hastings county hog producers are generally in favor of the central hog marketing scheme proposed by the provincial organization, it was revealed at Stirling Wednesday at their annual meeting. About 100 county producers attended the meeting.

Under the marketing scheme proposed by the Ontario Hog Producers' Association would market hogs and direct where they would be shipped for slaughter. The price would be quoted to the farmers before the hogs left the farm.

Under the present marketing system farmers do not know for two or three days after shipping just what their hogs have brought in price.

Mr. George Johnston, Owen Sound, secretary of the Ontario Hog Producers' was speaker and discussed the activities of his organization last year. He also answered questions relating to the proposed hog marketing scheme. He said the scheme could be put into operation by April. Mr. Newton of Barrie, secretary of the Barrie Co-Operative Packers, also spoke briefly.

Reviews Hog Prices

Mr. Johnston said efforts had been made during the year for a more detailed settlement form from the packers but in this they had not been successful. He reviewed hog prices during 1951, noting that in January 1951 the price had been $31 and in July had risen to $40. By November it was down to $28.75 and was now $26, the floor price set by the government.

He said that the price fluctuation had little relation to the supply of hogs.

The speaker urged that grants turned back to the local associations by the provincial organization not be left lying idle. In some counties this money, amounting up to $1,000, had been used to purchase pure bred boars for use in each township. The money is raised through a two cent per hog levy on all hogs shipped.

Mr. Johnston urged farmers to allow deduction of condemnation insurance on all hogs shipped as only in this way were they protected from loss.

President Re-Elected

David Hollinger, Stirling, was reelected president of the county producers with Irwin McCoy, Marmora, and Gordon Bailey, Rawdon being returned as vice president and secretary, respectively.

Directors are: Sidney, Leslie Finkle, Foxboro; Thurlow, R. Marner, Corbyville; Tyendinaga, Charles Bates, Shannonville; Rawdon, Don Heath; Huntingdon, Arthur Wood, Ivanhoe; Hungerford, Leonard Johnston, Tweed; Marmora, Irwin McCoy; and Madoc, Bruce Robinson.

FAMOUS SOUP

Auckland, N.Z. (CP)— Prized by many as New Zealand's greatest contribution to fine eating, Toheroa soup is becoming scarce. The Toheroa shellfish from which it is made appears to be vanishing and the only firm canning Toheroas for export is deluged with requests.

WEDDINGS

WITT—ZIELINSKI

A quiet, but pretty wedding took place in Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, at 9 a.m. on Saturday, February 23, when Sofia Zielinski, became the bride of Adolf Witt, the contracting parties being natives of Poland, and who for five years recently lived in Belgium as displaced persons. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend J. A. O'Neill, who also celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

The bride wore a suit of navy blue with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Miss Mary Dostanko, of Marmora township, was bridesmaid, wearing a grey suit with black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Nickolie Dostanko, performed the duties of groomsman.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs Peter Dikun in Marmora township. Mr. and Mrs. Witt will reside in Marmora township.

Out-of-town guests were present from Point Anne, Belleville and Oshawa.

HERRINGTON—HAMILTON

A pretty winter wedding took place in Mountain View United Church on Saturday, February 16, when Pearl Hamilton, Reg.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Hamilton, of Mountain View, became the bride of Abbott Otho Herrington, son of Mrs. Allen Herrington, Belleville, R.R. 1, and the late Mr. Allen Herrington. The Reverend H. H. Hillis officiated.

Mrs. Ben Anderson provided the wedding music and the soloist, Miss Yvonne Post, sang "The Lord's Prayer", before the ceremony, and during the signing of the register "I Love You Truly".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her eldest brother, Mr. William Hamilton, of Napanee, was charming in her bridal gown of white lace and satin fashioned on princess lines with Peter Pan collar, lace caplets on satin sleeves which ended in lily points over the wrists. The full-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a headdress of white roses and lily-of-the-valley. She carried a white Bible crested with Sweetheart roses and streamers, and wore an ivory necklace of tiny, hand-carved white elephants, a gift from Australia.

Miss Dorothy Hamilton, of Napanee, niece of the bride, was maid of honor, gowned in aqua faille taffeta with matching headdress and wristlets Miss Elizabeth Hamilton, of Belleville, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid, and wore a dusky rose faille taffeta with matching headdress and wristlets. Both carried nosegays of rosebuds, carnations and spring flowers tied with variegated streamers.

Mr. Orland Herrington, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman with Mr. Carmen Herrington, of Belleville and Mr. Seymour Hamilton, acting as ushers

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the church assembly room, the caterers being the ladies of Mountain View Church. Receiving with the bride and bridegroom was the bride's mother, wearing grey wool with black accessories and corsage of roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in wine crepe with black accessories and corsage of pink and white spring flowers.

Later, the happy couple left amid showers of confetti for points east and New York State the bride wearing a light grey gabardine suit, with yellow accessories and black Persian Lamb topcoat. Mr. and Mrs. Herrington will reside in Mountain View.

NO FREE STICKERS

Calgary (CP)—City council refused a request for three free parking meter stickers for motor-cars used by the Provincial Welfare Department. Cars with the provincial or city crest get such stickers, but the department said these cars were used in investigating welfare claims and therefore were not labelled.

FRENCH HOLIDAY

French - Canadians since the early days of settlement have celebrated the Feast of St. Jean Baptiste each June 24.

Mrs. McLellan Speaks on 'Children, Our Teachers'

King George Home and School Association held their Founder's Night meeting last Friday evening, with Mrs. McLellan, president of Federation of Home and School Associations, as guest speaker.

The meeting was opened by Mr. H. Hall, president, and business was kept at a minimum.

Mrs. R. Rompen presented her radio program report, and it was interesting to note that a special address by the speaker of the evening will be presented on Home and School of the Air.

Mrs. Ward, a past president of the H and S Association introduced Mrs. McLellan.

"Children are our Teachers", was the theme of Mrs. McLellan's address. Accomplishment, appreciation, approval, principles and philosophy were the five points brought out, and the interest in the amusing and educational comparative anecdotes was greatly enhanced by Mrs. McLellan's sincerity and enthusiasm.

Thanks Tendered

Mr. L. A. Kells, former principal of King George School, who was responsible for the beginning of Home and School Association in the school 21 years ago, extended the thanks of the Association to the speaker.

An attractive cake decorated with 21 candles to represent each past president was displayed on the platform. Mr. Hall lit a candle as each respective president stepped forward in acknowledgement.

There was at least one representative in attendance from all other Home and School Associations in the city.

Refreshments were served by a group of mothers under the direction of Mrs. Caverly.

Club Activities

BRIDGE STREET Y.P.U.

The regular meeting of the Young People's Union of Bridge Street church was held Monday evening in the Sunday School rooms.

Miss Doris Ames, convener of the citizenship and community service department, had charge of the program. It began with a short worship service.

An interesting film was shown, entitled "The Opening of Parliament". The picture was made at the time the present government and its Conservative Opposition began work for the Dominion of Canada. Several new members were introduced and took their seats for the first time in the House. Among the bills passed. was the one taking Newfoundland in as a tenth province of Canada.

Miss Lenore West then led an enjoyable sing-song.

The meeting ended with the business period, with president Jim Bailey, in the chair.

CARMEL COMRADE CLUB

The Carmel Comrades held their regular meeting on Friday evening at the home of Carl and Olive Thompson, in the form of a progressive crokinole party. The meeting was under the leadership of Merie and Monna Robinson, group leaders.

A short devotional was conducted in connection with Brotherhood week, having as its theme, "The Vision Glorious". Those taking part were, Mrs. Raymond Lawrenson, Mrs. Carman Dafoe, Mrs. Clayton Ritz and Marguerite Hicks.

After a short business period, seven tables of crokinole were enjoyed. Prize winners for the evening were, ladies' high, Mrs. Carman Dafoe; consolation, Mrs. Raymond Lawrenson; men's high, Frank Howes; consolation, Russell Ritz.

Refreshments were served by the group in charge, after which a sincere vote of thanks was given Carl and Olive for their hospitality.

FINE RECORD

Winnipeg (CP)—Annual report of the police department of the city of St. Boniface showed no traffic fatalities during 1951. A check with safety officials showed only one fatality in over three years, a record exceeded only by four other cities of comparable size, under 50,000 population, and all in the United States.

Mrs. R. Gibson Speaks On 'St. Lawrence Seaway Project'

"The St. Lawrence Seaway" proved to be a most interesting and instructive topic for study and discussion at the monthly meeting of the Women's Guild held on Wednesday evening, at the home of Mrs. A. D. Archibald, Dufferin Avenue.

Mrs. Roy Gibson traced the history of the proposed project from 1909 when a Boundary Waters Treaty resulted in establishing an International Joint Commission, made up of three representatives from the United States and three from Canada. This Commission is above national law, therefore, their consent must be obtained. Sanitation, harbor facilities, navigation, and power are all under its jurisdiction.

Engineering Problems

Mrs. George Wishart dealt with the engineering problems, describing by means of maps, where vast undertakings have already been completed and the five main sections along the St. Lawrence River itself where most of the new work would have to be done.

The Canadian government has set aside $300,000,000 and it is estimated an average of 10,000 men would be employed for six years. Some 10,000 acres of land, including seven villages, would be flooded

The total drop from Duluth to Montreal is 602 feet. A waterway of 2,600 miles would then extend to the centre of a continent.

There is less variation in the seasonal flow of water in the St. Lawrence than in most rivers. Consequently it is most useful for power.

New York State has fought for 20 years to develop this natural resource but to date minority local interests in the United States have succeeded in blocking the project in the American Congress.

During the business part of the meeting it was decided to send this month's food parcel through the Unitarian Service War Orphans' Project.

Mrs. E. B. Ashley conducted the worship service.

Kindly reference was made to a former member, Mrs. Wm. Harrison, who met such a tragic death.

The Experts Say;- Time to Clear Old Drawers Of Homemaking Hints, Recipes

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

As surely as spring housecleaning is just around the corner, it's time to clear the old desk-drawer of a hotch-potch of homemaking hints and recipes.

There are sewing tips and directions about making "daisies" out of turnips. There's even a health menu left over from Health Week a few weeks back.

The menu incidentally was used for a luncheon in Toronto. Here it is: Tomato juice; beef (at least four ounces); baked potato; peas and carrots; salad (cabbage, lettuce, carrots, tomato with French dressing); two wheat rolls; butter or fortified margarine (one-half ounce); cheese (one-half ounce); stoned wheat thins; coffee (clear); iodized salt; whole milk (eight ounces).

The turnip tip came from the Canadian Fruit Wholesalers Association. The daisies add a decorative touch to the sandwich or relish tray.

"Just cut very thin slices cross-wise of the turnip," say the fruit wholesalers. "Then cut holes in the centres of the slices with the tip of a knife and insert a tight carrot curl — now with your kitchen scissors, snip the turnip up to within one-quarter inch of the carrot, making about twenty petals."

Snip off a diagonal piece from the tip of each petal to make a pin-wheel effect.

The wholesalers say turnips even make good "Calla Lillies." Simply take two thin turnip slices and bend them gently around a carrot stick stamen, leaving the tops open. Fasten at the bottom with a toothpick and crisp in ice water.

Rabbits

From Ontario's Lands and Forest Department comes a dish said to be a favorite with conservation officials — rabbit-pie.

Cut the rabbit into frying pieces and brown in frying-pan on top of stove. Remove meat and cool. Cut meat into small pieces. To the liquid in the frying-pan add one cup of port wine.

Put rabbit and juices in deep baking dish. Cut up and add one onion. Bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit until tender. Add one can of condensed mushroom soup. Cover with biscuit dough and bake until done.

By the way, rabbits have formed an important part of the meat diet in rationed Britain these last few years, particularly at the inns where "jugged hare" is seen frequently on the dinner menus.

But despite the fact Britons have meat rationing did you know they are exporting meat to Canada? A release from the United Kingdom information office at Ottawa explains this:

"The export of canned meat products to Canada is an important part of Britain's drive to earn more dollars to pay for essential food and raw materials."

Spring Sewing

Those in the know say that "torso" skirts will be popular this spring — some to feature pleats stitched to the hipline. Others will have a hip yoke from which the skirt bells out.

Important pattern styles for spring: Brief cape-line jacket; curved jacket suit; turtle-neck blouses; full swing skirts; shirt-waist dresses worn over crinoline

Twenty-Three Girls Receive Caps At Capping Ceremony

Last evening, at the Ritchie Memorial residence, a momentous ceremony took place when the senior and intermediate students of the Belleville General Hospital officiated at the capping of 23 girls from far and near, five of whom are from the city, who have completed the six months of initial training.

An official welcome was tendered the nurses-to-be by Miss Dorothy Potts, director of nurses, and a short reading, entitled, "The Cap", extolling the sacred duties of the one wearing a nurses' cap was given by Mrs. W. C. Mikel. Mrs. Mary Mills, president of the Student Nurses' Association, also added a gracious welcome to the girls in blue and white.

Those receiving caps were: Lois Anderson, of Bancroft; Jacqueline Ballantyne, Peterborough; June Bradshaw, Cobourg; Marguerite Carr, Brighton; Dorothy Chiasson, Toronto; Margaret Clarke, Corbyville; Joanne Crocker, Belleville; Donna Edmundson, Saskatchewan; Lorna Fraser, Belleville; Iona Goodman, Belleville; Jessie Graham, Stayner, Ontario; Joan Green, Stirling; Dawn Johnston, Madoc; Shirley Mikel, Consecon; Dilys Miller, Northbrook, Ont.; Fay Miller, Northbrook, Ont.; Barbara Patterson, Toronto; Helen Showler, Unionville, Ont.; Muriel Sled, Saskatchewan; Shirley Smale, Belleville; Margaret Whiteman, Marysville; Joyce Wiggins, Belleville; and Vivian Williams, Cannifton.

Y's Menettes Club Entertains Husbands

The regular meeting of the Y's Menettes Club was held Tuesday evening at the Quinte Skating Club.

The meeting took the form of a party at which the Y's Menettes entertained their husbands and other members of the Y's Men's Club.

Refreshments were served after a most enjoyable evening of skating and bridge.

CWL Entertains Immigrants Within District

The Immigration Committee of the C.W.L. arranged a delightful social evening in St. Michael's Auditorium Sunday last. This provided an opportunity for the many immigrants to this vicinity to meet the parishioners and also fellow countrymen with whom they had not come in contact. Very Rev. L. B. Garvin greeted them all warmly and a further welcome was extended by Mrs. J. E. Boyd, president of the League and Mrs. F. Deacon, immigration convener. Reverend F. L. Gaborik, from Batawa, who is a multilinguist, was also present and was seen chatting with the new citizens from many lands making them feel comfortably at home.

A very fine program was presented with Mr. T. J. Flurey acting as master of ceremonies. Mrs. Wm. Grant with Miss Helen Grant and Mr. Wm. Grant pleased with several numbers, and Mr. H. Brown, Mr. Noveck gave violin and harmonica solos.

Later a lunch was served by the ladies in charge, and all agreed this was a most enjoyable and successful evening. The committee plan on having another such event in four weeks.

Miss Lillian Hart Lectures on 'Birds'

Fellowship Club of Holloway Street United Church, held their regular meeting of the month in the church parlors on Wednesday evening.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. Earle White, Mrs. Wrightmeyer assisting. The theme was "Prayer".

A solo by Mrs. J. Scriven, "The Olive Tree" was much enjoyed.

The business period was taken by Mrs. William Anderson, president.

Miss Lillian Hart gave a fine lecture on "Birds and their Habitations", an interesting topic, with Mr. J. Martin showing slides of the great northern parts of the country which was educational as well as beautiful.

A social half hour was spent serving light refreshments.

INDEPENDENT STATE

Chile was discovered by Spanish adventurers in the 16th century and remained under Spanish rule until independence was won in 1818.

Women's Institute

FOXBORO W.I.

The Foxboro Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Dick Jones on Tuesday evening, with a good number of ladies in attendance.

Mrs. B. Hollinger, president opened the meeting. Mrs. James Reynolds and Mrs. V. Harry had charge of the program. Mrs. M. Reynolds and Mrs. C. Bamber gave readings and Misses Marilyn and Marie Hollinger, a piano duet.

Reports were given by the conveners after which films were enjoyed "Leaside Holiday", and "Here Comes the Circus".

It was decided to have a pot-luck supper on March 26th.

A contest by Mrs. J. Reynolds, closed the meeting after which refreshments were served by the hostess and assistants.

CARMEL W.I.

The February meeting of the Carmel W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Stanley Geen with 15 members and four children present.

The president, Mrs. Earl Dafoe, conducted the business. A letter was read from the department telling that the co-operative program, "The Fabrics we Buy and Use", would be held at Cannifton and Roslin in the early part of April. All members were urged to attend.

Mrs. John Homan was appointed as convener for Agriculture and Canadian Industry for the March meeting.

The president then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Clare Horton. Mrs. E. Urch read the story of St. Valentine. Miss Marguerite Hicks read a poem, by Edgar Guest and Mrs. Carl Thompson gave a paper on "How Valentines Are Made?"

Mrs. Horton conducted two contests which proved amusing and interesting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and committee. A social half-hour was spent.

CHAPMAN W.I.

The regular meeting of Chapman W.I. was held recently at the home of Mrs. Harold Foster, with 30 members and two visitors present.

Mrs. Mitchell Rannie is to be commended for the interesting program she prepared. The first number being "God Save the Queen". Mrs. S. R. Dafoe gave a comprehensive account of the Folk School held at Moorecroft's, telling what it is, what it does and who sponsors it.

The purpose of these schools is to develop leaders and to create confidence in expressing one's thoughts. Any organization wishing to do so may send a delegate. Mr. Clifford Waltie and Mr. Cecil Delyea were the chief coaches at the school.

Morning Devotions

Morning devotions were capably conducted each day by various girls in attendance. Culture was discussed. It is the training of mental and moral powers, the creating of beauty in all around. In speaking of etiquette, Mr. Waitte said, "we are judged by our standard of living; etiquette is a consideration of others. Our lives are judged by our consideration of others."

Music appreciation was discussed, also the roll of the church in the community; marketing of farm commodities; public speaking and many other worthwhile topics, and lastly the benefits derived from the school were discussed.

Mrs. Stanley Bateman gave a reading on the F.W.I.C. and the A.C.W.W., telling what they are and what they do. The A.C.W.W. has a membership of five and one-half million and is the link that joins rural women's organizations over most of the world. Mrs. Hermon Elliott read a clipping which stated that the A.C.W.W. is to meet in Toronto in 1953. Mrs. Charles Jeffrey read an amusing list of reasons why people want relief. The six members of the Chapman Chums Girls' Club called in after school and modelled their wool skirts, which they made in the project, "Working With Wool".

Skirt Cleaning. Pressing

Mardelle Wheeler, Eva Martin and Barbara Blakely put on their demonstration, "New Life for the Old Skirt", by showing how to clean, press and care for a skirt. Vera Martin thanked the W.I. for sponsoring these clubs.

Under standing committees, Mrs. John Rannie, Mrs. W. E. Bateman and Mrs. Thos. Lynn read excerpts from the provincial conveners' reports on Historical Research and Current Events, Citizenship and Education, and Community Activities and Public Relations. For Home Economics and Health, Mrs Stanley Webb read a restaurant owner's list of danger signals that would show a customer whether or not it was run under sanitary conditions.

The District Conference "The Fabrics We Buy and Use" is to be held in Roslin on April 1st, and in Cannifton on April 2nd. Homemaking Club projects will be again sponsored by this W.I. The summer projects "The Milky Way", and The Garden Club will commence soon, any girls between the ages of 12 and 26 wishing to join one or both of these clubs should contact one of the leaders. Mrs. Robert Wheeler or Mrs. Thomas Lynn.

Tasty refreshments prepared by Mrs. Charles Jeffrey, Mrs. S. McCrea, Mrs. John Rannie, Mrs Robert Wheeler, and Mrs. Harold Foster, were then served while all enjoyed a social half hour.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mitchell Rannie, on Tuesday, March 18.

Rev. L.K. Daniel Speaks on Home Mission Work

Twenty-nine members gathered at the home of Mrs. O. Reynolds, 297 Charles Street, Tuesday evening, for the monthly meeting of the Senior Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. The president, Mrs. W. Neal conducted the meeting.

Miss Ethel Nurse read the Scripture from the Gospel of St. John, 14, and Mrs. H. Thompson spoke briefly on "Prayer". Mrs. Thompson traced the use of prayer by people from earliest of Old Testament days through to the time of Christ, stressing Jesus' teaching by precept and example that men ought always to pray. A suitable chorus completed the worship service.

Mrs. L. K. Daniel presented the 'Watchtower', a monthly news digest of items of missionary interest, after which prayer was offered on behalf of missionary endeavors at home and abroad.

This was followed by a brief business period.

Guest Speaker

The president, Mrs. Neal, introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. L. K. Daniel, who gave an interesting and informative address on the work of the Home Mission Board of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec. Mr. Daniel spoke of the set-up and personnel of the Board, the area of work for which it has responsibility and cited many cases to show the careful judgment constantly required in the discharge of its duties He urged appreciation of the consecrated service rendered the Christian cause by members of this board and bespoke the prayers of the group on their behalf.

Following the singing of a hymn, Mrs. M. Robson closed the meeting.

Refreshments and a social half hour brought the evening to a close.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Pursued by the sailor she rejected

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Six months ago, I met and fell in love with a service men. We became engaged, and all was going well until I began to notice that he was very jealous of me. He accused me of seeing other fellows, of flirting and having affairs. Once when I tried to break a date with him because I had a very bad cold, he insisted that I wasn't sick at all, but that I had a date with someone else.

I took as much of this as I could and then broke the engagement about a month ago. Still he keeps bothering me, telephoning four and five times a day, and following me everywhere I go, causing scenes and embarrassing me. I have told him time and time again that I no longer love him, but he won't leave me alone. The other day, he even threatened to kill himself if I didn't come back to him.

Could you please advise me what to do?—A.D

Dear A. D.:

Have you tried hanging up when he phones, without another word, the minute you find he's at the other end of the telephone? Have you tried stepping out the back door to avoid him, if he hangs around outside your house? Or, instead of breaking off all contact with him so far as possible, have you argued with him on the telephone, and allowed him to stop you to talk when you went in and out of the house?

I rather suspect that is what you have been doing, since you say you have told him, "time and time again", that you no longer love him, and then you quote him as saying he threatens to kill himself, if you don't go back to him. In view of these things, it seems as though you must be giving him an opportunity to keep on speaking pieces. Why not cut all that off completely by giving him the slip whenever you can, and when you can't, not giving him a chance to say a word?

If you have exhausted every method you can think of to keep out of his way, then you had better tell him you are going to report him to the police for constantly annoying you, and if that doesn't solve the problem, make good on the threat. Any man so emotionally unstable needs to be taken care of decisively and promptly.

Trouble With Her Stepfather

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I live with my mother and stepfather, and my stepfather does not like me. He does not want me to go out with boys, although I am 18 years old, and every time a boy calls for me at the door of my home, my stepfather has a talk with him and then the boy never speaks to me any more. I think he tells them lies about me.

On the other hand, he gets boys he knows to ask me to go out because he thinks that way he will know where I go and what I do. What advice can you give me?—Deborah.

Dear Deborah:

Have you talked all this over with your mother? If you haven't, and if you think you could make her understand your side of it and that she would try to adjust things with your stepfather, then I think you should discuss the problem with her.

If you don't feel you could talk to your mother, then if I were you, I would go to some teacher at school whom you like and trust, and explain your problem to her. Or perhaps you know some older person you like and who would be able to tell you what you can do about this.

Will you try to think of someone to whom you can talk, and then let me know what happens?

Quilted calico duster

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Food for Thought

By Mary Moore

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

I like reading your recipes very much also tried several of them and find them successful. Would you please publish a recipe how to roast a half turkey and how to go about it. Also send me a recipe for individual pork pies.—Susan S.

ANSWER:

I hope that half turkey is well frozen and that you are not waiting too anxiously for my reply. Allow three weeks at least to elapse before looking for my answer,—that is when you do not enclose stamped self-addressed envelope. I prefer everyone to enclose stamped envelope.

HOW TO ROAST A HALF TURKEY

On broiler pan or shallow roasting pan place a sheet of aluminum foil. On this in the centre in a mound pile the stuffing, roughly in the shape of the cavity in the half turkey. Have the bird clean and dry and salted Place over the stuffing. Brush bird with melted fat. Cover with aluminum foil or moistened parchment paper or lacking either or these an oiled cloth. Bake in uncovered dish at 325 deg. Fahr. for three hours if half turkey weighs 8 or 10 lbs. If half turkey is smaller 2 1-2 hours may do. Test by lifting paper or cloth cover and moving thigh bone. If it moves easily and tends to break away bird is done.

CAUTION:

In roasting half turkey bird is apt to dry out unless all of the above precautions are used. Dressing should be a moist type, bird should be covered closely with paper or cloth and heat should be low and not for too long.

INDIVIDUAL MEAT PIES

English Pastry—4 cups pastry flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 cups shortening, 1 cup hot water, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 egg yolk. Sift dry ingredients, cut in 1 cup of the shortening. Dissolve remainder in hot water, then add egg yolk and lemon juice and stir. Add this slowly to the flour, mixing well, and knead on floured board 3 minutes. This is rich and delicious for individual meat pies.

Roll out dough and cut into round to fit individual meat pie tins. (I find that the lower half of 20-oz. vegetable cans—like those we buy containing peas—are excellent. They must be cut off with metal shears and edges turned back as they are razor-sharp if not.) Fill 3-4 full with meat mixture:

MEAT MIXTURE

This may be raw or cooked minced meat. If it is cooked add 1 small onion to about 1 lb. of it, putting it through the grinder with the meat. One-half of a small onion is enough if meat is raw—and is not usually used when raw pork is Add salt and pepper to taste and enough left-over gravy to make filling somewhat soft. Put on top crust to fit, and be sure it is sealed. Gash top at centre to allow steam to escape. Brush top of pie with slightly beaten egg white. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. until bottom of pies are biscuit-colored and top is golden —takes about 25 to 30 minutes.

QUESTION:

I think I remember you mentioned a "Skimmed Milk Diet" in your column. Will you please send this to me at your convenience.—Marie D.

ANSWER:

I have often mentioned skim milk and skim milk powder and cheese, but I can't remember ever giving anyone a skim milk diet. Obviously one could not exist on such a diet.

Would you please write to me again and let me know the purpose of your diet?

Skim milk powder is becoming so much in demand that I am planning on writing an article containing recipes showing how to put skim milk powder to good use in your cooking, so watch for it during March.

If you want to replace whole milk with skim milk simply buy it from your milkman and use it in place of whole milk to drink and in your cooking. Skim milk cheese may be bought in cellophane packages containing one-quarter pound.

To me this answer is unsatisfactory because I need to know what you require. Please write again so that I may be more helpful.

Fashion Flashes

ONE AUTHORITY predicts that the era of snug clothes is on the way out. Coming in, he insists, is the dress fashioned of clinging fabric, but cut fairly loosely, so that it hews to the form naturally and gracefully.

WISE GALS are finding their way to the cruise and southern resorts shops, seeking fine classics that are right for summer any place—frocks such as a classic shirtwaist model of fine pima cotton lace, done in luscious colors, with contrast cotton braid binding and jeweled buttons.

FANTASY and real beauty marks some of the at-home leisure costume. Deep golden brown velvet is used for one-piece pajamas, the bodice having a deep, wide neckline; the pants tightly cuffed below the knee. With it is a tiny, curved bolero and a side-paneled overskirt of coral and gold brocaded silk

OUR CHOICE for the prettiest resort coat we have seen is done in finest wool fleece in a light cornflower blue, and lined with silk in pink with a bluish cast. Self stitching marks the tiny, upstanding collar, which is scalloped with self colored embroidery. Similar detail for the huge, turnback cuffs.

CLOUDS OF GRAY are gathering in lingerie shops, as this color, in light tones, gains momentum. Permanently pleated gray nylon chiffon is used for a beautiful gown with a softly molded gray nylon lace bodice over pink net. Two tone gray-and-pink satin bows at the shoulders, and an elasticized backwaist are other details.

BACK INTEREST is a feature of many of the very new early Spring hats. Toast colored milan straw makes a small, bowl-like hat that is worn pitched forward. Sides roll up gently to the back that is trimmed with a big bow —one side of the straw, the other of black velvet.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

These charming twins . . . "thank you" and "please"

"Hearts, like doors, will ope with ease
To very, very little keys,
And don't forget that two of these Are 'I thank you' and 'If you please'."

—Old Nursery Rhyme.

Groom's parents are guests of honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Our son is to be married in July, a semi-formal afternoon wedding. What should I wear, a formal, semi-formal, or street-length dress? Or should I follow the lead of the bride's mother?

2. We know that the groom's parents are of secondary importance, but we do want to do what is correct. What are the duties of the groom's mother? The groom's father?—A.

1. Definitely you do "follow the lead" of the bride's mother. Therefore, as soon as possible you should consult with the bride's mother, personally or by telephone or letter, as to what type of costume she is to wear, and you choose your costume to harmonize with hers. If she is to wear a long dress, you wear a long dress; if hers is street-length, yours should be street-length. And the color of your dress should harmonize with the color of her dress. You will probably stand together in the receiving-line, and thus the importance of the harmony-of-color.

2. The groom's parents are of special importance at the wedding . . for they are the guests of honor. As to their social duties, co-operation is of first importance, co-operation with all plans made by the hosts, the bride's parents. Do everything to make them proud of you, and to make your son proud of you, on this so-important day in his life. Look as well-dressed and well-groomed as possible as you go up the aisle (you escorted by an usher, your husband following) just before the bride's mother is escorted up the aisle. Graciousness is of great importance, too . . graciousness in greeting the guests as you stand in the receiving-line; as you acknowledge introductions; as you mingle with the guests; as you, the woman guest of honor, sit at the right of the host, the bride's father, and your husband, the man guest of honor, sits at the right of the hostess, the bride's mother. (Quite often the groom's parents give the dinner before the rehearsal or the supper afterward, or some other pre-wedding party for the parents and attendants. . . not necessary, of course, but a pleasant and generous gesture, particularly since the groom's parents have comparatively little expense concerning the wedding.)

Widow has special plans for her wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Mrs. A. is a widow. She is soon to be married again, to a man who has never been married. The date for the wedding has been set, but not the place. They would like to be married in the church on a Sunday, after the church services: a very small wedding, only a few friends present; she to wear her going-away costume. Would this be proper?—E.

There seems to be no reason why they cannot be married in church since she is a widow and he has not been married before. And the type of wedding she is planning is in best taste for a widow: small, informal as to bride's attire and as to other details. About the day and hour of the wedding they must, of course, consult with the clergyman of the church they have selected; his decision would depend on the custom of his church concerning this procedure, and on his own schedule.

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

Drugstore lovelies

Synthetic beauty aids have been used for centuries. The desire to be attractive is born in the hearts of women of every class every clime. Every little girl, seeing her reflection in the mirror, is interested in her appearance. It seems unbelievable that our foremothers fancied that a touch of rouge on the cheeks made a woman look like sin, and that a common remark was "I am glad that Mary Jane is homely because then she will be good." Old-timers report that that was the prevailing idea.

This may be known in the future as the era of the drugstore beauty Perhaps a few women abuse this privilege, but the fact remains that the general result is an improvement. Coiffures are lovelier than they have ever been. Complexions get a high rating. Women are mindful of their silhouettes, keep in form by watching the diet.

We hear now and then that some unfortunate woman has acquired a skin rash because of the use of some cosmetic. The skin may be allergic to the most harmless applications, but more often it is some food that has caused the disturbance.

Not so many years ago women used strong bleaches for whitening the skin, with the result that they went into retirement for a fortnight to hide blistered faces. These preparations are no longer obtainable at cosmetic counters. Skin-peeling for the purpose of removing freckles avails nothing; the yellow polka dots return upon exposure to sunlight.

Eye shadows, crayon pencils for the eyebrows, and mascara for the lashes are harmless Beauticians no longer use strong dyes on brows and lashes because of the dangers involved.

Our old friend peroxide has suffered a bad name that it does not deserve. Applied properly by an experienced operator, it will put the golden glow in tresses that have tarnished with the years. Combined with an equal amount of strained lemon juice, it will whiten the skin somewhat.

Henna is harmless, has no ill effects upon the hair, but requires professional understanding if it is to bring results that are attractive to the critical eye.

Chemicals are used by permanent wave operators, but they are not like those used when the permanent first arrived to give joy to the beauty shop customers. After a treatment the glorious mop comes out soft and silky.

WHITE'S W.A.

White's District—Mrs. Casey Ketcheson was hostess to the ladies of the White's Woman's Association on Wednesday afternoon, with 15 members, four visitors and three children present.

Mrs. Ernest Curtis, 1st vice-president opened the meeting.

The devotional service was taken by Mrs. Frank Sandercock who read Psalm 24 followed by the story of the lesson "The Lord is My Light" and prayer by the Rev. A C. McCallum.

Dues were paid by nine members. Mrs. Floyd Sandercock and the Rev. A. McCallum made birthday donations and a "Happy Birthday" was sung to both members.

To Make Articles

It was decided to buy bleached sugar bags to make up into articles for the bazaar and to make quilts from flannelette, print, and broadcloth pieces. Canton flannel donated by Mrs. Frank Sandercock was made up into holders for the church silver by Mrs. Lorne Hunt. Mrs. Sandercock, Mrs. Curtis and Mrs. Jeffery offered to meet to arrange the silver. Mrs. Curtis displayed remnants which had been donated. These were given out to be made into articles for the bazaar.

Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson took charge of the program with Mrs. Floyd Sandercock, Mrs. George Bilham, Mrs. W. Yateman and Mrs. R. Ketcheson giving readings, "The Letter E"; "The Boy with the Loaves and Fishes"; "You and I"; and "Long Live the Queen."

A contest of games was won by Mrs. George Eilham who received an ornamental dish. Refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time was enjoyed.

Mrs. Rush moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Ketcheson for opening her home.

A card with good wishes to all the ladies, was received from the president Mrs. Floyd Dudley, now holidaying in Florida.

Thank you cards were received from Mrs. Everett Nicolson and Mrs. M. Ketcheson.

COMMISSION RESIGNS

Whitby, Feb. 29—(CP) — All organized recreation comes to an end in this town tomorrow when the entire seven-man Whitby recreational association's resignation becomes effective. The group resigned when town council granted them $800 in the face of the association's request for $3,800.

CLOSE TO INDEPENDENCE

New York, Feb. 29—(AP) — Israel's labor minister said yesterday that discovery of new mineral deposits and building of new industrial plants in Israel has brought that country closer to economic independence. Mrs. Golda Myerson, who came here to take part in Israel's $500,000,000 independence bond drive, told newspaper men large deposits of iron, copper and kaolin have been found in Israel.

Doesn't Advise 12 Wives for Others

Francisco Juliao, 47-year-old farmer living near Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, poses with 10 of his 12 wives, all of whom live happily together in the Juliao homestead. The two missing wives were in the hospital at the time this picture was made, awaiting arrival of children. The Juliao household now has 23 offspring plus three more which some of the wives brought with them. The farmer told a reporter that he started collecting "wives" in 1934 when he suddenly found he had five women living in his home. On market-day the farmer loads all of his wives into a truck and journeys to a nearby town. He says the townsfolks are not surprised any more but he doesn't advise any man to follow his example. — Central Press Canadian.

South Hastings Young People's Union Has 'Fellowship Sunday'

Seventy-five young people representing 16 Young People's Unions in South Hastings of the United Church of Canada held an inspiring "Fellowship Sunday" at the United Church, Halloway, Ontario, last Sunday.

In the morning the young people joined with the congregation of the church to hear Evan McLagan, student of Theology at Queen's University, bring a message on the theme "Christian Youth in Action" He interpreted the word "action" to mean going somewhere. "To move forward, we must have an aim or goal, and a reason for pressing toward the goal. We must get our directions from the Creator comparing our life with Christ's, not with others. If we wander off course, God is ready to forgive only if we are ready to repent."

Assisting in this service were, Don Williams and Willehmine Huffman. The choir under the direction of Mrs. Don Rose provided suitable music. Misses Joan McCurdy and Eva Giffin rendered a duet.

Quiet Recreation

A period of quiet recreation was conducted by Eloise Sine and a sing-song of spirituals was led by Margaret Hillis.

At noon, an enjoyable fellowship banquet was catered to by the W.A. of the church Don Williams, president, presided over the events of the day and at this time thanked Willehmine Huffman, who was in charge of the program and Ruth McMullen, who made arrangements at the church.

The afternoon session was opened by a worship service presented by Jim Bailey, Felicity Bennett and Bernice Bell, members of Bridge Street Y.P.U. Evan McLagan gave the second theme address. He reminded the young people that "if we were to reach the goal we must look for the guide post in life, and these Jesus has set for us and has left us his words 'Follow Me'."

Discussion groups were formed and were led by district and presbytery officers—Willehmine Huffman, Irene Walters, Shirley Hall, Mac Cameron; Mary Morgan, Margaret Hillis; Eloise Sine, Rosslyn Robertson, Ruth McMullen, Fred Bayliss, Earl Lashway and Rosemary Hunter. The reports showed much thought and discussion had taken place and were to be turned over to the secretary, Reta Christie, for recording.

This day of fellowship and guidance was bought to a fitting close by the service of Holy Communion administered by Rev. Harold Giffin, minister of the church.

Congregational Meetings

ST. MARK'S ANGLICAN

Allan's Mills.—With a good attendance of the congregation of St. Mark's Anglican Church, the annual vestry meeting was held in the parish hall.

Canon J. M. Brownlie presided while W. J. Barlow performed the duties of vestry clerk.

Canon Brownlie praised church officers and organizations for their kindness and co-operation during the past year. He conducted 17 burials, baptized 12 and prepared 12 candidates, nine of them adults, for confirmation and performed one wedding ceremony.

The auditors report read by W. E. Neal, was accepted.

The report of the W.A. was given by Mrs. W. J. Barlow, and Mrs. William Neal gave the report for the Sunday School which showed a prosperous year.

Officers Appointed

Officers for the year were appointed: Stanley Kitchener, rector's warden; Everett Heath, people's warden; vestry clerk, W. J. Barlow; lay delegates to Synod: George Mumby and Charles Wellman; auditors, W. Neal, E. Styles; vestry council: Canon J. M. Brownlie, Stanley Kitchener, E. Heath, George Mumby, Mrs. E. Heath, Mrs. G. Mumby, Mrs. D. Wellman, Charles Wellman, and Stanley McInroy.

CAMPBELLFORD

Glee Club Gives Full Length Concert

Campbellford — The Campbellford High School Glee Club presented its first full length concert last week culminating many weeks of preparation by the staff and students of the school. This was one of the highlights of the school year and was enjoyed by capacity audiences in the school auditorium on both nights of its presentation.

The Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Irene Stephen, showed poise and ability as they gave a finished performance of a program that consisted of solos, duets, trios and numbers by the Junior and Senior Glee Clubs.

Varied Selections

Among the many and varied selections was a group of sacred numbers, which seemed to impress the audience with their simplicity and sincerity. A colorful presentation was the "Folk Song Fantasy", in which gay peasant costumes and folk dances combined with songs of many lands to make a picturesque scene.

Following the Friday evening performance, the Literary Society sponsored a dance, with George Potter and his orchestra providing the music.

Diamonds Not Good-Investment

To almost every woman, the diamond is the most luxurious of all symbols of love, says a writer in Business Week. That idea has been so strong, in fact, that even the king of gems' name implies it.

As a result of both derivation and confusion, the word "diamond" goes back through French and Latin words whose meanings are "loving" and "to tame." What more could a man want in an engagement ring than that?

Costly Items

Most people can't afford to buy the kind of diamond they want— a flawless, flashing, two-carat stone over which men may have fought and died. But last week they were able to live in this dream world for a short time. In New York, the leading U.S. diamond retailers staged their fourth annual diamond "fashion show." This exhibit showed between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 worth of the world's finest cut diamonds. It's a good time for it: Diamond sales are flying higher than ever.

But since such stones as showed up in this exhibit are away out of reach of anyone except the man with a fortune, the value seems almost meaningless. What most people don't know, however, is that even the value of a diamond they can afford means little, too.

The reason for this is that the "real" value of a diamond can be cut about five different ways, none of them really visible to the naked eye. Size (carat weight), color, degree of flawlessness, fineness of cutting are factors of equal importance in determining market value. On the top of that, you have to add retail markup (which averages 58 per cent), plus the unpredictable fluctuations of the dollar.

Small Loan Value

What all this means is this: Don't be fooled by that raisin-sized sparkler on your secretary's finger. Maybe it did cost her boy friend a cool thousand, but, come the day when she needs some fast money, your secretary, too, may find that this "sure thing" will bring her less than half its original price. That's borne out by the fact that only three percent of total diamond sales are in secondhand stones.

In other words, there is more fantasy than fact in the idea that diamonds are a gal's best friend. In a pinch, they'll desert her. As investments, they are the friends of no one who expects from them either a capital gain or a source of income. But they do have a greater recovery value than anything else you can buy for personal adornment. And that value will last forever.

Diamonds have fascinated mankind from the time of their discovery in India, sometime around 800 B.C. One reason is that even today, with all the advances made in science, man has not yet figured out how nature makes diamonds. Nor has he been able to come even close to duplicating them himself. (Titanium rutiles, supposedly synthetic diamonds, are softer, less clear than the real thing).

Pure Carbon

Chemically, the diamond is very simple: It is almost pure carbon which nature has somehow crystalized. In other words, it is made of the same thing as coal, the graphite in a lead pencil, and lampblack. But a diamond is harder than anything else ever made by man or nature.

Originally, the diamond was reserved only for kings and religious idols. Diamonds jeweled ceremonial swords, chains of office, sceptres, cups for the coronation of kings. Never would a woman have dreamed of wearing one of the precious stones.

All this was changed, according to the story, by a single individual in the year 1444. A French beauty named Agnes Sorel fell in love with King Charles VII, for whom Joan of Arc had fought and died. Casting about for some bold way to attract his attention Agnes hit upon the daring idea of wearing diamonds — the jewels reserved for rulers.

Today, the diamond has become the standard jewel in the engagement ring of almost every woman in western society. Part of this popularity is due to the fact still there are plenty of diamonds still to be mined. But they come from only three main places — India, Brazil and South Africa.

DeBeers Biggest

Of these, the South African mines are the biggest of all — so big, in fact, that DeBeers Ltd., famed British mining syndicate, which owns them, controls 95 per cent of the output of all diamonds in the world. As a result, DeBeers can pretty well control the diamond price by boosting or cutting production, as the need may be.

Yet even if DeBeers had nothing to do with it, diamonds would still be expensive jewels. The first reason for this is that they are difficult to mine— you get so few carats for your efforts. Most diamonds are found far below ground, in some cases as far down as 4,000 feet. From this depth you must bring up ton after ton of earth to find one diamond.

Humane Treatment in Whale Hunting

(Ottawa Citizen)

In a letter published a few days ago on this page, a Scottish doctor with a keen interest in the humane treatment of domestic and wild animals set forth his views and some of his personal experiences. His remarks on one aspect of the subject, the whaling industry, have a special point in the light of a British documentary film which has been playing at an Ottawa theatre.

The Citizen's correspondent, Dr. H. R. Lillie, related:

"While on medical work with the Antarctic whaling fleets I found that with harpoons carrying explosive charges that burst inside the whales it was taking up to an hour or more of agony before each one finally had the life torn and blasted out of it."

This is precisely what is shown in the remarkable film on the whaling industry. The entire sequence of the search, chase and kill, and finally of the disposal of each carcass on a floating factory amid the Antarctic ice floes, is recorded by the camera. The accompanying description is graphic without resort to heroics or sentimentality.

Yet the narrator, while dwelling on the importance of these marine monsters as a source of meat for hungry Britain as well as of oil, bone meal and other products, is also aware of those aspects of the industry which so many thoughtful people find disturbing. He speaks of efforts to find a more humane killing technique, of which the electric harpoon is the latest development. But this device appears to be still in the experimental stage.

It is at least encouraging to note that, in the whaling industry, as in others having to do with animals, more and more stress is being placed upon humane treatment. At the same time, there is a growing appreciation of the need for conservation of any species. These are distinctly modern approaches. They are in complete contrast to the spirit of the last century, when all forms of wild life were butchered with the utmost callousness and without any thought of the preservation of a species. Man's behaviour in these respects has much improved since then, although it is still far short of perfection.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1952

Suspected Cattle Disease Carrier Flying Toward Ottawa With Escort from R.C.M.P.

Vancouver, Feb. 29—(CP)—Willi Bruntjen is scheduled to arrive in Ottawa today to tell his story to agriculture department officials trying to find out how the feared foot-and-mouth disease invaded Canada.

Bruntjen is suspected of accidentally carrying virus of the cattle disease from his native Germany to the farm outside of Regina where he was given his first work in Canada.

Not under arrest, but accompanied by an R. C. M. P. officer, the 29-year-old immigrant left by air for Ottawa last night.

Presumably, tests on his clothing and other belongings to discover if they are carrying the virus of the disease will be carried out at the animal disease research laboratory in Hull, Que.

Bruntjen, who didn't know he was the object of a manhunt, arrived here yesterday by Canadian Pacific Railway from Port Arthur, Ont.

He said he came west to look for work—preferably on a farm—but a chance meeting with a fellow immigrant prevented him from carrying out his plans.

Hans Eisenstraeger, who arrived in Canada on the same boat as Bruntjen Oct. 27 persuaded the young farm worker to accompany him to immigration headquarters.

There, his identity was established and R. C. M. P. called.

Will Help In Any Way

A few hours later, the baffled Bruntjen—who feared for a time that he was being deported—was en route to Ottawa.

Before he left, Bruntjen said he would do "everything I can to help."

"I hope and pray that the disease doesn't get as bad as it is in Germany because I know, since I'm a farmer myself, how bad it is for the Canadian farmers," he said.

He gave reporters an outline of his activities since reaching Canada aboard the motor vessel Nellie. He said he first heard about the disease outbreak while he was in Port Arthur.

He added that he "never dreamed" he might be responsible for bringing the disease to Canda, the first time it has appeared in this country.

All 15 Cows Stricken

By his own account, the farm where he worked before leaving Germany was infected by foot-and-mouth disease and all 15 cows were stricken. But, he said, he didn't know it was possible for a human being to transmit the disease.

Speaking in his native tongue, he knows only a few words of English, the quiet-spoken, blond-haired farm hand told reporters he worked at the Haas farm at McLean, south of Regina, for two days.

He said at the beginning of November he went by bus to Winnipeg where he stayed eight days trying without success to find another job.

Then he went to Pine Falls, Man., where he worked as a cutter. From there he went to Port Arthur and worked as a logger at Herron Bay, Ont., until Feb. 23.

"I came west on a C. P. R. train and didn't stop over until I reached Vancouver Thursday morning," he said.

Liberal Leader Demands Paper Make Apology

Edmonton, Feb. 29—(CP)—Liberal leader J. Harper Prowse yesterday demanded that the Calgary Albertan publish an explanation and apology for an editorial it printed yesterday in which it said Mr. Prowse had been guilty of "downright contempt of the legislature."

Mr. Prowse spoke in the legislature on a question of privilege.

The editorial referred to Mr Prowse's speech Monday in the throne-speech debate in which the Liberal leader said the Alberta government during a nine-year period had given a "hidden subsidy" of $538,000 to horse-racing interests.

Mr. Prowse gave out advance copies of his prepared address. When the house met it spent about 2½ hours discussing the report of a special rules committee.

The Albertan said that "more than two hours before he (Prowse) gave it, it (the speech) had been fully reported in the past tense and published in an Alberta paper."

Mr. Prowse said in the house that the rules committee debate had been held to "embarass" him.

He said it had been the practice for years for speakers to provide newspaper reporters with advance copies of their speeches and for Alberta papers to publish items based on these advances in their editions the same afternoon the member spoke.

NO APPARENT INJURIES

Cleveland, Feb. 29 — (AP)—A parked four-ton truck rolled into a baby carriage yesterday, crushing it under the front wheels. Inside the carriage was 10-week-old Pamela Lohman. Hospital authorities said today the tot received no apparent injuries.

CONSULT DOCTOR QUICKLY

San Francisco, Feb. 29 — (AP) — Because of the possibility of cancer, men as well as women should consult a doctor quickly if they find lumps or swellings in their breasts, a Stanford University surgeon, Dr. W. Wallace Greene told the Pacific Coast Surgical Association yesterday.

Trypanosomiasis Is a Disease New to Canada

Ottawa, Feb. 29 (CP) —Veterinarians said yesterday they believe the disease which has struck Ontario cattle is a variety of trypanosomiasis, but the exact type is still a puzzler.

"The cattle affected suffered from a breakdown of the red blood cells—something like leukemia in humans—and weakened and died," one government veterinarian said.

Some varieties of trypanosomiasis cause sleeping sickness but there was no sleeping sickness among the Ontario cattle.

The disease was uncovered at the farm of Wallace Heron, near Thamesford. The last of 45 head of beef cattle on the farm were destroyed yesterday in an effort to stamp out the disease.

The veterinarian said trypanosomiasis is a disease new to Canada, though it is prevalent in tropical countries. It is not contagious, but can be spread from animal to animal by blood sucking insects, such as ticks.

The disease itself is a germ, a "parasite of nature" attacking the blood stream. Insects, sucking the infected animal blood, become "carriers" and may spread the germ when they move from one animal to another.

The word trypanosomiasis has a Greek derivation—trypano, meaning borer and soma, body; therefore, body-borer.

Possible Uranium Strike

The Pas, Man., Feb. 29—(CP)—A possible uranium strike has been reported in northern Manitoba.

More than 350 claims have been filed for stakings in the Wekusko Lake area, about 50 miles northwest of Winnipeg near the Saskatchewan border.

Claims are scattered on the east shore of Wekusko Lake in three fields known as Herb Lake, Osborne Lake and Watch Lake.

A mining syndicate at Flin Flon, 40 miles north of here, issued a statement Sunday that exploration work last fall showed "the presence of a large deposit of uraninite carrying uranium and radium."

URGES BONUS

Honolulu, Feb. 29 — (AP) Most Rev. James J. Sweeney, Roman Catholic Bishop of Honolulu, yesterday urged a universal cash bonus for children. In a talk to the Child and Family Service, he urged "a universal family wage or a family allowance system" as an antidote to planned parenthood. "Instead of encouraging sterility as we do now, we should encourage those who wish to rear a normal family," Bishop Sweeney said

WAR COSTLY

Paris, Feb. 29 — (Reuters) — The war in Indo - China cost France the equivalent of $72.80 for each of her 42,000,000 people. Total cost, from 1945 to the end of last year, is about 1,100,000,000 francs ($3,000,000,000) the official statistics disclosed here last night.

Efforts to Lift Ban on Oleo Coloring by Makers Made In British Columbia House

(By The Canadian Press)

Another western Canada legislature has been asked to permit manufacturers to color margarine.

Mrs. Tilly Rolston, an Independent member from Vancouver, introduced a bill in the British Columbia legislature yesterday. A similar bill introduced last year by Mrs. Rolston was defeated at second reading.

A bill along the same lines met with opposition last week in the Manitoba legislature. Debate on its second reading has been adjourned.

The house at Winnipeg yesterday gave final reading to a bill to give women the right to sit on juries. Any woman can be excused if she applies to the sheriff within three days after receiving notice.

The recent teachers' strike in Cape Breton came under discussion in the Nova Scotia legislature. E. W. Urquhart, a Liberal and a former school teacher, said the teachers were in the wrong in striking for higher pay. He supported the government's stand that it already pays its share of education costs and any increases should come from municipalities.

Ontario's Premier Leslie Frost said in throne speech debate at Toronto he hopes legislation will never be necessary to provide for compulsory arbitration of labor disputes. He reaffirmed the government's policy of relying on labor-management bargaining and government conciliation in settling disputes.

Mr. Frost also introduced a bill to ratify Ontario's agreement to share with the federal government the cost of construction of the St. Lawrence hydro development.

Defeat C.C.F. Motion

The Alberta legislature defeated a C.C.F. motion that a special committee be named to inquire into "all conditions" of the Alberta Liquor Control Board concerning the sale of alcoholic beverages, including beer, and all premises which now or in the future may be licensed for such sales."

G. Herman Danielson, chief financial critic for the Liberal opposition in the Saskatchewan legislature, opened budget debate at Regina by describing a two-mill provincial public revenue tax as a levy on real property and one that belonged to the municipalities. The government proposes to distribute all the proceeds of the tax as increased educational grants.

Also in the Saskatchewan house, Health Minister R. J. Beltley announced that the provincial hospital services plan spent a record $13,708,089 last year. He said the figure was a preliminary estimate that might be increased by retroactive hospital-rate changes made after the end of 1951.

Morocco Taking Big Place As Producer of Minerals For Western Rearmament

By CARTER DAVIDSON

Oudja, French Morocco (AP) — Beneath the troubled soil of Morocco lies a wealth of the vital, little known minerals the western world must have to arm itself.

Manganese, lead, zinc, antimony, cobalt, beryl — these are but a few of the minerals that are more precious than gold to a world which needs stockpiles of such alloys for its life.

Here, only a few miles from the French Moroccan border with Algeria, French and American money and techniques have been merged to wrest from the crust of Africa millions of dollars worth of lead and zinc, plus usable amounts of antimony, silver, sulphur and other residue minerals.

The Zellidja mines, first probed by the ancient Carthaginians, are now producing profitably again thanks to modern mining methods.

This source of raw materials is fast becoming one of the vital fountains supplying the western world's industries.

The Marshal Plan put nearly $4,000,000 into the mines in the form of equipment. This already is being repaid in shipments of lead from the U.S. stockpiles.

Ore comes out of the mountainside mine shafts at the rate of nearly 5,000 tons a day and is processed on the spot.

The black ore concentrate is hauled by truck a few miles where it is smelted into pure lead. The smelter already has begun fabrication of the metal into lead pipes, and is planning the manufacture of other consumer goods. Zinc ore is shipped to France for smelting.

French officials have built an Arab city at the Zellidja mine location. It houses 10,000 or more Arabs, workers and their families.

Zellidja is but one of the mining installations that produced something like 100,000 tons of lead and 40,000 tons of zinc in Morocco last year.

The big mineral activity in Morocco is phosphates. Last year's estimated production was 4,000,000 tons of phosphate powder, most of it being extracted from the mines at Khouribga and Louis Gentil, south of Casablanca. The phosphate production is in the hands of the Sultan's office of phosphates, and is, in effect, a nationalized industry.

Manganese production, too, is soaring up to an estimated 385,000 tons of ore annually. Iron ore production last year zoomed up to about 400,000 tons.

Copper, antimony, graphite, asbestos, beryl, salt, cobalt, and fuller's earth are other minerals of value being produced in Morocco in ever-increasing quantities.

Hope U.S. Will Soon Lift Restrictions

Ottawa, Feb. 29—(CP)—Government trade and financial officials said today Canada has "every hope" that the United States soon will lift "offensive restrictions" against imports of Canadian dairy products.

However, they said if there is no action forthcoming by next June, there is "every possibility" that Canada may impose equally offensive restrictions against some American farm products.

They were commenting on a Geneva dispatch to the New York Times which said Canada is preparing extensive restrictions on American farm products. The action would be in retaliation for the refusal by the U.S. Congress to rescind legislation which imposes quotas on cheese and other dairy products.

Canadian officials here pointed out that the U.S. Senate currently is considering a revamping of the U.S. defence production act without the riders under which the U.S. froze dairy imports from Canada and other countries to the level of imports to the average of the three years, 1948, 1949 and 1950.

"There is every hope that when the new legislation goes into effect next June that the offensive restrictions will not be included," officials said.

But if the section still appears, Canada likely will boost tariffs on such American farm products as grapes and nuts and other less essential items which Canada buys from American farmers.

Believed To Be Youngest Church Organist in Britain

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hall, 66 Burton Street, have a musocal genius in their family, and they are justifiably proud of the fact.

He is 13-year-old Dennis Jones, a nephew, residing in Chester, Cheshire, England.

Young Master Jones, was recently appointed organist of St. Barnabas Church, Chester, and is believed to be the youngest church organist in Britain.

A more or less remarkable fact about this brilliant young musican is that up to 18 months ago he had never taken a music lesson, previously playing the piano and organ "by ear."

There is nothing of the child prodigy about the youngster. He is a student at a grammar school with average academic marks, and indulges in the school sports, especially swimming.

He is said by British music critics to have "rare promise.

Dennis' father was a veteran of the British Army and served with the Cheshire Yeomanry. He lost an arm in the Gallipoli campaign, and later was gassed while serving in France. He died a short time from effects of the gas.

Two Deaths in Maritimes Reported as Residents Dig Outfrom Winter's Worst Storm

Halifax, Feb. 29—(CP)— Two deaths were reported in the Maritimes last night as the severest storm of the winter petered out, leaving communications and transportation snarled in 18 inches of snow and drifts of 20 feet.

Several small fishing craft were reported missing and others in need of assistance. Two Canadian National Railways trains were snowbound on the shores of the Baie of Chaleurs, between New Brunswick and Quebec and one airplane crashed.

Snow-clogged roads delayed medical aid and cars were buried as the blizzard swept up the Atlantic coast with gale-force winds, blanketing the Maritimes in a few hours.

David Rutherford, 57, of McAdam, N.B., and Frank Doncaster, 69, Amherst, N.S., both died of over-exertion as they waded through unplowed roads.

Four fishermen jumped across gale-lashed waters to the rails of a rescue ship, just as their vessel, the Winnie Anne, neared the edge of a foam-covered shoals off Yarmouth, N.S. The 60-foot dragger was swept on the rocks and demolished but the crew escaped to the Gladys Sweeney.

Two Craft Abandoned

Two craft were abandoned off Nova Scotia without loss of life but at least four others are unreported from ports along the western shore. Number of men aboard the missing vessels is not known because winds in gusts up to 65 miles an hour knocked down communication lines.

The tug Foundation Vera steamed out of Halifax toward the British freighter Loadstone which left Saint John, N.B., Wednesday for the United Kingdom. The Vera was expected to reach the 4,877-ton vessel today. Nature of her trouble is unknown but she reported all fires out.

Some 30 persons were forced to spend Wednesday night in Digby, N.S., rural high school. Radio stations broadcast appeals to neighbors to look after the livestock of those marooned.

Fifteen cars were stranded less than a mile from Annapolis and three youths, one crippled by arthritis, spent the night in their car near Middleton.

CRATES WASHED ASHORE

Paris, Feb. 29 — (Reuters) — Crates of porcelain plates and vases, believed to be from the American freighter Flying Enterprise, which sank last month after Capt. Kurt Carlsen's dramatic "stay-put" vigil, were washed ashore on the Minquiers Islands in the English Channel, yesterday. They were handed over to customs officials on the French mainland.

5,000 DUNKINGS

New London, Conn., Feb. 29 — (AP) — The U. S. Navy submarine Flying Fish takes her 5,000th dunking today and that, so far as the navy knows, is more times than any submarine anywhere ever has been under water. The navy only claims it as a record for United States submarines, but doesn't know of any craft that has bettered it.

U.N. Negotiators Tell Communists Answer Final

Munsan, Korea, Feb. 29 (AP) — Allied truce negotiators told the communists today that U.N. rejection of Russia as a member of a neutral supervisory commission is "firm, final and irrevocable."

A U.N. spokesman said the Allied statement was the "strongest since last July" when the reds were warned that armistice negotiations would break down unless they abandoned demands for a cease-fire line on the 38th parallel.

The communists replied in almost equally strong language to today's statement that "any such attitude of arrogance and arbitrariness will be categorically rejected by our side."

Col. Darrow told the reds:

"I now tell you formally, unequivocably and with the fullest authorization that the U.N. command's decision to reject the Soviet Union as a member of the neutral nation supervisory commission is final and irrevocable. Further debate on this subject is completely futile."

Tank Raiders Smash Through Red Supply Base

Seoul, Korea, Feb. 29 (AP) —A powerful force of Allied tank raiders smashed through the former red supply base of Kumsong today and blasted Chinese entrenched north of the city.

Another group of raiding U.N. tanks fought it out with Chinese artillery and mortars on the eastern front.

The big tank strike through Kumsong on the central front was supported by eight inch howitzers and 155 mm. self-propelled gun.

The two pronged strike battered the reds for more than three hours.

Some of the 46-ton General Patton tanks were damaged. But others took them in tow and pulled them back to their bases when the raiders broke off the fight this afternoon.

It was a big strike in the generally quiet Korean war. But censorship prevented disclosure of the number of tanks involved.

On the western front another tank force traded fire with Chinese artillery and mortars for an hour-and-a-half this morning before it was ordered to return to its base. The action was west of Chorwon, once the western anchor of the Iron triangle.

The U.S. Eighth Army reported a few patrol actions, but generally Allied troops along the 155 mile front enjoyed a quiet spring day.

From the mountains of the recently sub-freezing eastern front one division reported, "the snow is all melted and it's spring up here."

House Burns, Family of Five Left Homeless

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gardiner, 83 Frank Street, and their three small children were left homeless yesterday afternoon, when fire destroyed their small two-roomed home and all household possessions. Only a few articles of children's clothing were saved.

The fire was discovered by a relative of the family who chanced to leave the house to go to the store and noticed the roof afire. She ran back and assister Mrs Gardiner in getting the three small children out of the blazing house. The children ranged in age from four down to two years.

City firemen answered the alarm but the fire had obtained too great a start and the building was almost demolished before the flames were extinguished.

The parents and their children were given shelter at the home of the children's grandmother.

Police Say Man Fired Two Shots At His Brother

Windsor, Feb. 29 (CP)—Joseph Bendick, 37, of Windsor was charged today with attempted murder. Police said he fired two shots at his brother early today because his sister-in-law refused to give him $5.

Police said that Bendick, after spending last night drinking, appeared about midnight at the home of his brother, Richard. He asked Mrs. Jean Bendick for $5. When she refused, he told her he was going home to get a gun.

Mrs. Bendick said she and her husband locked the doors and windows of the house. When Joseph returned, however, he broke down a rear door and gained entrance.

Police said Joseph fired one shot at his brother inside the house. Then he left, calling to Richard to come outside. The brother did and another shot was fired.

Veteran Pilot

Ken Saunders of Edmonton at 59 is one of the oldest active pilots in Canada. He is shown in an early open Wright Brothers biplane, with four-cylinder engine and a top speed of 45 m.p.h., in which he learned to fly 37 years ago. His pilot licence issued Oct. 27, 1915, is No. 353. He flew in the First World War and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Force Cross. He now is Federal Government Inspector of Air Regulations for Alberta, Yukon and the Northwest Territories. He now logs about 200 hours a year in his modern plane. — (CP Photo.)

Bemedalled Veteran of First World War Still Active Pilot

By LORNE BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Feb. 29 — (CP) — Ken Saunders unloaded bombs by hand from First World War flying crates. Today at 59, he's still an active pilot, one of the oldest in Canada.

And Saunders modestly insists on giving credit to the unsung airplane mechanic for his being able to boast 37 years as a pilot.

"One of the major factors responsible for my long life in the air is the mechanic," said Saunders, tall and still thin at 59.

"It's always the pilot who gets the acclaim of the crowds. You only see the mechanic once in a while in overalls — but he's the one responsible for having your aircraft in good shape."

During the First World War Kenneth Foster Saunders paid his own expenses to get a licence so that he could be a fighter pilot for the Royal Naval Air Service.

Now the federal government's inspector of air regulations for Alberta, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories, Saunders recalled in an interview how he flew with bombs in his lap and carried a 12-gauge shotgun in the 1914-18 war.

Lead slugs chained together were put in the shotguns to get the maximum tear in the zeppelin's covering.

"I never even got a chance to fire mine at a zeppelin," said Saunders, a native of Victoria, B.C.

But he did win the Distinguished Service Cross. He also was awarded the Air Force Cross.

The veteran pilot also talked of the advances in pilot training since he attended Orville Wright's Dayton, Ohio, school, the first in the United States.

Expensive Training

"We paid $1 a minute for pilot training," he recalled. "Then we paid our own rail fare to Ottawa and were sent by the Dominion government to England. "We got our licence after four hours at the controls."

Saunders name is on a plaque at Dayton Field commemorating North America's aviation pioneers.

"After my four hours was over" he continued, "the instructor told me I would not be a pilot until I had three write-offs." (A write-off is when the plane is a complete wreck.)

"But that expression doesn't hold today," said Saunders, who now flies a Lockheed twin-engine plane about 200 hours a year. "Many of the highest type of pilot in Canada never had and never will have an accident."

Saunders learned to fly in one of those early open Wright Brothers' biplanes with a four-cylinder engine and a top speed of 45 miles an hour.

To date the United States has issued more than 900,000 pilot licences. One of Saunders' cherished keepsakes is his licence, No. 353, which indicates how early he got it — Oct. 27, 1915.

While he was in the Royal Flying Corps, formed after the R. N. A. S., his wife also was a member. She took a course in motor mechanics and was in administration.

"The best co-pilot I've ever had," Saunders said of his wife Peg, a topnotch golfer, a curler and an amateur theatre enthusiast. She won the Edmonton golf championship in 1944 and was in the Alberta final in 1947.

Saunders, who was a barnstormer in Sweden and a bush pilot in Quebec and Labrador before joining the infant Transport Department 17 years ago, now enforces air regulations and investigates all civilian plane crashes in the area under his supervision.

A few months ago he gave to the Edmonton Flying Club pictures recalling pioneer aviation days. One was of the plaque at Dayton listing the names of men who learned to fly there.

They include Saunders, Maj.-Gen. H. H. Arnold, former chief of the United States Army Air Forces, Capt. Roy Brown of Toronto who brought down the famous German war ace, Baron Richthofen, in the First World War, and Air Vice-Marshal Lloyd S. Breadner, wartime overseas chief of the RCAF.

MARMORA

Three District Residents Born On Same Day

Marmora — Two residents of Marmora Township and one resident of Marmora village first saw the light of day on February 29 in different years.

In 1876 Mrs. Elizabeth Clemens, wife of John Clemens, retired farmer of Marmora Township, was born on the extra day of the year at Limberg, Belgium. The Clemens have lived in Canada since 1919.

Harry Loveless, for years a resident of Deloro, returned last year to Marmora to live across the street from the former home of his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Edgar A. Loveless.

Harry was born in Alamanda, Northern Michigan, the only child of his parents to be born in the United States, where they only resided for a short time. He was born on February 29th., 1892.

Michael Callery, son of Mrs. Barney Callery, and the late Barney Callery, of Marmora Township, was born on February 29, 1912.

Euchre Party

Group Two of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild held a bridge party on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lavender. Prizes were won by Mrs. B. W. Hughes, playing as a man, and Mrs. J. R. Reynolds. Refreshments were served.

St. Andrew's Glee Club held its February meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. H. Connor with a good attendance of members. Mrs. F. Litt was pianist for the occasion, playing for community singing and as accompanist for Mrs. E. C. Prentice and Mrs. R. Long, who rendered solos.

Other members contributed readings and a social half hour with refreshments wound up the meeting. The next meeting will be at the parsonage and will mark the anniversary of the organization.

Lenten Services

Ash Wednesday was marked with services at two local churches. At Sacred Heart Church Mass was celebrated by the Rev. J. A. O'Neill at 8 a.m., followed by the distribution of ashes, and at 7.30 in the evening, Rosary and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was held, also followed by the distribution of the ashes.

At St. Paul's Anglican Church the rector, Canon J. M. Brownlie officiated at celebration of Holy Communion at 10.30 a.m.

Born —In Belleville General Hospital on Friday, February 22, to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nobes, a son.

Mr. William Burke was admitted to Belleville General Hospital on Monday evening.

Mr. Joseph O'Neill returned home from St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, on Sunday.

U.S. Declines To Ease Rigid Cattle Embargo

Ottawa, Feb. 29 — (CP)—The United States has declined to ease its rigid embargo on Canadian livestock and animal products, the Agriculture Department disclosed yesterday.

The U. S. clamped on an embargo which applied to all of Canada following announcement of the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in South Saskatchewan. Canada tried to persuade the U. S. to ease the embargo on products from provinces far removed from the quarantined area.

But the department said in a statement Thursday that "further advice" received from the Canadian Embassy in Washington indicates there is little likelihood that the ban "will be modified for any one part of the country so long as the outbreak lasts."

The big problem in easing the embargo to a regional one is that the United States government would have to amend its statutes which would require an act of Congress.

Statement Issued

The department said:

"According to advice received, the U. S. market will not be opened for unrestricted entry of the named products from any part of Canada until the U. S. secretary of agriculture can certify that the disease no longer exists in Canada."

The embargo was imposed against Canadian livestock, fresh-killed or frozen meats, and restrictions — which for all practical purposes would be the same as an embargo — placed on cured and cooked meats, hay and straw and animal by-products such as bone meal, blood meal, wool, hair and hides.

The department previously raised the hope that some changes would be made in the U. S. restrictions. In a statement yesterday, it said:

"American authorities state that, while for the present, the general regulations applying to all countries where foot-and-mouth disease is known to exist will apply to Canada, some changes in these regulations may be made because Canada is well-staffed with experienced veterinarians to carry out control measures."

St. David's Day Important Event To All Welshman

(By The Canadian Press)

The big day of the year with a real and lively meaning for the Welsh, St. David's Day, will be celebrated Saturday.

Welshmen at home and abroad will pay their tribute to the saint who founded 12 monasteries, lived a life of self-abnegation, and set an example that has inspired his countrymen for nearly 1,500 years.

Actual dates of David's birth and death are confused, but he probably was born shortly before the year 500, and died near the end of the sixth century. He was one of the devoted Celtic missionaries who carried Christianity throughout Wales.

More than 50 churches in south Wales still bear the name of the saint whose life gave use to a score of legends. It is said that the ground where he stood raised itself into a mound so that the audience might better see the venerable David.

His fame increased after his death. Tradition says his bones were taken to Glastonbury some 300 years after his death, and by the time William the Conqueror crossed the channel David's sanctity and importance were generally recognized. He was formally cananized about 1120 by Pope Calixtus II, at the request of King Henry I.

National Emblem

The leek, the national emblem of the small principality of Wales, is credited to St. David. The story goes that in the confused battle between the Saxon invaders and the fighting Welsh, the latter could not tell friend from foe. David told the warriors to pick leeks and place them in their hats to show they were Welsh, and the Welsh carried the day.

A great national festival in London Saturday will feature choral singing for which the Welsh have been famed for centuries. The band of the Welsh Guards and trumpeters of the Royal Military School of Music will also be there.

The tiny principality of Wales and Monmouthshire nowadays occupies a total area of 8,006 square miles on the Irish Sea and the Bristol Channel, with a population of 2,500,000. Its people are a proud and distinct nationality with a language and literature of their own.

British Study How U.S. Hoists Factory Output

By SIDNEY WEILAND

London, Feb. 29 (Reuters) — Britain is studying training methods used in United States factories in an effort to overcome her critical manpower shortage.

Faced with a need for 250,000 more workers to boost the rearmament and export drive, government experts, industrialists and trade union leaders have joined in calling for a country-wide examination of training methods in the light of U.S. experience.

The primary objective is to provide a chance for older men to get skilled training for jobs in defence plants.

Normally it is impossible to become apprenticed in Britain after the age of 18. Once trained in a craft, a man has to stay in the same work for life or drift into unskilled unemployment. An unskilled worker finds it virtually impossible to get paid vocational training after passing his 'teens.

Executives and union chiefs will consider whether the training period — a British apprenticeship often lasts five or six years — can be cut down to permit a quicker flow of labor into the factories.

Influence Evident

The influence of U.S. methods is evident in a new study of training plans for supervisory staffs. British workers and industrialists visiting the U.S. have been impressed by the training and efficiency of American supervisors and foremen.

Most of the ideas now taking shape in this field stem from reports made by 57 labor and management teams which have toured U.S. factories since 1949.

Eight hundred British workers and industrialists have taken part in these trips, organized by the Anglo-American productivity council.

Nearly all the teams agree that high American productivity results from: Better management, more mechanization, simpler processes and standardization, better labor-management relations and greater incentive.

Working techniques first seen by a British team in Detroit now are used at a Birmingham munitions plant. Scores of factories are using electrically-operated flame chisels seen for the first time in the U.S.

American molding devices, once rejected here, now are in general use. British steel foundries report that production has been increased by 15 to 20 per cent since their team visited U.S. steel mills in 1949.

The British teams found U.S. training methods, based on a well-run system of talent spotting, paid off in finding the best men for the job.

Empey Hill — Mr. and Mrs. Luther Gaylord entertained Mr. and Mrs. E. Waddingham and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stafford on Sunday evening.

Miss Jean Gaylord, of Peterborough Normal School, was at home over the weekend.

The play, "Singin' Bill From Blue Ridge Hill", was a huge success. The proceeds were $86. The play is being presented again in Grace Church, Napanee, on Thursday evening. There have been arrangements made to show it in several other communities.

Church services were held in Selby United Church on Tuesday with Empey Hill and Selby participating.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Marisette and Leonard were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Dafoe, of Napanee.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Hewes, of Kingston, visited Mr. and Mrs. Bob Tucker on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Tucker were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Tucker.

Misses Ruth and Jean Tucker spent the weekend at their home.

Miss Edith Wiedman has spent several days at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Vaughn and family of Belleville, have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Wiedman.

Men of the community are at work clearing the debris away from the scene of the disaster at the Wiedman residence. Mr. Wiedman is getting plans ready in order to rebuild his barns. Friends and neighbors are housing the cattle. Neighbors have offered to donate feed to avoid any crisis.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Waddingham were Wednesday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Marisette.

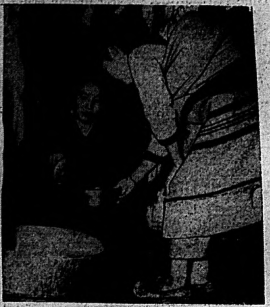
Refugees Crowd Seoul



Despite a ban on crossing the Han River, refugees still crush into the overcrowded capital — sometimes at the risk of their lives. The jamming causes ration and housing complications inside Seoul, but everyone has a roof and enough food to live. This girl, her sleeping baby sister strapped to her back in a blanket, is drawing the daily ration of hot powdered milk. — (CP from National Defence.)

South Koreans Find New 38th Parallel in Han River

(Editor's note: Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer with the Canadian forces in Korea, has completed a two-week survey of civilian living conditions in that oriental country. This article, one of a series, deals with a phase of the refugee problem).

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Seoul, Korea, Feb. 29 (CP) — In Korean "Hangang" means "Great River."

The word is reserved for one watercourse, the majestic Han which winds through Seoul in its westward flow into the Yellow Sea. It's frozen now.

Koreans bite out a new definition for its expanse of ice. They call it "the second 38th. parallel the United Nations have given us" —because they are forbidden to cross it.

The people — as distinct from the government — are becoming increasingly acid and impatient over an Eighth Army order making the river's south bank the limit of free movement in South Korea, and forbidding them from entering their capital.

Public meetings debate the order both north and south of the stream. Newspapers devote editorials and articles to it.

And refugees from Seoul defy the ban, returning clandestinely, often risking and losing life.

Last May Seoul, in peacetime a city of more than 1,000,000 population, numbered 240,000 and was a closed area. Today it numbers 680,000. One way or another more than 60,000 got back last month.

Officially only four classes of civilians may enter the city; civic officials to keep government functioning, tax officials, utilities employees and individuals working with United Nations units.

Eighth Army pronouncements give four reasons for the no-crossing policy:

1. A shortage of rice and other foods.
2. Inadequate water, electricity and sanitation.
3. Overloading of the high-level bridge across the Han must be prevented because it is the only main supply route to the front.
4. Medical facilities inadequate to handle casualties that would result if the Communists decided to launch air raids.

Say Rice Abundant

1. Rice is abundant in the markets, and 10 per cent cheaper than anywhere else in Korea.
2. The Eighth Army's own civilian assistance command has announced the restoration of the utilities.
3. Most of the army's supplies and personnel move by rail and the bridge could handle several times its present volume of traffic.
4. Medically, Seoul is no worse off than any other city and, as an air target, would not have the strategic importance to the Communists of centres such as Pusan and Inchon.

The provost marshall of Seoul area command said the Korean argument on bridge traffic is valid.

"Vehicle checks indicate about 5,000 vehicles a day cross the bridge," he said in an interview. "The bridge could be freed for traffic without congestion. It might at times interfere with military movements of supplies and personnel.

"But it would ruin the economy of Seoul overnight."

Why do the people want to get back?

Army, C.A.C. and Republic of Korea officials agree on the reasons.

There is the call of the "old hometown." Many left families in Seoul and want to return to them. Families billeted on farms in the south want to return to their own homes. Business men and homeowners want to see how their property has fared.

Matter of Survival

Significantly it is the poor, not the rich, who clamor to return. The rich can afford to wait in Pusan, Taegu or Taejon. The poor consider it a matter of survival. For them there is the lure of some free grain.

Said the C.A.C. team commander:

"They take terrible risks to cross but it is a great challenge. They know that once the risks have been met there is the virtual certainly of shelter and food.

"People tell me: 'Don't feed them; let them starve; that will stop them coming.'

"Well, you can't. Sure, they'd die. But the U.N. can't let them. These people know that if they once get into Seoul they'll be fed by C.A.C. if they're really in need."

U.N. and R.O.K. police call the movement an "invasion."

Along a key 2½-mile sector of the river front there are 50 control posts manned by 262 police. That net caught 2,395 during the month that 60,000 crossed. A known 30 were drowned and countless others are feared lost.

The crossers waded, swam, boated, floated on logs, bribed police, rode many flatcars and hitched lifts on U.N. military vehicles. More than 200 boats were confiscated. The organizer of one ring turned out to be a former police chief.

Now that the river is frozen there are regular guide services. While arrests have dwindled to between 10 and 25 nightly there is no reason to believe the proportion of successful crossings also dropped.

And as Seoul fills up, the feeling against continuation of the "second 38th. parallel" increases.

St. Laurent Said Pondering Vast New Spending Scheme For Development of Culture

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa—(CP)—A vast scheme for the creation of national scholarships and bursaries for some 10,000 university students is under active consideration by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Planning has developed so well that the prime minister, keenly interested in implementing recommendations of the Massey commission on arts, may ask parliament at the next session opening Feb. 28 for $7,000,000 to get the scholarship plan rolling.

In addition, it has been definitely decided that he will seek another $7,000,000 to continue in the next fiscal year the federal-aid-to-university scheme launched a year ago.

The university-aid program still has many kinks. There has been some question whether the method of fund distribution on the basis of provincial population is the best feasible system.

Argument continues as to what type of institute of higher learning should be eligible for federal aid to ward off financial crises threatening universities. In Quebec, for example, there was no easy agreement and Finance Minister Abbott and Provincial-Treasurer Onesime Gagnon had to head up a special commission to judge what institution would become eligible in that province.

A Major Recommendation

Launching of the scholarship scheme was one of the major recommendations of the 500-page report by Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, governor-general-designate of Canada, and four other commissioners. The report, considered by the government as its cultural guide to promote national unity through cultural development of the country, was placed before parliament last year after a two-year investigation of Canada's cultural achievements.

It envisioned:

1. A total of 100 annual "Canada" scholarships of $1,000 each, tenable for four years, granted to students showing outstanding ability and exceptionable promise. When the program was in full swing, 400 Canadian students would be able to attend university free.
2. A total of 250 "national" scholarships valued at $500 each, awarded annually and tenable also for four years. Thesewould go to "distinguished and promising" students.
3. For "able and diligent" students in financial need, there would be 2000 bursaries of $500 each, also tenable for four years.
4. Finally, there would be a loan fund open to all students whose work is acceptable to university authorities.

Other Suggestions

There were other scholarship recommendations in the Massey report, now also under government consideration. These include support of post-graduates pursuing studies in the fields of humanities, social sciences and law, as well as those training as musicians, artists and writers.

Some hint of the government intentions on aid to cultural programs may be given in the traditional Speech from the Throne, the first Mr. Massey will read in his new role as governor-general.

Along with the scholarship program, Mr. St. Laurent is considering the possibility of establishing the 15-man arts council which Mr. Massey recommended to direct the government's overall cultural policies.

The council would be independent of government departments, reporting directly to parliament.

If the council is created, it still is possible that members of the royal arts commission may be invited to become part-time members. The members, apart from Mr. Massey, were: Arthur Surveyor of Montreal, civil engineer; Dr. Norman MacKenzie, president of the University of British Columbia; Most Rev. Georges-Henri Levesque, dean of the faculty of social sciences, Laval University; and Dr. Hilda Neatby, professor of history, University of Saskatchewan.

Growers Oppose One-Third Cut In Acreage

London, Ont., Feb. 29 (CP) —A Tillsonburg farmer who once headed Hungary's state tobacco monopoly said yesterday a one-third cut in Ontario tobacco acreage this year will "ruin" hundreds of growers and seriously affect the general business economy of the tobacco counties.

"It won't touch the big fellow—he's got acres to spare," said Frank B. Babanes. "But it will clean out the little man with his few acres. A one third reduction simply kills his profit."

The acreage cut was ordered this month by the Ontario flue-cured Tobacco Marketing Association, whose headquarters is in Simcoe.

This action was based on two major developments: announcement of drastic cuts in British tobacco imports and a decline in domestic tobacco consumption. The association claims Canadian sales are down because of high federal taxes.

Mr. Babanes said that, even with all-out production, Canada need have no tobacco surplus.

"European countries other than Britain would buy all we could sell —if only we could get an export permit," he said.

"But Ottawa's giving export permits only to the big companies."

More Snow Piles On Big Fall Of Past Days

Boston, Feb. 29 (AP) —Cape Cod which has not yet dug out of its worst storm in a generation got another snowfall today—but it was not expected to be as devastating as Wednesday's paralyzing blow.

The weather bureau said the new fall, starting about dawn, would end late in the afternoon and add about three inches of snow to the 20 inches which crippled the area.

Wednesday's storm left drifts as high as 12 feet and isolated the Cape for 16 hours. Officials of Cape Cod towns say it may be several days before the majority of roads are even passable and before full utilities are restored.

Some 10,000 homes were left without light and heat, all roads were blocked, scores of motorists were marooned, and only emergency telephone service was available.

Fourteen persons lost their lives in the storm throughout southern New England but none of the other areas was hit as hard as the Cape.

SACS TONIGHT!

Tonight the curtains fall on two theatres in this somewhat wacky yet exciting senior "B" drama then the principals will ready themselves for what should be a gruelling grind down the playoff trail.

The Hawks with some semblance of the strength that gave them top spot position in the loop for an enviable length of time will clash with the Kingston Sacs while up in Peterborough the fire and fury that has characterized every meeting of these torrid intra-city rivals the Petes and Eagles will again flare forth, with possibly not so much fuel dispensed with.

On the issue of tonight's games hinges second spot in the group standing. At the moment the Petes are away out front with 34 points, the Eagles and Petes are tied for second place with 27 while the Hawks trail with 24. Hawks and Eagles victories will give the McGillis birds the second spot while Petes and Hawks wins will leave the thing as is. A Petes and Sacs emergence will give the Kingston team the place position. The Petes and Eagles have a protested game in the books which will not likely be played, since the Eagles are the only team whose standing would be affected. If the Eagles and Sacs are tied the position will likely be decided on goals average which in this case, would favor the Eagles. The McGillians have a record todate of 171 for, 145 against, while the Sacs have scored 179 goals and have been scored against 207 times.

The semi finals sees the Petes and Hawks clash while the Eagles take on the Sacs. The series are best-of-five affairs and some torrid puckchasing should take place before two of the squads murmur a hockey "uncle" and bow out of the picture. There is no word of playoff dates yet, but it's a safe bet they will start early next week.

* * *

READY TO GO!

The junior Hawks came out of the semi-finals series with the Peterborough Triple-Links in good condition and will get a rest before the finals series with either Kingston Vics or Lindsay Kinsmen gets under way. Lindsay play hosts to the amazing Vics tonight and with everything at stake and elimination staring them in the face the Scugoggers will put up a desperate battle against a team that has been the surprise of the group in the current semi-finals playoffs.

The Vics playing spectacular hockey in the first game at Lindsay came from behind to score five goals to snatch the victory from under the schnozzles of a thunderstruck Scugog team and crowd. Again in Kingston the inspired Vics maintained their stride turning back the Kinsmen by a 4-2 count. And this a team that was not given a dog's chance by the group against the powerful Hawks, Links and Kinsmen. Funny thing, this hockey.

The Hawks, too, demonstrated in the series against Peterborough that they can produce game-winning hockey when the chips are down. Twice it appeared they were a beaten team but they girded their loins in desperate if concerted third - period action and flamed through with last-minute victories to not only win the games but the series, too. From 3-0 and 4-1 first-period deficits the youngsters refused to accept defeat and through sheer determination and effort proved that they are a power to be reckoned with in junior "B" circles.

And one of the more pleasant aspects of the games especially the final in Peterborough Wednesday night was the manner in which the Hawks defence tightened in team co-operation with the furious offensive up front, Bob Wilson, and Peter Green stood out more or less brilliantly in that hectic third heat with the former scoring his first goal of the season with a blazing corner shot that was tabbed all the way.

* * *

Led by Ted DeGray the shock troops up front welded themselves into an effective offensive whole. The wily Lalande, the darting Jacklin, the steady ultra-effective both-way Ross Mason, Duke Doran, streaking Bill Strahan, hustling Henry Therrien, and the rest of the crew demonstrated, and get this, on "foreign ice that they have the power and ability to cope with the best in the district.

But they're not invincible. The fire and hustle that marked their semi-finals victory should not, by any means abate, if they are to win the group honors. Both Kingston and Lindsay are forces to be reckoned with and are far from being mere stepping - stones to the OHA playdowns. Cranium inflation has ruined many a good team, hockey and otherwise. The Hawks can be beaten but if they maintain the team-work and spirit that characterized their play in the series just concluded somebody is going to know they have been in a hockey game before the bugles sound "Taps".

JUVENILES MONDAY

The juveniles hit the second round of the playdown trail last night in Peterborough and jumped practically to trail's end for the starry Petes juves handed them a 13-0 trimming to take a practically unsurmountable lead on the two-game goals-to-count series. The Belleville lads put up a gallant fight but proved no match, on the night's play at least, for the smart Peterborough pucksters.

The second game is scheduled for Monday night at Memorial Arena starting at 8.30. Prior to this game a peewee battle between Peterborough and Belleville teams will be staged starting at 7.30. These moppets really put up a spirited brand of hockey and the tilt should be well worth seeing.

Bantams, Peewees Playoffs Tomorrow

—Bruins, Hawks and Rangers will be gunning for their second victory and advancement to the semi-finals of the Peewee Division of the Minor Hockey Association tomorrow morning. Bruins edged Canadiens 2-1; Hawks defeated the Leafs 5-2 and Rangers shut out the Wings in the first games of the series last Saturday morning.

In the bantam division, Black Hawks meet Canadiens at 9 a.m.; Bruins tangle with the Red Wings at 9.40 and the Leafs clash with Rangers at 10.20 in the second games of their playoff series. Last week in the first game Leafs defeated Rangers 4-3; Bruins edged Wings 2-1 and the Hawks blanked Canadiens 4-0. Three teams face elimination so there should be some rip-roaring tilts before the playoff dust settles.

Habitants, Hawks Hoist Hex On Red Wings and Rangers In Late Third-Period Drives

(By The Canadian Press)

It doesn't do to count either Montreal Canadiens or Chicago Black Hawks beaten until the final whistle. The two National Hockey League clubs are noted for their late-game drives and last night proved their worth once again.

At Montreal, the Canadiens scored twice late in the final period to gain a 3-2 decision over Detroit Red Wings while the Hawks racked up a pair of third-period goals at Chicago and earned themselves a 2-2 tie with the New York Rangers.

The victory broke Montreal's second-place deadlock with Toronto Maple Leafs and gave the team a two-point edge in the stretch drive to the playoffs. Canadiens are 17 points back of the league-leading Red Wings.

Rangers Advance

Even though tied by Chicago's late-game surge, New York's single point moved the fourth-place club two full games out in front of Boston Bruins.

A crowd of 14,598 watched the Canadiens take a 1-0 first-period lead on Dollard Saint Laurent's long shot that deflected past Terry Sawchuk off Detroit defenceman Leo Reise.

The middle stanza was scoreless and then with Bert Olmstead in the penalty box, Metro Prystai and Sid Abel scored within a minute of each other to move the Wings ahead 2-1 midway through the final period. Goals by Dickie Moore and Bernie Geoffrion nullified the outburst and the Habs held on for their victory.

At Chicago, Ed Slowinski and Don Raleigh came through in the first and second periods to give New York a 2-0 lead. Gus Bodnar and Sid Finney banged in the third-period Black Hawks goals which earned the tail-end club its 2-2 tie.

No games are scheduled in the N. H. L. tonight. Saturday will see Boston at Toronto and New York at Montreal.

Training Camp Briefs

(By The Associated Press)

Vero Beach, Fla., Feb. 29 (AP)—Brooklyn Dodger manager Chuck Dressen believes that his bench will be stronger this year if outfielders George Shuba and Don Williams stick.

Said Dressen today:

Shuba's a lefthanded hitter who can hit a long ball in the pinch. Williams improved toward the end of the season, so he'll give us some reserve right - handed hitting strength."

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 29 — (AP)—Switch-hitter Mickey Mantle has the best chance of any New York Yankee outfielder to play regularly in manager Casey Stengel's two-platoon system.

"I'm naturally a right-handed hitter," said Mantle. "But I'm just as comfortable hitting left-handed. Last year at Kansas City I was better hitting right-handed. With the Yankees I was better hitting left-handed."

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 29 (AP) — Manager Lou Boudreau today was confident that one of the Boston Red Sox' 1952 problems had disappeared. On learning that Vern Stephens, handicapped by a torn thigh muscle last season had reported in top physical shape, Boudreau listed him as the team's ranking shortstop.

Now Boudreau can settle down to picking Bobby Doerr's second base successor from a group that includes Johnny Pesky, Billy Goodman and rookie Ted Lepcio and Joe Bevan.

Lakeland, Fla., Feb. 29 (AP) — Because they bat left-handed, newcomers Ben Taylor and Cliff Mapes may have an edge in the wide-open battle for first base with the Detroit Tigers.

Manager Red Rolfe has two veteran Tigers, Don Kolloway and Steve Souchock, who will be after the spot. Both are right-handed hitters, and Rolfe wants more left-handers in his lineup.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Joe DiMaggio, who came to New York to sign another lucrative television contract, put a finger on Gene Woodling yesterday as the man probably best qualified to fill his old centre-field spot with the New York Yankees.

"Woodling is the best fielder of the lot," the Yankee Clipper said. "He is fast and can cover ground. The only problem would be his arm."

DiMaggio, lean and tanned after a winter on the Pacific coast, talked baseball while putting his name on a new contract for a 15-minute series over NBC to be known as "Joe DiMaggio's Dugout." He already has signed to do commentary on Yankee games.

Asked if his television jobs would surpass his reported $90,000 to $100,000 last year, DiMaggio said:

"Just about. I should make a little more, I guess."

Canada last night beat the Stockholm Combination Lions 12-2 in a post-Olympic hockey game in Stockholm. Billy Dawe led the scoring for Olympic champion Edmonton Mercurys with five goals. Louis Secco got a pair and Bruce Dickson, Jack Davis, Engelbert Miller, Frank Sullivan and Billy Gibson got one each.

Fort William Hurricanes edged visiting Port Arthur Flyers 4-3 last night to take a two-game lead in their best-of-five Thunder Bay Junior Hockey League semi-finals. Third game will be played Saturday at Port Arthur.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver fired a brilliant three-under-par 69 yesterday in the first round of the Mexican golf open championship in Mexico City.

But South Africa's Bobby Locke and defending champion Roberto de Vincenzo of Argentina shared first place. Each shot a 68, four under par for the 6,900-yard course.

Montreal Royals of the International Boseball League have received the signed contracts of 15 players, Gerry Gosselin, travelling secretary, said last night in Montreal. Royals open spring training at Vero Beach, Fla., March 14.

Harold (Hibby) Hibbard, a genial, fun-loving man who spent most of his 57 years around race tracks, died yesterday in Toronto of a heart attack. He was best known as a jockey's agent but exercised horses in his youth and at one time raced a modest stable.

Canuck Heavy May be Barred By Michigan

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 29—(AP)—Johnny Summerlin, Detroit heavyweight, scored a fourth-round technical knockout over Vern Escoe of Toronto in a dull fight here last night.

Immediately after the bout, Dave Gudelsky of the Michigan boxing commission said he would recommend that Escoe, listed a heavyweight champion of Canada, be barred from further fighting in Michigan.

Gudelsky said Escoe "did not extend himself" and was no match for the younger Summerlin. Escoe listed his age as 29.

The Canadian fighter weighed 186 pounds, to 189 for Summerlin. The bout was billed for 10 rounds, but was stopped after the third when Summerlin opened a deep cut over Escoe's left eye.

Strikes Referee, Suspended For Two Years

Wingham, Feb. 29 — (CP) — An emergency meeting of the Western Ontario Athletic Association executive yesterday suspended hockey player Elmer Baiers of Poole's Intermediate C team for two years for manhandling referee Fraser Omand of Wellesly in a game played at Milverton Feb. 25.

The suspension will last until Feb. 25, 1954.

No W.O.A.A. games will be played at Ripley for the remainder of the season because of remarks made over the public address system that were "detrimental to hockey and good sportsmanship," the executive decided.

All but Goderich home games were banned from the Goderich arena.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 29 (AP) — Hannie Urbanus, the greatest baseball pitcher in The Netherlands, has made an amazing discovery since he came out here as a guest of the New York Giants.

For years Hannie has been standing the batters of Rotterdam on their heads, so to speak, with his fast ball and a sneaky curve, and yet he finds that he has been giving his natural enemies all the best of it. He can't wait to get back home and show those batters the new Urbanus.

"Somebody," he explains "read the rule book wrong. All this time we've understood that a pitcher had to have both feet flat on the ground when he delivered the bill. Like this."

Hannie demonstrated. He wound up and strode forward with his right foot, being a left-hander, and then threw from a completely locked position. He didn't follow through with his back foot, in other words, and you should try it some time.

"Honest" he said "that's the way we thought we had to pitch. We interpreted the rule wrong. We thought you could only use your arm. This is wonderful now that I know I can get my body behind the pitch."

Today he was scheduled to try his hand at throwing the ball past big league batsmen for the first time.

"I'm afraid it will not be very even," Hannie said. "Now that I see how your pitchers throw, with that what you call the big follow through. I know I do not pitch very well."

Strangely enough, for all his awkward deliveries, Hannie throws pretty well. It is sidearm stuff mostly, but he manages to get surprising lot of speed.

Spring Holdout Fever Undiminished; Only Six Clubs Have Players Signed

By RALPH RODEN

New York, Feb. 29 (AP) —Ted Williams and Ralph Kiner head a small but impressive list of major league baseball stars who have not signed their 1952 contracts.

An Associated Press survey today revealed that 29 players —17 in the American League and 12 in the National—have not come to terms.

The majority will be classified as "holdouts" if they fail to sign by Saturday the official start of spring training.

Five National League clubs, the champion New York Giants, the St. Louis Cardinals, Cincinnati Reds, Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers, have all of their players in the fold. Only the Chicago White Sox in the American can make the same boast.

Wants Special Contract

Williams, one of four Red Sox dickering for terms, is scheduled to appear at the Sox' Sarasota base Saturday for a conference with general manager Joe Cronin.

The high-salaried slugger is due to report to the Marines May 2 and is seeking a special contract to cover the period until he returns to service.

Infielders Billy Goodman, Johnny Pesky and pitcher Mel Parnell are the other recalcitrant Red Sox. Goodman is asking $25,000, Pesky $22,500 and Parnell $30,000.

Kiner is scheduled to show up at the Pirates' base at San Bernardino, Calif., Monday for a conference with Pittsburgh president John Galbreath.

The Pirate star reportedly is aiming for a two-year contract at $70,000 per season, an increase of $5,000 over his 1950-52 salary.

Pitcher Murray Dickson, a 20-game winner, is another Pirate asking for a $5,000 raise. Dickson drew $20,000 last year.

The Philadelphia Athletics have four players remaining to be satisfied but only shortstop Eddie Joost and first baseman Ferris Fain, the American League batting champion may prove difficult to please.

Shortstop Phil Rizzuto and third baseman Bobby Brown are the lone members of the world champion New York Yankees who haven't signed.

Rizzuto is expected to agree to terms calling for an estimated $45,000 today at St. Petersburg, Fla. Brown, is expecting a call any day from the army.

The Detroit Tigers, St. Louis Browns and Cleveland Indians each have two unsigned players and the Washington Senators one.

Long Odds on Vejar Over Pruden Puzzle Manhattan Fight Writers

New York, Feb. 29—(CP)—If New York boxing writers were heavy bettors, Fitzie Pruden of St. Catharines might be close to even money to beat Chico Vejar in tonight's headline bout at Madison Square Garden.

During the last week the pre-fight comments in Manhattan newspapers have been nearly unanimous in expressing surprise at the fact that Vejar, up-and-coming welterweight belter from Stamford, Conn., has been rated at odds which started at 4 to 1 and eased off to 5 to 2.

Aside from Vejar's record of seven victories in a row, the pricemakers have been claiming that Pruden cuts up easily as reasons for the one-sided odds.

May Be Disappointed

But if they're counting on Pruden's bowing out early because of cuts, they may be disappointed. Fitzie, who had to quit because he was cut badly against Paddy Young, Aldo Minelli, Johnny Greco and Joe Micelli, had the scar tissue removed from above his eyes.

Since then, and with such additional preventive measures as daily beef brine facials, he hasn't been suffering cuts as readily.

A talented left hand and superior ring savvy are two of the reasons the 24-year-old Canadian has found favor among some writers.

There's nothing in Fitzie's record for 1951 that indicates he can't go the 10 rounds. He fought 10 times last year and came up with impressive decisions over Beau Jack and Tony Janiro.

In his last two fights he defeated Marcel Brisebois and then knocked out Brisbois.

He has lost four of his last six fights—to Arthur King, Ross Virgo, Don Williams and Kid Gavilan. But if he's in the form he was in when he made it close with Gavilan and Ike Williams last spring, Vejar could be in for a rough evening.

Pruden hasn't been knocked out or stopped in more than two years, and even though Vejar has won 10 of 41 bouts, Pruden can boast of having fought men of superior ability.

The 10 p.m. EST bout will be broadcast and telecast.

Button Favored To Win Fifth Skating Crown

Paris, Feb. 29— (AP) — Dick Button, boasting a commanding lead, goes after his fifth straight men's world figure skating crown tonight while a new champion will be crowned in the women's division.

Button, Olympic winner in 1948 and in the recently completed games at Oslo, Norway, piled up a huge advantage in the compulsory figures yesterday.

The Englewood, N.J., star collected seven place points from each of the seven judges for six compulsory figures to draw far ahead of European champion Helmut Seibt of Austria.

Tonight's final test will be the free-skating event at which Button is in a class by himself. Button clinched the Olympic championship with an unprecedented "triple loop" in which he made three complete body revolutions in the air and landed on one skate.

A near-record field of 25 will shoot for the women's crown which Jeannette Altwegg of Great Britain abdicated. Miss Altwegg hung up her skates after winning the Olympic title.

Tenley Baxter, a 16-year-old school girl from Center, Mass., making her second start in a world meet, is a slight favorite to win the championship. She finished second to Miss Altwegg in the Olympics.

Stampeders Trim Edmonton 6-4

(By The Canadian Press)

Calgary Stampeders last night moved within four points of the sixth and last playoff spot in the Pacific Coast Hockey League when they trimmed Edmonton Flyers 6-4 in a rough and tumble contest in Calgary.

The victory gave Calgary 47 points, four less than the sixth-place Vancouver Canucks and both teams have nine games to play. Flyers remained in fourth place, four points ahead of Tacoma.

Juveniles Bow To Peterborough By 13-0 Score

Peterborough-Outboard Marine juveniles coached by Bun Hill and managed by Al (Snowball) Watkins worked like a well oiled machine last night at civic arena here to rack up a convincing 13-0 victory over Jim Ethier's Belleville squad in the first game of a home-and-home series, goals to count, in the first round of OMHA playdowns. The return games will be played in Belleville Monday.

With four seasons of play behind them, as a team, the powerful marine squad looked more finished than ever with a very effective attacking division up front, coupled with a strong defence foursome of Murray Byrne, Frank McGillin, Larry McCormick and Laverne Jones.

Played Hard

Belleville played hard, clean hockey all the way, gave their best and were beaten by a stronger team.

Marines scored three in the first period as big Jack Corbett tallied twice with Ken Pammett and Paul Doris assisting; and Jim McGrath clicked midway in the frame from Paul Spencer on a stray drive through Russell's legs.

Continuing the pressure in the second stanza the Hill crew led by Jerry Frizzelle who thrice tallied sparkling goals, Marines added five to this total, Corbett and McGrath snared the others while John Cupoli, Spencer and Gary Kearns all assisted.

The visitors fought gamely though outplayed territorially, and tested Bob Delahay on many hard drives but the veteran proved unbeatable on all shots that came his way.

Five kings in the final frame by the irrepressible crew wound up the one-sided duel. Frizzelle and Doris twice and Gary Kearnes, with Laverne Jones, Wayne Dodd, Corbett and Frizzelle setting them up, rifled home the pay off tallies. Every man starred for Marines in the opener; while Ron Atkins, Jack Casey, Bill Philip, Wayne Bovay and Jack Canning worked hard for the losers as every Quinte lad tried his best in defeat.

Belleville: goal, Russell; defence, Thompson, Baker; centre, Goyer; wings, Brooks, Bovay; alts., Meyers, Philip, Stoliker, Fox Atkins, Cook, Canning, Casey, Don Ashley.

Peterborough: goal, Delahay; defence, McGillen, Byrne; centre, Kearns; wings, Frizzelle, Dodds; alts., Spencer, McCormick, Corbett, McGrath, Pammett, Jones, Cupoli, Doris.

Bears Nip Hornets, Reds Trim Flyers In American Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

The battle between the Hershey Bears and the Providence Reds for the American Hockey League's eastern division title, appears headed right down to the wire.

Hershey enjoys a four point edge over the Reds today with 10 games to play while the Reds have only nine left.

The Bears came from behind and nipped the Pittsburgh Hornets, western half leaders, 5-4, last night while the Reds skated to a 5-3 victory over the St. Louis Flyers.

Hershey broke a 3-3 tie in the third period on goals by Jerry Toppazzini and Jerry Brown. Brown's goal was his second of the game and proved to be the winning one.

The Reds had an easy time downing St. Louis. They ran up a 5-1 lead in the first two periods. Topper Toppazzini and former Flyer Paul Gladu scored twice for Providence.

Battery, Tire Win 1st Games Midget Playoffs

Quinte Battery and the Canadian Tire teams were victors in the first game of the goals-to-count midget division playoff at Memorial Arena last night.

The Battery lads defeated Moose Lodge by a 3-1 score while the Tire boys hung a 4-1 setback on the Big "A" team.

The teams go at it in the second game of the series next Thursday night and the winners will play off for the Belleville Hockey Associations midget championship.

Lynch led the Quinte Battery to victory with a goal and an assist with White and Little adding the other markers. Bennett scored the lone Moose goal.

St. Denis racked up a pair of goals to pace the Canadian Tire team taking McKay's pass to score one and denting the twine unassisted for the other. Cole scored on a solo effort and assisted Kelly in the fourth Tire tally.

Farnsworth and Buskard combined for the Big "A" score with the former sinking the rubber for the goal.

Weston's Edge Boyce's 5-4

B. Jackson's goal in overtime settled a hard-fought hockey tilt between Weston's Bread and Boyce's Garage at the arena last night with the Breadmen winning 5-4.

The game was the first of an Owl League semi-finals two-game goals to count series. The second game is scheduled for next Thursday night. Bonn's Garage and Trudeau's are playing in the other semi finals bracket.

The game was a close tilt all through with J. Brown, the Weston goalie standing out. Boyce's if anything had an edge of the play but Brown's fine work in the nets kept them off the win column.

Jackson led the Weston snipers with three goals, his third coming in the overtime period. C. Hamilton and J. Desjardin scored the others.

Lucas and B. Cannon scored two each for the losers. Four penalties were handed out with the teams splitting the sentences.

The teams are evenly matched and next week's game should be a thriller.

FAILED TO FIND JOB

Toronto, Feb. 29—(CP)—David Holmes, 30 and unemployed, decided the only way he could get help for his pregnant wife and two-year-old son was to go to jail. He threw a piece of ice through a plate-glass store window early yesterday, a policeman booked him on a charge of malicious damage. Given a suspended sentence, he apologized to the owner of the store for his impulsive action." The Salvation Army and the city welfare department decided to aid him with his rent and grocery bills but a search by police and the S.A. failed to turn up a job. He is a painter by trade.

HAS NEW HOBBY

Toronto, Feb. 28—(CP)—Roble Lydiard, retired after 46 years of railroading, says he may take up locksmithing as a profession. He got his start in the hobby when he noticed two different keys opened the same door and started taking locks apart to find out why.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Don Raleigh of New York Rangers picked up a goal and an assist Thursday night to take over third place in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Raleigh now has 51 points, made up of 16 goals and 35 assists, eight less than second-place Elmer Lach of Montreal who has 13 goals and 46 assists, a record, for 59 points

In first place is Gordie Howe of Detroit who has 68 points — a record 37 goals and 31 assists.

CAT DID IT

Pickering, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Frank Woodall stepped on his cat's tail yesterday and his house burned down. Alone at home while his wife and family were on vacation in Winnipeg, he was preparing dinner when his foot landed on the cat's tail. The cat screeched, Woodall startled, upset a grease-filled frying pan onto the stove. Volunteer firefighters could not save the house. Woodall estimated the loss at $5,000.

Spits, Flyers Will be Back Next Season

Toronto, Feb. 29 — (CP) — Windsor Spitfires and Barrie Flyers, 1951 Memorial Cup champions, both will be in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series next year, the respective managers of the teams said here Wednesday night.

Hap Emms, coach of the Flyers, and Spitfire manager Lloyd Pollock commented on recent rumors that either Barrie or Windsor or both, would withdraw from the 10-team league after this season.

Flyers are currently in seventh place, Spitfires hold down ninth place. Both are out of the O.H.A. playoffs.

Emms said, "We'll be around again as far as I know."

Windsor was supposed to be "washed up" as far as Detroit Red Wings were concerned. The Windsor executive felt they might be unable to carry on without an N.H.L. sponsor.

Pollock, however, said Spits would be back "with Detroit as sponsor."

Maxim to Fight In England

New York, Feb. 29 (AP) —Jack Solomons, British fight promoter, said last night he had light heavyweight champion Joe Maxim under contract for a fight. Maxim's manager, Jack Kearns, confirmed the agreement.

Solomons said he wanted to put on a title fight between Don Cockell of England, European light heavyweight champion, and Maxim before the former was whipped by Jimmy Slade recently.

"However," said Solomons, "I plan to send Cockell in against someone in April, and if Don makes a good showing, I'll arrange a fight against Maxim for him during the summer."

Solomons leaves for England today.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

To answer a force, consider the source. Consider its final intent. To bid in your spot may not be your lot when "keep the bids open" is meant.

A forcing-to-game signal requires only that partner does not let the bidding die short of game. This does not mean that responder is always forced to bid. He is forced only to keep the bidding open.

After your partner has opened with a bid of two in a suit, suppose the opponent next to him intervenes with a bid. The bidding is thus kept open for your partner. So, you may pass.

Played in an expert duplicate match was this deal:

NORTH
♠7
♥Q 8 6 4 2
♦Q 8 6
♣10 4 3 2

WEST
♠Q 9 6 5 4 2
♥J
♦9 5 2
♣A K 5

EAST
♠10 3
♥A 10 9 7 5
♦None
♣Q J 9 8 7 6

SOUTH
♠A K J 8
♥K 3
♦A K J 10 7 4 3
♣None

Not all tables handled their hands the same way. In most cases, however, the opening bid by south was two diamonds. So, we will here start it as a basis for bids that follow.

If west opponent correctly passes, north responds with a denial bid of two no-trump. Denial of what? Denial of having a sure trick. Anything he has to show must await a later round.

When south opens with two diamonds, suppose west elects to put in a subtle bid of two spades. What is the north response? Pass. Such a pass means the same as two no-trump over a non-intervener.

The forcing to game opening bid of two diamonds prods partner with two distinct requests. One is not to let the bidding stop short of game. The other is to show first if he has a sure trick.

The opening two bidder admits he wants to go at least a game. What he is anxious about is whether or not partner has a sure trick that will help make game. The first reply by partner tells him.

Moore's Extend Lead in Major A

Moore's Chisellers increased their lead to seven points in the Major "A" Bowling League at the Bowl-O-Drome last night with a 5-2 victory over City Cleaners.

The Chisellers have garnered 19 points to date in the fourth section of the schedule with Belleville Golf, Schwab's, Lawn Bowlers and CNR bunched in second place with 12 points each. Kinsmen follow with nine; City Cleaners six and Callaghan's Ice 2.

The other games were all 5-2 affairs with Schwab's, CNR, and Lawn Bowlers winning over Belleville Golf, Callaghan's Ice and Kinsmen respectively.

High triple honors went to Cec Hardwick of Moore's Chisellers with 833 (366). Other good scores were D. Pointer 781 (302), G. Garrow 769, E. Greenfield 760, J. McKenzie 743 (320), J. Corlies 723, J. Callaghan 721 (343), D. Taylor 718, J. White 716, W. Dingman 715, J. Legault 710, J. Bennett 706, R. Saylor 706, F. Martin 691, W. Kiser 682, D. Ashley 681, D. Tobe 666, W. McLaughlin 661, W. Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 29 (AP)— One of the most envied jobs in all of show business is that of L. A. (Speed) Riggs, the tobacco auctioneer.

For 15 years, his work has consisted largely of delivering gibberish chant at the beginning and closing of his sponsor's radio and television shows. The stint takes eight seconds. Lately, he has not even been required to come to the studios. His chant is inserted by tape or film, and his salary cheque comes in as usual.

Riggs is paid well for his eight-second performance. He says he earns more than the $40,000 annual salaries which top tobacco auctioneers can draw in their normal pursuit.

But even such a handsome deal can have its drawbacks.

"For 15 years, I was under exclusive contract," he explained. "I couldn't do anything else. The inactivity is almost enough to drive you crazy."

For sidelines, he had a ranch in the San Fernando Valley, where he raised Palomino horses and white-faced Hereford cattle, and invested in a print shop and a furniture factory. But even these interests were not enough to keep him busy. So when his contract came up for renewal, he insisted on a non-exclusive pact. The new, seven-year deal permits him to make outside appearances, as long as they aren't for a similar sponsor.

"Now I can do some of the things I've had to pass up before," he remarked. "I've had many offers to do film roles in the past, and now I can take them. I also have some ideas for a TV show for myself. One of them, called 'Beat the Auctioneer,' is being considered by CBS."

Esther WILLIAMS HAS HER MOST UNUSUAL SWIMMING SCENE IN "TEXAS CARNIVAL." IT'S A DREAM SEQUENCE IN WHICH ESTHER, DRESSED IN A DIAPHANOUS NEGLIGEE ENSEMBLE, SWIMS IN AND OUT OF A ROOM!

Howard KEEL STARTED HIS M-G-M CAREER IN A SADDLE IN "ANNIE GET YOUR GUN," SWAM IN "PAGAN LOVE SONG," FLEW A PLANE FOR "THREE GUYS NAMED MIKE," PLAYED A GAMBLER IN "SHOW BOAT." NOW HE'S BACK IN THE SADDLE IN "TEXAS CARNIVAL."

Red SKELTON WINS THE MOST HILARIOUS CONTEST EVER DEVISED FOR A FILM COMEDY. DURING THE COURSE OF A FRENZIED CHUCK-WAGON RACE, HE DOES EVERYTHING BUT DRIVE THE HORSES WHILE STANDING ON HIS HEAD!

AT THE BELLE — Blending songs and comedy galore M.G.M.'s Technicolor musical "Texas Carnival," is continuing at the Belle Theatre until Monday, with official pictures of King George VI. laid to rest.

STAYED TOO LONG

Ucluelet, B.C., (CP)—A 59-foot sperm whale washed ashore on the west coast of Vancouver Island provided lots of photographs and souvenirs such as teeth seven inches long. Now the settlers are wondering how to get rid of the carcass.

WOULD AID CLASSES

Victoria, B.C. (CP) — The school board of greater Victoria is seeking financial aid to meet overhead expenses involved in teaching English to immigrants. The new Canadians are being taught by volunteer teachers but the classes involve unavoidable incidental expense.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Saturday, March 1

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Opportunities galore if you are alert, thinking and ready to sacrifice some. New methods, ideas with sound possibilities freshly sponsored with right of way. Heart interests mixed.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Some slightly adverse tendencies, as we all have at times. Be thoughtful in act, speech. P. M. offers attractive aspects, use all aspects and advantages well. Shun foolish discussion.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Both personal and business matters in the favored class, and ask your best. Industrial, government and scientific interests; manufacturing favored, along with most personals.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Slow down a bit so that you can get things well under control in case of needed quick changes, or unexpected switch in conditions. News may change outlook; be on the beam, observing.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Certain progressive events boost an improved outlook. Take sufficient time to think about items you encounter. Know values fully and you won't go far astray. Day can be gainful.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Some contention likely in personal affairs, maybe in business. Financial and business matters can be bettered. Set aside personal desires, concentrate on due matters for best status.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—You can afford to wait for hours till you have analyzed outlook carefully. From Noon, things should run smoother, fewer problems. Use moderation, tact and your own sympathetic attitude.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio) — Dip into your resources for pertinent affairs, rightly used they can advance you in each project or chore. Keep temperament even. You have clever ideas when you put your head to it.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)— Excellent aspects in your day's astrological chart. Avoid petty outbursts. Being cheerfully co-operative will bring many gains. Marriage, social affairs have new impetus.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Planetary influence on up trend. Most of day favors your talents. Wisely combine abilities with advantages and your progress is surer. Smile the while.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Likely little offered in a truly generous way but that does not mean you cannot advance. Hard work, sensible consideration and use of possibilities afford best tools. Be economical.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)— Time out for planning essentials. Somewhat mixed day. Move in thoughtful manner with good use of resources. P.M.: some hidden advantages for sharp, alert eyes. Keep trying.

YOU BORN TODAY are idealistic, thoughtful, able. Lean toward the scientific and philosophical. Fond of good company and travel. Build your self-assurance; correct any retiring attitude that holds back accomplishing aggressiveness. Associate with aggressive people than yourself. Sometimes you are contradictory in behavior. Are truly understanding, affectionate. Don't let a seeming indifferent attitude come upon you. The happy medium is best in long run. And pep up in matters less interesting but necessary. You may have hidden talent for creative expression.

SCOHARIE

Young Couple Feted With Gifts

Scoharie — About 90 friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wannamaker on Saturday evening to tender a miscellaneous shower to Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lloyd nee Mabel Wannamaker, who were married on Tuesday.

Ross Foster acted as chairman for a program of musical numbers interspersed with humorous readings. He then called on Miss Fernie Smith to read an address to the young couple and a decorated basket of gifts was carried in by the Misses June Mackey and Ann Lloyd.

This basket was refilled several times and the young couple received many lovely gifts, including a silk comforter, two electric lamps and china.

Ted, on behalf of his bride, thanked everyone for their kindness and lovely gifts. "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung.

During this singing, balloons suspended over the bride and bridegroom burst mysteriously showering them with confetti.

Refreshments were served by several of the ladies, assisted by John Lloyd and Ross Foster and the guests departed leaving their best wishes with the bride and bridegroom.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Foster and Darlene were recent Sunday guests of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McWilliam, Picton.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the Rutter family in the loss of wife and mother. Deepest sympathy is also extended to Mrs. Ed. Wood and Mrs. Angus Walters in the loss of a brother, Mr. Lorne Gerow, Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. William McWilliam were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Foster and Darlene.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Leavitt of Wooler, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stone.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Walker, Bancroft; Miss Aileen McGee and Mr. James F-rackett, L'Amable; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hubbs and girls, and Mr. and Mrs. William McGee were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John McGee, the occasion being Miss Grace McGee's birthday.

STIRLING

EUCHRE PARTY

Stirling—The C.W.L. of St. James Church held a successful euchre party last Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cox. Nine tables were in play.

The prizes were as follows: ladies' high, Mrs. Frank Long; men's high, Mr. F. Johnston; consolation prize, Mrs. J. O'Donnell; lone hand, Mr. Jack Ryan.

Refreshments were served at the close.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lake were tendered a farewell party on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Carlisle and family and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rupert attended the play and pie social at Carmel on Tuesday evening.

Misses A. O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative ,and Frank Stone, assistant agricultural representative, attended an extension course at O.A.C. Guelph, last week.

Messrs. Fred Donohoe, Howard Munro, and Harry Philp acted as jurors at the session of the Supreme Court of Ontario held in Belleville last week.

Mrs. E. G. Bailey underwent an operation last week. She is progressing as well as can be expected.

A good number attended the pancake supper on Tuesday evening in the parish hall, sponsored by St. John's Ladies' Guild.

New Governor-General

Canada's first native-born Governor-General, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, inspects his guard of honor on his arrival at Ottawa Thursday to be sworn into office and officiate at the opening of Parliament. The guardsmen, 100 men in bright red jackets, freshly-pressed trousers and high black busbys (hats) are a unit of the Governor-General's Foot Guards. — (CP Photo.)

More Precious Than Rubies

By Nina Wilcox Putnam

"Who's that?"

Instead of answering Alma closed the door hastily and fled down the stairs in a panic. The dark, old-fashioned house had become stifling, filled with an undefinable menace which centred about the now more than ever sinister figure of Mrs. Denton. It was a relief to get out into the street and Alma did not slow her pace until she reached the corner. For the moment the errand on which Alma had come was forgotten in the shock of what she had just seen.

So Mrs. Denton wasn't a cripple. She was as active as Alma herself! How long had she been cured, and why had she concealed the fact? Small, apparently disconnected incidents began to piece themselves together forming a pattern in Alma's mind, which grew momentarily more clear.

Now Alma Conroy remembered the curious fact that Mrs. Denton had "come to say goodbye" a full day in advance of going on her trip to Mexico. There was also that little business of dropping that handkerchief. What had that handkerchief contained? Its contents, if any, could easily have been spilled in between the slats of the grille on the eve of the floor being taken up by Higgins, the new gold-buying company!

The Albert and Victoria pin was small. Mrs. Denton, it was now obvious, could have taken it, or anything else she wished, out of those inaccessibly placed cases in the appraisal department. And of course, Mrs. Denton was about the only person at Trumbull's who would not be suspected.

The more she thought of it the more sure Alma became that there had been something concealed in the handkerchief the old woman had dropped. Had it been the British jewel or something else? Perhaps Mrs. Denton had the pin in her possession at this very moment, intending to claim the $20,000 reward. But no, that idea was nonsense! She would not dare attempt doing anything so direct. The floor of the workroom must hold the solution of the thefts.

But it was strange that Mrs. Denton should be going to Mexico. Alma's heart skipped a beat at the suspicion this thought gave rise. How much was Joe involved? And Tommy—what part had he in this whole affair? Had he and Joe been playing some sort of crooked game together? No, that simply didn't make sense. She couldn't think of a mortal scrap of evidence which linked the activities of Tommy and Joe for many weeks past.

She stood on the street corner, hesitant, wondering what to do next the shoe-box heavy under her arm. She felt as though she had been carrying it forever. A glance at her watch showed her that it was already after four o'clock. She had promised to meet Tommy at five with the money. Now she had neither the cash nor any certainty about when if ever she would see her husband again. It was too late to go back to Trumbull's even if she had felt able to do so. She simply had to go someplace where she could hold her aching head and think things out quietly, yet she was almost afraid to return to her apartment. The police might come: might already be there, waiting. But there did not seem to be any other place to go. Reluctantly she turned toward home.

Even before she used her latchkey she knew that Tommy was in the flat. There were no voices, but she could hear his light, dancer-like tread pacing the floor. That extra sense which was the basic essence of their relationship, tugged at her intimately, telling her that he was impatient and anxious, wishing for her violently. And a sort of holy rage swept over her. This, she thought, is going to be a showdown to end all showdowns.

I am going to call on everything decent which has ever existed between us, and use it to wring the truth out of him, if it kills us both. No matter what that thruth is, no matter how it hurts or what facing it lets us in for, we are going to face it together and take whatever punishment is necessary. There is going to be no more fooling myself about Tommy, no more protecting him. He's going to stand on his own two feet now, either beside me or away from me. But heaven give me strength, he's going to stand!

Opening her purse Alma took out the cuff link, concealed it in the palm of one hand, and then opened the door.

Tommy turned toward her with a quick anxious gesture his face tired and drawn.

"Did you get it?" he asked immediately. Alma did not answer. She threw her furs and her package onto the sofa and stood facing him, her eyes fixed steadily on his waiting for his reaction as she shook her head slowly in answer to his question. Then she uncurled her hand and let him see what she held inside it. But Tommy did nothing dramatic. He merely raised his eyebrows in mild curiosity.

"Hello!" he said. "Where on earth did you get that?" Then a petulant shadow crossed his face. "Now I suppose there will be a row about my having given them away!" he added, defensively.

She was watching every gesture he made, every shadow of expression on his face, and now relief flooded her. Tommy was no actor. She had always been able to see through his best pretences and he was not acting now. But she had to make perfectly certain.

"That depends on whom you gave them to," she said evenly. "That shirt you have on, Tommy—let me see the cuffs!"

He held them up so that she could see he was wearing a pair of plain gold links which he'd had for years.

"What on earth are you driving at, Jewels?" he demanded. "I gave those moonstone links to Bright Muncie, if you want to know the truth. I wore them one day and he admired them a lot. I'd had a few drinks, so I insisted on his taking them and he's been wearing them ever since. I was afraid to tell you, after you'd gone to so much trouble making them especially for me. But Bright had been so regular, giving me this new job and the chance to make good in your eyes, that I . . . and now, I've spent the money he trusted me with . . . and you can't raise it. I feel like a swine!"

Tommy Conroy sat down abruptly his face in his hands.

Alma drew a deep breath. So it was Bright Muncie who had been in that office where the man lay murdered! For all his petty weaknesses, Tommy was incapable of such a crime and she should have known it all along. She went over to him and touched his hair gently.

"Tommy something very serious has happened," she began. "We may be involved. The only way we can be of help to each other, is by being truthful. I beg you, in the name of everything we have meant to each other, be frank!"

"All right," he said. "What is it?"

"A man has been killed. At the Mammoth Gold-buying Company's offices. I went there to sell our old jewelry. And I picked this cuff-link up on the floor." She told him the details and then added, "why would Bright Muncie have been there?"

"Good heavens, I don't know, Alma! Of course, in his position as assistant general manager, Bright took care of getting the bids for the workroom sweepings. But this year Mammoth didn't even put in a bid."

"Look here, Tommy! It's time you told me all about your new job with Bright—I don't care how confidential it's supposed to be."

His face was more serious, his eyes more truthful than she had ever seen them before. "Too confidential, I'm beginning to think!" he said grimly. "But I swear all I've ever done or been told to do was to collect payments due and hand them over to Bright!"

"Have you ever collected from Mammoth?"

"No. Never!"

"From Higgins, the winning company on the floor sweeping bid?"

"Yes. The first time was when I bought you the silver foxes. Bright gave me a package to take down. I don't know what was in it."

"That was quite a while ago. Anything since then?"

"Yes. Last night, after midnight."

"After midnight?"

"I was sent down right after the sweeping was over. The carpenters had started laying the new floor."

"Bright sent you, I suppose. And who gave you the money?"

"Higgins himself. In his private office. Part of it was intended for me. Having all that cash to spend was what got me into trouble."

"And the rest you were to turn over to Bright?"

"Well, yes. At least I was supposed to hold it until Bright asked for it."

"Until Bright asked for it personally? Why not turn it in to the cashier at Trumbull's?"

"I understood the money was to be used in some dealings with the diamond curb market along the Bowery—the sort of thing The House couldn't do officially but which was necessary because of the diamond shortage."

"And Bright made these curb-market deals personally or through Higgins and Company?"

"I honestly don't know."

They were looking at each other with growing comprehension. Alma got the feeling that for the first time in months they were working toward a genuine co-operation.

"Jewels," he said at length "I'm beginning to think that the smell Hamlet noticed in Denmark was a bunch of roses compared to what we're up against here!"

Despite the seriousness of the moment she could not help smiling; it was so good to glimpse the old Tommy through the uncertain mists which had been separating them.

"No matter what he did," she said "we've always thought of Bright as Mr. Muncie's son, first. It made him practically immune to any very serious criticism."

"It certainly did in my mind. But now I'm not so sure. The Mammoth firm has always put in a bid. Could they have been deliberately prevented from doing so this time? If Bright had been threatened with exposure by Mr. Wheeler, the manager, he might have gone there this morning. To try to stop it."

"Wait! We must not think too fantastically. Tommy, have you ever had any other contacts through the Higgins Company? Outside of Bright?" He thought a moment and then frowned.

"Only one," he said at length. "After I was paid off last night Mr. Higgins gave me some stuff to take to Mrs. Denton. Wanted a Trumbull appraisal of it. But there is nothing unusual about that: The House appraises for lots of small firms."

"What was wrong with their own bonded messenger?"

"Nothing that I know of. Higgins knew I'd be going to The House this morning and just asked me to hand her the stuff, which I did. Said his messenger would pick up the receipt later."

"I thought I had a first class ideology where Trumbull's was concerned," she said slowly, "but I'm a suspicious sleuth beside you! Tommy, what have you thought about the thefts at The House? Doesn't this begin to hook up with them?"

It certainly began to make a pattern for Alma. She thought of Mrs. Denton, a greedy woman who demanded luxuries. She worked as an assistant to Marie Leshinka, the chief appraiser. Frankly eager for extra money, a selfish, cruel woman, even though she was an expert at her work.

"What do you mean?" Tommy asked.

"Think Tommy. Think. It's clear enough."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was werking at her desk after supper, saying to pop, William, congradulate me.

Congradulations, my dear, pop said, and ma said, I'll tell you what for. Today for the ferst time my weekly budget ballences perfectly. The marketing expenses for the kitchin come out absilutely even with my budget allowance for the week, she said.

Well by gollies that really comes under the head of news, pop said. Now that you know the trick, you'll keep your budget with its nose to the dotted line week after week, rite along. The science of economics runs on the same principals in the home as it does in offices and banks. There are two sides to every ledger, even if it's only a stray sheet of paper, as yours seems to be. My dear, you're a home economist, he said.

I just knew I could make it ballence if I percyveered, ma said. Of course I admit I needed a little practice to get experience, she said, and pop said, Well naturelly. Even professional bookkeepers often have to werk overtime, he said.

It was a grand and glorious feeling when I realized that today was Thersday and my budget wasn't overdrawn, ma said. Oh dear, I only hope it wasn't just an accident, she said, and pop said, Dont worry, my dear, I'm sure you'll give me the same report when 7 more days roll around.

But it's only 4 days till Monday, ma said, and pop said, Heh?

I only allow 4 days for the actual ballencing, and the rest of the week I go on a day basis, ma said. That's quite difficult enough, I assure you," she said.

Not being quite the end of the subject.
